QUINCY'S OBSERVANCE OF MEMORIAL DAY

Patriotic Societies Unite In Decorating Graves Of Heroes of Civil War

Memorial day was observed in Quincy with its time honored custom of appropriate exercises at the churches and in the decorating of the graves of those who fought in the civil war, who have answered the last roll call and have gone on before.

With the Women's Relief corps the observance commenced Saturday evening with a service for the sailor soldiers. These exercises were held on the old steamboat wharf near the Quincy Point bridge. In addition to the members of the corps there were representatives from the ladies aid society, the Grand Army and Sons of Veterans as well as members of the Women's Relief of Weymouth and Braintree.

The service was in charge of Mrs. Eliza A. Penniman, patriotic instructor of the corps and opened with the singing of "Nearer my God to Thee." The ritualistic service was then read by Mrs. Agnes G. Fletcher, president and Mrs. Jennie M. Holton chaplain of the corps. This was followed by a solo "We shall meet beyond the river" by Mrs. Herbert R. Morton with violin obligato by Miss Mattie Hanson. Rev. Alfred Ray Atwood offered prayer and Mrs. Kate A. Blaisdell read "A true story of the war" the musical part of the selection being sung by Mrs. Morton.

The members of the several societies then gathered on the edge of the wharf and cast flowers into the water which were carried toward sea in the outgoing tide.

Brief remarks followed by Francis P. Loud, Senior Vice Commander of Paul Revere post, Frank Stoddard, Senior Vice Commander of the Sons of Veterans and Mary E. Holbrook president of the Ladies' Aid society. The exercises closed with the singing of "America."

Sunday morning the Post with members of the relief corps, Ladies Aid, and Sons of Veterans attended divine services at the West Quincy Methodist church. The church was very prettily decorated for the occasion with the National emblem. About the desk was draped a flag on the front of which was a picture of President Lincoln. Along the front of the platform and about the choir seats bunting was draped.

The service was conducted by Rev. Carl H. Raupach, the pastor of the church and opened with an organ voluntary, and singing of a hymn. Master Leslie McCormick gave a recitation and Misses Clara Olson and Edith Nichols sang the "Star Spangled Banner" the audience rising as they commenced to sing.

The address was by Rev. Mr. Raupach the pastor who took for his text Psalms 46:11. "The Lord of hosts is with us."

In opening the pastor said we welcome the defenders of our flag with their sons and daughters, wives and mothers who are here to meet with us in divine worship. Let us not forget that all over the country today a small company of aged men, with broken step and marked with the scars of conflict on them are attending divine worship. Ere another day has passed we shall find them marching with muffled drums and with loving hands place flowers on the graves of their comrades. Although there was the war of 1860 and 1898 he was glad there was but one great war and that we have but one memorial day, for both armies fought for one cause, the cause of righteousness. He longed for one day when all business should stand still and every sport cease.

He then spoke briefly of some of the great battles and said "you were there" and heard the cannon roar. We realize that you are misunderstood in your enthusiasm as you rehearse these scenes. Men of the Grand Army will live over those scenes again tomorrow. We do understand that the cause for which you fought was a mighty cause that there is still an Almighty God. Every race that has been lasting has always stood for something. Our own nation has always stood for one great people and one great civil liberty from the very beginning.

In the heart of every Anglo Saxon race there burns the desire for liberty. He believed Almighty God had called us to this trust and he has proved that He will be with us. No nation could have ever developed and prospered as ours, had not underlying all was the hand of God. Abraham Lincoln was not chosen by man but by the apostle of God, that the high and low might enjoy for all time the freedom of liberty.

Speaking of the war of 1898 he said that God was also there. He has called us to a higher liberty than civil life, to the breaking of the chains that bind down men to sin. Shall we be true to this higher trust? The slavery of the twentieth century is still in force. Strong drink still has its awful form. Let some modern Abraham Lincoln call for an army to fight the awful foe. From every hillside let the cry go forth "we are coming Father Abraham, one hundred thousand strong."

The service closed with the singing of "America" and benediction.

SUNDAY EVENING.

Sunday evening the members of the post accompanied by the Women's Relief corps, Col. Abner B. Packard, camp Sons of Veterans, the Ladies Aid society and members of John A. Boyd camp Spanish War Veterans attended services at the Universalist church. Rev. C. H. Paddock preached an eloquent sermon to the veterans on "Life's Warfare" his text being, "I have fought a good fight." In the course of his address the speaker said he regretted that he was not a son of veteran. His father had tried to enlist during the war but had been rejected for disability, and the speaker was not old enough to enlist.

During the services there was special musical numbers by the choir and at the close the audience rose and united in singing "America."

MEMORIAL DAY.

There were more graves than ever to decorate this Memorial Day; the ranks of the "boys in blue" were thinner than ever as a result, but behind the old flag as it went from cemetery to cemetery throughout the city and even beyond the limits wherever a Quincy soldier lay buried, there was the same spirit, the same loyalty and the same devotion that followed the starry banner through four years of one of the most terrific wars the world has ever seen.

In the gathering of Grand Army veterans who gathered at headquarters yesterday morning to begin the ceremonies that fall to their lot on each Memorial Day, where men who had faced death in its most terrible forms that the flag might float aloft unsullied with not a star missing from its place. There were men in that gathering who had been with McClellan, with Hooker, with Burnside, Meade, Sheridan and Grant and others had followed Sherman from Atlanta to the sea. Still others there were who had served beneath the naval jac okn the seas but yesterday there were no corps lines, no divisions of the service; each man met in common fraternity as a member of the Grand Army and each, by a younger generation, was the object of admiration and patriotic pride.

Warren Dunbar was officer of the day, Sergt. Maj. James H. Webb had charge of the invited guests and the arrangements at Faxon hall where the commands had luncheon, were in charge of Edward J. Lennon. Early in the morning, before most of the city was astir, Comrade Parrott went to Mt. Auburn cemetery in Cambridge where he placed wreaths on the graves of Col. Paul J. Revere, for whom the local post was named and who, by the way, was a grandson of Paul Revere of revolutionary war fame, and also on the grave of Samuel W. Spear.

A detail of two men, in charge of Senior Vice Commander Thomas Ring, and accompanied by the chaplain of the day, Rev. Carl H. Raupach, went to the little cemetery connected with the National Sailors' home, Wollaston early in the morning. Rev. Mr. Raupach conducted a religious service here and the little white marble headstones which mark the graves of the sailors who have died at the Home, were decorated with wreaths. This cemetery differs from the others in the city where Post members are buried in that each grave is decked with a naval jack, instead of the national flag, which shows that the man buried underneath served in the navy during the war. The naval jack is simply the blue field, studded with stars, that is seen in the national ensign. The graves of the soldier dead in Mt. Wollaston cemetery were decorated by a command of 25 men in charge of Junior Vice Commander Francis P. Loud and the graves in the Hancock and old English cemeteries were decorated by a detail of 10 men in commond of Officer of the Day Warren Dunbar. All of these graves were

TAFT'S TRIBUTE TO "REGULARS"

Services Never Adequately Commemorated by Nation

WANTS LARGE STANDING ARMY

Says Present One Is Barely Commensurate With Increase In Population and Wealth of the Country—Unveiling of Monument to Memory of Men Who Fell In Conflict at Gettysburg

Gettysburg, Pa., June 1.—Monday was the day of tardy honor to the "Regulars" at Gettysburg. An imposing shaft of granite, erected by congress to the memory of those of the regularly enlisted forces who fell in the three days' fighting about the Round Tops and at the Bloody Angle, was unveiled by the president's daughter, Miss Helen H. Taft, while President Taft himself eulogized officers and men of the United States army, past and present.

GETTYSBURG MONUMENT.

The president placed himself on record as opposed to any reduction in the present standing army. He declared the necessity of maintaining always a standing army of appreciable size to serve as the nucleus for a greater armed force in time of need.

President Taft described the prejudice which has often arisen against the possible aggressions of a regular army and a professional soldiery and of the corresponding difficulty in arousing that love for and pride in the army which expresses itself today and has frequently expressed itself in the past in the navy.

The president asserted that the services of the regular army have never been adequately commemorated by congress or the nation. "The profession of arms has always been an honorable one," he declared. The present army he described as the largest in the history of the country, but not larger in proportion to the increase in population and wealth than in the earlier years of the republic.

"All honor," exclaimed Mr. Taft, "to the regular army of the United States. Never in its history has it had a stain upon its escutcheon."

The ceremonies of the unveiling were simple. Miss Taft pulled the silken cord which released the flags draped about the monument, and in falling one of them caught on a bronze eagle decorating one of the inscribed tablets. A trooper gave the flag a tug, but it could not be released until quite a hole had been torn in the fold of the stripes.

The president spoke from a platform erected near the monument. He was followed by Secretary Dickinson, who presented the monument to the battlefield commission, the speech of acceptance being delivered by Colonel Nicholson, chairman of the commission.

After the unveiling, the president walked to the base of the towering granite column and there reviewed the troops. When the review was concluded, the president hurried back to the city and to his waiting train. He was escorted by a troop of cavalry which had to go at a full gallop at times to keep up with the presidential party. The president left at 3:45 p. m. for Washington.

On his way to Gettysburg from Pittsburg the president's car was sidetracked at York for two hours, and during his stay he made a brief speech in which he declared his hope of the early enactment of a tariff bill—"if the Lord will only be good and send some real hot weather in June."

Must Permit the Babies In Flats

Chicago, June 1.—Governor Dineen declares that he will sign the bill passed by the legislature which provides that no lease for an apartment house shall contain a clause barring children. It was introduced by Representative McNichols, who has children of his own, and was chased successively out of flats on this account.

Auto Crashed Into Crowd

Bridgeport, Conn., June 1.—Six men, spectators of the hill climbing automobile races, were injured, one probably fatally, when the 50-horsepower car driven by Glenn Eldridge jumped the road and after colliding with a small tree crashed into the crowd.

BOSTON LETTER

Prorogation Seems Quite Distant at Present Time

NEW HAVEN BILL INTERESTS

Boston Charter Measure Will Cause Warm Discussion—Labor Leaders Criticized Regarding Eight-Hour Bill—Republicans Have No Contests on State Ticket

It looks as if the prorogation of the legislature was quite distant. There are several very important measures still before the great and general court which will require time to consider. The most important of these, in a general way, is the bill authorizing the creation of a holding company for the Billard stock in the Boston and Maine railroad. Governor Draper considers it of the first importance that the control of the Boston and Maine system shall be held in Massachusetts. At the present time nearly a majority of the stock is held, ostensibly, by Banker Billard of Connecticut. The actual control of this great railroad system, which is essentially a Massachusetts corporation, has departed from the state.

If a holding company, chartered by the state of Massachusetts, is permitted to hold this stock, the corporation would always be amenable to Massachusetts laws and Massachusetts control. Level-headed business men consider this much better for the commonwealth than permitting the control to go outside of the state, as has the control of the Boston and Albany within recent years. The experience of the state with the Albany has convinced many that we ought to retain in some way or other the control of the New Haven here at home.

The bill proposed aims to provide that a majority of the directors of the holding corporation shall always be residents of Massachusetts and puts a string upon the system so that it cannot get away from Massachusetts control.

There is some opposition to the legislation proposed by the governor, but it is not nearly as strong as it has been in former years and there is a probability of its becoming law.

Labor Men Are Criticized

A good many labor men are much disturbed over the action of their representatives at the state house in refusing to make concessions which might save the eight-hour bill. This bill constitutes eight hours a day's work for public employes working for the state or any county therein, or any city or town which has accepted the provisions of the act for an eight-hour day. It also applies to all contractors engaged on public work in cities or towns which had accepted the eight-hour day statute.

The practical objection to the bill was not to the principle therein but to the drastic language in the fifth section, in which it was provided that at any trial arising under the act, evidence that laborers, workmen or mechanics had worked or were working over eight hours in any one calendar day should be prima facie evidence of the violation of this act. It was pointed out that the section was probably unconstitutional to start with and that it imposed upon contractors unnecessary hardship in that they might be fined or imprisoned for men working over time when they might have no personal responsibility or knowledge of such acts.

The labor men were told long before the bill went to the governor that there was grave objection to this section and that its passage would be endangered if it was not changed. One labor representative was in favor of changing the section, but the majority refused to accept any modification. When it had passed both branches of the legislature and went to the governor, he immediately detected the danger in this section and let it be understood that he would not sign it unless that was changed. One of the leading labor men in charge of the bill was strenuously in favor of conceding this, but the majority declined to yield a single point and the bill was vetoed. Had the concession been made, the bill would have been withdrawn from the governor by the senate, the change made in section 5, and sent to the house for concurrence. Then it would have gone back to the governor and now be a law on the statute books of the commonwealth.

It is felt by many that some of these labor leaders were used by the Democrats in an effort to array labor against Governor Draper. The fact that many labor men are condemning their leaders for their bull-headed obstinancy shows that some of the labor men at any rate know where to place the blame for this failure to secure legislation.

The Boston Charter Bill

The Boston charter bill is one of the principal measures engaging the attention of the great and general court. The situation as it stands today is a good deal mixed. There is on one hand tremendous opposition to the passage of the bill and on the other strong support. As reported, the bill is based on the recommendations of the finance commission, and if enacted is to be voted upon by the people.

The measure provides for a permanent finance commission, the administration of departments by trained experts approved by the civil service commission, the initiative of the budget by the mayor, more careful safeguarding of long-time contracts entered into by the city, increase in the power of the auditor, strict provisions preventing the interference of the city council in matters of city contracts and city labor, and the regular publication of a City Record. This part of the bill is not referred to the people.

The second part gives them an opportunity to make a selection from two different plans. The first provides for a two-year term for mayor, a city council of thirty-six, nine elected at large and twenty-six by wards with a minority representation, and a return to the old convention system. The second plan calls for a four-year term for the mayor subject to recall after two years, a city council of nine members elected at large for three-year terms and nominations by petition, with the abolition of party designations on the ballot. The plan favored by the majority of those voting upon these alternatives would become law.

It looks as if the measure might have a stormy time in the house with a possibility of passage, while in the senate it will probably be strongly favored.

State Politics Very Quiet

There is very little interest in political matters just at this time. There is likely to be no change in the personnel of the Republican state ticket this fall. The appointment of Treasurer Chapin to the savings bank department and the election by the legislature of Senator Elmer A. Stevens to succeed him as treasurer removes the only position which might have caused a contest this fall. There has been some talk of Attorney General Malone declining another term, but it is quite unlikely that he will do so.

Democrats seem to be willing that James H. Vahey of Watertown shall be renominated as the Democratic candidate for governor. As a matter of fact, nobody else seems to care for the nomination, anyway, which is a pretty fair indication of the feeling among Democrats that it will be very difficult for them to elect a governor this year under any conceivable circumstances.

SEATTLE FAIR OPENS ON TIME

President Taft Presses Button That Starts Wheels In Motion

KEY IS OF GOLD NUGGETS

Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition Is Under Way, With Buildings and Gounds Completed and Exhibits In Place, Bearing Out the Motto of "the Show That Will Be on Time"—Scenic Beauty and Novel Features

Seattle, June 1.—The Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition is open. At 12 o'clock, Seattle time, President Taft pressed the button which set the machinery in motion, using for the purpose a key formed of Alaska nuggets.

As the wheels in the various buildings began whirring and the latest of the world's fairs was declared officially opened one feature that excited the enthusiastic comment of the great crowds present was that the management had lived up to its motto of "the show that will be on time."

Not only were the buildings completed and the grounds covered with grass and flowers, as though they had been planted for years, but every exhibit was in place. It is the first time any exposition has actually opened on the opening day, and the departure has proved most welcome to the visiting thousands.

The ceremonies on the grounds began two hours before President Taft, on the other side of the continent, pressed the button that made the great fair a living thing. The scene presented carried out Charles Dana Gibson's verdict after visiting the grounds that the A.-Y.-P. is the "most beautiful exposition ever planned." Situated between two fresh water lakes in a forest of great trees with one open colonnade showing a background from different angles, the natural setting to the picture is ideal.

There are the usual buildings seen at expositions, with the advantage that many of these are to be permanent and after the fair is closed on Oct. 15 will be turned over to the University of Washington, on whose campus the fair is held. The fact that the exposition grounds belong to a college is the cause of a third novelty, which is that this is a "dry" show, no intoxicating liquors being sold in the vicinity. Still a fourth unique feature is that this exposition did not ask Uncle Sam for a cent. The $600,000 which was spent on the government buildings was given voluntarily. To most these are welcome departures and have created favorable comment.

Represents Vast Territory

Originally it was intended to make this latest of the expositions simply an Alaskan fair on which $100,000 would be spent. Then the plan grew to include the Yukon. At last it was concluded to make it representative of the entire Pacific civilization that is awakening and springing into being all about the shores of the world's greatest ocean. It ended up by spending at least a hundred times the amount first contemplated.

The A.-Y.-P. is commemorative of no past event. It is hung upon tomorrow rather than yesterday, a prophecy rather than a memorial. It exhibits what are unknown and undeveloped, the potentialities of the Pacific northwest. Alaska and countries bordering on the Pacific. Otherwise stated, it is an exposition of what is very largely unknown rather than of the highest development. Alaska has remained first in the title and inspiration of the exposition.

This territory, for which we paid $7,200,000, produces three times that amount every year in gold alone. In the last forty years it has produced, besides its gold, $80,000,000 worth of furs, and its fisheries have handled a product valued at $96,000,000. The exposition serves to show Americans that Alaska is an empire of agricultural and forest wealth as well as a treasure box of minerals.

But, while the exposition is important as a means of exploiting Alaska, it has a much broader aspect and significance. It serves to focus attention upon the undeniable fact that Seattle, the chief city of Puget sound, is the natural gateway to the greatest of the world's markets. It is the shortest road to the most promising fields of trade extension in the orient and the focus of northwestern development in the United States.

The far eastern countries bordering on the Pacific, including the Philippines and Hawaii, have the most elaborate exhibits at Seattle that they have ever attempted anywhere. Here it is possible to find out what these countries need as well as what they produce. Japan perhaps more than any other eastern nation has grasped the commercial importance of the exposition, and its official representation has been carried out on a comprehensive scale.

For the amusement street of the exposition a novel name and many novel features have been found. What was the Midway at Chicago, the Pike at St. Louis, the Trail at the Portland exposition and the Warpath at Jamestown is called the Pay Streak at Seattle.

A LEPROSY TRAGEDY.

The Sacrifice of Kaomouna, the Hawaiian Beauty.

HER LIFE FOR HER MOTHER.

A Story Which Sheds a Bright Light Upon the Filial Devotion of Kanaka Women—The Reason a Baby's Advances Were Not Returned.

The usual Honolulu crowd was down at the dock when the steamship from San Francisco pulled alongside the pier on a brilliant, balmy afternoon in January some years ago. American women in summer afternoon costumes, a few English and a few German women of society, arrayed also for steamer day, leaned back languorously in their carriages and phaetons, under the shade of parasols, listening to the lazy complimentary talk of the duck clad, lei enwreathed young business men who combined duty with pleasure in thus waiting for the great steamer to slip laboriously into her measured berth beside the pier.

All of the Kanaka women had bare feet. They stood about in little groups as silent as the men of their race. A few of the Kanaka women carried tiny brown babies—silent also. The young women were of varying degrees of beauty, their figures showing a uniform excellence of proportion.

One of these Kanaka women at the dock on this brilliant January afternoon was particularly beautiful. She was clad like the rest of the women of her race. She was fully five feet ten inches in height, and the white silk cord with which, unlike the other Kanaka women, she drew her white dress about her waist emphasized the splendid heroic proportions of her figure. Kaomouna seemed quite unconscious of her beauty. The young shipping clerks, hurrying to and fro on the dock with their pencils behind their ears, stopped suddenly when they caught sight of her. The women in the carriages, who had not been long down from the States or from Europe, saw Kaomouna and asked the women of longer Honolulu residence, "Who is that glorious creature?" Kaomouna, with a very sad face, spoke only an occasional word to one of the Kanaka women.

The steamship was made fast to the pier, and the passengers began to troop over the gangplank. There was one man with his pretty young wife and three-year-old little girl. The little girl was the first to catch sight of Kaomouna as she reached the bottom of the gangway. She quickly freed her hand from her father's grasp and ran toward Kaomouna with baby words. Kaomouna smiled at the little girl, but did not offer to take her up. Instead she folded her arms, looking down at the little pink faced child pleasantly. When the mother had taken the little girl she raised her eyes to look at Kaomouna.

"Did you ever in your whole life see such a perfectly beautiful woman?" asked the young wife of her husband in a whisper when he came up. "And Tita seemed to take to her immediately. If we could only have her for a nurse for Tita!"

Kaomouna heard her.

"Kaomouna would love to be that," she replied in a soft Kanaka accented speech, smiling. Then a look of pain came into her face. "But it may not be—it may not be!" And, with her hands at her eyes, Kaomouna turned suddenly and disappeared among the departing men and women of her race.

Three months later the parents of the little girl were at the dock together to witness for the first time the saddest of sights—the departure of the lepers for the island of Molokai. The Kilauea Hou, the leper steamer, was out in the stream, and the lepers were being carried out to her in barges. A litter was borne through the roped inclosure for the lepers. On it lay a very old Kanaka woman in the final stages of the disease. At the side of the litter walked Kaomouna. Her face was very sad. The parents of the little girl wondered. They spoke to an official of the Hawaiian board of health, who was busy in the task of embarking the lepers.

"Surely," they said, "she does not accompany the lepers?"

"Who — Kaomouna?" replied the health official. "Oh, yes, she does. But it is her own choice. Kaomouna, you know, has been secreting her old mother for a number of years. We always knew there was something mysterious about Kaomouna—that is, we have known it for the last five years. She had made queer visits to a palm hut far over in the Nuuanu valley. Last week we followed her. We felt there was leprosy in it. We found her mother in the hut. Kaomouna had had her in hiding, trying to save her from Molokai, ever since the disease became evident. Kaomouna is not infected in the least. She has been careful. But she elects to follow her mother to Molokai. Extraordinary? Why, not at all! You do not understand the filial devotion of Kanaka women—men, too, for that matter. Such cases are common enough."

The parents of the little girl looked at each other. There were tears in the mother's eyes.

"That is why she folded her arms and would not touch Tita!" she said. "In this world of God, civilized or uncivilized, could there be anything more noble?"

All was ready, and the Kilauea Hou, with Kaomouna and her mother on board, slowly started down the harbor, the Kanakas on the dock setting up the weird, plaintive death wail.—Washington Star.

Zeppelin's New Airship Then Comes to Grief by Striking a Tree

Goeppingen, June 1.—After covering a distance of about 850 miles in thirty-seven hours, Count Zeppelin's new airship, on its return trip from Bitterfeld to Friedrichshafen, came to grief in an open field near here Monday. In manoeuvring for a landing the airship came into contact with a tree, and its position is very dangerous.

The envelope had been torn and the prow is broken, so that considerable time must elapse before the journey can be continued.

The position of the craft is extremely unfavorable, the ground being very hilly. The bow rests on the ground, while the stern is about sixty-five feet in the air.

That the collision was a heavy one is indicated by the broken and bent strips of aluminum lying about the ground and the half split branches dangling from the tree trunk.

BULLET HOLE IN TEMPLE

Cashier Chapman Did Not Trust to River to Ensure Death

Damariscotta, Me., June 1.—The body of Lincoln H. Chapman, cashier of the Newcastle National bank, who presumably committed suicide on May 17 by shooting, after wading about twenty feet into the Damariscotta river, was found Monday on the shore at Hall's Point, three quarters of a mile below the point where he is believed to have shot himself. There was a bullet hole in the temple.

The body was discovered by Captain Lamson of schooner Wellington, who was sailing in a small boat. It was in a good state of preservation.

Washington, June 1.—Vice Admiral Uriu of the Japanese navy, graduate of the United States naval academy at Annapolis, class of '81, declared last night that "the recollection and memory of old schooldays is a pleasure than which none greater has come to me as a result of my present visit to this country."

With Baroness Uriu, the Japanese admiral was the guest at a reception given by one of his Annapolis classmates, Representative Weeks of Massachusetts. There were about 500 invited guests, the class of '81 being joint guests of honor with the admiral. Diplomatic, official and social Washington was represented.

Some of the passengers had become uncontrollable from fear and had to be locked in their staterooms.

TWO CANOEISTS DROWNED

One a Strong Swimmer With a Record For Lifesaving

Boston, June 1.—The upsetting of a canoe in which they were fishing on the Charles river resulted in the drowning of Carl Johansen, aged 24, and Thor Fugelstead, aged 20.

Johansen was a strong swimmer and had saved five people from drowning at City Point on April 19 last. It is believed he must have been entangled in the long river grass.

Johansen had been married a year. Both victims were machinists.

MAKING GLASS RINGS.

An Interesting Experiment With Oil and a Bottle.

It is always a great satisfaction to make something out of nothing, and a bottle with a broken off neck is worth just about nothing and is generally considered as fit only for the ash pile. But there is a better way to treat it than that. In fact, it may be turned into a neat and serviceable vessel, or you may make out of it a number of glass rings that may not be of any particular service, but they certainly will be curiosities.

Place the broken bottle on the table and pour oil into it until it reaches a point just below the jagged edge.

BEFORE AND AFTER.

Your object is to cut off this jagged part and leave the rim smooth all around. In other words, you wish to convert the broken bottle into a sort of tumbler. All you have to do is to plunge into the oil a redhot poker and the glass will suddenly break straight around on a level with the oil.

That will give you a vessel that the cook will be sure to find use for. The only trouble is that she will bring you all the broken bottles she can find for similar treatment.

Now, if you want to make rings, say, half an inch in width, pour out half an inch of the oil each time and use the redhot poker as above directed.—Philadelphia Record.

FACTS ABOUT PINS.

How These Indispensable Little Articles Are Manufactured.

A few centuries ago pins were so expensive that only the rich could afford them. The poorer people used long thorns, fishbones or splinters of wood.

At the time of the Revolutionary war pins were made of iron and had one end filed to a point and a piece of fine wire twisted around the other end for a head.

In the early days of the United States pins were all made in Europe, and they became so scarce when the war of 1812 stopped their importation that the price rose to a dollar a package.

Nowadays in our big pin factories pins are made of fine wire just the thickness of pins. This wire is first straightened to take out the kinks and is then cut into pin lengths. One end of the wire is then struck so sharply that it flattens out and forms the head. Next the pins fall through a slot just wide enough to allow the stems of the pins to pass through. Hanging thus by their heads, the lower end of the pin blank is filed to a point.

The pins are now ready for the finishing touches. They are boiled in weak beer to remove the grease and dirt. Then a caldron is filled with alternate layers of pins and tin grains, over which certain chemicals are poured, and it is then put on the fire to boil. The pins emerge from this bath coated with tin, and after being washed in clean water and polished until they shine they are ready to be stuck in the papers in which we buy them.

To Make New Colors.

Have you ever tried mixing together two or three of the colors in your paint box, chicks, just to see what sort of tints you'll get?

Supposing you want to get a pretty shade of pink, all you have to do is to mix together a little white and a little crimson paint. You can make it lighter or darker by adding more white or more crimson. Try one day mixing together equal quantities of red, yellow and dark blue. What do you suppose you'll get as a result? You'll have a pretty shade of dark brown. Use black instead of the blue and you'll get quite a different shade of brown.

Mix one part black paint with three parts white and you'll have a pretty shade of gray, a sort of steel. Add a tiny bit of light blue and it will be almost the color of silver.

Try mixing yellow with blue. You'll be surprised to see what a pretty green it makes.

Stronger Than Steel.

It is not generally known that, size for size, a thread of spider silk is tougher than a bar of steel. An ordinary thread will bear a weight of three grains. This is as strong again as a steel thread of the same thickness.

Suppose.

MOURNING ETIQUETTE.

Conventional Time For Wearing the Trappings of Woe.

A widow may resume her society life after the first month of her widowhood has expired, in so far as paying calls is concerned, and after two months she may attend small informal gatherings and concerts. When three months have expired she may accept and give invitations to small dinners. This is the modern seclusion, but elderly women frequently make a compromise between the short and the long seclusion and do not accept or give invitations until six months have expired.

Next in importance is the period of mourning for a father or mother. This extends over twelve months, but a great difference consists in the period during which half mourning is worn. For instance, an unmarried daughter residing at home would wear black during ten months and half mourning for two months. A married daughter, on the other hand, living at a distance from her girlhood's home, would wear black for eight months and half mourning for four months or black for six months and half mourning for the same time. Then, again, young girls still in the schoolroom, of ages from ten to fourteen, are not expected to wear black longer than three months and to go into half mourning at the expiration of that time, commencing with black and white, followed by grays and half mourning shades. Little children are not put into mourning, but wear white with black trimmings. The seclusion followed on the death of a parent is but slight. Calling is resumed after the first fortnight and invitations accepted, as a rule, after six weeks or two months, save to balls and dances.

Next in order comes the mourning for a brother or sister. This period varies from four to six months. Black is worn during four months and half mourning for two months, or black is worn for three months and half mourning for the same length of time. For relations by marriage, a brother-in-law or sister-in-law, four months is the regulation time. It may be said that the mourning worn by a wife for her husband's brother or sister is usually longer than that worn for her sister's husband.

Formerly the period of mourning for grandparents was nine months, but now it is seldom longer than six months. This is divided into four months of black in the case of the granddaughters being unmarried and two months of half mourning. But if they are married and reside in another town black is usually worn for three months and half mourning for three months.

One word as regards the mourning worn for an uncle or aunt. The period is three months, and black is worn for two months and half mourning for one month, or there may be a shorter period, six weeks, during which time black is worn and no half mourning. This short period is only followed by married nieces who live far away from their relatives.

For a Summer Veranda.

The girl who wishes to render the verandas of the summer cottage attractive should take time by the forelock and make up an assortment of pillow covers. One of the most serviceable tops is of a new material which closely resembles leather and comes in red, blue, green and leather shades made up plainly and fringed with imitation leather fringe.

Burlap covers are embroidered with flower, foliage and bird designs or with fringe made by fraying the edges of the face and back of the pillow top.

Lingerie pillows are of muslin all over embroidery, of batiste banded and frilled with embroidery and of dotted and sprayed swiss. Any of the flowered lawns are pretty if finished with wide ruffles, and so are the Scotch ginghams striped in two tones of one color. Some of them have a broken tartan plaid border that makes an effective ruffle. Scotch madras in two tone or solid colors furnishes a serviceable and smart looking pillow top, and there are most attractive plain French linens in such shades as wistaria, catawba, champagne, vandyke brown and old rose.

Ecru scrim is an excellent material for a porch pillow cover and is charming when decorated with Dalmatian embroidery in oriental color combinations with embroidery silk. Cream colored scrim is used without a pattern, as is also the work.

For the Doeblinger work, done on colored monks' cloth, the eight fold Germantown yarn is used to develop art nouveau or oriental patterns.

A Safe Thing to Do.

When purchasing the material for a blouse or dress it is as well to get half a yard or so more, in view of alteration contingencies. If the dressmaker can be prevailed upon to return any pieces of waste the extra half yard might not be needed; also should the wearer be the maker of the blouse or bodice in question. But, of course, much depends on the style and the quantity purchased, as in many cases the pieces left over are not enough to do much in the way of renovation.

Carmen Sylva on Woman's Rights.

Mrs. Walker Fearn is lecturing in this country for the blind, and incidentally she is telling what she knows about the good queen of Roumania, Carmen Sylva. The queen is not a suffragist, and her opinions upon the subject were quoted as follows: "Women's rights? We have the right to suffer, to be patient, to work, to help, to be virtuous and to make men so. What more do we want?"

Continued in our next seems to be in order today for several columns of matter which we are unable to find room for.

The attendance of 1600 base ball "fans" at the opening of the league series yesterday seemed to answer effectively the oft-asked question: "Has Quincy any real sporting blood?"

Sunday and Memorial Day witnessed a number of tragedies along the city's shore line, one man being drowned at Squantum and two Quincy residents losing their lives by the overturning of a boat at Hull. The boating season is young yet but already the accident list is large. People cannot be too careful when out in boats and to go sailing with people who do not understand the manouvering of the craft they are sailing is like courting death. One lesson to be learned from the double tragedy of Sunday is that the names of people hiring boats should be taken before they leave shore so that identification can be made in case of fatalities.

Paul Revere post decorated 486 graves of soldiers and sailors yesterday. That, in itself, is quite a task for men of the age at which most of the Post members have arrived. It suggests that the time is not so very far distant when the number of decorations to be made will so increase that younger hands will be left to do this work of love and remembrance. Fortunately the members of the Sons of Veterans and Spanish War Veterans are showing the right spirit and promise to be worthy men to whom the Grand Army members can bequeath this Memorial day custom.

The spirit of remembrance was abroad in this city yesterday. Every cemetery was crowded with the living who had gathered to pay silent tributes of love to the memory of those who had departed. On all sides there were evidences that this beautiful custom made public by the members of the Grand Army is spreading to other organizations in our city. Several of these fraternal societies decorated the graves of departed members and it is safe to say that more societies will follow the custom next year. And it is well that this should be so. It is a healthy sign when the people bid business cease and throw the cares of the world behind them in order that they may have one day to remember those who have gone before to join the silent majority. If the Grand Army had never done anything but this it has made the world at large better because men and women cast aside business and unite in mutual tribute to the dead. It is to be regretted that all of the people of the country cannot recognize the solemnity of the day and refrain from making this Memorial holiday a holiday. It is a day of retrospection, of prayer, of thanksgiving. It should have a solemnity like that of a Sunday and to those who have lost near and dear ones by death it certainly has but to the many other thoughtless ones the significance is not so apparent.

SEVERAL DROWNED IN QUINCY WATERS

High Wind Sunday Causes Several Fatal Accidents

Owing to the very high wind Sunday there were several drowning accidents in the harbor as well as several narrow escapes.

During the morning two men, who appeared to be Swedes visited Harvey's landing at Houghs Neck and hired a boat to go fishing. They did not give their names and were not known to Mr. Harvey. Later in the day the boat was capsized off Pemberton in Hull Gut and the men drowned in front of thirty or more men who were unable to go to their assistance as all boats in that vicinity were securely fastened. Mr. Harvey does not know who the men were.

Monday relatives of Albion Hendrickson aged 20 years of 13 Franklin street and Charles Alfred Mattson aged 27 years of Arthur street reported that they were missing and it is thought they are the two men drowned. They left home early Sunday morning to go fishing and nothing has since been heard from them.

The description given of the men who hired the boat of Mr. Harvey tallies with that of the two missing men.

Hendrickson was unmarried but had a brother in Quincy. Mattson was married and had a wife and four children.

The Yacht Whisper owned by Harry Henderson was capsized off the Wollaston Yacht club house in Quincy Bay and the skipper rescued in an exhausted condition by three young men who went to his rescue.

George Field of Providence, William Field and Clifford Bean were on the shore and saw the yacht capsize. They ran to a dory tender and put out to his rescue. It was with considerable difficulty that they reached their power boat which was anchored a mile from shore. In this they hurried to Henderson's rescue. He was then clinging to the bottom of his overturend boat and nearly exhausted.

Raymond Lindberg of South Boston was drowned off Thompsons Island and four other men in the boat with him had a narrow escape. The five men were cruising in a yacht when a puff of wind capsized them. Lindberg sank immediately. The others clung to the overturned boat until rescued. The body was not recovered.

Monday Peter Coarisic of South Boston was drowned off Squantum while out rowing.

He was on a yacht anchored off the shore with a party who had sailed down the night before.

The men rowed to the main land for water where several big milk cans were filled.

Coarisic rowed back alone and the rest of the company walked to Squaw head, where he was to pick them up after he had taken the water aboard the yacht. Coarisic did not show up, however, and after the remainder of the party had waited a long time they made a search.

The dory was found overturned and later his body was found in three feet of water near the shore. Medical Examiner Jones viewed the body and gave permission to remove it to South Boston. Dr. Jones said death was due to accidental drowning.

The companions of Coarisic said he was a good swimmer and they cannot account for his drowning unless he was struck on the head and rendered unconscious when the boat turned over.

A DRIFTING MATCH.

Lack of Wind Prevents Quincy Yacht Club Boats From Finishing.

The race of the Quincy Yacht club scheduled for May 22, but postponed on account of the weather, was sailed Saturday, but the result was far from being satisfactory for lack of wind. The boats had not covered half the course when the wind flattened out and it became a drifting match until power boats were brought into service to tow the craft home.

There was an easterly breeze at the start and the race looked as though it would be an interesting one. The Emeline, Almira and Iris, the three old rivals got away well bunched with the Emeline in the windward position. Then came the Busy Bee, Aegeria and Josephine.

On the beat to Bumkin island buoy, the Almira pulled out a little from the bunch closely followed by the Busy Bee. At Peddocks the Almira still had the lead with the Busy Bee close upon her heels. On rounding the flag boat at the end of the first round the Almira was the first to cross with the Busy Bee and Josephine, Iris and Emeline in the order named.

When the boats had got to Sheep Island on the second round the wind which had been flattening out became almost a dead calm and this with the strong ebb tide made it impossible for the yachts to finish.

The class B boats met with the same fate and had to give up the race for lack of wind.

GAS IN THE STOMACH
MANY PEOPLE SUFFER WITH IT

About three out of five people suffer terribly with gas in the stomach, caused by indigestion. This produces a feeling of despondency, a pressure upon the nerves of the heart, causing dizziness and vertigo, pains in the head and neck, unendurable pains in the stomach extending up and under the lower ribs, nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and an all-run-down feeling.

A tired, overworked stomach caused by years of little outdoor exercise and too much hasitly eaten food causes an endless amount of ailments, such as Gas in the Stomach, Liver Complaint, Kidney Trouble, Nervous Breakdown, Blood Troubles, and Rheumatism, Sagwa restores the stomach and liver to a state of perfect health.

Among the Portland people who have been cured by using Sagwa is Melinda A. Smiley of 249 York Street, She makes the following statement: "About 12 years ago when I lived in Boston I was all run down, suffered with rheumatism, nervous wreck—didn't want to see anyone. My mother heard of the Kickapoo Indian Medicine—Sagwa, and purchased one bottle, and after taking this bottle I felt so much better that she decided to purchase two more—with the result that the three bottles made me well and strong as ever.

"And I am glad of an opportunity to voluntarily testify and recommend Sagwa to people who suffer from rheumatism and that all-tired-out condition. I authorize the Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co. to publish this my voluntary testimonial."

If you wish to test Sagwa before purchasing, we will gladly send you a free trial bottle by mail. There is a large demand for the Kickapoo Remedies, which are for sale at all drug stores. The Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co., Clintonville, Conn.

AN ENGLISH SOCIAL.

An "English social" was given in Protection hall Monday night, by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Newton of Revere road, in honor of the 21st birthday of their youngest son, Arthur. A large number of people, formerly residents of the young man's birthplace, West Haxtlepool, England, were present, besides many of his Quincy friends. There were two surprises during the evening, one being the presentation to the youth of a handsome set of Victor Hugo's works by his friends, the other a gift of a gold watch by his parents, brothers and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. T. Newton Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Albert Newton, Mr. and Mrs. T. Newton Jr., Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Best, and Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Cram of Conway, Mass.

Mr. E. Melbruish was chairman and under his supervision, dancing, singing and games were enjoyed, the music being furnished by Mr. A. Ed. Ellis of Roxbury at the piano, supplemented by Mr. Fred L. Goulston of Dorchester, cornetist, and Mr. James Newson of Quincy. Sandwiches, cake ice cream and tonics were served during the evening and the happy throng dispersed at midnight after a right merry time.

The young man is well known in Quincy, being President of the Sons of St. George, and prominently identified with the Galahad Brotherhood of Christ church, and a member of the church choir. He was in the offices of the Fore River Ship Building Co. for about three years, and is now with Luce & Manning, the oldest and one of the most prominent wholesale wool firms in Boston.

BATTLESHIP HERO REMEMBERED.

The grave of William J. Burke, who was killed in the explosion on the battleship Georgia two years ago while trying to extinguish a bag of powder that had caught fire in the after turret of his ship, was not forgotten Monday in the general observance of Memorial Day. The young men of the Makaria class of Bethany Congregational church joined in purchasing a flag and a floral decoration and these were placed on the young hero's grave in St. Mary's cemetery.

When the scout cruiser Salem leaves the Fore River Shipbuilding Co.'s plant where she is undergoing repairs she will make a visit to the city for whom she was named to take part in the old home week exercises July 25. She will anchor in the local harbor, off Salem Willows, opposite the summer home of President Taft.

OPENING GAMES OF NEW QUINCYS

They Lose to Taunton and Win From the Rocklands

With bands playing and flags flying the Old Colony league season was opened Memorial Day morning at the Water street grounds. A crowd of 1600 people watched the Quincy team go down to defeat before the Taunton nine, champions of the league last year. The game was an interesting one to watch even though there were a few errors which tended to slow th contest up a little. It was a representative crowd that filled the grandstand and surrounded the field, among those present in the throng being Mayor William T. Shea, Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell and Councilmen J. L. Whiton Jr., Alfred Gilson and William H. Flynn. There were also delegates present from the Waldorf club, the Adams A. A., Copeland club and the St. Mary's C. T. A. The day was an ideal one for baseball and the big crowd were out strong for the home team, rooting hard allthe time even when things looked blackest for the locals.

"Doc" Hurley of South Boston was on the slab for the local boys and behind the bat was Fred Smith the well known local star backstop. Hurley started off in good style holding the visitors to one hit and no runs for the first three innings. In the fourth the support which up to this time had been of the highest order began to get ragged and on two hits and a brace of errors Taunton got two runs. They got one more in the fifth and in the seventh when Hurley started to go up in the air, he was yanked from the box and "Sid" Patterson went to the mound. There were two men on the sacks at the time and the first man that faced Patterson got a stinging single to centre which scored the two men. "Sid" then put on the clamps and stopped the scoring. The playing of Spiller in the short field was something pretty to watch, the diminutive tosser accepting seven hard chances without the semblance of an error. Several times when things looked bad for his team he was there with a swell play that stopped a near balloon ascension.

Buck O'Brien was supposed to twirl for the visitors, but has been recalled to the Indianapolis team where he went this spring, to take the place of Ralph Glaze who has been released. He was instrumental in winning the pennant for the Taunton club last year and was considered the best in the league. However a namesake of his was on the slab and the crack Buck could not have done much better than Shimmer O'Brien, who had the local batters at his mercy the whole game. He also received the best of support, only one error being recorded against his team. He got away lucky several times, however, especially in the seventh when it looked as if Quincy was going to break up the game. Lonergan was passed to first for a starter and immediately set sail for second arriving safely at the desired buoy. He went to third on a slashing single by Hayes, the latter going to second on the first ball pitched. There was no one out when Smith came to bat. Fred is always there with men on bases and he was there this time, sending a hard drive to left. Lonergan scored easily on the hit and some foolish coaching sent Hayes on his way to the plate also. A pretty throw to the catcher headed him off and he turned to go back but was caught between the bases. One out. In the meantime Smith had rounded second and was starting for third when a quick throw from Monahan nailed him off the bag, Wiggin making a nice one-handed catch on the play. Two out. The next batter got a free ticket, but Patterson followed with a strike-out. It was a swell chance thrown away and was certainly a piece of dumb ball playing, although the Taunton boys must be given credit for their fast work.

Neither side scored for the first three innings, the game starting off with a rush. In the third O'Brien showed his class by retiring the side on strikes, getting Smith, Burke and Hurley in succession by the air. Taunton broke the ice in the fourth getting two tallies across the coveted pan. Donovan opened with a hit, Delback followed with a pretty sacrifice, Hayes dropping Donaher's throw at first and letting the spere get away from him.

Donovan kept on towards third on the muff and when Hayes threw to catch him, he made a wild heave in to the crowd. Donaher made a quick spurt to the ball and threw low to plate to catch the runner. Martin then came to time with a single scoring Delback. The next three were easy outs, but Quincy was two runs to the bad. The locals got one back in the fifth on a pass, a steal and an error by Delback. How their second run was made and how they lost a chance to score several has been told above. The score:

CUT BY FLYING GLASS.

Waino Wallenius was arrested by the police Monday upon complaints for disturbing a public meeting and for malicious mischief.

It is alleged that Wallenius threw a stone through the window of a hall on Nelson street Sunday night when the Finnish Temperance society were in session.

The flying glass cut several people who were treated by a physician. Wallenius disappeared but was arrested later at his boarding house by Officer Crooker. He was arraigned in court this morning.

K. OF C. MEMORIAL MASS.

A memorial mass for the departed members of Quincy Council, 96 K. of C., was celebrated at St. Mary's church, West Quincy, Monday morning at 9.30 and was largely attended by members of that order and others as well. The mass was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. Henry T. Grady and the music was furnished by a male choir from the Council. Rev. Fr. Grady spoke to the members of the Council after the mass and complimented them on their remembrance of departed members on such a beautiful occasion.

After the mass the members went to St. Mary's cemetery and placed a wreath of gaylax leaves, tied with a purple ribbon, on the graves of 11 dead members. Another wreath was placed on the grave of Rev. Francis A. Frigugliett, for 32 years pastor of St. John's church. At each grave prayers were offered by Edward J. Murphy, Grand Knight, the responses being said by the members of the Council. After the last grave had been decorated Grand Knight Murphy said he hoped this pretty custom would be perpetuated in future years.

Other organizations which decorated the graves of departed members Monday were Quincy lodge of Elks, Hodenosaunee ribe of Red Men and some of the Irish organizations. The latter organizations placed small Irish flags on the graves of their dead members.

IRIS A WINNER.

South Boston Open Race Brings Out Quincy Rivals.

Nearly all of the Quincy class D boats were out Monday and participated in the annual Memorial day open race of the South Boston club. All of the old rivale wers out and it was a scrappy race from start to finish.

All showed up without jibs and it was a pretty contest between the Iris, Almira and Emeline. Over the first two legs of the course the Emeline held the elad, with the Almira second and Iris third, but beating over to Fort Independence the Emeline and Almira struck a soft place, which allowed the Iris to go into first position and stay there. On corrected time the Emeline beat out the Almira for second prize by seven seconds.

MANUAL OF SUMMER RESORTS N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.

Concise and helpful information for the man who is planning a summer vacation for himself and family is contained in the manual of summer resorts just issued by the passenger department of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company.

More than a thousand summering places in the most charming sections of New England are mentioned in this book. It tells the vacation seeker how to reach these places. It gives the names and locations of the best hotels and boarding cottages, together with their rates and it contains much other information that will prove helpful to the summer tourist.

The summer resorts of New England reached by the lines of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company offer manifold attractions to vacationists. It's the combination of mountain, seashore and country that makes southern New England such a charming place for a summer vacation.

Here are the Connecticut shore resorts, offering endless opportunity for the enjoyment of fishing, sailing and bathing. Here are the Berkshire Hills. Stretching easterly from New London are the summer retreats of Watch Hill, Block Island, Narragansett Pier, Newport, Marthas Vineyard, Nantucket, Buzzards Bay and Cape Cod. The attractions of these places are pictured and set forth in such an alluring way in the New Haven Road's summer publications that it makes you want to pack your grip and start forthwith.

Copies of these books are sent free if you write to A. B. Smith, General Passenger Agent, Room 139, New Haven, Conn.

Not Too Often.

"They tell me New England is full of old maids," said the Philadelphia girl. "Now, I suppose you Boston girls don't often marry?" "No; only once, as a rule," replied the Boston girl.—Philadelphia Record.

NON-UNION MEN RUNNING CARS

Brought From Outside Cities to Break Philadelphia Strike

MOVE NOT VERY SUCCESSFUL

No Cars Taken From Barns After Early Evening Because of Hostile Demonstrations by Strike Sympathizers—Mayor Announces Determination to Have the Public Accommodated—Labor Supports Men

Philadelphia, June 1.—Strikebreakers from other cities were put to work Monday in an effort to break the strike of the motormen and conductors of the street car lines of this city. Notwithstanding these importations not a car left any of the barns after 8 o'clock last night and at 10 o'clock the last car had been taken off for the night.

Incensed at strikebreakers being brought here, sympathizers of the striking street car men made demonstrations at the car barns where the new men are quartered and many arrests were made. Many of the prisoners were charged with nothing more than calling names. Considering the number of men on strike there have been remarkably few acts of violence.

One of the chief demonstrations was made at one of the West Philadelphia barns, when strikebreakers, under heavy police guard, began taking out cars. A squad of mounted police had to charge the crowd repeatedly before it dispersed. Finally, the cars were started, but most of them ran almost empty the entire length of the route.

Mayor Reyburn states that he will swear in 10,000 extra policemen, if necessary, and keep the cars running for the convenience of the public. The public will be accommodated, the mayor said, "if the city has to take over the transit company's lines and run them itself with the firemen, the police and the extra police."

At a meeting of the strikers last night, President Murphy of the Central Labor union pledged that body's support to the trolley men. "If the Rapid Transit company don't come to time by Thursday," he said, "there will be a general strike declared by Friday. We will parade Broad street on Saturday and show them our strength."

The saloons were closed at 6 o'clock last night and remained closed until 6 o'clock this morning. The mayor says that this precautionary step will be taken every night until there is absolutely no probability of rioting.

JOB FOR ARBITRATORS

Only Way In Which Georgia Railroad Strike Can Be Settled

Atlanta, June 1.—Unable to agree upon the terms of settlement, the officials of the Georgia railroad and of the Brotherhood of Firemen have invoked arbitration under the Erdman law. Commissioner of Labor Neill and Chairman Knapp of the interstate commerce commission last night reluctantly gave up hope of bringing the warring elements together.

Commissioner Neill notified both parties to the dispute to name an arbitrator within five days. These two men will select a third. The Erdman act provides that should the two arbiters be unable to agree upon the third member of the commission, he must be named by Knapp and Neill. The decision of the arbitrators is made binding by law.

The disagreement came over the retention of negroes. When the men returned to work Saturday, the road agreed that the status of April 10, when the trouble begun, should be restored. The company had then promoted several negroes to good runs and removed white firemen to make room for them. Already the company has restored the white firemen to their old runs. All other disputed points and demands were conceded except the seniority of white men and the limitation as to the number of negroes employed.

MACHINISTS CALLED OUT

General Strike In Baltimore and Ohio Road's Repair Shops

Baltimore, June 1.—It was announced last night that President O'Connell of the International Machinists' union has sent out a call for a general strike of all the machinists employed in the repair shops of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad system.

This action was taken, it is said, because of the refusal of the company to abolish the piecework system recently introduced at the Mount Claire shops in this city.

HUB HORSES GET PRIZES

Over Eleven Hundred Participate In the Annual Parade

Boston, June 1.—The horse that pulls the dray, the coal cart and the lumber and market wagon every day in the week, was the honor guest of the Boston Work Horse association at its annual parade and competition.

Several hundred carefully groomed steeds were reviewed and many ribbons and cash prizes awarded, and for the next year the fortunate horses will wear below their collars a badge of merit.

There were 1118 horses in line. They were from a foal of a month's age to Old Ned, who is still a working horse, although he recently passed his 35th birthday.

FELL UNDER HEAVY CART

Old Fire Engine Driver Instantly Killed at Nashua

Nashua, N. H., June 1.—George Hidden, the oldest active fire engine driver in New Hampshire, was killed instantly by falling under the wheels of his heavy exercise cart.

Hidden was driving a three-horse hitch when he dropped a rein. Creeping out on the pole to pick up the rein, he lost his balance and fell. He clung to the lines and was dragged a long distance by the frightened horses, but was forced eventually to let go. The wheels of the heavy cart went over his head and shoulders, crushing him frightfully. Hidden was 69 years old.

BANKER BECAME A HORSETHIEF

Escapes From Prison and Is Now Hunted by Posse

La Porte, Ind., June 1.—Robert Green, banker and horsethief, is now an escaped convict. Armed citizens and officers are scouring the marsh land northwest of Valparaiso, Ind., to find the horsestealing banker. He escaped from the Michigan City penitentiary, stole a horse and buggy ten miles from the prison and drove to a marsh, where he disappeared. The horse and buggy were recovered.

Green was sent to the penitentiary from Crawfordsville on a plea of guilty to horsestealing. He was formerly vice president of the Merchants' and Farmers' bank of Waynetown. With a view to recuperating his fortunes, which had been impaired by speculation, he took to stealing horses.

CHILD SAT BETWEEN RAILS

Engineer Causes Wreck of Three Cars In Saving Little One's Life

Medina, N. Y., June 1.—A New York Central fast freight train was going through Medina at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour when Engineer Flannigan saw a 3-year-old child sitting between the rails near an overhead bridge.

Flannigan applied the emergency brakes and brought the train to a standstill ten feet from the child. Three cars were so badly wrecked by the force of the emergency brake that they had to be removed before the train could proceed.

CRUSHED BY AN AUTO

Five-Year-Old Boy Killed While Mother Looked Helplessly On

Boston, June 1.—George Rosen, 5 years old, was run over and killed by an automobile while his mother looked on, powerless to save her child.

The mother had called the boy from across the street and as he responded an automobile driven by David H. Pruyn came slowly along. The child ran in front of the car and received injuries which resulted in his death a few moments later. No blame was attached to the driver.

The Scrap Book

The Gown She Wanted.

A pompous colored woman waddled into the cloak department of a Cleveland store.

"Can I direct you, madam?" inquired one of the managers.

"Yes, sah. Ah wants the gown depaht-ment."

"What kind of gowns, madam?" further inquired the official.

"Why, women's gowns, of co'se," replied the customer disgustedly. "Y'all think Ah wants a gown fo' a man?"

"But, madam," explained the manager, "you see, we have different kinds of gowns. There are tailor made gowns, evening gowns and nightgowns."

"No, sah," put in the woman promptly. "Ah don' want no tailah made gowns or nightgowns or early in the evenin' gowns. What Ah wants is jes' a plain gown to do washin' in. Ah wants a calico wrapper. That's what Ah wants."

The Two Highwaymen.

I long have had a quarrel set with Time,
Because he robbed me. Every day of life
Was wrested from me after bitter strife.
I never yet could see the sun go down
But I was angry in my heart nor hear
The leaves fall in the wind without a tear
Over the dying summer. I have known
No truce with Time nor Time's accomplice, Death.

The fair world is the witness of a crime
Repeated every hour. For life and breath
Are sweet to all who live, and bitterly
The voices of these robbers of the heath
Sound in each ear and chill the passerby.
What have we done to thee, thou monstrous Time?
What have we done to Death that we must die?

—Wilfred Blunt Scawen.

Just Like the Nobility.

An old English nurse had a very pretty daughter. The girl met a millionaire broker at a week end party. The man proposed, and they were married—an excellent match.

A friend saw the mother a short time after the wedding.

"Molly has done well, hasn't she?" she said.

"She has that, ma'am," said the old woman.

"Her husband is very rich, isn't he?"

"Rich! Save us, yes. Ye should see, ma'am, Moll's brougham, her coachman and footman, her motor car and her diamonds and pearls. Oh, she lives high—quite like the nobility and gentry, ma'am! Why, she strips for dinner!"

Hard on the Chorus Girls.

A prominent stage manager narrates an amusing incident which occurred during a rehearsal of "The Pirates of Penzance" when he was bringing out the piece. At the point where Frederick, the hero, comes in and the girls sing

"Oh, is there not one maiden here
Whose homely face and bad complexion
Have caused all hope to disappear
Of ever winning man's affection?"

a charwoman who had been watching the rehearsal intently broke out with the audible comment:

"Begorra, and I think there's a lot of them!"

Quite a Sportsman.

"But," said the girl's father, "what qualifications have you? What is there about you to make you consider yourself worthy of my daughter? Why do you think I ought to accept you as a son-in-law?"

"Since you pin me down to it, I will tell you candidly," the young man replied, "that I have never had a very high opinion of my qualifications. I am here strictly because I hate to give pain. Your daughter accepted me before I had a chance to finish what I had started to say, which was not what she seemed to think it was going to be. If you do not think I am worthy of her and if you are convinced that I am not the man you desire for a son-in-law I will inform you now that I am one of the best losers you ever saw."

His Fixed Income.

The main figure in a trial was a lazy darky named Dick Sutton, arrested at the instance of his wife, who alleged that he contributed nothing to her support and refused to work.

During the examination of Sutton his counsel, a young lawyer, asked:

"Dick, have you any fixed income?"

Sutton was puzzled by the term. Counsel explained that the expression meant a certainty, money paid not for odd jobs, but for steady employment.

"I think I has a fixed income, sah," said he.

"And what is this fixed income?" was the next question.

"Well, sah," answered Dick, with a broad grin in the direction of Colonel Martin, the young lawyer's partner, "de colonel dere allers give me fo' dollars an' a sack o' flour on 'lection day!"

Qualities In Men.

A sad nature sheds forth twilight. A merry and mirthful nature brings daylight. A suspicious nature insensibly imparts its chill to every generous soul within its reach. A bold and frank nature overcomes meanness in men. Firmness makes them fine. Taste directs, stimulates and develops taste.—Henry Ward Beecher.

He Made a Hit.

A hardware store in St. Louis advertised for an errand boy. As it happened, the boss was talking to a customer when a boy came in. Thinking he wanted to buy something, he excused himself and, going over to the boy, asked him what he could do for him. The boy told him that he came in answer to his advertisement and asked for the job.

Well, of course the boss got mad by being disturbed while he was talking to a customer. He said to the boy: "You go outside and walk a block. If I call you back, why, I will hire you. If I don't, why, you just keep right on walking."

The boy did as he was told; but, going out, he picked up a shovel that was standing near the door, put it on his back and started down the street.

Before he had gone ten feet the old man was after him, yelling: "Come back! Come back!"

The boy came back, took off his coat and asked where he wanted him to work—downstairs or upstairs or where.

The man took one good look at him and said: "I guess I'll hire you. Never mind putting your coat on. Start right in."

Well Informed.

The new minister in a Georgia church was delivering his first sermon. The darky janitor was a critical listener from a back corner of the church. The minister's sermon was eloquent, and his prayers seemed to cover the whole category of human wants.

After the services one of the deacons asked the old darky what he thought of the new minister. "Don't you think he offers up a good prayer, Joe?"

"Ah mos' suhtainly does, boss. Why, dat man axed de good Lord fo' things dat de odder preacher didn't even know he had!"—Everybody's.

An Unflattering Photograph.

At the famous Mark Twain dinner a few years ago nearly every literary celebrity of the country was present. After the dinner the guests were assembled and photographed in groups. Mrs. Wilson Woodrow, the novelist, who had gone to the dinner under the escort of W. J. Lampton, was in one of these groups. If other photographers had been unjust to her this one outdid them. And when the photograph was printed, as they all were, Mrs. Woodrow was the recipient of dozens of letters, typical of which came the following from Life:

Dear Madam—After seeing your picture in this week's Harper's Weekly we are compelled to inform you that no more contributions from your pen are even in disorder here. We regret to take this course, but under the circumstances no other course is open to us. In heartfelt sympathy we beg to remain

THE EDITORS.

This was bad enough, but even Mr. Lampton had his fling in his own characteristic way. He was moved to poesy:

Oh, Nancy Wilson Woodrow,
Hear me as I declare,
If you look like that picture,
I didn't take you there!

Fashion.

A great number of our wants are simply special wants of the imagination. We want them simply because we think that we want them. To them belongs all which pertains to fashion so far as it is distinguished neither by beauty nor by convenience nor by anything from things of the same kind, except merely that it is fashion.—Johann Gottlieb Fichte.

The Boy and the Publisher.

A New York publisher, having business at the capitol connected with pending legislation with reference to international copyrights, was hurrying through a corridor of the building when he encountered a "hop o' my thumb" scurrying along with an armful of papers larger than himself.

"Hello, son!" cried the publisher. "And what may be your position in this establishment?"

"I'm a page, sir," answered the lad.

"A page! Why, my boy, you're scarcely large enough for a paragraph!"—Lippincott's.

Not to Be Forgotten.

Mr. Hammond's face was so ugly as to be almost grotesque, although nobody ever thought about his looks after hearing him talk. "If I hadn't known I was one of the homeliest people in the world I might have been surprised at a remark made by old Pomp, the body servant of one of my southern friends," he once said.

"I hadn't seen Pomp for fifteen years, and as I had grown from a boy to a man in that time I did not expect him to remember me. But he said, 'Howdy, Marse Hammond, sah!' the moment he caught sight of me.

"'So you remember me, Pomp?' I said.

"'Couldn't nebber forgit yo' face, Marse Hammond, sah,' grinned Pomp. 'Hit's so kinder complicated!'"

An Equine Hero.

Luke Poland, the most punctilious of Vermont Yankees, and Colonel Tom Turner of Kentucky, horseman, breeder of fast ones and a fine judge of mint, grew to be great friends when they were in congress together. Poland took Turner up to Vermont as his guest one summer and showed him around. They came to the statue of Ethan Allen, in front of the station house.

"That, Tom," said Poland, "is the statue of Ethan Allen."

"Ethan Allen!" exclaimed Turner. "I always thought Ethan Allen was a horse."—Saturday Evening Post.

She Talked Shop.

A young soubrette rushed to her dentist the other day in agony. One of her wisdom teeth was ulcerated. The dentist, who, by the way, had supplied her with the most dazzling of her front teeth, told her that there was nothing for it but to pull the tooth. "Very well, doctor," remarked the actress, with a sigh, as she removed the plate; "I suppose I'd better take out my orchestra chairs so that you can get at my back rows."

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

TWO OF A KIND.

I wonder if that two by six
Unmitigated bore
Bill Buttin, whom, it seems to me,
No human could adore,
Opinions holds concerning me
Much as I put him down,
Regarding me "another" and
The biggest bore in town.

Perhaps I do not care a cent—
No, really; cross my heart—
And say I rather hope he does.
'Twill keep us far apart.
But if I thought he thought of me
As I of him, forsooth,
It wouldn't be so pleasant quite
To own up to the truth.

I wouldn't like it if I thought
As I went passing by
Folks shrugged their shoulders, looked around
And winked the other eye,
Or softly whispered to themselves,
"I'm glad he didn't stop,"
Or feel that if I did mix in
The temperature would drop.

Ah, well, we cannot make a hit
With every one we meet!
Not every person in the town
Will worship at our feet,
And if we will pursue our way
Without display or show
We may not be so big a bore
As some we chance to know.

Advice From the Cynic.

"I hear you are going to get married."

"I would, but I can't choose between two girls. What would you do?"

"Well, if you are bound to throw away your liberty, look them over carefully and, between two evils, choose the least."

The Ordinary Man.

The difference between the ordinary man and other people could usually be amicably settled if the ordinary man had the money.

Sure.

"I would hate to be considered a wise man."

"Why?"

"Because all the fools would be quoting me."

"Well, that is the kind of people that quote you now, isn't it?"

Some Speed.

"They say he is a rapid writer."

"He keeps three typewriters going at once."

"How can he do it with but two hands?"

"One is going or coming from the repair shop."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

It is just as respectable to be just a common person as it is to be a howling genius, and a lot more comfortable.

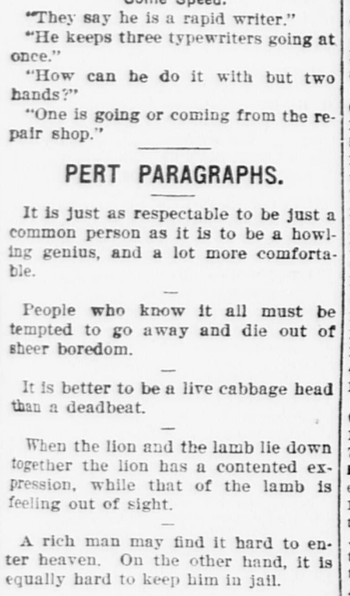

People who know it all must be tempted to go away and die out of sheer boredom.

It is better to be a live cabbage head than a deadbeat.

When the lion and the lamb lie down together the lion has a contented expression, while that of the lamb is feeling out of sight.

A rich man may find it hard to enter heaven. On the other hand, it is equally hard to keep him in jail.

While a young man finds a girl diverting, he should be careful that he doesn't find her father animadverting.

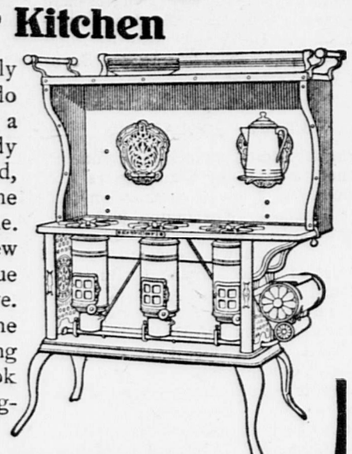

Trying to keep out of difficulty is sometimes a grave difficulty itself.

A messenger boy never does a rushing business unless the tip is yet to come.

It is easy to make some people mad, but rather hard to get them to stay that way.

Love, Tomatoes and Finance.

By ESTELLE CLAYTON.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

The big man of the town of Strongsville was Jacob Strong. First, his grandfather had founded the town; second, he had been a justice of the peace for some years; third, he had received almost votes enough once to send him to the legislature, and, lastly, he was worth about $30,000.

Mr. Strong felt his bigness and exacted respect accordingly. He did his best to make his son Horace and his daughter Maude feel their superiority over all other human beings in and around Strongsville. He succeeded admirably with the daughter, but the conduct of his son gave him no little anxiety.

One morning he said to the latter:

"Horace, I am pained and humiliated to learn that for months past you have been paying attention to the daughter of Scribner, the carpenter. You have been riding with her, and you have frequently called at the house. What does it mean?"

"Miss Scribner is a nice young woman, sir," was the reply. "She is as well educated as our Maude and has as good manners."

"Tut, tut, sir! Make no such comparisons. If you forget who and what I am, you ought to be ashamed of yourself. Being the son of a man of position and wealth, with more wealth and social prestige coming, you must look higher, sir, far higher."

It was true that Miss Nettie Scribner was the daughter of a carpenter, but as the favorite of her Aunt Hilda Bascomb, a rich old spinster, the girl had been sent to a seminary and enjoyed exceptional opportunities. In all but wealth she was the peer of any girl in the county.

As a matter of fact the couple were engaged, but keeping it a secret. Horace had hopes that when the time came to announce the fact to his father it would be received at least in a reasonable way, but the conversation of the morning showed him the breakers ahead.

What Mr. Strong meant when he referred to more wealth and social prestige coming was the fact that he had organized the Strongsville Cannery company. The cannery building was already under way. It was a fertile farming country around the town, but with poor facilities for shipping fruits and vegetables, and he had conceived and entered on the idea of a tomato cannery.

He had investigated until he was certain that the profits would be large. He put in almost all the money and controlled things, and what few other stockholders there were did not belong to Strongsville.

As president of a tomato cannery Jacob Strong felt himself to be a tangible object. He was right there and all there in his pomposity. He didn't propose to have any of his neighbors feel that as stockholders they need not have too much awe of him.

Of course the magnate's son informed the carpenter's daughter of the situation of affairs. Young Horace was determined to disobey his father at any cost; but, fortunately, Aunt Hilda arrived on her annual visit. She didn't exactly believe that all people were equal, but she bowed to none. If a carpenter and a blacksmith were honest and respectable men they were just as good in her eyes as magnates. The Scribners attempted to keep the secret from her, but she hadn't been in the house a day when she turned on her sister and said:

"Mary, there's something going on here, and I want to know all about it. I find Nettie looking piqued and sorrowful, and she hasn't eaten enough at three meals to keep a bird alive. No use trying to keep it from me. What's the matter?"

She was told, and when she had the particulars she set her jaw and nodded her head, which showed that she had made up her mind. Just what it was she didn't say that evening, nor did she tell it next morning when she put on her rusty old bonnet and sallied out. She said merely that she had a business matter to attend to.

Mr. Magnate Strong had a business office in the town, of course. Aunt Hilda made a straight course for it and plunged herself down in a chair in front of the great man to say:

"Jacob Strong, my niece and your boy were attracted toward each other, and they have fallen in love and are engaged. I understand that you oppose the contemplated marriage."

"With all my soul, and if you are here to say anything in favor of it you may as well save your breath. I wonder that you had the impudence to appear at all."

"And what are your objections?" quietly asked Aunt Hilda as she got a strong hold of her temper.

"You have no right to ask!" he shouted at her. "But I will tell you at least one objection. No son of mine can mate with the daughter of a common carpenter."

"No? Jacob Strong, how long did your father get a skinny living off a mighty poor thirty acres of ground in Michigan and what did he amount to as a man? How far back is it since you were running an old sawmill on Ten Mile creek in the same state? Mr. Scribner is a carpenter, but his pedigree is as good as yours."

"If you were a man I'd throw you out of the office!" shouted Jacob Strong.

"But, being I'm a woman, I'll walk out as fast as I can. I just called to let you know, Jacob, that I have arrived in town. Please keep a little track of me for the next two weeks, will you?"

The aunt reached home smiling and chuckling. She laid a hand on Nettie's head and said soothingly:

"I talked up to old Strong today. It was right that I should. But I haven't spoiled anything. Give me two weeks and I'll have him here begging you to marry his son. You tell the young man to remain quiet and do nothing rash. Hilda Bascomb is managing this affair, which will be one of finance from now on, and if she makes a failure it will be for the first time. Now I've got to go back downtown and see a lawyer, and then I'll have some riding around the country to do. Oh, but won't I make old Strong jump before I am through with him!"

In planning for the cannery Mr. Strong had called upon most of the farmers and had informed them pompously that thereafter he would buy their tomatoes at the market price. He had made no definite agreement with them, however, for he had determined to pay a mighty low price when the time came.

Miss Hilda Bascomb saw lawyers and had contracts drawn up. With a boy to drive her, she covered most of the county the week after the interview with the magnate. Contracts were signed right and left, and something was added for secrecy among the signers.

Meanwhile the tomato cannery was hurried along, and the fixtures arrived to be put in place. In her walks about the town the spinster met Mr. Strong several times face to face. Every time he scowled and she chuckled. There was anxiety at the Scribners' to learn what was afoot, but the only explanation they could get was:

"I am simply doing a little financiering to help Cupid and the tomato market along. When it's time to explode the torpedo you'll all hear the racket."

She had been in Strongsville almost a month when the racket was heard. The cannery was ready for business, and the farmers had been notified to begin delivery on a certain date. The date came, but there were no tomatoes.

A messenger was dispatched with a horse and buggy. He had been back about half an hour when Miss Bascomb entered Mr. Strong's office for the second time and plumped herself down in the same chair.

Mr. Strong was at the telephone. He was using vigorous language and dancing around.

"Well, and how's the tomato market?" asked the caller as he glared at her and rung off.

"It is you—you who have done this thing," he exclaimed, "to revenge yourself! You! You!"

"Yes, I have cornered every tomato in the county. It wasn't for revenge, but to give Cupid a chance. How much will you take for your factory, cash down? It hasn't any pedigree to speak of, but I think Mr. Scribner, the carpenter, can give it one."

"I won't sell to you! Your tomatoes can rot on your hands!"

"Oh, no, they won't, Jacob!" chuckled Miss Hilda. "I can sell them at a very nice profit. But your factory can stand idle while I build one of my own! Better talk business, Jacob Strong. That son of yours is a nice young man, and I think a heap of my niece. It's a love match, and it would be a pity to see it broken off. Isn't there some way that I can turn these tomato contracts over to you and let your factory begin work? There's money in the canning business, and I don't want to kill an industry."

Mr. Strong fought for an hour and then gave in and shook hands. By the time the contracts were assigned to him he was smiling. By the time the woman in the rusty old bonnet was ready to go he was ready to remark blandly:

"Just so, Miss Bascomb; just so. Mr. and Mrs. Scribner are most worthy people, and if Horace is in love with their daughter I have no objections to a marriage. He is old enough to judge for himself, and it is not for me to interfere. Good day, ma'am, good day, and thank you ever so much for calling."

Unpoised Lives.

The life of the criminal is simply an unpoised life. If a person were perfectly poised wrongdoing would be so repugnant that it would be unthinkable.

It is the one sided, the unpoised mind that goes wrong. It is just as normal for the balanced mind to choose the right, the good, as for the magnet to draw to itself whatever is kindred.

Just as the needle in the mariner's compass always points to the North star, no matter how thick the fog or how the tempest rages, there is a needle within every human being which always points to the North star of rectitude, of right, of truth, no matter what storms of discord, of weakness or of crime may be raging in the individual mind. Nothing can prevent this little indicator from pointing to the right, no matter how far the individual may drift from it, how low he may sink in vicious living.—Success Magazine.

A New Part of Pork.

The teacher had been reading to her class of the industries of Russia. Among others mentioned was pig raising. The pig is used almost exclusively as an article of food, very little of his body being valued except his flesh and his bristles.

"The Russians have much to learn from the Americans in this respect," she continued. "In America all parts of the pig are used except his squeal."

At this point a pupil raised her hand and asked in all innocence:

"What part of the animal is the squeal?"—Lippincott's.

A Wealthy Soldier's Idea.

Australians still tell stories of the colonial volunteers, although the war is a far memory. One, a member of the Stock Exchange, was left one wet and miserable night to guard a wagon load of goods. He shivered in the unsheltered place for some hours pondering many things, and then a bright thought struck him just as the colonel came around on his tour of inspection.

"Colonel," he asked, "how much is this wagon worth?"

"I don't know," was the answer. "Much or little, we can't afford to lose it."

"Well, but, colonel," persisted the amateur soldier, "you might give me a rough idea of the value."

"About £200," said the colonel testily.

"Very well," was the answer; "I will come down to the camp and give you a check for the amount. Then I'll turn in. I wouldn't catch my death of cold for twice that much."

What the colonel said is not recorded.—Melbourne Times.

Fourteenth Century Doctors.

Synge's "Social Life in England" quotes a number of fourteenth century hints to success for physicians:

Suppose you know nothing, say there is an obstruction of the liver. Perhaps the patient will say, "Nay, master, it is my head or legs that trouble me." Repeat that it comes from the liver, and especially use the word "obstruction," for patients do not understand it, which is important.

Never dine with a patient who has not paid you. It will be cheaper to get your dinner at an inn, for such feasts are usually deducted from the surgeon's fee.

When you are treating a wound or accident, the friends of the patient should be excluded, for they may faint and cause a disturbance, but sometimes a higher fee may be got from persons present fainting and breaking their heads against wood and the like than from the principal patient.

Secret Society Among Sese Islanders.

The Sese islanders have attained a peculiar notoriety in Uganda because of a secret society called the Bachichi, which is not a burial society, although its members take a deep and intelligent interest in all deaths and burials in their midst. In the more retired villages, although greatly discouraged by the British authorities, it is said to be still the custom for the sorrowing relatives to bear the body of the deceased wrapped in bark on a rough bier to some forest thicket, desolate ravine or other unfrequented spot, where it is left unburied by the bearers, who never revisit the place again. The Bachichi, who are denizens of a neighboring village, and distant relatives of the deceased avoid the necessity of burial or cremation and show their respect for the deceased by simply eating him.—National Magazine.

WHAT IS HEM-ROID

A Tablet, Taken Internally, That Cures Piles.

Piles (hemorrhoids) are getting more common ever yday, because we live unnaturally, overeating, overworking, taking little exercise, gradually causing a deadening of veins and tissues in the lower bowel. Blood stagnation is the cause of piles, and a condition that can't be permanently cured with ointments.

BRIEFS

Miss Mila G. Bates came up from Orleans on Friday to spend the holiday at her home on Dimmock street.

Misses Helen Wade and Alice Day of Elm avenue are giving an informal party for the Senior class of Quincy Mansion school on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Kay and daughter Helen and Miss Mabel Stiles of North Central avenue have returned from Sudbury, where they were guests since Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. David Stiles.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Aston of Roslindale were holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Snow of Marlboro street.

Letters remain May 29 unclaimed at the Quincy post office for: Kalle Bergendahl, Mrs. Margaret Deeck, Miss Elizabeth Emberg, James Ferguson, Miss Emily Guidi, John Lannery, Mrs. Mary McCarthy, Tom Pappers, Willie Rea, Mrs. M. P. Schwartz, William A. Simonton, W. T. Stedman, John Szymous and B. Wilfand.

E. Landis Snyder accompanied by his mother and brother, left Monday night for Middletown, Penn., where he will remain at the home of his parents until fully recovered in health. Mr. Snyder's many Quincy friends regret his long illness and the disappointment it must have been to him to give up just now all his musical engagements, but hope to see him back in the fall fully recovered.

The Smooth Way.

In the last generation Tyler Cobb, Esq., was a well known citizen of North Bridgewater, now Brockton, Mass. He was famous throughout Plymouth county for his witty retorts and dry humor.

Never having taken a sea trip, Mr. Cobb one day conceived the idea of making a voyage to New York. Accordingly he sailed from Boston in a small schooner. The first day out a storm was encountered and Mr. Cobb became violently sick, but after several hours he mustered up courage and strength to look out upon the troubled waters.

As he looked from the side of the little ship up the trough of the sea it seemed very smooth to him. The captain's cutting of the waves was senseless, he told himself. But as this mad steering continued the unhappy passenger finally crawled out on hands and knees to where the captain stood at the wheel and, raising his voice above the din of waves and wind, shouted:

"Man, man, keep in the ruts, keep in the ruts!"

Worked It Off.

Just what may happen to a man who isn't strictly honest was illustrated on a street car a few days ago. A man handed the conductor a dollar and asked for a strip of tickets. He received his five tickets, and then the conductor fumbled around for change and managed to make a "mistake." He handed the man two half dollars instead of 75 cents. The man put away the money without saying a word and in a couple of minutes worked his way to the front of the car and got off. "Say, conductor," said an interested observer, "did you know you didn't give that man the right change?" The conductor smiled complacently. "That's all right," he said. "If he'd been honest and returned that bad half dollar I'd have given him a good quarter for it. I've been trying to get rid of that piece of money for a week. I guess he deserved to get stung."—Philadelphia Record.

IT WAS NOT REFERRED.

When Lincoln's Words Were Turned Back Upon Himself.

General Robert Avery, who was wounded almost fatally at Chancellorsville and recovered just in time to lose his right leg at the hip on Lookout mountain, told an anecdote of Lincoln which shows the great president's appreciation of the fitness of things and his unfailing fund of humor.

"When I had recovered from the effects of the amputation," said General Avery, "a very dear friend of mine who had served long and faithfully as a regimental quartermaster was an applicant for a position as brigade quartermaster. He filed it with me, and after it had been properly briefed and indorsed I made it my business to put it before the president. There was a long line of people waiting to see Mr. Lincoln when I arrived at the White House; but, seeing I was a wounded man, he came over to me. 'I'll take my turn, Mr. President,' I said, and he turned to receive his visitors.

"The man ahead of me also had a request for an appointment—a letter which Governor Bramlett of Kentucky had indorsed 'Respectfully referred to President Lincoln.'

"'Governor Braimlett requests that I be appointed,' said the man from Kentucky. President Lincoln took the letter. 'Why,' exclaimed Mr. Lincoln, 'this doesn't show that Governor Bramlett requests anything. It says simply "Respectfully referred." That means he just passed it along. If you can get Governor Bramlett to request me I'll do it. "Respectfully referred" is only a polite way of getting rid of a person.'

"He was sitting at his desk at the time, settling lower and lower down in his chair until only his head seemed to show. I presented the papers of my friend. He read them and said, 'Why, yes.' Then he wrote on a card, 'Respectfully referred to Mr. Stanton,' the secretary of war.

"'This won't do, Mr. President,' I said to him. 'Why not?' he asked. 'Because you have just said to that man from Kentucky that "Respectfully referred" is a polite way of getting rid of a person.'

"The president slowly rose out of his deep seated chair until he looked seven feet tall to me, and then he began to laugh. 'You've got me,' said he, and then he wrote on a card, 'Appoint this man.'"—New York World.

THE BURYING BEETLE.

Dead Mice and Birds Secreted as Food For Its Young.

People often wonder what becomes of the dead mice and dead birds, for, though birds and mice are constantly dying in large numbers, hardly one is ever to be seen. The fact is that they are buried by beetles. Buchner gives a brief account of them as follows:

"Several of them unite together to bury under the ground, as food and shelter for their young, some dead animal, such as a mouse, a toad, a mole, a bird, etc. The burial is performed because the corpse, if left above ground, would either dry up or grow rotten or be eaten by other animals. In all these cases the young would perish, whereas the dead body lying in the earth and withdrawn from the outer air lasts very well.

"The burying beetles go to work in a very well considered fashion, for they scrape away the earth lying under the body so that it sinks of itself deeper and deeper. When it is deep enough it is covered over from above. If the situation is stony, the beetles, with united forces and great efforts, drag the corpse to some place more suitable for burying. They work so diligently that a mouse, for instance, is buried within three hours. But they often work on for days, so as to bury the body as deeply as possible. From large carcasses, such as those of horses, sheep, etc., they only bury pieces as large as they can manage."

There can be no doubt of the intelligence of these strange insects, as a gentleman discovered in a rather curious way. He desired to dry a dead toad, and for that purpose he fastened it upon the top of an upright stick. The burying beetles, however, were soon attracted by the smell, and, finding that they could not reach the toad, they undermined the stick, causing it to fall with the toad, which was then duly buried.—Our Animal Friends.

A Comforting Word.

A woman whose colored maid was assisting her in trying on a handsome new gown the other day got a shock when, after looking in the pier glass and admiring her really handsome figure as displayed in the new garment, she remarked to the girl:

"Julia, all I need now is a new face."

"'Deed, Mrs. Dyer," replied the colored girl, "I wouldn't worry if I was you. I saw a lady the other day no better lookin' than you are."—New York Press.

Time to Do Something.

Mrs. Mimms—Mary, it was 1 o'clock this morning when you got in. I heard you. Mary—Well, ma'am, if I was you I'd take something to make me sleep better. I took my shoes off down in the kitchen and didn't make no more noise than a cat would. I've been kind of worried about you for a good while."

Satisfied.

Mrs. Skowler—You will have to go, Mary. I can't put up with your impertinence any longer. I'm sorry I can't give you a recommendation. Mary—It's all right, mem. My leaving alive will be all the recommend I need.—Boston Transcript.

decorated before the march to West Quincy began and here, later in the day, graves were decorated in Hall and St. Mary's cemeteries.

In all, 486 graves were decorated by Paul Rever Post during the day, an increase of nine over the number decorated last year. This feature of the day's exercises was, in itself, a pretty good undertaking for the men who are left alive in the Post.

AT WEST QUINCY.

All of these graves, except in Hall and St. Mary's cemeteries, had been decorated when the Post formed at 9.30 for the march to West Quincy. The start was just on the minute and the streets were lined with citizens as the commands started off. First came the Orient fife and drum corps of East Braintree and behind them the members of John A. Boyd camp, U. S. W. V. Next came the newly organized Col. Abner B. Packard camp S. of V. and then the members of Post 88, G. A. R., headed by the Quincy City band. Following the Post was an open barouche containing Mayor Shea and Commander William J. Collagan of John A. Boyd camp, U. S. W. V. At the corner of School and Franklin streets the paraders halted and took barges for West Quincy, and arriving at this section of the city, left the barges at the corner of Crescent and Copeland streets. From this point they marched to Hall cemetery where graves were decorated and a service was held by Rev. Mr. Raupach who also made a short address to the veterans.

From Hall cemetery the commands marched to St. Mary's cemetery adjoining. This cemetery was crowded with people and after the graves here were decorated the commands marched to a broad space on the main driveway near the new receiving tomb where the pastor of St. Mary's church, Rev. Henry T. Grady, conducted the service of the Catholic church. Standing on a slight eminence Rev. Fr. Grady made an address to the veterans at the close of the service, eulogizing their spirit of supreme devotion to country and flag and expressing the hope that all the soldiers and sailors dead whose lives had gone on before had found a perfect peace with Almighty God.

Up to this point the Grand Army men had been escorted by the Spanish war veterans but now the latter took the right of line and the Grand Army men did escort duty to the grave of John A. Boyd for whom the local camp of Spanish War veterans is named. Young Boyd was a member of Co. E. 9th Massachusetts infantry, and died at Fort Meyer, Va., during the Spanish war. Mayor Shea opened the exercises at the grave of the young soldier and said he was glad to be able to speak to the men who fought for the stars and stripes in the Civil and Spanish wars. It was not often, he said, that the citizens of the republic were called on to perform the supreme duty of citizenship, dying for the flag, but when that necessity had arisen in the past Quincy had always been found ready to respond to the country's call and would be ready in the future if any exigency required it. Mayor Shea then introduced Congressman O'Connell who had come all the may from Washington Sunday in order to be here yesterday.

CONGRESSMAN O'CONNELL.

Congressman O'Connell said he was glad to be in Quincy on such an occasion because this city had seen the birthplace of American liberty; liberty for the individual which the men of '76 and '61 had fought to establish and maintain. He said he was proud to represent the home of John Adams, who dared all that his country might be free, the home of John Quincy Adams, to whose wise statemanship the standing of the republic in its earlier years was due and the home of John Hancock, whose bold signature was the first on the Declaration of Independence. With all these memories still fresh in his mind Congressman O'Connell said he was glad to meet the civil war veterans of Quincy and to know they had preserved to the limit of their lives the heritage of a free country bequeathed them by the men of the revolutionary war.

The congressman said that this country would endure just so long as its citizens, like the men of '61 and '98, were willing to risk their lives in its defence. In contrast with this splendid example of citizen soldiery, he said, were the standing armies of Europe, the soldiers of which were forced into service against their will. The causes which led up to the Spanish war were those of charity to an oppressed race said the congressman but behind the causes and underlying them he saw the hand of Almighty God because the result of that war had checkmated the territorial designs of Germany in the West Indies, Central and South America and thus spared to this country a war with another European power. Congressman O'Connell said he hoped for everlasting peace for this country but felt that the future would never be in doubt so long as the citizens of today could be the soldiers of tomorrow and could be depended on to fight and die, if necessary, to maintain freedom and independence for every individual in the republic. Congressman O'Connell was heartily applauded at the close of his remarks. After the final salutes had been fired and taps were sounded at the Boyd grave, the commands reassembled and paraded back to the corner of Copeland and Crescent streets where barges were waiting to bring the marchers back to the junction of School and Franklin streets. From here the cammands marched to Faxon hall where the members of the various women's societies connected with the organizations had a tempting luncheon ready for the tired marchers.

Mayor Shea and Congressman O'Connell were entertained at luncheon at the Hotel Greenleaf by Commander Collagan of the United Spanish War Veterans.

AT MT. WOLLASTON.

Shortly after 2 o'clock the command formed in front of headquarters and promptly at 2.30 the command moved over Hancock, Washington and Coddington streets to Mt. Wollaston cemetery in the following order:—

Chief of Police—Frank E. Burrell.
Squad of Police.
Drum Major.
Oriental Drum Corps.
John A. Boyd Camp, S. W. V.—W. J. Colligan, Commander.
Atlantic Signal corps—Capt. Chubbuck.
Col. Abner B. Packard camp S. of V.—Commander George F. Phillips.
Hodenousee Tribe Red Men.
Co. B 3d Regt. W. B. B. A.
Maj. Geekie.
Officer of Day Warren Dunbar.
City Band.
Paul Revere Post 88 G. A. R.
Commander George L. Phillips.
Hack and barge with veterans.
Carriages containing Mayor Shea, City Treasurer Curtis, President Hobbs of the City Council, Chaplain Rev. Carl H. Raupach, Tax Collector Carey and City Auditor Fairbanks.
Barges containing members of the Relief corps and Ladies Aid society.

Arriving at the cemetery the command formed about the soldiers' monument where the exercises opened by Commander reading the ritual of the Grand Army. This was followed by prayer by the chaplain and a dirge by the band. Comrade James H. Webb then read Lincoln's speech at Gettysburg.

Mayor Shea was then introduced. His Honor said "members of the Grand Army, Spanish War Veterans and Sons of Veterans. We are assembled today to express our loving tribute of respect and admiration to the memory of the men who so nobly responded to their country's call, and as Chief Executive of this grand old city I consider it an honor and a privilege to be permitted to express, not only for myself, but for all our citizens, our great appreciation of the men who stood ready to sacrifice friends, home and life in order that the grand old flag should continue to float over the fairest and noblest country on earth. Therefor it is fitting that we should meet here today and place our floral tributes on the graves of these departed heroes. Long may our country rejoice, that whenever the call comes to defend the honor of that grand old flag men like you will following the example you have given, offer all they have for the honor and glory of the star spangled banner. Gentlemen, I wish to assure you of my high respect and esteem for your organizations and anything in my power to show that respect and esteem will be done cheerfuly and willingly."

Rev. Mr. Raupach then made a short address. He said "surely the God of nature is smiling on this memorial day. It is a memorial day not only of interest to these men who fought in the conflict but ought to be to every one of us . It is indeed a great funeral day which calls you together to perform a sacred duty. It may be in the minds of many to ask what means this memorial day, what means this service? It represents the passion of God. It is true that when the darkest hours closed throughout our land God through great leaders and the men of the rank and file brought about the wiping out of the thickest spot on earth, that of slavery.

We are here to commemorate the deeds of brave men who have passed to their reward, men who met with sacrifices that the right might prevail. It was a war waged against injustice. It was due to their honor and right that we should help them make the most of this memorial day. All pray the time may come when no man need make war against man in the great conflict. There are times when war seems the only tribunal whereby wrong can be righted, and as we look back we can see that the arm of God has been with us. In the maintaining of the life of this best government of all God's universe these men know why these things are. As a direct result of the sacrifice all the blessings we enjoy have come to us. We should be thankful from the depths of our hearts for all these men have done. Thank God the Stars and Stripes wave over the land of the free and the home of the brave."

"Nearer My God to Thee" by the band was followed by the depositing of the red, white and blue wreaths by the officers of the Grand Army and the depositing of a wreath by Commander Colligan for the Spanish War Veterans. Then came the firing of three vollies the soldiers' salute to the dead and taps by the buglers.

From the soldiers' monument the command marched to the grave of Lieut. Bumpus where services were held by John A. Boyd Camp Spanish War Veterans. The address here was given by Napoleon L. White, Senior Vice Commander of Roger Wolcott Camp 23 of Cambridge. Commander White served in the Phillipines under Lieut. Bumpus and he paid a glowing tribute to his worth as a soldier and as a man. "Lieut. Bumpus," he said, "was shot down without a chance to fight. He had no opportunity to defend himself. He was stricken down in cold blood. To me it is a feeling of duty mingled with sorrow to speak here today. All that he could say against Lieut. Bumpus was that his heart was too large for a soldier. He lost his life in the cause of humanity. His fight was for liberty for all and ujstice for all humanity."

A prayer by the chaplain, three vollies by the color guard and taps by the bugles and the service here was over.

From here the commands moved to the Grand Army lot where the exercises were conducted by the members of the Women's Relief Corps. These included reading of the ritual, depositing of the wreaths, reading by Mrs. Kate A Blaisdell, prayer by the chaplain and three vollies by the color guard of the Grand Army.

This concluded the exercises at Mt. Wollaston and the command marched back to headquarters where it was dismissed.

Called the Deal Off.

A lad attending school craved a little holiday one morning when he started out to wrestle once again with the trials incident to getting an education. As he entered the schoolroom he hatched a plot to get the coveted holiday. He went up to the teacher's desk and told his story. "My mother wants to know if you won't excuse me for today?" he began. "She wants me to do some work at home and thought if I'd study at home this evening and make up what I'd missed mebby you'd let me off."

Something about the lad's manner kept the words from carrying conviction. The teacher bluffed back as follows: "Tommy," said she, "you won't need to go home at all. Since you started to school your mother called me on the phone to tell me that she had changed her mind and for you to stay here."

The lad looked at her, startled. "Aw, well," he said, "as long as both of us are lyin' about it let's just call it quits. I'll stay here."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Disappointment.

"Yes," says the lady after an acquaintance of ten or fifteen years before has been renewed, "I remember you perfectly."

"Indeed?" murmurs the gratified man. "I am glad to know that."

"Yes; at one time I thought of marrying you."

"Oh," he replies dejectedly. "I thought for the moment that there might have been something that made me different from all the other men you ever knew."—Life.

A Stranger to His Ways.

A distinguished bishop of the Episcopal church, arriving late at a small town one night, found the hotel closed, and, hammering at the door for admission, a neighbor stuck his head out of an adjoining window with, "Say, stranger, knock like the devil!" to which the bishop replied, "I don't know how."

HOLIDAY MIXUP.

Results is Two Arrests for Assault.

The Sullivans, Medlines and Metcalfs got into a general mixup on South street Monday and it is said that the blows fell thick and fast. Fists not being hard enough sticks were brought into use and as a result Clarence Metcalf received a blow on the head which opened up a deep gash.

The four men in the mixup were Clarence Metcalf, Edward Medline Patrick Sullivan and William S. Metcalf.

Just what started the row is not clear at the present time but according to all accounts it started with an argument that developed into a general row.

After it was over Clarence Metcalf had his head sewed up by Dr. Middleton.

All four men were in court this morning charged with assault, having been arrested by Officer Lyons. Their cases will be heard tomorrow.

WOLLASTON MASONS.

Interesting Events at Communication Tuesday evening.

The last regular communication of Wollaston Masonic lodge before September was held Tuesday evening. Many visitors were present including several past masters from surrounding towns. There were also a number of clergymen present who came to see a well known Quincy clergyman receive his third degree.

Another interesting event of the evening was the rare opportunity offered a past master of Wollaston lodge to advance his own son to the third degree. Past Master Copeland who has been in California all winter was present and given a welcome home.

FIRST OF SEASON.

Dancing Party of Wollaston Y. C. held at Clubhouse.

The first moonlight sail of the Wollaston Yacht Club scheduled for Tuesday evening was postponed, but the dance was held according to program. About fifty couples attended and a pleasant evening was enjoyed. George E. Stevens, chairman of the regatta committee, was in charge of the floor, and Wilson's orchestra furnished the music.

On account of the dredging now going on in Wollaston Bay it was impossible to get the floats in position for the yachts and accommodation couldn't be made elsewhere. Hence the sail was put off. The next moonlight is scheduled for June 30.

RECKLESS SHOOTING.

Bullets Fly Thick and Fast on School Street.

As Inspector McKay was passing through School street about 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon there was a succession of revolver shots and bullets went whistling through the air.

For a minute the officer thought someone was training a rapid fire gun upon him. He lost no time in locating the source from which the shots came. It was from a window in the upper part of the building on School street occupied by O'Keefe's grocery.

Back of the revolver from which the shots came was a man who told Inspector McKay his name was John M. Neergard.

There was no viciousness in the shooting. Simply the man felt like celebrating just what he was celebrating however is not clear.

When Inspector McKay entered the room where the man was he found it well fortified to withstand a seige should it be necessary to do so.

On the table was three 38 calibre revolvers and a large number of ball cartridges. It was these that the man had been firing through the window.

It was a reckless thing to do and the wonder is that the bullets did not find lodgement in some person on the street.

Neergard was locked up for safe keeping and in court this morning paid a fine of $10.

LIEUT. DOWNES RESIGNS.

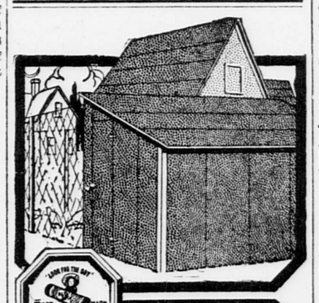

Lieut. John Downes U. S. N., who for the past nineteen years has held the office of superintedent of the National Sailors' home in Wollaston has resigned. The incoming superintendent, Mr. Gray, comes from Maine, where, he has had charge of several large farms, and entered upon his new duties June 1. He has a thorough knowledge of farming and it is proposed to turn much of the land adjoining the home to the raising of feed for the cattle with a view to increasing the milk output of the institution.

Lieut. and Mrs. Downes leave shortly to attend the graduation of their son Roger at Annapolis after which a visit will be paid to their elder son Lieut. John Downes who is also in the south. Mr. Downes, who is in poor health will go later in the season in company with his wife to their summer home in New Hampshire.

LADIES' NIGHT.

Ladies' night was observed on Saturday by the Laicos club at the home of Lucien H. Thayer on Willow street. Games were enjoyed until a late hour and refreshments were served. Although the membership list is not large the club since its organization last winter has been fortunate in having the interest of all its members. The debates which are held by-weekly by the club are much enjoyed and many good times are looked forward to by the members the coming season.

A June festival will be held on Saturday, June 12, on grounds at the summit of Winthrop avenue. Through co-operation with the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company a large transformer will be placed on the grounds which will provide power enough for over one thousand electric lights besides searchlights and stereopticon. This feature will probably be the finest display of illumination ever attempted in Wollaston.

Poultry Protection

To have a warm poultry house two things are essential—waterproof roofing and weather-proof sidings.

REX FLINTKOTE ROOFING

is water-proof, weather-proof and fire-resisting. The wool fibre from which it is made is so treated that it will last as long as the house itself. It cannot leak, nor can the wind blow through. It is specially adapted for the roofs and sides of poultry houses.

Any man can lay it; all reliable dealers handle it. One sure way of telling REX Flintkote Roofing is by the boy trade-mark that appears on every roll. Never buy any without it.

Photograph and Word Picture of Wife of Mayor Wanted.

A reporter from a Boston paper called on Mayor Shea this morning with an assignment from his City Editor to get a 500 word picture of the Mayor's wife as well as her photograph.

Mayor Shea said that he was sorry he could not accommodate the scribe but the truth was he had not up to the present time, been able to find any lady who wanted to change her name to Shea.

He further informed the reporter that he was not at that minute prepared to say how long it would be before he would be able to introduce him to a Mrs. Shea, but he had reason to feel a little encouraged at the outlook and prospects.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Editor Ledger:

I notice that Houghs Neck is running full blast with a great many of summer colony already arrived and the dance halls and other places of amusement are doing a good business.

One thing I noticed is the absence of a police officer at either of the dance halls. I understand the law requires the management of public places of amusement to hire a police officer at their own expence.

Perhaps our Chief of Police can explain why it is that the man who hired this hall in former years was obliged to hire and pay a police officer while the present management gets by without complying with the law governing dance halls.

Yours truly,
Malcolm C. Stewart.

Quincy, May 31.

There are hundreds in this city who will regret the unpleasant situation that revolves around the Brighton high school and the master, Frederic Tllison Tupper While principal of the high school in this city Mr. Tupper was a great favorite with both pupils and parents. He was a gentleman, scholar and a man of deep sympathies and tender impulses. There are many in this city who feel that this part in the flag incident at the Brighton high school has been misunderstood.

The first case growing out of the alleged violation of the new power boat muffler law was before the district court yesterday. The arrest was made in this city because a Peddock's island boat is said to have made too much of a racket. Although no judgment was made in the case there is an implied warning here which motor boat owners would de well to take note of. If the police authorities would only hold up some of the reckless automobile drivers that go tearing through the city streets many pedestrians would be extremely thankful. The police of this city were very lenient with this class of offenders last year but the courtesy doesn't seem to be appreciated by many.

The fining of four boys $10 apiece for fighting on the metropolitan boulevard in this city Sunday will have a tendency to discourage any more performances like that on the roads controlled by the state authorities. The metropolitan park police, it has been noticed in the past, are accustomed to enforce the laws much more vigorously than the ordinary city police authorities and it makes no difference to the officers who wear the gray uniform of the state how big or little the offenders may be. It is the object of the metropolitan park commissioners to so safeguard the parkways and boulevards in their jurisdiction, most of which are in lonely places, that all parts of the drives and roadways shall be safe for men, women and children at all times of the day or night.

Officials of the Old Colony base ball league are reported as saying they were agreeably surprised at the large attendance at the opening game in this city Monday and that the attendance here that day was larger than the attendance at any game last year. The officials were surprised because they had been told by interested parties in Brockton that, as a base ball town, Quincy was a "frost." Certain parties in Brockton wanted to get a team in the league and it came to a "toss-up" between that city and Quincy. Then the "knockers" began to get in their work but Quincy got the team . As far as indications go this city will support a good base ball team as well as any place in the circuit. So far as can be seen the Quincy team is a good one and capable of better work as the players get better acquainted and get a little more team play. It is to be hoped that the team will have a large following of loyal "rooters," for encouragement means everything to an organization of any kind. Quincy has always been interested in the base ball situation and has liberally patronized games in the past. The enclosed grounds with an admission fee is a new departure in Quincy but it looks as if the team would get big support if it keeps up a good article of base ball. Just stop "knocking" for awhile and boom Quincy. You can't expect outsiders to do it unless you show them how.

The Adams Academy, with its closed doors and barred windows presents a melancholy site in contrast with the conditions found there in days gone by. It is pitiful to think that conditions could arise in connection with the Adams School Fund that should compel the closing of the doors of this famous preparatory school which was at one time known from Boston to Buenos Ayres. If such a thing is possible there should be some arrangement made whereby the building could be used as an overflow building for the Coddington school or as a summer kindergarten school. Anything that would keep the building open and in repair would be preferable to having the building closed and going to disuse and decay. There are many sons of this famous Alma Mater who fondly cherish the hope that the school fund will some day be in condition so that the building may be reopened under its old name. The building stands on the site of the house where was born John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence, who wrote his name so boldly that the British king would not have to use his glasses to read it. The present building was made possible by the generosity of President John Adams who left lands for the purpose of raising money for the school. It is a pity that a building with such historic associations should be obliged to close its doors at all.

It is reported that the Electric light company is seriously thinking of asking the city to take from the company the amount of money which the city spends in lighting the Squantum causeway rather than risk the installing of new lights and fixtures to replace those which were smashed to pieces by rowdies on Sunday. The act of vandalism committed on this strip of road Sunday was the worst seen in this city in a long time. Not only lights but the metal structures themselves were smashed to pieces by big stones thrown repeatedly at them and so violently was the assault in several places that the electric light wires were broken at the fixtures and fell into the street. It is a pity that the parties committing such an act cannot be caught and given the full penalty of the law. A well lighted street is a fairly good guarantee of safety to those who have to travel at night and the city pays a large amount of money each year to light the many streets of the city. There isn't a street in Quincy but what ought to be better lighted and would be, no doubt, if the city had the money to spend for this purpose. The vandals who break street lights for the supposed fun of the thing are not only making it unsafe for some citizen at night but are also putting the Electric light company to an unnecessary expense. If there is one thing more than another the growing up generation seems to be noted for it is the disregard of other people's property. Boys with air rifles and sling shots seem to think it the proper thing to use every street light for a target and the evidences of their markmanship can be seen on almost every street. The city authorities should use every effort to get a few of the hoodlums who break street lights and make an example of them. When it gets to a point that the Electric light company had rather pay the fine imposed by the city for not lighting the streets than replace the fixtures for fear of further destruction, it is about time something was done. Quincy cannot afford to remain idle under such conditions.

DERBY—CURTIS.

Tuesday was a perfect June day and surely a good omen for a bride looking forward to the future. The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Curtis, 313 Franklin street was the scene of a pretty wedding Tuesday afternoon when their daughter Belle Willett Curtis became the bride of Carl Rumsey Derby son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Derby of School street. Ferns, palms and carnations were used as decorations, the color scheme being pink and green.

The ceremony was solemnized at half past two Rev. William E. Gardner of St. James church, Cambridge, formerly of Christ church, this city, officiating. Miss Sarah E. Pawsey of Quincy made a most charming maid of honor. William E. Derby brother of the groom was best man and the ushers were young friends of the bride, Miss Pauline M. Welch, of Danvers and Miss Viola Ellis of Whitman. The bride was given in marriage by her father and the wedding march was played by Mr. Wendell H. Luce.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held Mr. and Mrs. Derby being assisted in receiving by the maid of nonor and best man Caterer Cook of Boston served the wedding supper.

The groom presented his bride a beautiful brooch of pearls and sapphires and his best man and organist with scarf pins. The ushers received lace handkerchiefs from the bride.

Numerous and beautiful gifts attested to the popularity of the young people as did the hearty wishes and congratulations as they left on a trip to New York and New Jersey.

On their return they will reside at the corner of Washington street and Cherry avenue where they will receive friends after July first.

Quincy had a distinguished visitor Saturday and Sunday in the person of the wife of Senator Foraker of Ohio. Mrs. Foraker, with Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Ohler also of Ohio arrived in Quincy Saturday and remained until Monday morning. Saturday afternoon they visited the birthplaces of the two Presidents on Franklin street where they spent an hour or more in examining the many things of interest in these two buildings. They then visited the First church and saw the sarcophagi beneath the steps. Sunday they attended service at the First church.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

NOT WANTED AT HARVARD

Students Who Disturbed Peace Are Given "Leave to Withdraw"

Cambridge, Mass., June 2.—Following their conviction in the district court of disturbing the peace, John W. Cutler and Sydney M. Fish, students at Harvard university, were given "leave to withdraw from the university" by the governing board of the institution.

The charge, which resulted in a fine of $10 in the local court, arose from a disturbance in the college yard early Tuesday morning, at which two police officers were summoned and arrested the students.

Cutler was a senior, and is on the class day committee and expected to take a prominent part in the festivities. His brother is captain of the varsity crew.

Fish was on parole. A year ago he was suspended from the crew, of which he was a member, after he had admitted to surreptitiously taking a book from the college library. This year he took a course in the law school in an attempt to receive the degree which his act of last year had cost him.

GUILD GOES TO EUROPE

Former Governor to Deliver Two Addresses While Abroad

Boston, June 2.—Ex-Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., accompanied by Mrs. Guild, sailed on the Cunard liner Ivernia last evening to take a five months' rest in Europe. While abroad he will deliver two addresses in French, one at the University of Geneva in Switzerland and one at the unveiling of a monument to Michael Servetus, a Unitarian martyr, at Vienne, France.

On the pier to see the steamer off was a crowd estimated at 5000 persons, said to be the largest that ever assembled to speed an outgoing steamer at this port.

The cheering that arose as the liner backed out into the stream could be heard across the harbor. It was the most enthusiastic demonstration ever witnessed by the local officials of the line. The passenger list, 1158, was the largest this year.

JUSTICE DENOUNCES "MUGGING" PRISONERS

Sharp Criticism of New York's Police Commissioner

New York, June 2.—Justice Gaynor of the appellate division of the supreme court, in a letter addressed to Mayor McClellan denounced in vigorous language the police practice of "mugging" or photographing for the "Rogues' Gallery" prisoners who have not been convicted.

The justice is free in his criticism of Police Commissioner Bingham, whom he charges with not only disobeying court decisions bearing on this matter, but with compelling the police force under him to disobey them. The letter says in part:

"I had written a letter to the governor of the state to get redress for the scoundrelism hereinafter mentioned, through power of removal of city officials which he possesses, but, on second thought, I conclude to withhold it and first ask for such redress through you."

CONDITIONS UNCHANGED

Philadelphia Traction Company Invites Strikers to Return

Philadelphia, June 2.—The first ordinary business day since the beginning of the street car men's strike here last Saturday morning closed with conditions practically unchanged.

The traction company notified its men that those who had been discharged for striking would be taken back if they reported for work at once. Men discharged for trifling offenses in the past also were welcomed back.

By the aid of the recruits hired in this and other cities the company was enabled to run 700 of its 3300 cars until nightfall, when no further attempt was made to continue the traffic.

As on previous days, there was little disorder and those arrested were held on trivial charges.

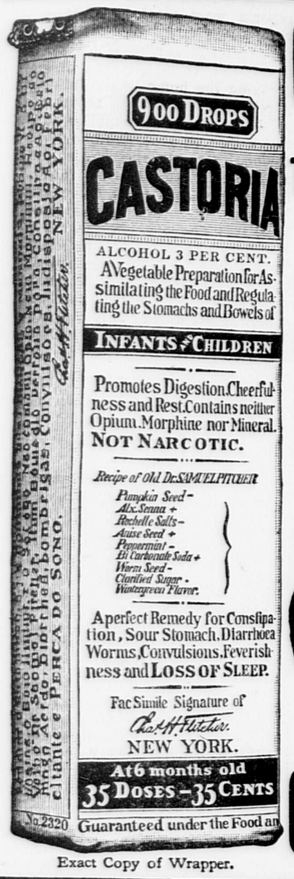

Mill Property at Auction

Oakland, Me., June 2.—The property of the Oakland Woolen company was sold at auction by Sheriff Getchell to satisfy a claim of $5000 held by Arthur B. Collier. There was but one bid, made by counsel for Collier, and it was sold to him for $4100. Collier was injured while working in the mill, losing his right arm. He brought suit and was given a verdict of $5000.

New Mill For Holyoke

Holyoke, Mass., June 2.—The board of aldermen last night ordered the sale of certain city property to the Germania Mills company, who have announced their intention of erecting on the site thus obtained a large woolen mill to cost $100,000.

POLLY of the CIRCUS

BY MARGARET MAYO

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY DODD, MEAD AND COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Polly, a child of the circus, is brought up by Toby, a clown, and by a boss canvasman called "Muvver Jim." She learns to ride Bingo, a circus horse, and grows to woman hood knowing no life except that of the circus. II—A church near the circus lot interests Polly. Jim rerpoves her for her reckless riding. III—Polly urges Bingo to unprecedented speed and falls. Toby and Jim carry the injured girl to the parsonage nearby. IV—The Rev. John Douglas, much to Deacon Elverson's disgust, takes Polly into the parsonage. Tobby and "Muvver Jim" are received kindly by Douglas, who has placed Polly in charge of his colored servant, Mandy. Douglas promises to care for the girl until she is well. V—When Polly becomes conscious she declares that she must rejoin the circus at once. "Are you a sky pilot?" she asks the minister. Her mother was killed riding a circus horse, and her father "got his'n in a lion's cage." The minister reads to her about Ruth and Naomi, and Polly says, "I guess I'd like to hear you spiel." VI—Douglas offends Deacon Strong by defending boys who play baseball on Sunday. VII—Polly recovers her health, but is saddened by the death of Toby. Jim sends the news and promises to keep in touch with her.

"Whar's Miss Polly?" Hasty asked, ignoring Mandy's reference to work.

"Nebber yo' mind 'bout Miss Polly. She don't want yo'. Jes' yo' done fetch that stepladder into de Sunday school room."

"But I wants her," Hasty insisted. "I's been on very 'ticular business what she ought to know 'bout."

"Business?" she repeated. "What kind ob business?"

"I got to fix de Sunday school room," said Hasty as he perceived her growing curiosity.

"You come heah, nigger!" Mandy called, determined that none of the village doings should escape her. "Out wid it!"

"Well, it's 'bout de circus," Hasty answered, seating himself again on the box. "Dey's showin' in Wakefield tonight, an' next month day's comin' here."

"Dat same circus what Miss Polly used to be wid?" Mandy's eyes grew large with curiosity.

"De very same," and Hasty nodded mysteriously.

"How yo' know dat?" Mandy was uncertain whether to believe him.

"'Cause da's a big red wagon downtown wid de name ob de show painted on it. It's de advertisin' one what goes ahead wid all de pictures what dey pastes up."

"An' yo' been hangin' roun' dat wagon?"

"I done thought Miss Polly might want to know."

"See here, lazy nigger, don' yo' go puttin' no circus notions into Miss Polly's head. She don' care no more 'bout dem t'ings since her Uncle Toby done die. She done been satisfied right whar she am. Jes' yo' let her be."

"I ain't done nothin'," Hasty protested.

"Nebber do do nothin'," growled Mandy. "Go 'long now an' get a-work. Mos' 4 o'clock an' dat Sunday school room ain't ready yet."

"Tag; you're it!" Polly cried.

Hasty picked up the empty box and the stepladder and went out through the gate. He had barely disappeared when a peal of laughter was heard from the hillside, and before Mandy could get out of the way the youngsters came tumbling down the path again.

"Lawsy, lawsy!" she gasped as Polly circled around her, dodging the children. "Youse cheeks is red as pinies, honey."

"Tag; you're it!" Polly cried as she touched the widow's auburn haired offspring on the sleeve. There was much wailing when Willie passed the 'tag' to little Jennie, the smallest girl in the crowd.

"I won't play no more," she sobbed, "'cause I's always it."

To comfort her Polly began to sing an old circus song that the children had learned to love, and the little ones huddled about her in a circle to hear of the wonderful "Van Amberg" who used to "walk right into the lion's cage and put his head in the lion's mouth." The children were in a state of nerves that did credit to Polly as an entertainer when Hasty broke in upon the song.

"When yo' get a minute I want tet tell yo' somethin'."

"I have one right now." And, turning to the eager mites at her side, Polly told them to run along into the grove and that she'd come pretty soon to teach them a new game.

The youngsters went screaming and laughing on their way, and she breathed a sigh of relief as she threw herself down on the rustic seat that encircled the elm tree.

"What is it, Hasty?" she asked, suspecting that he was in trouble with Mandy.

"It's 'bout de circus," Hasty informed her bluntly.

"The circus?" She rose and crossed to him quickly.

"It's in Wakefield—an' nex' month it's a-comin' here."

"Here?" Polly gasped.

"I thought yo'd want ter know," said Hasty, a little surprised at her lack of enthusiasm.

"Yes, of course." She turned away and pretended to look at the flowers.

"Don' youse tell Mandy I been talkin' 'bout dat circus," said Hasty uneasily. He was beginning to fear that he had made a mistake, but before Polly could answer Mandy came out of the house, carrying baskets of food, which Hasty was to take to the Sunday school room. She looked at the girl's troubled face and drooping shoulders in surprise.

"What make yo' look so serious, honey?"

"Just thinking," said Polly absently.

"My! Don' yo' look fine in your new dress!" She was anxious to draw the girl out of her reverie.

"Do you like it?" Polly asked eagerly, forgetting her depression of a moment before. "Do you think Mr. John will like it?"

"Massa John? Mercy me! He nebber takes no notice ob dem t'ings. I done got a bran' spankin' new allapaca one time, an' do you think he ebber seed it? Lawsy, no! We might jes' well be goin' roun' like Mudder Eve for all dat man know." Polly looked disappointed. "But udder folks sees," Mandy continued comfortingly, "an' yo' certainly look mighty fine. Why, youse just as good now as yo' was afore yo' got hurted!"

"Yes, I'm well now and able to work again." There was no enthusiasm in her tone, for Hasty's news had made her realize how unwelcome the old life would be to her.

"Work! Yo' does work all de time. My stars, de help yo' is to Massa John!"

"Do you think so? Do I help him? Do I?"

"Of course yo' does. Yo' tells him t'ings to do in Sunday school what the chillun like, an' yo' learns him to laugh an' 'joy himself an' a lot of t'ings what nobody else could a-learned 'im."

"You mustn't say 'learned him,'" Polly corrected. "You must say 'taught him.' You can't 'learn' anybody anything. You can only 'teach' them."

"Lordy sakes! I didn't know dat." She rolled her large eyes at her young instructress and saw that Polly looked very serious. "She's gwine ter have anudder one a dem 'ticlar spells," thought Mandy, and she made ready to protest.

"See here, ain't you nebber"—

She was interrupted by a quick "Have you never" from Polly.

"It done make no difference what yo' say," Mandy snapped, "so long as folks understands yo'." She always grew restive under these ordeals, but Polly's firm controlled manner generally conquered.

"Oh, yes, it does," answered Polly. "I used to think it didn't, but it does. You have to say things in a certain way or folks look down on you."

"I's satisfied de way I be," declared Mandy as she plumped herself down on the garden bench and began to fidget with resentment.

"The way I am," Polly persisted sweetly.

"See here, chile, is dat why yo' been a-settin' up nights an' keepin' de light burnin'?"

"You mustn't say 'settin' up.' You must say 'sitting up.' Hens set"—

"So do I," interrupted Mandy. "I's doin' it now." For a time she preserved an injured silence, then turned upon Polly vehemently. "If I had to think ob all dat 'ere foolishness ebertime I open my mouth, I'd done been tongue tied afore I was born."

"I could teach you in no time," volunteered Polly eagerly.

"I don't want ter be teached," protested Mandy doggedly. "Hasty Jones says I's too smart anyhow. Men don't like women known too much; it skeers 'em. I's good enough for my old man, an' I ain't a-tryin' ter get nobody else's," Mandy wound up flatly.

"But he'd like you all the better," persisted Polly, laughing.

"I don't want to be liked no better by no nigger," snapped Mandy. "I's a busy woman, I is." She made for the house; then curiosity conquered her, and she came back to Polly's side. "See here, honey, whose been l'arnin' yo' all dem nonsense?"

"I learn from Mr. Douglas. I remember all the things he tells me, and at night I write them down and say them over. Do you see this, Mandy?" She took a small red book from her belt and put it into Mandy's black, chubby fists.

"I see some writin', if dat's what yo' mean," Mandy answered helplessly.

"These are my don'ts," Polly confided as she pointed enthusiastically to worn pages of finely written notes.

"Youse what, chile?"

"The things I mustn't do or say."

"An' youse been losin' yoah beauty sleep for dem t'ings?" Mandy looked incredulous.

"I don't want Mr. John to feel ashamed of me," she said, with growing pride.

"Well, yo'd catch Mandy a-settin' up for"—

"Oh, oh! What did I tell you, Mandy?" Polly pointed reproachfully to the reminder in the little red book. It was a fortunate thing that Willie interrupted the lesson at this point, for Mandy's temper was becoming very uncertain. The children had grown weary waiting for Polly, and Willie had been sent to fetch her. Polly offered to help Mandy with the decorations, but Willie won the day, and she was running away hand in hand with him when Douglas came out of the house.

"Wait a minute!" he called. "My, how fine you look!" He turned Polly about and surveyed the new gown admiringly.

"He did see it! He did see it!" cried Polly gleefully.

"Of course I did. I always notice everything, don't I, Mandy?"

"Yo' suah am improvin' since Miss Polly come," Mandy grunted.

"Come, Willie!" called the girl and ran out laughing through the trees.

"What's this?" Douglas took the small book from Mandy's awkward fingers and began to read "Hens set"—He frowned.

"Oh, dem's jes' Miss Polly's 'don'ts,'" interrupted Mandy disgustedly.

"Her 'don'ts?'"

"She done been set—sit—settin' up nights tryin' ter learn what yo' done tole her," stuttered Mandy.

"Dear little Polly," he murmured, then closed the book and put it into his pocket.

INLAND WATERWAYS.

Washington, May 28, 1909.

Willis J. Abbott, a magazine writer of distinction and one of the best known newspaper men in the country has just returned from an extended tour of England, Germany and France where he made a first hand study of European waterways. The following are some of Mr. Abbott's observations on a subject which has grown tremendously in this country the last few years, namely, the comprehensive development of American rivers, harbors and canals.

"When I was in Berlin a few weeks ago" said Mr. Abbott, "I met an American who was establishing European agencies for the sale of a certain variety of glue, manufactured at Gloucester, Mass. He is making a notable success of the sale of his product through France, Germany and other European countries. In the course of our conversation he remarked that he could lay down his freight from Gloucester to Berlin for less than it costs to send it from Gloucester to Chicago. Now Berlin is rather more than 100 miles from the sea, but freight laid down on the docks at Hamburg, is taken to the Capital, through a veritable net-work of canals and canalized rivers at a cost less than half what railroad transportation would involve. The Elbe, the Rhine and the canals connecting and tributary to them are busy lanes of commerce in sorry contradistinction to the deserted state of our canals and rivers. The ordinary type of boat is a barge of 200 to 250 tons burden sometimes propelled by a small engine, more often towed in strings by a tug. In the smaller canals horse and even hand towage is employed and even the later, slow as it is, is economically and industrially valuable. You will not see in France, Belgium or Germany deserted canals, waterways ruined by railroad encroachments, or such a pathetic spectacle as exists on several routes in the United States ,railways running along the bank of a dry canal all the locks on which have been blown up, lest it should be applied again to its proper function. No one of the three European states I have referred to could do its business without canals, and the business men of Berlin frankly admit that without artificial waterways the city would be a political Capital and nothing more.

"England too is preserving all her old canals and constructing new ones. You will hear that the Manchester Ship Canal is not a commercial success. Nobody thought it would be any more than it was expected that the new channel into New York harbor completed last fall, for the accommodation of the largest ocean liners, was going to pay dividends to the United States government upon its cost. The Manchester Canal may yet pay dividends upon its stock for its traffic is increasing monthly. But today it is paying dividends indirectly by making Manchester a seaport and saving its cotton mills from ruinous competition of towns on tide-water. Today a cargo of cotton from Charleston, New Orleans, or Mobile goes straight to the docks at Manchester. But except in a limited area, and one continually decreased by railroad intrigue, our producers must use land carriage to get their cotton to the sea. If Manchester can profitably do so much for its manufacturers cannot the United States do even more for the cotton planters of the South, or the wheat growers of the North?

"I firmly believe it the right and the duty of the United States government undertake the work and defray the cost of canal building on a large scale. Deep waterways from the Lakes to the Gulf and the Atlantic seaboard, and the improvement and canalization of our magnificent system of rivers would be of more actual value than the Panama Canal. The latter enterprise is a magnificent national gift to the world; but the former would stimulate internal trade and act as a swift and certain check to railroad extortions."

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR QUINCY HIGH

Takes Rockland into Camp by a Score of 13 to 5

Rockland high proved to be easy picking for the local high school boys Tuesday at Merry Mount park, going down to defeat before "Stan" Bates to the tune of 13 to 3. Bates was in rare form and during the six innings in which he officiated on the slab, allowed only one hit and fanned eight men. He was rather wild at times, however, passing six men and hitting one. This did no damage though, as he received swell support and proved to be steady with men on the bases. His hitting was also right up to the handle, he getting two pretty hits, one a single and the other a triple. His brother was not to be out done by the twirler, so he got a double and a triple.

Outside of the second and fifth innings the game was fairly close, but these two sessions were heartbreakers, both for the spectators as well as the Rockland players. In the second round Quincy tallied four times, Galvin starting the fun with a two-bagger, after M. Chapman had gone out by way of the ground route Kane to Cushing. H. Chapman then got a free pass and Russ Bates followed with a hot shot that the second baseman let get away from him, Galvin and Chapman scoring. Brooks was safe on an error by the short stop, Bates going to third on the play and scoring a minute later on passed ball, which sent Brooks to third. Howe was passed and went to second on the first ball pitched. Manning then sent out a long sacrifice fly to left on which Brooks crossed the rubber. Howe made the third out trying to take third on the play.

The fifth was one grand slaughter, eight runs coming across the pan before the side was put out. These eight were the result of five hits, including a double and a triple, and several errors. "Stan" Bates got both of his hits in this inning, he and McCarthy, M. Chapman and Galvin coming to the bat twice each. McCarthy got a hit and base on balls as his share of the booty.

Rockland got her first run in the third, in which inning Bates gave three free passes. The other two came in the seventh when Brooks went in to pitch. Lee went in without warming up and was rather wild as a result. After he got his arm working however he was all right and held his opponents safe.

Cushing, Ryan and Donovan excelled for Rockland, Ryan getting two pretty flies in right field and fielding one ball to first in time to retire the runner at the initial station. The score:

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

BRIEFS

The youngsters are looking forward to the arrival of the circus next week.

The Houghs Neck Lady Associates held a meeting Tuesday evening in the Casino, Sea street, for the purpose of considering the best means to increase the funds in their treasury. It was decided to have a whist party in the Casino June 14. The May pole party committee reported that several dollars had been realized on the recent party.

It is expected that A. E. Ganley, one of the instructors of the Massachusetts Savings Insurance League, will begin work week after next in behalf of savings bank life insurance at the Fore River Shipbuilding Company. As there will undoubtedly be a large number of employees to interview personally he will probably be at Quincy for a number of weeks. He has had marked success in introducing the system at several other large manufacturing establishments. The literature issued from the office of the State Actuary is already being distributed at the works.

It is not generally know that Mr. Alfred L. Darrow, architect of the new "Mt. Vernon house," so called, being built for Mr. William H. Binnian of Quincy on King Oak hill, Weymouth Heights, is a brother-in-law of the late Willis D. Leland, who was formerly for nearly ten years pastor of the First church in North Weymouth. Mr. Howard A. Leland, born in North Weymouth, Dr. Leland's eldest son, has made for himself a brilliant record at Harvard. He graduated last year (1908) after a three years' course, at the age of nineteen; being so young he has taken a post-graduate course and spreads with the Pi Eta Society on Class Day June 25th.

QUINCY DAY NURSERY.

At the monthly meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery Association held in the Women's club house June 1st reports were most satisfactory. The visiting director for May reports everything in perfect order ,the fourteen children in the best of spirits, enjoying the home to the fullest. The purchasing committee reported surprising economy in supplies and also stated that all groceries had given out at once. Cereals, rice, sugar, etc., are all needed so that this is a good time for contributions from the charitably inclined. The card parties given on May 14th and May 28th were enjoyable and successful and although not so largely attended as was hoped, netted between $60 and $70. The monthly meetings of the Association will be discontinued during July and August. The next regular meeting will be on September 7th.

☞Those wishing their clothes cleaned, repaired or pressed will do well to call on J. Nathan, 14 Granite street.

Hendrie, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and the groom was attended by his brother, George Fuller Eddy. The ushers were: Walter Rice Pond of Neponset, John L. Eddy and Dr. William Walton of Dorchester and Charles R. Hendrie of Wollaston.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Atlantic, from eight until half past nine, the parents of the bride and groom assisting in receiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddy will make their future home at 21 Alpha road, Dorchester.

MEETING QUINCY BOARD OE TRADE

General Discussion on Matters of Local Interest.

A regular meeting of the Quincy Board of Trade was held Wednesday evening at the rooms of the Board in the Adams building. President John R. Richards presided and at the business session one new member was admitted.

Matters of interest to Quincy were then discussed informally. Peter T. Fallon brought up the trolley freight subject and there was quite a discussion on this matter in which several took part. No definite action was taken however.

The finding of a layer of soft material resembling putty in the old Frederick & Field quarry was brought up.

Mr. Fallon the present owner of the quarry explained the find. He said that when the blast had been fired and workmen went to the place to pry away the loosened stones, they found a layer of soft material that resembled putty. It was about five feet long and 10 feet across and contained about 10 or 15 tons of this soft material which, in the sunlight, seems to be filled with minute particles of glass-like material.

When the material was scooped away from the granite walls, the latter were found to be blackened as though by fire. At the outer edges of the mass the substance had hardened into small pieces of crystal the size of pebbles. The mass was lifted to the top of the quarry and dumped to one side.

Several granite men present at the meeting could not explain the substance and it was voted to send samples of it to Harvard college and the Institute of Technology for examination.

It was reported that geologists from Harvard college would probably visit Quincy some day this week and examine the quarry.

Several other matters pending before the Board were disposed of.

HARDING—MATTHEWS.

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. Walter S. Belyea of 52 Mt Vernon avenue, Braintree on Wednesday when Miss Jane R. Matthews of Braintree was united in marriage to Mr . John Harding of Quincy by Rev. R. J. Davis of Calvary Baptist church, Quincy. They were attended by Mr. John Andrew a cousin of the bride and Miss Edna Osborne a neice of the bridegroom. The bride was dressed in white muslin with lace trimmings. There were many beautiful presents, among them a gold watch, a present from the groom. Ice cream and cake were served. Mr. and Mrs. Harding left in an automobile amid showers of confetti for their home at No. 5 Liberty square, South Quincy.

From the way the Granite Shoe store is opening up cases of children's shoes this week it looks as though they intended to fit out every child in town and also have a few to spare for the children of neighboring towns.

WORK BEING RUSHED.

Fore River Co. in Hopes to have Battleship Completed this Year.

H. G. Smith, manager of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., although handicapped by the rejection of the government-furnished port lower casemate armor, is very desirous of and is using every means possible to have the U. S. battleship North Dakota completed in the shortest possible time. He has called the attention of his foremen to the necessity of more closely covering every item of work remaining to be done on this great ship. Plans not already issued are being pushed with the greatest possible speed and foremen have been directed to see that their work is progressing with a view to bringing this vessel to trial at an early date. It is the manager's desire to complete the vessel this year, but this may not be accomplished due to the fact that part of the government-furnished armor which is installed by the Fore River company for the government has been rejected by government inspectors necessitating delay in the completion of the structural work of the ship and causing great inconvenience to the company.

The Keel blocks are now in position for the Herman Frasch, sulphur steamer, hull No. 178. The company recently signed a contract with the Union Sulphur Co., of New York for the construction of this ship, which will be of steel and of 5,000 tons capacity. She will be built in the northern slip under the ship structure. The job order system for the colliers will apply for the steamship Herman Frasch.

SQUANTUM WATER.

Work Laying Supply Mains Commenced This Morning.

There is great rejoicing at Squantum for Commissioner Bainbridge has commenced active work laying the mains that will supply this section with water this summer. There has been some delay in starting work owing to the non-arrival of the mains.

Several car loads of mains have arrived and this morning Commissioner Bainbridge put a large gang of men at work digging the trench.

Work was commenced at the Squantum end and the men will work toward Quincy.

Let's hope the reporter who was sent to get a photograph of the wife of our mayor will not get tired waiting for it.

The reported improvements that are to be made at the Ward Two bath house will be welcomed by those who patronize that popular place. Night bathing, in the past, has been limited to moonlight nights, because of the lack of illumination. The proposed arc lights, with reflectors, on the bath house will make the place as safe by night as it has been by day. The great bulk of working people are not able to use the bath house by day and the new lights will be a boon to them when there are night tides. It has been suggested by many in past years that the park commissioners would win popular favor by allowing either the keeper of the bath house or somebody else to keep a lunch and tonic stand at or near the bath house. On account of the natural groves around the place many picnic parties spend the whole day at the bath house in summer. Such a stand would be a welcome convenience to them as well as to those who use the place simply as a bathing beach.

There will be many in this city who will learn with genuine regret of the death of Francis D. Revere or "Frank" Revere as he was more familiarly known here. He was a man of a most generous nature and kind disposition and was well and favorably known to many outside of the social circles into which he was born. He was the great-grandson of Paul Revere, the Revolutionary war hero and the son of Col. Paul J. Revere of the 20th Massachusetts infantry, a gallant soldier of the civil war who was mortally wounded at the battle of Gettysburg. He was also the grandson of Rev. William Lunt, a former pastor of the First church and in this church of his grandfather's, funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon. "Frank" Revere had often been urged to place himself in the limelight of public favor on account of his family connections but the hero worshippers did not appeal to him and he rather chose to live his life along quiet paths and among those who cared for him beeause of his real worth.

The city authorities are not discouraged at the unsatisfactory results of the dust preparation sprinkled on our streets some weeks ago but intend to make a new test of an oil that comes from California. It is said to be odorless and will not make a crust on the top earth which later will crumble up and blow away as happened with the last preparation. This new oil is diluted with water in proportions of about 40 gallons of oil to 460 gallons of water and one sprinkling is thought to be sufficient to last 10 days. A trial was made yesterday on parts of Adams street, where the automobiles have worn great holes in the street. As far as could be judged the trial was a success but a wait of several days will be necessary before the final word of judgment is passed on the oil, In every city and town where automobiles are extensively used, the authorities are confronted with a serious proposition in saving the streets that would stand up under other vehicles. In our own city that splendid piece of road on Adams street, which was repaired but recently, is in bad condition because of the speedy automobiles which passed over it by the hundreds every day. From Whitwell street to the Milton line the street is a succession of deep holes which have been scooped out by the rubber tires of the automobiles running at a terrific rate of speed. The same story comes from other towns and the road builders are confronted with a new problem in constructing a street that will stand the automobile traffic. The terrific suction of the rubber tires is a new force on our streets and the results are beginning to be manifest. The automobile has opened up a good many new lines of industry since it became a popular mode of transportation and it bids fair to revolutionize the art of road building.

The present contract for lighting the streets will expire this month and it is to be expected that another contract will be drawn up and signed for another period of years. This is a good time to endeavor to enter into an agreement whereby the streets of the city shall be lighted all night or at least until 4 o'clock in the morning. When the present administration was taken to task for placing street lights on unaccepted streets at Houghs Neck and in other parts of the city, an opinion was given that the mayor could place lights on such streets while acting under the police powers given him by the statutes. It was evident from the meaning of the law that good street lighting is considered an equivalent to a police patrol and it is a good argument in favor of all-night lighting. There is nothing that is so discouraging to would-be highwaymen or crooks of any sort as a well lighted street. At present the street lights are extinguished at 1 o'clock in the morning and for four or five nights every month, about the full of every moon, the lights are not turned on at all. It has been known several times that when the moon was supposed to at the full period but when, in reality, the sky was clouded densely, the lights remained off. In the new contract there should be an agreement whereby the streets shall be lighted every night regardless of the moon. There is no good reason why this should not be so. The moon cannot and does not shine everywhere at all times and Quincy is rather a dismal and forlorn looking business city of a night when the place is plunged into darkness because the almanac says the moon is supposed to be shining. There has been no step forward in the lighting of the city since Ex-Mayor Bryant signed a contract six years ago after a famous fight with the company that does the lighting. The city has grown remarkably since then and an all-night, every-night lighting plan is not too much to ask for the citizens who pay the bills.

The good work that several patriotic societies are doing in the line of preserving the historic buildings of our city is to be heartily commended by every American who takes pride in the history of his country and who reveres the memory of the men who made the republic possible. A few days ago many Quincy people visited the Dorothy Q. house, known locally to many as the Peter Butler house, because of a reception held by the Colonial Dames of America, who now have the old house in their keeping. Many were surprised at the most excellent condition in which the house was found and yet it is claimed that part of the house was built in 1636 and was the first structure raised in Quincy. Be that as it may, the house is very, very old, but it is still in a fine state of preservation thanks to the interest which the Colonial Dames have taken in keeping the place in a manner befitting its importance, not to speak of the money that has been expended for this purpose. So, too, are the thanks of the citizens due the Daughters of the Revolution for keeping the John Adams birthplace intact and the Quincy Historical society for rescuing the John Quincy Adams birthplace from destruction. All three of these houses are today in as fine a state of preservation as it is possible to make them and yet all their old-time quaintness in furnishings is preserved. These three houses are veritable museums of historic interest that seem to have more significance to people who live far away from Quincy than to those who pass by them nearly every day. It is to be regretted that the wreck of time made necessary the destruction last week of the oldest part of the Judge Thomas Boylston Adams house on Elm street for this section of the house was probably the second oldest building in the city, having been erected in 1641. The old Quincy mansion at Wollaston park is another old house of historic interest that has recently been remodelled as a private residence but still retains its old-time lines. The newer Quincy Mansion is now used as a private school for young women and is in a fine state of repair. The old Vassal house, afterwards owned by President John Adams, who died there, and now occupied by his great-grandson, Mr. Brooks Adams, is another old house that care and money has been lavished upon to keep the place in good condition. It is to be hoped that none of the historic houses of Quincy will ever suffer from the lack of a proper and an appreciative interest.

BAGLIN IS RELEASED

Action Follows His Deposition as United Copper Director

New York, June 3.—George Baglin, second vice president of the United Copper company and secretary to F. A. Heinze, who was placed in the Tombs Tuesday for contempt of court, was released late yesterday without apparent explanation, but it is understood that this action followed his deposition from the board of directors.

While no announcement to this effect was made, a meeting of the stockholders, which was held in Hoboken, N. J., resulted in the choice of a board in which Baglin's name does not appear. Heinze was re-elected a director, as was Stanley Gifford, but seven new names appear on the directorate.

While the stockholders were meeting in Hoboken, the disappearance of the books was being further aired before Judge Lacombe in the United States court. Lacombe agreed to give Sanford Robinson, who, as a director, faces prison for alleged contempt, until Friday to answer the charge.

Trio of Alleged Train Robbers Identified In Omaha Court

Omaha, June 3.—G. W. Woods, Fred Torgensen and James Gordon were bound over to the next grand jury to answer the charge of holding up and robbng a mail car on the Union Pacific railroad at the city limits of Omaha on the night of May 22. Judge Munger fixed each man's bail at $25,000.

Six small boys, who brought about the arrest of the alleged robbers by discovering their tools and reporting to the police through their teacher, testified to seeing the men near Brown Park school before and after the robbery occurred.

Members of the train crew and a number of postal clerks also were able to identify the men under arrest. The defense did not introduce any witnesses.

WILD ANIMALS SPREAD RABIES

Infection Conveyed by Bites of Skunks and Wolves

Washington, June 3.—An interesting phase of a discussion of rabies at the annual conference of state and territorial health officers with the United States public health and marine hospital service was the fact that the disease is frequently contracted from the bites of skunks, wolves and other wild animals.

Assistant Surgeon General Kerr presented a large chart showing the geographical distribution of rabies in each of the states. He spoke of the measures adopted in various localities to combat rabies.

Dr. Kerr declared that public opinion was becoming rapidly educated to the necessity of muzzling dogs as the only certain way of overcoming hydrophobia. The general conclusion of the conference was that it was quite as reasonable to require the muzzling of dogs as it was to prevent the free roaming of cattle and horses in the street.

YELLOW FEVER ZONE

Citizens of Norfolk Object to That City Being Within Its Limits

Washington, June 3.—Pointing out that the commercial interests of Virginia are being injuriously affected on account of Norfolk being included in the yellow fever zone, a committee of physicians from that city conferred with Surgeon General Wyman with a view to having the federal regulations in regard thereto removed.

The yellow fever quarantine line is just north of Norfolk, extending across the southern boundary of Maryland, and it was urged that this imaginary line be removed to a point south of that city. Wyman promised to take the matter under consideration.

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes:
"As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

Are You Wretched in Bad Weather?

Keeping the Kidneys Well Has Kept Many Quincy People Well.

Many Quincy people find that bad weather brings on a dull pain in the back, or rheumatic aching, neuralgia, nervousness, irritability and weakness. If, when you get wet or take cold, it "settles on the kidneys," and there is a shivery, chilly sensation in the back, it shows kidney weakness, which is often the beginning of disease. Doan's Kidney Pills should be used persistently until the chilly feeling is gone, and the flow of urine is natural Doan's Kidney Pills has saved Quincy people much suffering.

W. Charlesworth, living at 33 Cranch street, Quincy, Mass., says: "About five years ago I began to suffer from kidney trouble. I had pains in my back which were at times more severe than at others and colds or damp weather aggravated my suffering. I knew my kidneys were at fault and used everything I could think of in an effort to obtain relief, but to no avail. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, I finally decided to give this remedy a trial and procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Before I had used the contents of two boxes, the backache was a thing of the past and I felt better in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement."

BOY IS CHASED BY POLICEMAN

Incident Drives Strike Sympathizers Into a Frenzy

GENERAL RIOT SOON FOLLOWS

Seven Cars Wrecked In Philadelphia Streets, Five Being Completely Demolished and Burned—Nearly a Hundred Persons Battered and Policeman Probably Fatally Injured—Attempt to Run Night Cars Fails

Philadelphia, June 3.—One policeman shot and probably fatally injured, nearly a hundred persons bruised and battered either by policemen or strike sympathizers, and cars wrecked and then burned, is the result of an attempt on the part of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company to operate their cars last night by imported strike-breakers.

The point at which the most serious rioting occurred is known as the Kensington Mill district. In this section of the city there lives nearly every nationality the foreign element predominating.

When the traction company announced that cars would be run last night nearly all the storekeepers in the Kensington district, knowing the temper of the residents there, closed their stores promptly at 6 o'clock. As one car after another left the car barn, crowds stood on the streets in sullen silence.

Finally a boy cried "scab" and immediately he was pursued by a policeman who was riding on a car. As the officer started for the youth the crowd closed in upon him and so quickly was this done that he was unable to draw his revolver. This weapon is believed to have been the same revolver with which Policeman Levy was shot a few minutes later.

The fire which had been smouldering now burst into a flame of fury. The objective point was Allegheny avenue, and in less than half an hour seven cars were wrecked, five being completely demolished and burned. The police officials were powerless at the moment to combat the mob, but a riot call brought half a hundred bluecoats to the scene and the crowd was driven back. But the damage had been done and there was little need of the preservers of peace so long as no attempt was made to run cars from the barn.

While this serious disturbance was in progress in the northeastern section of the city, there were incipient riots at three other car barns. The crowd grew menacing when at attempt was made to run cars from the downtown barns and a policeman who endeavored to quell the disturbance was ducked in a water-trough. Twenty-five plain clothes men and policemen were rushed to the scene on a special trolley and after the cars were run back into the barn there was no further trouble.

The rioting in West Philadelphia was also caused by the attempt to take out cars. Some strike sympathizers pulled the trolleys from the wire and cut the rope. Several arrests were made, but in many instances the policemen were unable to get their prisoners to the station houses on account of the boisterous and fighting crowds. To attempt to move a car meant a riot and it was decided early in the evening to close all barns for the night.

The temper of the sympathizers of the strikers is becoming more dangerous with the passing of each hour and there are fears for what today may bring forth.

PITTSFIELD CARS IDLE

Conductors and Motormen Unexpectedly Precipitate a Strike

Pittsfield, Mass., June 3.—All traffic on the lines of the Pittsfield Street Railway company was tied up completely on Wednesday, following a strike of the 125 conductors and motormen, which was ordered quite unexpectedly.

A demand of the men for an increase of 1 cent an hour and for a ten-hour working day led to the strike, which, according to the company officials, came as a surprise to them, in view of the fact that they had arranged to have a conference with the employes later in the week on the question.

During the day the company announced that it had started plans for reopening all its thirty miles of lines with new and experienced men today.

"NOTHING TO ARBITRATE"

Failure of Effort to Settle Southern Indiana Traction Strike

Evansville, Ind., June 3.—An effort to submit the difficulties involved in the street car strike on the Southern Indiana Traction to the state labor commission for arbitration was rejected last night by the street car company. The offer was made by the Central Labor union, acting on behalf of the strikers.

Henry W. Marshall, vice president of the company, declared there was nothing to arbitrate and that the company would not take back the strikers except as individuals.

SOCIALISM AND SAVING BANK INSURANCE.

Whether socialists can properly give support to a scheme like that of savings bank life insurance and old age pensions is being asked by some people in the shore towns where there has long been an interest in socialistic themes.

The reply is that even if collective thrift should some day come to be regarded as more important than individual thrift the habits of providing against contingencies like premature death and superannuation are very well worth cultivating in present conditions. They represent the spirit of responsibility and social service that would be necessary to make the machinery of socialism successful, suppose it should ever be installed.

Savings bank insurance, furthermore, is something that is right here now. Even the most ardent socialist in his thoughtful moments must admit the possibility that he may not live to see the cooperative commonwealth established, and that his own old age has to be considered as well as the fate of his dependents in case he is taken away before his time.

In the savings movement there are some people who are strongly opposed to socialism and others who believe that socialistic mechanism for production and distribution of wealth may be triumphant finally; but all are agreed that the state of Massachusetts has performed its present duty in providing the means b ywhich every citizen can secure for himself the benefits of life insurance and the old age pension at cost.

The time fo rmen and women of Massachusetts to act in this matter is now. However society may be organized at some future date, no one is paying his way in the year 1909 who is not providing from his present income against the risks that everybody runs. Complete insurance facilities include provision against accident ,sickness and non-employment as well as against premature death and superannuation. Of these the two most important are now offered at actual cost through the medium of the savings banks whose reputation for efficient and economical management is unique. If any one doubts the thoroughness with which the provisions of the act of 1907 cover the situation he would do well to consult the literature which is furnished by the State Actuary, 161 Devonshire street, Boston.

NEW LEAGUE TEAM SURE OF SUPPORT

Management Assured Fans Will Support Good Teams

The Old Colony league opened Monday and proved to be a grand success both financially and athletically. The crowd that attended the game is said to be the largest that has ever witnessed a game in the Old Colony league. This statement was made by one of the league officials and ought to keep the Quincy fans alive to the fact that we have a team here.

Of course the opening game was rather an experiment and the management has learned a whole lot about handling the crowd. By the next game on Saturday, a fence will be erected from each end of the backstop down the third and first base lines out to left and right fields. This will keep the playing space absolutely clear and will give each catcher plenty of room to work.

This is necessary because the crowd especially the smaller boys, are bound to crowd in and bother the catcher when he runs for a foul. For instance. Monday morning Monahan, the snappy little Taunton catcher was chasing a hard foul fly and was just about to nail it when some fresh kid threw his cap out to rattle the catcher. It was only a kind of kid trick to be sure, but it riled up the clean sports in the crowd and made their blood boil. The Quincy management was very sore over the affair and showed their indignation by threatening to put the offender out of the grounds. It has also awakened them to the fact that a fence must be erected to keep the crowd back and work will be started at once.

Another suggestion that might be acted upon also would be to put a strip of wire netting along the top of the backstop. As was seen Monday the backstop was not high enough many balls going over it into the street, and while it delays the game and necessitates the chasing of balls all the time, it is also dangerous to people who chance to be passing that way. Children playing in the streets are liable to be hit. Also people in cars are liable to be struck by a fly ball. This perhaps might not happen in 25 years but it is best to be on the safe side. It would cost more to pay doctors' bills and perhaps funeral bills than it would to put an addition on the backstop.

But as the local management is right on the job, these things will probably be remedied by the next game.

On Saturday the Randolph team comes to Quincy and the game will surely be a hot one. There is a keen rivalry between Randolph and Quincy, the towns having been competing against each other in athletics for years. Randolph is baseball mad and will send a big crowd of rooters down to the game. About 300 fans are preparing to come down and they will make things hum.

"Sid" Patterson and Fred Smith will be in the points for Quincy. There will probably be one or two changes in the line-up of the team to strengthen the weak points shown in the opening game. Manager Patterson says he will give the people a winner no matter what it costs. "The fans of this town made good for us in the opener" said Sid, "and we are going to give them more than a run for their money."

This shows the proper spirit and if continued Quincy will surely be a successful baseball city. They are now tied for second place with Randolph and if they win Saturday will have the place to themselves. If Taunton and Dewey lose to Rockland and Stoughton, then Quincy will be tied for first place with Taunton and Dewey, while the other teams will be tied for second place. Play ball, boys and we're with you.

In the Randoph team will be seen "Johnny" Glaze the former Dartmouth star pitcher and captain and also "Spec" Payne the old Brown captain and one of the best catchers ever turned out by the Rhode Island university. The rest of the team is made up of fast men. But no matter how fast they are they can be beaten, so come on Quincy and eat 'em up. All up, boys, for the Quincy team.

WAS DESCENDANT OF PAUL REVERE

Death of Frank D. Revere Son of Col. Paul J. Revere

Francis Dabney Revere, a former well known resident of Quincy, and a great-grandson of Paul Revere, made famous by his midnight ride to Lexington and Concord on the eve of the battle between the Colonists and the British forces in those towns, died yesterday in Bridgewater where he had been ill for a long time. Mr. Revere was 49 years old.

There was no young man in Quincy better known a generation ago than "Frank" Revere as he was familiarly known at that time. Born of a family that had wealth and social standing above the average Quincy family, Frank Revere was a friend to the boys of all classes and stations while he was growing up to manhood in this city. There wasn't a boy of any family in the town at that time who knew him at all but who could call him their friend and his generosity and big heartedness was a household word. He came from a family that ranked with the Adamses and Quincys, socially and financially, but birth or social station never interfered with his democracy of spirit. He was a most companionable fellow as a boy and young man and he was easily the most popular lad in the town in those days.

Mr. Revere's father was Col. Paul J. Revere, for whom the local Post of the Grand Army is named. His father was a Harvard graduate and was travelling when the civil war broke out. He immediately offered his services to the government as his grandfather had offered his to the cause of the Colonists at the outbreak of the Revolutionary war. Col. Revere was given command of the 20th Massachusetts infantry and was severely wounded at the battle of Antietam. Recovering from this wound he joined his regiment in time to participate in the battle of Gettysburg where he was mortally wounded. His body was brought back from the front and was buried in Mt. Auburn cemetery, Cambridge and, by his side, Mrs. Revere was laid to rest a few years later.

The Revere family lived in the house now occupied by Judge E. C. Bumpus on Goffe street Mr. Frank Revere's father was married to a daughter of the late Rev. William Lunt who, at that time, was pastor of the First Unitarian church. Rev. Mr. Lunt died at Aboukir, Arabia, while travelling in the Holy Land and his body is buried in the desert sands there.

Mr. Revere was a cousin to Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham of Boston and Lieut. Gov. Louis A. Frothingham of the state of Massachusetts. He is survived by his wife and one child and also by a sister Mrs. Pauline Thayer, the wife of Nathaniel Thayer of Lancaster Mass. As Miss Pauline Revere she was a great favorite when the family lived in this city.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon in the First church over which Mr. Revere's grandfather, Rev. Mr. Lunt, was pastor. Burial at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

—Japanese, Chinese, Eskimo and Igorotte villages have been built on the amusement street at the Seattle exposition. The great Pacific exhibition is known as the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition and will open its gates June 1, 1909.

NEW NEPONSET BRIDGE.

A hearing before the committee of the legislature Thursday on ways and means relatives to the proposition to build a new $350,000 bridge from Boston to Quincy, over the Neponset river, was attended by representatives of Suffolk and Norfolk counties. Boston and Quincy and the Old Colony street railway company, the latter making the only objection offered, which was that its allotment of the expense, $52,000, would be too great a burden for the road. It was decided to allow all concerned to get together and attempt some compromise that may be satisfactory to the railway company.

BALL GAMES FOR SATURDAY

Fans Have Several Good Games to Select From

The local sporting fraternity can take their pick of athletics tomorrow, for there is a variegated schedule of attractions. Of course the national pastime will be the favorite and will attract a large majority of the sport lovers. There are some classy games scheduled for tomorrow too and all the boys want is good weather.

The Quincy Old Colony league team will pull a big crowd tomorrow as it is the only game in the city, outside of a few amateur teams. Randolph will be the visiting team tomorrow and the local management is preparing for a big crowd. It will be one hot game all right and those who don't go will miss some good sport.

The fast Makaria aggregation under Charles Ganzel with 7 straight victories, will go to Middleboro tomorrow. Joe Ford's Quincy team played at Middleboro Memorial Day and it is Joe's opinion that Makaria ought to get away easy. "Honey" Morales, the well known pitcher of Weymouth, is doing the box work for Middleboro.

The Bigelows are playing the Randolph A. A. at Randolph and are going to start another winning streak, their string being broken Memorial Day by the Roger Wolcotts. Neither the Quincy Ind. nor Atlantic is playing tomorrow. The two teams tried to get together for a game, but arrangements could not be made.

Another big attraction tomorrow is the first annual field day and track meet of the Fore River Apprentices, to be held at the new track at Merry Mount park. The events include 100 yd., 440 yd., 1-2 mile, mile, broad jump, high jump, shot put and a seven mile Marathon run. Also a soccer football game between the outside and inside apprentices.

The course of the Marathon will be from the track at the park to Quincy square Washington street to Quincy Point, through South and East Howard streets to Newcomb square, up Quincy avenue to the square and thence Hancock street to the park, one lap around the track and finish. There are eleven men entered in the run and all have been training hard for it. Automobiles will follow the runners to pick them up in case they become exhausted.

James E. Neary has charge of the games and has received about 150 entries for the various events. Competent officials will have charge of the games and the events will be run off with snap and dash. Pearly K. Griffin, captain of Y. M. C. A. track team will be referee, while the judges at the finish will be E. D. Debes, H. P. Sampson and S. H. Hirchy all of the Fore River.

Theodore Hermanson, Joseph M. Larkin and Thomas Elcock, the last named being the star quarter miler of the South Boston A. C. will be field judges and E. C. Killion, P. K. Griffin and T. H. Elcock will be timers. L. H. Clee of the Y. M. C. A. will be clerk of course while James E. Neary will be starter. Mr. Neary is a Cornell grad and while in college took a deep interest in affairs athletic.

He is working hard for the apprentices and feels that the people ought to support him in his work. The Fore River Company is behind this athletic movement and this is sufficient to insure success. The boys have a fast baseball team and in the fall and winter will probably have football and basket ball teams. Interest in track athletics is growing in this city and this set of games ought to attract a large crowd.

Again the soccer fans will have a chance for, tomorrow the Fore River team plays the Howard & Bullough team of Pawtucket, R. I. at the Fore River athletic field, Washington street. The kick-off will take place at 3.30.

This surely gives a variety of sports for the fans and if they can't find a suitable attraction right here in this city, they'd better go die.

NEW SUNDAY LAW.

Places may be Licensed to Sell Candy Fruit etc., on Lord's Day.

Under an act passed by the legislature and approved by the Governor May 21, 1909 any city who accepts this act may grant licenses to persons to sell ice cream, confectionery, soda water and fruit on the Lord's Day.

Section one of the new law provides that "the licensing board may grant licenses to reputable persons who on secular days are retail dealers of ice cream, confectionery, soda water and fruit, to keep open their place of business on the Lord's day for the sale of ice cream, confectionery, soda water and fruit."

The licenses take effect on the first day of May, and expire on the thirtieth day of April each year.

The act also provides that the fee for such license shall not be more than five dollars a year, and that the license may be suspended or revoked at any time by the board granting the same. The act however does not apply to druggists.

Here in Quincy two-thirds of the places now licensed as common victuallers do not make any pretences of serving food although to comply with the law their places of business are equipped to serve food.

Practically all these places desire to open on the Lord's day in order to sell, such articles as soda, confectionery and fruit.

The city however can charge no fee for a common victualler's license and the only thing that can be done is to compel the parties to comply with the law.

If the City Council accepts the new law it will give the Chief of Police an opportunity to straighten these places out and he can force those that are using the common victualler's license as a cloak to allow them to do business on Sundays to take out a license under the new law and pay the fee fixed by the City Council.

ENTERTAINMENT REPEATED.

Through the kindness of Mrs. Frank K. Butler and her class in elocution "Our Modern Children" and "Beauty and the Beast" were repeated in the Memorial Congregational church, Atlantic Thursday evening for the benefit of the Benevolent society. "Our Modern Children" consisted of recitations from Phoebe Buckley, Jessie Welch, Evelyn Luke, Beryl Turner, Lucy Whittier, Mildred Burke, Dorothy Featus and Gertrude Featus and a solo by Jordine Davison arranged in a short skit. Between parts one and two Misses Adelaide Figenbaum and Annie Harding favored the patronesses with piano and vocal solos also Master Loyal Safford sang "A bird with a broken pinion" very favorably.

Quincy Man Doing Good Work in Fitchburg in This Line

With Mrs. Maxwell and family Mr. Maxwell of the Y. M. C. A., leaves tonight for Nova Scotia, where he will spend the month of June. He has been released for two months by the local association, for July and August that he may promote playground work again this summer. Mr. Maxwell expected to go to Salem again but was offered a better position through the Massachusetts Civic League at Fitchburg, Mass., where he will organize and supervise the work under the direction of the park commission of that city.

We quote from the Fitchburg Sentinel: "Believing that a good start in any undertaking is one of the essentials of early success and that the proper person to make a good start is one who has had considerable experience in work of a similar nature, the park commissioners have engaged G. Stewart Maxwell of Quincy to direct the work of equipping Lowe playground for the uses for which it is intended by the city and have given him full power to formulate plans and take the necessary steps to put them into execution.

Mr. Maxwell has had considerable experience in the work of training young men and boys for games and sports of various kinds and in that of physical development of those under his charge, as well as in the comparatively recent, but highly important work of equipping and directing playgrounds for the more simple pastimes of the younger children as well as for the more difficult games and contests of youth and adult. At the present time he is the physical director of Quincy Y. M. C. A., and for the past two years has had charge of the playgrounds maintained by the city of Salem.

The park commissioners, as well as Mr. Maxwell, believe in patronizing home industry and the apparatus to be installed will be made by local men. This apparatus will furnish means of enjoyment as well as opportunities for physical development for children of all ages. There will be sand boxes, teeter-boards, swings, bars, rings, climbing ropes, quoits and other apparatus for outdoor exercise as well as a baseball diamond and running track, with such equipment as may be necessary for using the same to the greatest advantage.

In conversation with the reporter, Mr. Maxwell spoke of the importance of having the sport of any city or town well organized rather than allowing it to go along in a haphazard manner and said that he was glad to see that Fitchburg had taken important steps toward such organization in the games of the young. He was especially pleased with the organization of the Grammar School Athletic league, which has already conducted several competitions, the most recent being that of last Saturday, on Lowe playground, in which the boys from the several schools throughout the city contested for honors in track and field sports of many kinds, with advantage not only to the active participants in the competitions, but also to those pupils who watched the proceedings and gave evidence of their interest in the success of those who were chosen representatives of the several buildings."

The city of Fitchburg will not do things by halves, it seems. It is hoped that when Quincy takes up the subject next season, that it will be done in a thorough and scientific manner also.

BUILDING PERMITS.

Many Permits For New Buildings Issued This Year.

Building has been particularly lively in Quincy thus far this year and it bids fair to continue. Up to today Warren S. Parker has issued 283 permits, largely for new buildings. Those recently issued were.

To Berthold Lindner for two cottages on Centre road, Houghs Neck.

To Maria R. Jones for a dwelling on Beach street, Wollaston.

To B. P. McGarry for a cottage at Rock Island.

To J. B. Sutherland for a dwelling on Independence avenue.

To Rufus Pool for an auto house on Prospect avenue.

To Joseph P. McCabe for a manufacturing building on John street, Atlantic.

To Fred M. Torrey for a dwelling on Hamden circle.

VOCAL RECITAL.

A recital of vocal selections was given by Miss Ida Louise Poore at her home in Wollaston Wednesday evening in honor of her pupil Miss Louise H. Nash. Solos and duets by Miss Nash and Miss Poore accompanied by Miss Gertrude King of Wollaston were enjoyed. Earl R. Cartwright of Boston, under whom Miss Poore is studying, was present and rendered several vocal pieces in a very pleasing and effective manner, accompanied by Miss Mary Ingraham of Boston. The program was well presented throughout and was much enjoyed by the many guests present.

—If Gloucester did not secure President Taft as a summer resident it has been fortunate in having him accept an invitation to be the city's guest on Gloucester day, Aug. 4th. A feature of the celebration will be the pageant "Canterbury Pilgrims" in which 1200 people will take part and as many more will enjoy the presentation.

The moon had it put all over her last night.

The efficient sprayer being used by the gypsy moth men on the trees of our city is the result of the inventive genius of Commissioner of Public Works Bainbridge. The sprayer is said to have been made from his plans is doing better work than the patented machines on the market.

If the oil that is to be tried on our streets as a dust layer proves as inefficient as the tar combination that was tried out a month ago, the city authorities might use salt water. There is plenty of the latter on our shore front and can be had for the taking.

Quincy was signally honored yesterday at the meeting of the New England Associate Alliance held at Lynn when a Quincy woman was elected president and another Quincy woman was chosen secretary-treasurer. The women surely are doing their share to boom Quincy. Now let some of the men get out and do as well.

Some of the stones in the wall of the Hancock cemetery seem dangerously near to falling into the street. These stones have been in this condition for a long time and ought to be properly fixed. It is to be hoped that a neat sign may be erected at the gates of this cemetery some day telling strangers and Quincy people, too, the names of the distinguished people who are buried in this small cemetery. It is doubtful if any other cemetery so small holds any more prominent list in the country.

The public bequest of the late Hon. William B. Rice of $200,000 for a hospital, a home for aged or an industrial school, as the executors of the will may see fit to erect, ought to result in a fine piece of architectural adornment to the city. In connection with the will of Mr. Rice it is a matter of more than passing interest that he left more money in public bequests than did Henry H. Rogers of the Standard Oil, whose fortune was computed at $100,000,000.

Although little is heard publicly of the work done in our stone yards, the granite manufacturers of Quincy continue to hold their own in prominent work. The monument unveiled a few days ago at Mecklenburg, N. C., in the presence of President Taft, was cut in Quincy and the Boston firemen's monument, to be dedicated in a few weeks' time, is now being set up here in the yard where it was cut. The firm which cut this monument also has contracts for soldiers' monuments in two towns. Taken all in all, the granite industry still continues to spread the name and fame of Quincy.

The visit of the scientific men from the Institute of Technology and Harvard university, who are coming to this city to examine the strange deposit found in the Frederick & Field quarry on Friday, will be awaited with considerable curiosity by quarry owners. There are some who say the putty-like mass is not unlike the blue diamond clay found in South Africa. The mass contains many particles of a glass-like substance. It was found at a depth of 85 feet after a blast and is a strange substance to be found imbedded in the solid granite walls of a quarry.

The city has a big contract on its hands to lay the water mains to Squantum by June 21, the date when the city of Boston says it will cut off private services from the use of its mains. Squantum occupies a rather peculiar position. Geographically, it is part of Quincy although a great part is owned by the city of Boston. The latter city asks Quincy to furnish police protection in the summer time and then pays the bills. With both cities being vitally interested in this famous peninsula it would seen advantageous to both that a good feeling should exist between the two municipalities.

After all the months that have been spent in framing up a new charter for the city of Boston and the subsequent debate that has been given to the project in the legislature, the committee in charge of the bill have not produced a charter that is as good as that under which the city of Quincy is governed. Without a doubt the Quincy city charter is the best piece of legislation of its kind that has ever been passed by the Massachusetts legislature. It combines the two most necessary elements for municipal government—responsibility and simplicity. It has been in operation for 21 years and it becomes more satisfactory each year, especially as Quincy citizens observe the residents of other cities begging the legislature to give them a change in their form of government. As Mayor Shea well said at Wollaston a few nights ago, Quincy has never produced a dishonest official in its municipal history under our charter. The proposed charter for Boston approaches, in some degree, the charter of Quincy. It is said the advice of Representative Thomas, a member of the committee which reported the bill, was a great help in furnishing suggestions to the other members of the committee. As city solicitor three years, he had a good chance to get inside knowledge of the workings of our charter.

The meeting of the city council Monday night ought to be an important one. If the various committees make reports on the trolley freight proposition and the Houghs Neck school lot they will bring before the council two subjects that have proved to be of considerable importance during the present term. It is to be hoped that every councilman will so acquaint himself with the details of both propositions that he will be able to understand all the provisions of them and vote as his conscience tells him the greatest good will be served.

The boy who has been displaying picture postal cards on the iron fence of the Hancock cemetery has been requested to move his wares. There have been a number of complaints from store keepers and others who were interested in the historical associations of the cemetery. In all fairness it should be stated that at first the boy sold his pictures because his father was unable to work and there were other little ones at home to provide for. Recently, however, the father recovered, and the necessity for the boy making a public counter of the cemetery fence came to an end.

In the Grand Army parade of Monday there were three generations of one family represented which is something unusual. The different generations represented were Joseph White Hayden, his son, Joseph W. Hayden, Jr., and his grandson, Carlton McNeil, the latter two being members of Col. Abner B. Packard camp, Sons of Veterans. Another notable fact in connection with the Hayden family's participation in the Memorial day parade was the presence of four Joseph Haydens in line; the two Josephs above mentioned, Joseph Warren Hayden, a former chief of police of this city, and Joseph Hayden of South Braintree. That's a pretty good record for the Haydens.

The completion of the street railway company's new track over Farrington street, Wollaston, will give the cars that run to and from Neponset by the way of Wollaston, a chance to make quick time. In the past many people have waited over a car rather than travel to Neponset by the way of Wollaston owing to the slow time made. In the future it will be as quick a route as any and a far more pretty ride than Hancock street in the summer time. If the company would only replace their unsightly and unsafe T rail on Copeland street with a new one such as has been laid in Wollaston there would be a big sigh of relief from the many teamsters who are obliged to use this one street between Brewer's Corner and West Quincy. With the retracking of that street the roadway on both sides of the track could be repaved, a job that is radically needed.

POLITICIANS GO TO PRISON

Member of Boston Common Council Gets Two Years

CONSPIRED TO DEFRAUD CITY

Attorney Who Was Implicated With Him In Making Out False Order For Law Books Must Serve a Year—Former Alderman Who Worked Graft Game Receives Sentence of Three Years

Boston, June 4.—Leo F. McCullough, president of the Boston common council last year, was last night sentenced to serve two years at hard labor in the house of correction and Attorney James T. Cassidy was sentenced to serve one year at hard labor in the house of correction, both having been convicted of conspiracy to defraud the city and of the larceny of $200 by making out a false order for a set of law books.

At the same session former Alderman George H. Battis was sentenced to serve three years at hard labor in the house of correction, having been convicted of the larceny of money from the city in connection with the purchase of prizes for Fourth of July athletic contests under the auspices of the city in the years 1906 and 1907.

The McCullough-Cassidy case was the outcome of an order passed by the common council during McCullough's presidency, giving the president authority to draw on the city for $200 for the purchase of a set of law books for the president's office use.

Cassidy presented an order for the money, with a receipt from McCullough that he had delivered the books to him. An investigation disclosed the fact that Cassidy had never sold the books to McCullough and that McCullough had no set of law books for which the city had paid over the $200.

Battis was charged with having presented raised receipts for the purchase of athletic trophies, thus securing from the city several hundred dollars more than the actual cost of the trophies.

McCullough was president of the common council of 1908, it being during that period that the finance commission made the expose of the councilman, which was followed by his indictment by the Suffolk county grand jury.

The resignation of McCullough was read and accepted by the common council at its regular session last night.

The resignation was read by the secretary in the regular order of business and was as follows:

"For the purpose of saving the body of which I am a member any of the odium which may attach to my unfortunate position, I resign my membership in the common council."

THE BLUE AND THE GRAY

Campaign For Reunion In Washington Is Strongly Endorsed

Minneapolis, June 4.—Telegrams from leaders of the Grand Army and Confederate Veterans from all over the country are being received by the Minneapolis Journal in approval of a campaign for a great reunion of the Blue and Gray to be held next year in Washington, under the supervision of the secretary of war.

Commander-in-Chief Nevius of the G. A. R. thinks the proposition should first come before the encampment at Salt Lake City, in August.

General Evans, commander-in-chief of Confederate Veterans, replied: "While I have no authority to speak officially, I can say personally that war passions are gone in the south."

SAVED BABY SISTER'S LIFE

Twelve-Year-Old Girl Lost Own Life In Performing Heroic Deed

New York, June 4.—Carmella Landria, 12 years old, gave her life last night to save her 2-year-old sister, Concetta, from being run down by a trolley car.

The two were crossing the street when the baby, escaping from her sister's care, stepped almost directly in front of a car. Carmella just had time to push her sister into safety, but not enough to get clear herself. The car passed over her body and she was instantly killed.

Fire at Naval Training Station

Newport, R. I., June 4.—Fire entirely consumed a 2½-story wooden building formerly used as a hospital at the naval training station. The building had not been in use for some time and was valued at about $3000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Forest Fires In Maine

Houlton, Me., June 4.—Two sets of farm buildings in Monticello were burned by fires which started in the woods, the loss being $14,000. Forest fires are reported in many places in southern Aroostook county.

Shakes In Portugual

Lisbon, June 4.—Earth shocks, accompanied by subterranean rumblings, continue daily in the Ribatejo district. No casualties have been reported, although many walls have collapsed.

CITY BATH HOUSE.

Keeper Starr Getting Ready For the Official Opening.

Jack Starr journeyed to the public bathhouse this morning and unofficially opened the place for the summer. For the next few weeks he will be busy getting things in readiness for the official opening, which will probably take place about June 17, provided the weather gets warm enough for swimming.

There are many things to be done in order to have every thing in shape. The beach must be all cleaned up and cleared of the debris thrown up by the tide during the winter months. The floats must be taken to their moorings and thoroughly secured for the use of the bathers, and there are numerous other things to be done before the house will be ready for business.

Last summer the bathhouse had one of its most successful seasons, over 5000 people taking advantage of it during the summer. The coming season it promises to be even more popular, the "brownies" looking forward eagerly to the days when they can lie round in the cool waters and enjoy the rays of the hot sun.

This summer, night bathing will be more popular than ever, for two big arc lights will be placed on the building. These will be fitted with reflectors which will throw the light on the water and make it possible to swim safely even on the darkest night. The road leading down to the beach will also be electric lighted this summer.

This will be very pleasing news to a host of people, especially the working class who enjoy a swim, but who cannot go in the day time except on Sundays. The beach this summer with lights will be probably be as crowded at night when there is a tide, as it has been on Sundays in the past. The lights will add much to the popularity of the place and give all a chance to enjoy the privileges.

THE BROOKLYN HANDICAP

King James Outruns Favorite and Establishes a Record

Gravesend, N. Y., June 4.—King James, owned by S. C. Hildreth, winner of the Metropolitan handicap, added to his laurels by winning the Brooklyn handicap, one mile and a quarter, in the record time of 2:04, being 1-5 of a second better than the figures hung up by Celt last year.

James R. Keene's Celt was favorite for the race, but the best he could do was finish third, being beaten for second place by Restigouche, also owned by Hildreth.

King James was splendidly ridden by Eddie Dugan. The defeat of Celt was a great disappointment to the race-going public, which had made him a favorite at 1 to 3. King James and Restigouche coupled were 3 to 1 in the betting.

The value of the stake was $5000. Of this amount the second horse received $700 and the third $300.

AN $8,000,000 ESTATE

Mrs. Graves Leaves but Small Portion of Vast Fortune to Charity

New York, June 4.—Charities receive only about $200,000 of the $8,000,000 estate of the late Mrs. Margaret J. P. Graves, wife of Robert Graves, who, prior to her marriage to him, was the widow of Henry B. Plant, the multi-millionaire New England railroad, steamship and hotel owner. Her will was filed in the surrogate's court here.

To her husband Mrs. Graves leaves a specific bequest of $1,000,000, her residence, horses, carriages, automobiles, all personal property attached to the residence, and in an equal share with two nephews, who are named among the beneficiaries, the residue of the estate after the payment of specified bequests. The total amount of the bequests is about $3,000,000.

CUMMINGS SEES WAR IN THE AIR

Edward's Death Will Be Signal For Scrap With Germany

Boston, June 4.—Mathew Cummings, national president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and Rev. Philip J. O'Connell, state chaplain of the order, envoys to Ireland to accomplish an international reunion of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, arrived in Boston from New York last evening and were escorted to Faneuil hall, where a reception was held.

"There is a general feeling in England that when King Edward dies, war between England and Germany is inevitable, and in such an event every able-bodied Irishman in Ireland and in this country would fight for Germany, on condition that the freedom of Ireland was guaranteed," declared Cummings, in his after-dinner speech.

GIVES UP LONG JAUNT

Man Walking For Big Wager Quits to Become a Benedict

Gibsonburg, O., June 4.—George Kuepper of Chicago ended a twenty-four hours' courtship Thursday when Miss Gertrude McCloskey of Woodville said "yes." At the same time Kuepper relinquished all chances for winning a $2000 wager if he walked 6000 miles within a year. The prize was posted by the Shamrock A. C. of Chicago and the young man began his task May 23.

There was a provision that if, during his year's ramble, he met and wedded a stranger, $500 would be added to the purse. The wooing began Wednesday. The couple will be married Sunday, but Kuepper will not complete his walk.

POCKET LINED WITH MONEY

Unknown Man Kills Himself by Hanging From a Tree

Dover, N. J., June 4.—An unidentified man was found hanging from a limb of a tree on the outskirts of Dover last evening. He had $1193.72 in his pocket.

Seen on the streets since Monday, his erratic behavior was noticed. Tuesday morning he asked a druggist for "just enough carbolic acid for one." He was so nonchalant about it that the druggist, refusing the request, suggested that the canal was not far off.

"Acid is better, they tell me," the man replied.

Cyclone In Georgia

Sylvania, Ga., June 4.—A half dozen or more persons were injured in a terrific cyclone that passed over the lower part of Screven county. Houses fell about and upon many persons without inflicting fatal injuries.

Newfoundland's Big Budget

St. John's, June 4.—A supply vote appropriating nearly $3,000,000 for public expenses during the coming fiscal year, a record in the colony, was passed by the legislature.

GREAT STRIKE MAY END TODAY

Influential Political Leaders Take a Hand in Philadelphia

THEIR DEMANDS MODIFIED

Men In Sympathy With Street Car Employes Say Transit Company Will Accept New Terms With Slight Modifications—Mobs Make Further Attacks—Mayor Suspends Two Police Captains

Philadelphia, June 4.—The strike of the motormen and conductors of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company, which began on last Saturday morning, is now in the process of settlement and those having the matter in charge confidently assert that it will be brought to a close before night.

Influential political leaders bent all their energies toward bringing the trouble to a peaceable conclusion. Senator McNichol, the recognized Republican leader, and Senator Vare, who controls the down-town section, announced that they sympathized with the men and were trying to bring the strike to an end. After a conference with a number of the strike leaders at his home McNichol submitted to the company the demands of the men.

These, it is understood, were somewhat modified from their original demands. Twenty-two cents an hour, instead of twenty-five cents, originally asked by the men, is said to be the new demand. In addition the men ask the privilege of buying their uniforms in the open market, a day's work of not more than ten hours, the abolition of the "swing" system, the reinstatement of all the old men, and the settlement of all future difficulties by conferring with a committee representing the men.

These demands, when presented to the transit company, according to McNichol, were assented to with slight modifications. The modified agreement was returned to the men, who will make their final answer today.

Serious rioting which started Wednesday night was renewed Thursday in various sections of the city. Most of the disturbances occurred at the noon hour, when workers amused themselves by throwing bricks and other missiles at passing motormen and conductors.

For the first time since the strike began a number of the employes on the elevated road deserted their posts and joined the strikers. This line, however, continued in operation all day. Cars on the other lines of the company ran at irregular intervals until nightfall, when no further attempt was made to continue the service.

At noon subway and elevated trains were running twenty minutes apart.

The report that the strike would probably be soon settled spread like wildfire last night, but not before the rioters in the Kensington district had started on their errand of destruction. Early in the evening a mob of nearly 2000 persons started for the main barn of the transit company for the purpose, as they declared, of destroying the structure. By the time the barn was reached there were nearly 4000 persons in the mob. The company had been warned of the approach of the men and when the crowd reached the barn it was met by 500 policemen. This array of bluecoats has a quieting effect on the rioters and they dispersed after hurling a few stones through the windows.

At three other points the demonstrations early in the evening were almost as serious as in the Kensington district. Cars were wrecked, motormen and conductors were beaten, policemen were assaulted and several were injured by the indiscriminate throwing of stones and clubs by the lawless element.

The mayor ordered the suspension of Captains Dungan and Thompson, two veterans in the city's police service. No reason is assigned, but it is presumed they are charged with failure vigorously to suppress rioting.

There are but five police captains in the city and the suspension of Dungan and Thompson created a sensation. In their places were appointed the two lieutenants from the Tenderloin district, accustomed to the handling of the tough element.

GET TEN-HOUR DAY

Increase In Wages Also Granted Pittsfield Railway Employes

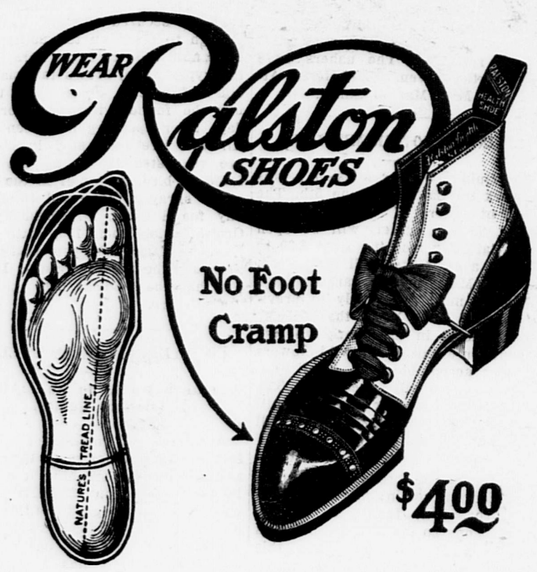

Pittsfield, Mass., June 4.—The cars of the Pittsfield Street Railway company are running with their usual regularity, the conductors and motormen who went on strike having returned to work.

By the agreement reached, the strikers gain their two principal demands, the increase in wages and a straight ten-hour day. The men will receive 21 cents an hour for their first year's service, and each succeeding year will receive a raise of 1 cent an hour until they reach a maximum of 25 cents an hour. After ten hours they will receive an overtime rate of 30 cents an hour. Three minor claims of the union, including the demand that the company shall employ none but union men, were withdrawn.

CASE IS TAKEN FROM THE JURY

Dewey $76,450,000 Suit Confronted by a Sensation

SIGNAL MADE BY DEFENDANT

Statement of Juror Results In New Men Being Chosen to Hear Evidence—Plaintiff Declares Himself Sane, Despite Alleged Assertions of "Verbal Vitriol Throwers"—Several Warm Arguments With Court

Boston, June 4.—After lengthy conferences with one of the jurors, the counsel in the case and one of the defendants, Judge Sherman halted the trial of the $76,450,000 suit of former Judge Henry S. Dewey against certain members of the Good Government association by taking the case from the jury and calling for a new panel. The defendants are Laurence Minot, Eliot N. Jones, John M. Little, George R. Nutter, Nathaniel N. Thayer.

The incidents that led to the dismissal of the jury originated from Joseph P. O'Brien, one of the jurors, who called to the attention of Judge Sherman that he had witnessed signalling on the part of John M. Little to Edmund Billings, who was testifying on the stand.

Judge Sherman at once made investigation and following a conference between O'Brien, Dewey and Edward F. McClennen, attorney for the defense, the court ordered the jury dismissed.

The impanelling of the second jury was quickly completed. In his second opening Dewey declared himself to be mentally balanced, asserting that the five defendants had proclaimed his insanity to the world.

During his opening Dewey bitterly attacked the Good Government association, characterizing them as "a horde of wicked defamers."

"I'll show you," he said, "what no one of the five defendants comprehended, that to accuse a man of my standing in Boston, a member of the bar, and a former judge, of untruthfulness and insincerity, is one of the vilest of crimes.

"They are verbal throwers of vitriol, worse than hysterical women who throw vitriol in bottles. I believe that I am entitled to a verdict. Let me have $30,000,000, or even $60,000,000, and then leave it to me to collect it."

Dewey finished his opening at 1 o'clock, and at the afternoon session he presented his evidence. It was a continual tilt all afternoon between Dewey and the court, with the attorney for the defense adding spice by repeatedly objecting. About five of every six objections were sustained by the court.

When Dewey began to argue from the result of the vote for mayor and had given his ideas as to the recount, Judge Sherman asked:

"Are we trying a case as to whom was nominated at the primaries?"

"This is one of the allegations," replied Dewey.

"Well, we can't do that," was the reply of the court.

"All right," Dewey replied after a moment's reflection as he turned away from the bench. "I must keep on good terms with the manager of the box-office."

Statistics Indicate That Race Suicide Has at Last Been Checked

Paris, June 4.—The vital statistics of France, which in 1907 showed an excess of 19,892 deaths over the births for that year, a fact that led to the most pessimistic predictions for the future of the French race, have now been published for 1908.

Their study brings to light more reassuring official figures and shows an excess of 46,441 births over the deaths for that year. The total of deaths decreased 48,266 in 1908, while the births increased 18,067.

CHILDREN TO COOPERATE.

Teachers throughout the country have been invited by the United States Forester to cooperate with the Forest Service in an effort to obtain more definite knowledge of the characteristics of the most important forest trees of the United States. To do this it will be necessary to obtain a large number of volunteer observers who will collect material on the time of leafing, blossoming, and fruiting of the various kinds of forest trees. In his letter inviting the cooperation of the teachers, Forester Pinchot says:

"Knowledge of this kind is greatly needed and will be of value from the standpoint both of education and of practical forestry. For educational purposes the results obtained for each species, averaged and presented graphically by means of colored charts, will be available to all who are interested in the subject, and particularly to schools. They will form virtual "tree calendars," and will be valuable aids to nature study.

"Children can readily be interested in the actual work of obtaining records. This should form an attractive outdoor feature of the school work that should serve to develop the faculty of accurate observation, and at the same time to promote an interest in forestry which may lead to a better appreciation of its aims and methods. It may also prove to be a profitable addition to botany courses for older students.

"A study of this kind will be of great value to practical forestry, since the proper treatment of forests depends partly upon a knowledge of these characteristics of trees. For example, the time of year at which a tree leafs out and blossoms is one of the indications as to whether or not it is frost-hardy in a given region, and the length of time that a tree is in leaf influences the growth it is able to make during the season. Knowledge of the time when seeds of each species ripen in various localities is of great value to those who are collecting seed, since seed often deteriorates or is eaten by squirrels and birds if not gathered and stored as soon as ripe.

"Another result of this study will be a more intimate knowledge of climate as manifested by plant growth, for differences in climate are shown by plant life as well as by instruments, and a preliminary idea can thus be gained as to whether a given region is suited to a valuable tree which it is desired to introduce there. Many such examples could be given, but sufficient has been said to show that the results of these observations will be a real help to practical forestry, in addition to their general interest and educational value. Volunteers will later be supplied with publications and charts containing the information they help to gather, as a return for the services rendered."

On request, the Forest Service will be glad to send forms upon which to record data and a pamphlet containing full instructions as to the nature of the observations and how they are to be made.

THE JUNE AMERICAN BOY.

The joys of vacation time are vividly recalled by the picture of the Old Swimmin' Hole which adorns the front cover page of the June American Boy. The contents are both varied and interesting. The opening chapters of a fine serial dealing with the opening days of the American Revolution are given. It is entitled the Young Continentals at Lexington, and boys will get from it a glimpse of the stirring history of those fateful times. Winning His Shoulder Straps is continued four chapters. Of the splendid short stories in this issue there are: The Honor Point, a story of a boy's sacrifice for his honor; For Mother's Sake, an English school story of bravery; In Old Panama, telling of a perilous adventure; The Lure of Rod and Reel, a delightful story of fishing, and Dum, Spiro, Spero, an inspiring story of a boy's heroism.—The Sprague Publishing Co., Detroit, Mich.

CURED OF LEPROSY

Many Persons Long Confined In Molokai Colony to Be Freed

Honolulu, June 4.—After some of them had spent twenty years of their life in the leper settlement on the island of Molokai, ten supposed lepers were yesterday declared to be free of the disease, following a re-examination.

Eleven persons were brought to Honolulu for examination at the instance of a legislative committee. Only one of the eleven re-examined was found to have leprosy, but some of the older freed patients will petition to be returned to the island of Molokai, as they have been shut off from the world and their friends so long that they have no other place to go.

Nineteen other supposed lepers will be brought from the settlement for re-examination in a short time.

BIRDS KILLED BY SPRAYING.

A large amount of circumstantial evidence seems to justify the assumption that birds are killed by spraying trees with arsenical insecticides for the purpose of killing insects. Last year many birds were found dead where trees were sprayed and the State Orinthologist began an investigation to determine whether the birds were killed by spraying. The evidence secured was not conclusive enough to clear up the matter fully, It is now time to begin spraying for the gypsy moth, brown tail moth and elm-leaf beetle. Dead birds usually may be found within two or three days after spraying has been done. All who are interested in bird life are requested to be on the watch for dead birds under or in the vicinity of sprayed trees and to forward any found to E. H. Forbush, State Ornithologist, Room 136, State House, Boston, Mass. It is proposed to have the birds' bodies analyzed to learn if they have been poisoned by the spraying mixture.

COUNTERFEIT HALF DOLLARS

Several Reported to be in Circulation in Quincy.

A number of counterfeit half dollars are in circulation in Quincy and several storekeepers have found them in their collection of silver. The counterfeit is a good imitation and one that few persons would notice unless warned to look out for them.

The counterfeit has a good ring but can easily be detected by its light weight when compared with a good coin.

UR U IS PRAISED

President and Other Officials at Banquet In Admiral's Honor

Washington, June 3.—Surrounded by the highest officials of the government, by prominent officers of the navy and by more than thirty of his fellow graduates in the class of '81 from the United States naval academy, Vice Admiral Uriu of Japan was the guest of honor at a dinner of sixty covers at the Metropolitan club last night. The visitors came from many parts of the United States, one of them being from California.

President Taft responded to the toast "The President." He said he was glad of the chance to do honor to the gallant Japanese sailor and to testify by his presence and participation in the festivities of the evening his appreciation of the feeling which the American nation entertains toward Japan and her people, and of his own personal desire to honor the visitor of the nation which on more than one occasion had honored him.

KAISER AND CZAR

To Meet In Finnish Waters and Discuss European Politics

St. Peterburg, June 3.—A meeting between Emperor William and Emperor Nicholas has been arranged and will take place in the waters of the Finnish gulf. The date of the meeting probably will be June 17.

The German emperor will arrive on the Hohenzollern, while Emperor Nicholas will be aboard the Standardt, accompanied by M. Iswolsky, the foreign minister, and Admiral Voevodsky, the minister of marine.

It was supposed in some quarters that German mediation, which had ended the Balkan crisis, had left a heritage of bitterness, which would estrange the two monarchs and lead Russia to identify herself more closely with Great Britain's continental policy.

The meeting is taken to mean that Russia prefers an amicable arrangement with Germany to the doubtful issue of an antagonistic policy.

The Social Realm

So take Joy home,
And make a place in thy great heart for her,
And give her time to grow, and cherish her.
Then will she come, and oft will sing to thee,
When thou art working in the furrows; ay,
Or weeding in the sacred hour of dawn.
It is a comely fashion to be glad—
Joy is the grace we say to God.

POLLY of the CIRCUS

BY MARGARET MAYO

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY DODD, MEAD AND COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Polly, a child of the circus, is brought up by Toby, a clown, and by a boss canvasman called "Muvver Jim." She learns to ride Bingo, a circus horse, and grows to woman hood knowing no life except that of the circus. II—A church near the circus lot interests Polly. Jim rerpoves her for her reckless riding. III—Polly urges Bingo to unprecedented speed and falls. Toby and Jim carry the injured girl to the parsonage nearby. IV—The Rev. John Douglas, much to Deacon Elverson's disgust, takes Polly into the parsonage. Tobby and "Muvver Jim" are received kindly by Douglas, who has placed Polly in charge of his colored servant, Mandy. Douglas promises to care for the girl until she is well. V—When Polly becomes conscious she declares that she must rejoin the circus at once. "Are you a sky pilot?" she asks the minister. Her mother was killed riding a circus horse, and her father "got his'n in a lion's cage." The minister reads to her about Ruth and Naomi, and Polly says, "I guess I'd like to hear you spiel." VI—Douglas offends Deacon Strong by defending boys who play baseball on Sunday. VII—Polly recovers her health, but is saddened by the death of Toby. Jim sends the news and promises to keep in touch with her. VIII—Polly recovers from the blow dealt her by Toby's death. She has ceased using slang and is educating herself under Douglas, guidance. She endeavors to improve Mandy's grammar.

CHAPTER IX.

DOUGLAS was turning toward the house when the Widow Willoughby came through the wicker gate to the left of the parsonage, carrying bunting for the social. She was followed by Miss Perkins with a bucket of pickles, which Mandy promptly placed on top of Mrs. Elverson's ice cream. The women explained that they had come to put the finishing touches to the decorations. If anything was needed to increase Mandy's dislike of the widow it was this announcement.

Mrs. Willoughby was greatly worried because her children had not been home since the afternoon school session. Upon hearing that they were with Polly she plainly showed her displeasure, and Douglas dispatched Mandy for them. She saw that her implied distrust of Polly had annoyed him, and she was about to apologize when two of the deacons arrived on the scene, also carrying baskets and parcels for the social.

Strong led the way. He always led the way and always told Elverson what to think. They had been talking excitedly as they neared the parsonage, for Strong disapproved of the recent changes which the pastor had made in the church service. He and Douglas had clashed more than once since the baseball argument, and the deacon had realized more and more that he had met a will quite as strong as his own. His failure to bend the parson to his way of thinking was making him irritable and taking his mind from his business.

"Can you beat that!" he would exclaim as he turned away from some disagreement with Douglas, his temper ruffled for the day.

Polly was utterly unconscious of the unfriendly glances cast in her direction as she came running into the garden leading the widow's two children.

She nodded gayly to Julia Strong, who was coming through the gate, then hurried to Mrs. Willoughby, begging that the children be allowed to remain a little longer. She was making up a new game, she said, and needed Willie and Jennie for the set.

"My children do not play in promiscuous games," said the widow icily.

"Oh, but this isn't pro-pro-pro"—Polly stammered. "It's a new game. You put two here, and two here, and"—

"I don't care to know." The widow turned away and pretended to talk to Julia.

"Oh!" gasped Polly, stunned by the widow's rebuff.

She stood with bowed head in the center of the circle. The blood flew from her cheeks; then she turned to go.

Douglas stepped quickly to her side. "Wait a minute," he said. She paused. All eyes were turned upon them. "Is this a game that grownups can play?"

"Why, yes, of course."

"Good! Then I'll make up your set. I need a little amusement just now. Excuse me," he added, turning to the deacons. Then he ran with her out through the trees.

The deacons and the women stared at each other, aghast.

"Well, what do you think of that?" said Mrs. Willoughby as the flying skirts of the girl and the black figure of the man disappeared up the path.

"I think it's scandalous, if you are talking to me," said Miss Perkins. "The idea of a full grown parson a-runnin' off to play children's games with a circus ridin' girl!"

"She isn't such a child," sneered Julia.

"It's enough to make folks talk," put in Mrs. Willoughby, with a sly look at the deacons.

"An' me awaitin' to discuss the new church service," bellowed Strong.

"And me awaiting to give him Mrs. Elverson's message," piped Elverson.

"The church bore all this in silence so long as that girl was sick," snapped Miss Perkins. "But now she's perfectly well and still a-hanging on. No wonder folks are talking."

"Who's talkin'?" thundered Strong.

"Didn't you know?" simpered Mrs. Willoughby, not knowing herself nor caring so long as the suspicion grew.

"Know what?" yelled the excited deacon. Mrs. Willoughby floundered. Miss Perkins rushed into the breach.

"Well, if I was deacon of this church it seems to me I'd know something about what's going on in it."

"What is goin' on?" shrieked the now desperate deacon.

The women looked at him pityingly, exchanged knowing glances, then shook their heads at his hopeless stupidity.

"My children do not play in promiscuous games," said the widow icily.

Strong was not accustomed to criticism. He prided himself upon his acuteness and was, above all, vain about his connection with the church. He looked from one woman to the other. He was seething with helpless rage. The little deacon at his side coughed nervously. Strong's pent-up wrath exploded. "Why didn't you tell me, Elverson, that people was a-talkin'?" he roared in the frightened man's ear.

Elverson sputtered and stammered, but nothing definite came of the sounds; so Strong again turned to Miss Perkins:

"What is goin' on?" he demanded.

The spinster shrugged her shoulders and lifted her eyes heavenward, knowing that nothing could so madden the deacon as this mysterious inference of things too terrible to mention. She was right. Strong uttered a desperate "Bah!" and began pacing up and down the garden with reckless strides.

Mrs. Willoughby watched him with secret delight, and when he came to a halt she wriggled to his side with simpering sweetness.

"What could folks say?" she asked. "A minister and a young circus girl living here like this with no one to"—She found no words at this point, and Strong, now thoroughly roused, declared that the congregation should have no further cause for gossip and went out quickly in search of Douglas.

When Strong was gone Elverson looked at the set faces of the women and attempted a weak apology for the pastor. "I dare say the young man was very lonely—very—before she came."

"Lonely!" snapped Miss Perkins. "Well, if he was lonely I didn't know it."

The deacon excused himself nervously and went to join Strong.

The women gathered up their buntings and retired with bland smiles to the Sunday school room, feeling that they had accomplished enough for the time being.

Strong and Elverson crossed the yard, still in search of the pastor. They turned at the sound of fluttering leaves and beheld Douglas, hatless, tearing down the path. Strong called to him, but Douglas darted quickly behind the hedge. The deacons looked at one another in speechless astonishment. Presently the silence was broken by the distant voice of Polly counting from one to a hundred. The secret was out! The pastor, a leader of the church, was playing hide and seek!

"Mr. Douglas!" shouted Strong when his breath had returned.

"Hush, hush!" whispered Douglas, looking over the hedge. He peeped cautiously about him, then came toward the men with a sigh of relief. "It's all right. She has gone the other way."

"It'll be a good thing for you if she never comes back," said Strong, and Douglas' quick ear caught an unpleasant meaning in his tone.

"What's that?" the pastor asked in a low, steady voice.

"We don't like some of the things that are goin' on here, and I want to talk to you about 'em."

"Very well, but see if you can't talk in a lower key."

"Never mind about the key!" shouted Strong angrily.

"But I do mind." Something in his eyes made the deacon lower his voice.

"We want to know how much longer that girl is goin' to stay here."

"Indeed! And why?" The color was leaving Douglas' face and his jaw was becoming very square.

"Because she's been here long enough."

"I don't agree with you there."

"Well, it don't make no difference whether you do or not. She's got to go."

"Go?" echoed Douglas.

"Yes, sir-e-bob. We've made up our minds to that."

"And who do you mean by 'we?'"

"The members of this congregation," replied Strong impatiently.

"Am I to understand that you are speaking for them?" There was a deep frown between the young pastor's eyes. He was beginning to be perplexed.

"Yes, and as deacon of this church."

"Then as deacon of this church you tell the congregation for me that that is my affair."

"Your affair," shouted Strong, "when that girl is livin' under the church's roof, eatin' the church's bread!"

"Just one moment! You don't quite understand. I am minister of this church, and for that position I receive or am supposed to receive a salary to live on and this parsonage, rent free, to live in. Any guests that I may have here are my guests and not guests of the church. Remember that, please."

There was an embarrassing silence. The deacons recalled that the pastor's salary was slightly in arrears. Elverson coughed meekly. Strong started.

"You keep out of this, Elverson!" he cried. "I'm runnin' this affair, and I ain't forgettin' my duty nor the parson's."

"I shall endeavor to do my duty as I see it," answered Douglas, turning away and dismissing the matter.

"Your duty is to your church," thundered Strong.

"You're right about that, Deacon Strong," answered Douglas, wheeling about sharply, "and my duty to the church is reason enough for my acting exactly as I am doing in this case."

"Is your duty to the church the only reason you keep that girl here?"

"No; there are other reasons."

"I thought so."

"You've heard her story—you must have heard. She was left with me by an old clown who belonged in the circus where she worked. Before he died he asked me to look after her. She has no one else. I shall certainly do so."

"Your affair," shouted Strong, "when that girl is eatin' the church's bread!"

"That was when she was hurt. She's well now and able to go back where she came from. Do you expect us to have our young folks associatin' with a circus ridin' girl?"

"So, that's it!" cried the pastor, with a pitying look. "You think this child is unfit for your homes because she was once in a circus. For some reason circus to you spells crime. You call yourself a Christian, Deacon Strong, and yet you insist that I send a good, innocent girl back to a life which you say is sinful. I'm ashamed of you, Strong—I'm ashamed of you!"

"That talk don't do no good with me!" roared Strong. He was desperate at being accused of an un-Christian attitude.

"I ain't askin' you to send her back to the circus. I don't care where you send her. Get her away from here; that's all."

"Not so long as she wishes to stay."

"You won't?" Strong saw that he must try a new attack. He came close to Douglas and spoke with a marked insinuation. "If you was a friend to the girl, you wouldn't want the whole congregation a-pointin' fingers at her."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that you're livin' here alone with her and it looks bad—bad for the girl and bad for you—and folks is talkin'."

"Are you trying to tell me that my people are evil minded enough to think that I"-- Douglas stopped. He could not frame the question. "I don't believe it," he concluded shortly.

"You'll be made to believe it if you don't get rid of that girl."

"Do you believe it?" He turned upon the little man at his side. "Do you believe it, Elverson?"

Elverson had been so accustomed to Strong monopolizing the conversation that he had become hopelessly lost as the discussion went on, and the sudden appeal to him all but paralyzed his power of speech. He was still gurgling and sputtering when Strong interrupted impatiently.

"It makes no difference whether we believe it or not. We're goin' to do our duty by the church, and that girl must leave or"—

"Or I must." Douglas pieced out Strong's phrase for himself. "That threat doesn't frighten me at all, deacon. After what you have said I should refuse to remain in this church"—the deacon stepped forward eagerly—"were it not that I realize more than ever before how much you need me, how much you ignorant, narrow minded creatures need to be taught the meaning of true Christianity." The deacon was plainly disappointed.

LETTER FROM THE CAPITAL.

Washington, May 29, 1909.

The test vote taken on the income tax question in the Senate this week, it believed to foreshadow a victory for the Republican leaders in their plan to refer both the Bailey and Cummins amendements to the Judiciary Committee. The vote to defer consideration of the income tax amendments until June 10 means that no amendments to provide for special taxes will be taken up by the Senate until the schedules of the tariff bill are adopted, and it is the intention, of course, of the Finance Committee to show that the new customs duties will raise sufficient revenue to support the government and that any special tax is wholly unnecessary.

The sensational character of the dispatches sent out from Washington concerning certain defective armor plates which have been found in the construction of the battleships North Dakota and Delaware, is greatly depreciated by the officials at the Navy Department. They explain that defective plates always are and always have been found from time to time; that it is not known what causes the blisters, and, therefore, it has been impossible thus far to prevent their occasional occurrence. It has been the custom, heretofore, merely to reject the plates when found defective, without saying anything about it, but recently the department has adopted a new policy. As nothing was to be gained by secrecy, no effort is now made to conceal the fact that such defective plates have been found and rejected, although the first information to reach the public has received wholly unwarranted prominence.

Representative Hayes has acted on the suggestion made by President Taft recently at a dinner tendered by a number of Washington business men, in introducing a resolution in the House, this week, providing for the restoration to the District of Columbia of the land which was ceded to Virginia in 1846, and which prior to that time has been a part of the District of Columbia. This land comprises many thousands of acres in Alexandria County, across the Potomac River from Washington and is used chiefly for agricultural purposes, although the town of Alexandria is included. Mr. Hayes' resolution provides that this land be again made part of the District, except the town of Alexandria and authorizes the President to open negotiations through the War Department and to complete the transfer by July 1, 1910 and authorizes an appropriation of $100,000 for the transaction. In his address to the business men the President expressed the opinion that the act of Congress in receding the land to Virginia was unconstitutional and that the District of Columbia should regain it. Mr. Hayes' resolution has been referred to the District of Columbia Committee and will not be acted on until the next session, but Representative Hayes believes that President Taft's interest in the plan will insure its passage.

President Taft and Secretary Knox are not a little disturbed over the reports which reach them of conditions in Cuba. It seems that the new Cuban government, is just awakening to its freedom from American restraint and is in a fair way to muddle the finances of the island if it does not precipitate a national bankruptcy. The government is devoting its energies to the indulgence of varied and numerous extravagances while making small effort to supply the treasury of the island with funds. Those familiar with Cuban affairs know that unless this epoch of extravagance is soon checked it will preciptate a situation such as to cause the foreign creditors of Cuba to turn to the United States for assistance, making necessary another assumption of authority over the island. President Taft considers the situation down there far from satisfactory and is much concerned over it.

The action of Senator Bailey in so far forgetting himself as to indulge in a fistic encounter with a Washington representative of a metropolitan daily is much censured throughout official circles, and by his conduct he has completely justified the expectations of those who have long believed that with brass knuckles and a blackjack he could down any man half his size, provided he could succeed first in hitting him from behind. This is not the first demonstration that Mr. Bailey has given of his inability to control his temper and while such outburst are always seriously deplored by his colleagues ,they injure no one but the Texan who has thereby impaired his standing almost hopelessly.

President Taft will have conferred on him, on June 3, honorary membership in the first blue lodge of Masons composed of Americans in Great Britain ,and the President says that on the occasion of the opening of the new lodge he will send a cable message of congratulation. Adams.

—The streets of San Marino, the smallest republic in the world, will be reproduced in the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition at Seattle this year.

INTERFERENCE OF RELATIVES

Prevents Marriage of an American Woman In Paris

LICENSE HAD BEEN PROCURED

State Department at Washington Gets Busy and Finds That Supposed Italian Count Is an Austrian Doctor—Prospective Hubby Suddenly Finds That Common Law Union With His Sister-In-Law Still Holds

Paris, June 5.—The heroine of the proposed marriage which the machinery of the state department at Washington was put into motion to prevent, is Miss Isabel Garwood, a white-haired woman who gives New York as her place of residence. She is now a guest at the Continental hotel here.

The prospective bridegroom is Count Bettino di Moise Padua, who once was a resident of New York and whom Miss Garwood met in Egypt. The engagement of Miss Garwood to the count was announced on April 16.

The intervention of the state department at Washington was secured through Rev. John B. Quinn of the Church of the Ascension, Washington, at the instigation of Miss Garwood's sister, Miss Frances A. Garwood of New York. The state department transmitted to Ambassador Reid at London, and later to Ambassador White here, the results of its investigation into the record of the count's life in New York and of his antecedents in Italy, which were obtained by Baron Mayor des Planches, the Italian ambassador to the United States.

According to this information the count is not a nobleman, but an Austrian who practiced medicine for several years in New York with his brother. Upon the death of the brother, the information declares, the count contracted a common law union with his sister-in-law, but he claimed that four years ago he effected a settlement with her and that she returned to Austria. It also was alleged that during the count's residence in New York he was twice tried, once for selling medicine illegally and once for malpractice, but both times was acquitted.

The wedding of Miss Garwood and the count was set for Thursday and a license had been procured. According to Miss Garwood, the marriage was not broken off on account of the intervention of her sister, but by the count himself, when he received a letter from a brother in Austria, who had learned of the prospective union, saying that his sister-in-law claimed that the bond between herself and the count had not been annulled.

Miss Garwood says that the count, whom she intended to marry because he was a refined and cultured gentleman, was astounded at this claim and had now gone to Italy to obtain from his father, who was in possession of the papers, proof of the settlement with the woman.

Miss Garwood says she regards the interference of her relatives in the matter as gratuitous.

Italians Knew Him as Doctor

New York, June 5.—Those Italian families in New York in which George Pettini Di Moise won favor knew him as "Doctor," not as "Count." By his creditable work as a physician he became well known.

In the theatre district and among the frequenters of fashionable restaurants, it is said, Di Moise was known as a count. His first public claim to a title, persons who knew him here say, was in July, 1899, when his brother, also a physician, died.

His wife was Miss Hattie Burchell of this city and their son is now a third year student in the Columbia law school.

NEEDLE IN WOMAN'S HAND

She Has It Removed After Carrying It For Twenty-Five Years

New York, June 5.—A piece of steel needle was removed from the right hand of Mrs. John O'Connell, aged 60, at her home here, after having been embedded there for more than twenty-five years.

A quarter of a century ago, while in Ireland, Mrs. O'Connell wiped her hands on a towel in which she had stuck a needle, and a piece of the sharp steel broke off and remained in her hand.

McClellan Will Question Duffy

New York, June 5.—Mayor McClellan requested the father of George B. Duffy, the Brooklyn boy whose troubles with the police have been at the bottom of the charges brought by Supreme Court Justice Gaynor against Police Commissioner Bingham, to bring the youth before him next Monday. The father is requested also to bring character witnesses.

BOSTON LETTER

District Attorney Hill Making Great Record

WAITING FOR TARIFF BILL

Massachusetts Manufacturers Will Boom Business When It Is Enacted —Hibbard May Run Again for Mayor of Boston

District Attorney Arthur D. Hill of Suffolk county is proving the right man in the right place. When he was appointed to succeed the late John B. Moran there was a general feeling that the office of the district attorney would be found wide-awake as long as he remained in it. He has already secured two convictions against prominent men accused of swindling the city of Boston, and there are a good many other cases still pending which he proposes to try in the near future. He has had very much better success than John B. Moran, and the other men whose cases are soon to come to trial are trembling in their boots.

When he entered the office, he was confronted by a peculiar situation. There is strong circumstantial evidence that for some years certain firms of lawyers have added to their legitimate work the business of "fixing" juries. In several cases where the evidence was overwhelming against certain men the jury was unable to agree. The thing became so flagrant and bold that some of the newspapers made very plain statements in regard to it.

In addition to this, District Attorney Hill has found it quite as necessary to secure good juries and to guard them while deliberating over cases, as it was to properly prepare and present to the court his evidence. The two convictions which he has recently secured indicate that he has gotten at the root of the trouble. It is alleged that some firms of lawyers maintained in addition to a corps of lawyers, a corps of "jury fixers" as well, and that they have found it an immensely profitable business.

There is very little doubt that in some cases the inability of John B. Moran to convict some of the people accused, who were tried during his term of office, was due in part at least to this system of "jury fixing." Mr. Hill has located the trouble and found a remedy. He is making an unusually efficient and successful district attorney and if he keeps on in the same line on which he has started he will win a name for himself equal to that of any man who has filled the position.

Waiting For the Tariff Bill

There is great interest all over the state in the pending tariff legislation at Washington and an earnest desire that the work of perfecting the tariff bill shall be completed at an early period. From indications gathered from every part of the commonwealth it is apparent that every line of business is ready to take a boom. The uncertainty in regard to the tariff schedules is the only thing which is holding the manufacturers back at the present moment.

It is perfectly natural that the people of this state should desire its products to be well protected, and perhaps it is equally natural that they should desire to get their raw material duty-free. Some of the western congressmen are fond of saying that New England wants protection for its manufactures and free trade in everything they buy, but of course tariff bills are not made up that way. They are the result of a compromise, and if Massachusetts expects protection on her manufactured goods, those from whom she buys her raw materials, which are the manufactured goods of some other section, will expect protection also.

It is perfectly natural that it should be so, looking at it impartially. There would seem to be no more reason for protecting New England manufactures than there is for protecting the manufactures of other sections of the country. One man's finished product is another man's raw material, but under a scientific tariff plan one is as much entitled to protection as the other. When the tariff bill is completed, it is quite probable that Massachusetts will be as well pleased with it as with that of any other tariff bill enacted in recent years.

Hibbard and Another Term?

There are indications that Mayor Hibbard would not refuse a renomination this fall. He has not said definitely what his plans may be, but those who claim to know his mind believe he will be the candidate of the Good Government association if invited to do so. He has now been nearly a year and a half in office, and it must be said in all fairness, even by those who oppose his non-partisanship, that he has saved the city a considerable amount of money. Nevertheless, among the workers of the Republican party who have expected some reward for their efforts in assisting to elect him, there is strong opposition. It is quite likely, however, that a very large element of the rank and file of the Republican voters would not only favor his nomination but also his re-election.

Even his friends do not claim that he has been infallible in his administration of the city, but his enemies concede that he has made an honest effort to give the city an economical government and clean up the departments so far as he was able and put them on a strictly business basis. He has succeeded fairly well and the improvement over the administration of John F. Fitzgerald has been most marked.

There is no doubt that ex-Mayor Fitzgerald will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination. Up to the present time there is no substantial opposition to this program. It is true, however, that a very large body of the Democratic voters has seen enough of Fitzgerald and would very strongly favor any other Democrat who might enter the field.

Chairman James Donovan of the Democratic city committee is believed to look with disfavor upon the candidacy of Fitzgerald. He is an astute politician and if he should back some other Democrat for the nomination it would go hard with the ex-mayor.

Mr. Hibbard would have a tremendous fight to defeat a Democrat. He would stand a better chance of defeating Fitzgerald than most any Democrat who might be named, although the city is normally from 15,000 to 25,000 Democratic. There is a great deal of independent voting at city elections, however.

PILLOWS AND SLEEPING.

"Pillows are little more than a fad, and rather harmful one at that," said a Germantown doctor. "They should really only be used by those who sleep on their sides, as they are injurious to others. When you sleep on your side your shoulder prevents your head from lying level on the bed, and pillows are useful to raise the head to this level. The natural and most healthful position for the ordinary person in sleeping is for one's head to be kept perfectly even, just as it would be standing up.

"Now, for the one who lies on his back while sleeping, no pillow is needed to keep the head in this position, and yet 99 per cent of the persons who sleep on their backs use pillows, while those who sleep on their sides use far more pillows than are necessary. People got used to having their heads and shoulders propped high up, and imagined they could not sleep any other way, but, as a matter of fact, if they would try sleeping with little or no pillow they would not only find that they would feel better in the morning, but also would actually be more comfortable in bed and sleep much sounder throughout the night."—Philadelphia Record.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Meditations on the Passing of the Mother-in-law Joke—Dancing for Health is the Hub's Latest Fad—Bouquets and Butter for the Guilds en Route for Europe—A Pathetic Incident of Memorial Day—A Small Girl Who Prefers a Cat to a Dollar Because it Doesn't Go so Fast.

Is she "all fault who hath no fault at all?" Boston "girls" from sixteen to sixty—more of the latter than of the former—are gazing with envy and awe at Maude Odell, "The perfect woman," who is in town this week. Chorus girls and show girls of all ranks are particularly interested to discover the secrets of her faultless figure and glorious complexion.

The annual record of fatalities by canoe upsets is growing slowly but surely. In one of those which occurred on Memorial day the victim, Carl Johansen of Roxbury, was a famous swimmer and had gained considerable renown as a result of having saved five people from drowning at City Point on the 19th of last April. It was a strange freak of fate which ordained that he should become entangled in the deadly grasses of the Charles and drawn into the grave from which he had been the means of saving so many.

The elevation of the stage received a good boost when B. F. Keith, greatest of vaudeville managers, banished the mother-in-law joke and all slurs on love and marriage from sketches presented in any of his houses. Mr. Keith has done much in Boston to improve the character of miscellaneous performances, and is receiving the heartiest approval of the theatregoing public as a result of this latest radical move. The agitation against the time honored jests was started by Herbert D. Ward, husband of Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Ward, the noted author. Mr. Keith has doubtless also eliminated jokes about the Youth's Companion, of which periodical Mr. Ward is one of the editors.

A little girl stopping in Boston en route from Connecticut to Maine, was very desirous of taking a beautiful Angora cat to the woods with her. Her mother objected on the ground of the care and inconvenience of travelling with the pet, and tried to dissuade the child by offering to give her a dollar to spend in Boston, if she would give up the idea. The little girl thought it over, then replied: "But, mother, how much longer a cat would last than a do'lar." She bids fair to make an economical wife for some fortunate man, when she grows up.

The first of Boston's perennially long list of important June weddings took place on Tuesday, when Miss Charlotte Nickerson and Guy Bancroft, the popular son of General William A. Bancroft, president of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, were married at a little Unitarian church in the suburban town of Winchester. General Bancroft has had a close second in his son in the boating and military world, the latter having been a member of the Harvard crew during his college days, a present member of the Union Boat club, and a retired first lieutenant in Battery A. His father, it is well remembered, stroked the Harvard crew to three successive victories over Yale, and was until his retirement one of the leading figures in the military circles of the Commonwealth.

Affability is a great asset. A striking indication of the popularity and high esteem in which former governor Curtis Guild, Jr., and his charming wife, both models of democratic accessibility, are held by the people of Massachusetts was given on the occasion of their departure for Europe on June 1. Their stateroom was a mass of flowers, and gifts of fruit, books and sweetmeats filled every available nook. One thoughtful farmer in the western part of the state sent Mrs. Guild a donation of some butter, expressing the fear that she might not find the ship's supply satisfactory. The Guilds held an informal reception on board before the ship sailed and expressed sincere appreciation of the royal send-off they were receiving at the hands of their friends and the people, many of whom still speak of Mr. Guild as "the Governor."

The excitement of three holidays in succession in conjunction with the advent of the circus has proved almost too much for some of the small boys of the Hub. After some discussion the city fathers arranged matters so that the circus parade could be given without interfering with the memorial services of the Grand Army of the Republic. Curiosity to see the circus established on the grounds of the old Park Square station, the remains of which were removed barely in time for the tents to be pitched, drewgreat crowss to the new centre of interest. There is a noticeable difference this year in th attitude taken by many people toward the members of the circus company. This is the effect in large part, undoubtedly, of a clearer insight into their life and character as derived from such moral lessons as those taught by Margaret Mayo in her story of "Polly of the Circus," and by Ralph Bergengren in his intimate study of the circus family printed in a recent number of the Atlantic Monthly.

Some dancing even the most religiously inclined should approve. The dance of health, for instance. That is now the thing among society women and college girls. This dance is a sort of revival of the old Greek style. It is spontaneous and performed in loose, flowing robes. Teachers of this dance claim that it is the most healthful form of exercise there is, stirring up the circulation, aiding digestion, making women graceful and above all—during the present season at least—making them slim. Who would not take it up? A part of the course given by these teachers requires the pupils to go barefoot at least two hours a day, merely protecting the soles of the feet with lightweight sandals. This new style of dancing not only guarantees good health, but is warranted to be a sure cure for the blues if properly entered into.

An impressive incident of the Memorial Day observances occurred on Washington street, when a company of Grand Army veterans halted to rest on their return march after paying tribute to their departed comrades. The ranks were thin but the old soldiers had responded to the martial strains with all their youthful spirit. Just as the company halted, a special car filled with young men of ages varying from twenty-one to thirty years and wearing the uniforms of the Massachusetts militia, rolled along beside the veterans and halted also. Every hat in the car was raised as by a common impulse and a series of ringing cheers expressed the feelings of the younger generation for the men whose example they hope to follow manfully if occasion requires. The grey-haired marchers responded with equal respect, doubtless seeing in the younger men the counterpart of themselves as they rallied at their country's call in the sixties.

HINTS FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS.

Knitting Bag Will Be Helpful For Miladi This Summer.

For the persistent knitter there may be had a yarn holder that is better than human hands in the way it holds and moves the skein. It has four arms, yet it does not provoke the smothered wrath of the winder, who is dependent on some two armed friend who perchance reluctantly consents to hold the skein and hurries off the yarn by waving his arms like a windmill.

There are so few things for the woman who knits that we feel like passing along whatever new ideas we hear of. There is a delightful knitting bag made to serve the same purpose that the bracelet basket is made for. I think we all know the little round or oblong basket that holds the knitting ball and swings over the arm of the knitter.

The new linen canvas bag is cut in two pieces, not unlike the rounded sides of a leather shopping bag in shape, except that these sides slope gradually up into a narrow strip two or three inches wide.

The sides are joined together to hold the knitting. This basket shaped affair is lined, including the strips which are joined together to form a handle. This is slipped over the arm. The bag may be decorated with a design in cross stitching.

LAMP SHADE AND HAT.

A Close Resemblance Recently Discovered by a Clever Girl.

Resemblance between the new hats and all sorts of household articles has been discovered by observing folk with a sense of humor, and the tub, the wastebasket, the coal scuttle, etc., have been designated as sources of inspiration for the freakish millinery of the season. A bright girl the other day discovered another. It was a lamp shade on view in a leading department shop. The color was the soft yellow of leghorn or natural straw, and the decorative feature was a cluster of roses realistically painted. During a visit a few minutes later to the millinery department an exact duplicate of the shade was seen among the most artistic productions, the hat being fashioned from leghorn braid and adorned with roses in shades of pink. The closeness of the resemblance is indicated in the accompanying illustration of hat and shade.

In the village church of Comfort, near Pont-Croix, in western Brittany, is a very good specimen of the now rare "wheel of fortune." It is made of wood, with a row of bells on its outer rim and pivoted between a couple of rough beams, altogether very primitive workmanship. By means of a cord attached to a crank the wheels can be made to revolve and set all the bells a-jangling. I have often heard that the peasants believe that it has miraculous power of healing when rung over the head of a sufferer who has placed a sou in the box to which the rope is padlocked. I received remarkable confirmation of this belief, for while making a photograph a well to do sailor's wife and her husband came into the church and looked round. The woman asked me if I thought there could be any truth in this belief, as her child was very backward in learning to talk. Her nurse, who came from those parts, had advised her to bring the baby and ring the bells of Comfort over his head, when he would be sure to talk. As she was passing she had looked in to see if it was worth trying!

LION HUNTING A CINCH

No Danger Attends Those Who Bring Down the King of Beasts

New York, June 5.—Dr. Lewis L. Seaman of this city, who returned yesterday by the Lusitania from a hunting trip in Africa, over the same ground that Mr. Roosevelt will traverse, has little patience with the terror-talk that some travelers have indulged in concerning the dangers Roosevelt will run.

"A lion stands no chance at all," said Seaman. "Before the hunters get a shot at him he has been chased by the beaters until he is so winded that there is little harm left in him. For the most part, African hunting is about as thrilling as in an English park. The one real danger is the tsetse fly, in the lowlands."

Dr. Seaman is a friend of the former president and was at the dinner given in honor of Roosevelt at Mombasa on April 21.

McCullough, former president of the common council, and Attorney James T. Cassidy, all convicted of grafting from the city of Boston, were put to work today sewing overalls and jumpers, with 200 other convicts. Battis must serve three years, McCullough two and Cassidy one.

The three were taken to Deer Island yesterday from Charles street jail, where they had been locked up after being sentenced. Each maintained an impassive demeanor.

TEST OF NAVIGATION AND SEAMANSHIP

Yachts In New York-to-Bermuda Race Get Away

New York, June 5.—The New York-to-Bermuda ocean races, under the auspices of the Atlantic Yacht club, begun today. The six sail-driven vessels started from the Sea Gate home of the Atlantic Yacht club at 10 o'clock this morning, while the four power boats will get away at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The distance to be covered is about 670 miles. Contestants must meet the chances of ocean weather and know their navigation as well as seamanship. Interest in the event is therefore keen among eastern enthusiasts.

FOUR MADE MILLIONAIRES

Number of Other Relatives of Morrison Receive Large Fortunes

London, June 5.—With the exception of $325,000 to be devoted to charities and his employes, the will of Charles Morrison, the comparatively unknown bachelor millionaire who died recently near Reading, leaving an estate valued at more than $50,000,000, bequeaths the whole of the vast fortune to relatives.

The will shows, in addition to large gifts to relatives in recent years, that a brother, a sister and two nephews are made millionaires, while two nieces get $315,500 each, and thirty-nine other relatives fortunes averaging $50,000 each.

GIANT BLOCK OF GRANITE

Chunk Valued at $200,000 Blasted Out In a Barre Quarry

Barre, Vt., June 5.—The largest piece of stone ever quarried in Vermont—a block of granite containing 161,000 cubic feet—has been blasted out at one of the quarries here. Figuring at the current value of $1.25 for each cubic foot, the great block is worth a little more than $200,000.

Under pressure of sixty pounds of powder, the stone broke nearly square. So great is it that it will have to be broken into several pieces before it can be removed from the quarries.

Matrimonial Rumors Revived

Next week is circus week and the small boy will be inhis glory. There'll be no need to call him Wednesday morning.

The city treasurer has disposed of $40,000 worth of water bonds at .65 above par. Quincy always was strong on the water question.

Be sure and read Monday's Ledger for the best account of the league game and all other sporting news as well and be sure to root strong for the Quincy team.

Quincy is fast becoming a sporting centre of the first class. This is especially so on Saturday. What with countless base ball games, including every kind of a nine from the amateurs to the league teams, soccer foot ball, yacht race, golf and field sports, including a Marathon run, there are sports enough for all classes of society.

The going away of the cruiser Salem today will remove from our streets the familiar sight of the blue jackets who have been plentiful hereabouts. For a crowd of 500 young men, full of spirit and animal life and recruited from all parts of the country, their conduct in Quincy has, as a whole, been excellent. They made business good along certain lines and the owners of the various eating houses will be sorry to see them go.

Congratulations to James T. Penniman, 90 years young today. He is still active in his business pursuits and for many many years has been an honest, honorable citizen and gentleman. May his future years be as full of usefulness as his past have been and may his life be used as a model for the younger generations springing up. It is worth the effort.

Five of the charter members of Gen. Thayer post, G. A. R., of the neighboring town of Braintree were given a public reception last night on the 40th anniversary of the Post. Wouldn't it be a good idea to give a reception to the charter members of Paul Revere post of this city? There must be some of the charter members alive and if there are any they are worthy of any public honor that can be bestowed upon them.

The new time table on the steam railroad will go into effect tomorrow. On the whole Quincy is getting pretty good train service, although some of the citizens who use the depots in other parts of the city think the service in those sections could be improved. Be sure and read the new timetables or you may go amiss on some train you have been in the habit of using for there are to be a few changes beginning with tomorrow.

Now that the dance halls at the sea shore resorts have begun business, City square will, no doubt, be filled with a thoughtless, noisy crowd of young folks about the midnight hours of Saturday. Last year the want of restraint manifested on the part of these crowds was anything but pleasing to people who live near City square and who try to get some sleep before midnight. Young people coming back from a good time ought to remember there are others in the city besides themselves and be a bit considerate. There is no excuse for the Indian-like yells that some of the youngsters split the air with. It would not be a bad idea to have a few police officers detailed some night to hand out a little advice along this line.

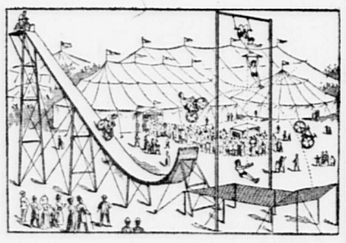

Disappointment because of the failure of the Republican leaders in the Senate to make such reductions in the duties as many believed the party was pledged to and which the consumers rightfully expected, has led to some severe criticism of President Taft because he has not undertaken by the exertion of Executive influence to disrupt the party organization and overthrow the Aldrich regime. While sharing sincerely in the disappointment over the failure of Congress more completely to revise the tariff we cannot share in the criticism of the President. Thoughtful consideration of the situation which has confronted Mr. Taft will, we believe, convince reasonable men that under trying circumstances tried and skilful leader, backed by his course has been the wisest that he could have adopted in the interest of the party, the consumer, and the prosperity of the country. The danger of swapping horses in the middle of a stream has long been realized. The danger of swapping a a thoroughly disciplined organization, for a leaderless coalition composed for the most part of irresponsible Democrats, must be obvious. Taken at their face value the protestations of the Democrats and the progressive Republicans seem to indicate that were they in control their influence would be exerted to promote a revision downward. Examined in the light of their votes on various schedules the reverse is demonstrated to be the case. Theoretically every progressive Republican and every Democrat advocates a general reduction of the duties, but whenever these statesmen have been confronted with a schedule in which their own constituents were vitally interested they have not only supported the high rate of duty proposed by the Finance Committee, but in a number of instances would have made the duties still higher had they been in control.

Secretary Ballinger of the Interior Department has made good his determination to cancel the wholesale withdrawals of public lands, made by his predecessor for the purpose of protecting water sites but without sufficient information, and at the same time to protect these same water sites and more too, and in doing so has withdrawn from entry only one-sixth of the area hitherto set aside for this purpose. When Secretary Ballinger opened to entry the great area withdrawn under the former administration and instructed the director of the Geological Survey to advise him as to what areas must be withdrawn to protect the water sites until Congress should have time to legislate regarding them, there was an emphatic protest from many who failed to grasp the purpose of the Secretary and who imagined that his course constituted a blow at the conservation movement. It is known that his action had the hearty approval of President Taft, and his withdrawal on Saturday last of 336,365 acres of public land in Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho and Oregon demonstrates his entire sympathy with the conservation movement. These withdrawals were based on definite information, obtained through the Survey, and include an even greater number of sites, although at a greatly reduced area, than were formerly withdrawn.

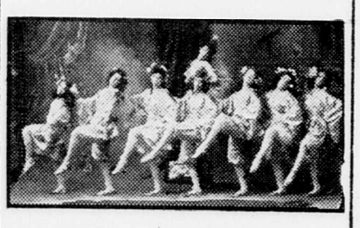

If Congress fails to enact a new census bill, and there is every indication that the two houses will fail to adjust their differences over the pending measure, the cause of civil service reform will receive a hard blow. Under the old law the "spoils system" was in effect, and if no adjustment of the differences between the two branches of Congress is reached this system will prevail in the thirteenth census. The old law provides that the employes shall be appointed by the Director of the Census after a non-competitive examination, and that each applicant must be endorsed by a Senator or Representative to become eligible. It was this provision in the bill which caused President Roosevelt to veto it, and which, it is understood, has met with the disapproval of President Taft.

CELEBRATING 90th BIRTHDAY

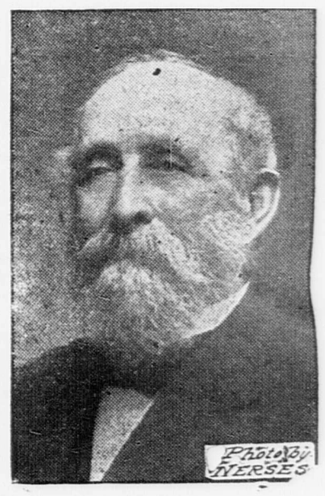

Few More Active at Ninety Than James T. Penniman.

James T. Penniman, one of Quincy's widely known and respected citizens, is receiving the congratulations from a host of friends today, the ninetieth anniversary of his birth. Of him it can be truly said he had not an enemy. None know him but to love and respect, and few indeed are the men who reach his age who are as smart as he.

To see him about his work or at the rooms of the Granite City club of which he is an honored member one would hardly suspect that ninety years had passed over his head. His step is almost as firm as in youth and his eyesight so unimpaired that he seldom has to resort to the use of glasses.

Not being one of his friends is something to be regretted for he is of a very genial nature always having a kind word and smile for all. Among his friends at the Granite City club he is perhaps best known for here he passes many of his leisure hours and here he is always assured of receiving a warm welcome.

It might also be said that he is equally well known among the members of the Washington M. French Hose Association of which he is an honored member and no gathering of this association would be considered complete were he not present.

Mr. Penniman was born in Braintree, of which the city of Quincy was once a part, and is a son of Stephen and Relief Thayer Penniman. He is a direct descendant of James Penniman, the ancestor of the Penniman family in this country. James Penniman was born in England and married Lydia Elliot, a sister of John Elliot known as the Indian apostle. With them he came to this country in the early sixteenth century and settled in Braintree.

The grandfather of James T. Penniman the subject of this sketch was Major Stephen Penniman of Revolutionary fame and he is one of the few of the seventh generation of the family now living.

He is the youngest of a family of nine children and received his early education in the public schools of Braintree . At the age of 16 years he attended school at the old stone school building on School street where the present police station is now located.

Leaving school he learned the shoe trade which business he has directly and indirectly followed ever since. In 1844 he commenced business for himself. Later he formed a co-partnership with Ozias Pope under the firm name of Pope & Penniman. This firm continued for four years, when Mr. Penniman withdrew and again started business for himself in Boston on Washington street near Eliot. He remained in business in Boston for about 22 years. During two years of this time he was in business with Henry Anderson.

About 1870 he came to Quincy and entered into a partnership with John R. Graham, now of Bangor, Me. This firm continued for four years when Mr. Penniman retired and commenced the manufacture of heels with his son under the firm name of James H. Penniman & Co. This firm is in existence today.

During his younger days he was a member of the local fire department and ran with the machine to many fires, at one time being one of the district engineers, and today he is the oldest representative of the fire department living having in all been connected with it for seventy years.

Mr. Penniman has been married twice. His first wife was Mariah J. Brooks whom he married Dec. 13, 1844, and who died in 1879. His second wife was Elizabeth Osborne whom he married in 1880 and who died in 1901.

He now has three children living, Harriet T., wife of Albert G. Dolliver, Ada M. Penniman who is at home, and James H. Penniman.

Tonight his friends at the Granite City club are preparing to help him celebrate his anniversary.

RESOLUTIONS.

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy record with sorrow the death of their president the Honorable William B. Rice.

Mr. Rice donated the hospital to the inhabitants of Quincy on the first day of April eighteen hundred and ninety and served as president of the board of trustees ever since it was incorporated. During this period he gave abundantly of his time, energy, and ability to its welfare, and contributed largely to its financial support. Just previous to his death he contracted for a new pavilion at his personal expense. He was always interested in civic affairs and did much for the upbuilding of the city. Therefore be it:

RESOLVED:—That in the death of Mr. William B. Rice the city has lost one of its foremost citizens, and the hospital has been deprived of its founder and benefactor, to whose generosity and sympathy for the poor and suffering, we are indebted for the hospital itself, a lasting monument to his memory.

RESOLVED:—That we, the trustees, whose privilege it was to be associated with him will greatly miss his practical knowledge, sound advice, and generous financial assistance; and we tender to his family our most earnest sympathy in their affliction.

RESOLVED:—That these resolutions be entered in the records of the trustees and a copy be sent to his family, and to the Quincy papers.

FLAG DAY, 1909.

All American citizens are again earnestly invited to join in the public recognition of the birthday of the emblem of our nationality. In many States, pursuant to law, the public schools, and also voluntarily in private schools, exercises will be conducted in celebration of Flag Day. Let us extend this practice. Teach the story of the flag, what it represents, and have the young people pledge their fealty and loyalty to it.

On the 14th day of June, 1777, Congress enacted: "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." The number of the stripes having been increased by the admission of new States, the possibilities of the nation's future development dawned upon our fathers,and the original thirteen stripes were unchangeably restored by act of Congress on April 4, 1818, when it was enacted: "That from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be twenty stars, white, in a blue field, and that on the admission of a new State into the Union, one star be added to the Union of the flag; and such addition take effect on the fourth day of July next, succeeding such admission." Since 1818, twenty-six stars or sovereign States have been added to the Union, making forty-six in all.

Since the struggle of 1861-1865, the Flag has become the symbol of a mighty nation. It has been carried to the utmost parts of the earth, carrying liberty wherever it has been thrown to the breeze. Americans cannot fail of a feeling of pride and satisfaction, nor restrain the swelling of patriotism in the breast, when we contrast the meaning, in far distant lands, of ours and other flags displayed together.

The stars and stripes, within the recent past, have come to possess new beauty for friendly eyes and new terror for the foes of liberty. We earnestly exhort our citizens to join in making Flag Day an event, and its celebration in 1909, a great event. Let us, from one end of the land to the other, fling the stars and stripes to the breeze on June 14, 1909. May it greet the rising and salute the setting sun, and float all day long from every church edifice, school and building, public and private and however humble, throughout the entire land.—The American Flag Association.

SQUANTUM YACHT CLUB.

The Squantum Yacht club held its regular monthly meeting at the summer quarters on the Quincy Shore Reservation Thursday at eight o'clock There was a large attendance. Commodore Bryant presided at the meeting. The condition of the club as shown by the reports was never so favorable as at present, six new members being admitted at the meeting and applications for fifteen others.

It was voted to reduce the indebtedness of the Club $250and it was also voted to expend $185 in prizes for the various regattas of the club this season. The last dance given by the club was a great success and very popular. The next one will be given this evening.

Notwithstanding the liberal amount contributed for prizes for races this year and the reduction of the debt $250, the balance of cash in the treasury is larger at the present time than at any time in the history of the club. This certainly shows what the friends of the club claim, that it is one—if not the most—prosperous yacht club on the South Shore.

Enlivens Proceedings In Dewey's Suit For $76,450,000

COURT OFFICER IS KEPT BUSY

Plaintiff Speaks of "Three Classes of Law," and Court Tells Him to Go on "Now You Have Sprung Your Little Joke"—Old Questions Persistently Asked—Campaign Speech of 1905 Dug Up

Boston, June 5.—In the $76,450,000 suit of former Judge Dewey against five members of the Good Government association yesterday was another day of extraordinary things.

At one point of the trial the conversation between the court and Dewey caused much amusement. It was during the cross-examination of Mr. Billings by Dewey.

"Do you think I got newspaper notoriety in my campaign?" he asked.

Judge Sherman sustained an objection on the part of the defense, and Dewey began to argue the matter.

"If we discuss every bit of evidence in this case we'll never get through," said Sherman.

Dewey replied, "Well, I'm used to doing it that way."

"I see you are," rejoined the court.

"There are three classes of law going on here," continued Dewey; "you, your honor, represent the positive law, I the natural law and the defendants the school of scandal."

When the laughter had subsided somewhat, in answer to the rapping for order of the court officer, Sherman dryly replied, "Now you've sprung your litttle joke, go on." The spectators laughed again.

"It's you they're laughing at," said Dewey, addressing the court. "No, no, not you personally, your honor, but your decision."

Bang! bang! bang! went the gavel of the court officer, and it was some moments before quiet was restored.

Edward Billings, secretary of the Good Government association, was on the stand a greater part of both sessions, although Charles K. Cobb, a Boston attorney; Fletcher Ranney, an attorney; George B. Stebbings, assistant clerk of the municipal court, and John B. Wright were called by Dewey.

In vain did Dewey attempt to get permission for the other witnesses of the day to testify as to his reputation with reference to veracity and truth, but repeatedly the court sustained the objections of the defense.

As Dewey asked the same question over again, Judge Sherman said: "There is no need of your asking that same question a hundred times. It won't be allowed. One time is enough."

"If I thought one time was as good as a hundred I'd stop," answered Dewey, "but I don't."

"Well, if you ask once more you'll have reached the hundred mark," added Sherman.

The reading in court of a speech delivered by Dewey during the municipal campaign of 1905, when he was a candidate for mayor, was an incident of the proceedings. In this speech Dewey charged that the nomination of Louis A. Frothingham, the Republican candidate for mayor in that campaign, was secured through "trickery and fraud."

When the plaintiff objected to the introduction in evidence of a petition signed by Boston men asking Frothingham to run for mayor, unless it were authenticated by Fred E. Bolton, at the present time chairman of the Republican city committee, Judge Sherman asked: "Why can't you summon him into court?"

"I'll tell you why," was the reply. "I'm hanging on to all the $2 bills I have just now—the other side may summon him."

John M. Little, one of the defendants in the Dewey case, was completely exonerated of the charge of signalling to a witness on Thursday, as was claimed by former Juryman O'Brien.

"I am perfectly satisfied Juryman O'Brien was mistaken," said Judge Sherman.

The jury was dismissed because the court felt that prejudiced opinion might exist after the incident.

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS

Castle Square Theatre.

The success of "The Geisha" was to be expected. This bright and merry musical comedy begins its third week at the Castle Square on Monday, and there is every indication that there will be a few seats to spare at any performance, afternoon or evening. The third of Mr. Craig's musical comedy productions of the current season, "The Geisha" is repeating the popularity of "The Circus Girl" and "The Runaway Girl," and it gains an added vogue through its picturesque presentation of Japanese characters and Japanese scenery. Its two acts and its rapidly changing scenes offer a good substitute for a trip to Japan, and its humor is of the kind that is as sensible as it is uproarious. But especially is "The Geisha" a dream of musical delight. From the opening chorus it is a constant succession of melodies, and whether Miss Young be singing Chon Kina, Louise Le Baron, The Jewel of Asia, Mr Friebus Hey Diddle Diddle, or Mr. Meek Chee Wee, the audience is in the seventh heaven of delight. These are but few of the solos and chorus that are plentifully besprinkled through the three hours of afternoon and evening that are filled by "The Geisha." The cast is a notably good one, and it includes in addition to those already mentioned, Mr. Craig, Bert and Wilfred Young, William Everts, Mabel Colcord, Gertrude Binley, and the entire sixty members of the John Craig Stock Company.

Tremont Theatre.

It is easy to understand why "A Broken Idol" which made its Boston bow at the Tremont Theatre last Monday, had such a phenominal run in Chicago, for it is a typical musical extravaganza that must be seen to be appreciated. Like a bottle of champagne, it is sparkling, frothy, gay and amusing, and no matter how hot the weather, it is sure to make one good-natured. Even were it not for the distinct novelties it presents in the way of scenic effects and surprises, the piece would take rank as the musical comedy, or if you prefer to say it the way authors do, the laughing song play of the Boston season. The musical numbers have an allure that is irresistable, the fun-making is rapid-fire and sure, and the setting is a revelation in itself. There is a real plot in this charming farcicality, as it is called. It tells of a little Chinese wife living in the Chinatown of Los Angeles who is deserted by her white husband. He falls in love with an English lord who is in love with an American heiress. The American heiress is in love with a newspaper man who hasn't any money which shows that he is a real reporter. The bad man tries to have the young man arrested for theft, but little Sing Wee, the Chinese girl, makes all turn out happily and gets her funny husband back, too.

Keith's Theatre.

Next week will unquestionably be the biggest of the year at Keith's Theatre, for it will mak the first appearance here in a number of years of Vesta Tilley, the undisputed queen of the London music halls and the highest priced vaudeville artist ever brought to this country. Mr. Keith has been paying her $3,150 for every week she has been on his circuit and that it has been a profitable venture, even at this enormous figure, is shown by the fact that he would keep her longer were she not compelled to return to London to fulfill her contracts there. Miss Tilley has for a long time held an unique place as a male impersonator. Since she first made her appearance there have been hundreds of imitators, some of them good, some of them indifferent—but all have had their day and been forgotten. Miss Tilley on the contrary, by her consumate art has increased her popularity and has always been able to give something new. Besides her striking costumes, she has been making a hit with her long list of songs, every one of which has been in itself a feature and created an endless amount of comment. One of her best is called "That's a Time a Fellow Wants His Ma." "Following in Father's Footsteps" is another. "Sydney's Holiday" has proved a decided hit and a sort of Tommy Atkins song, which she sings in soldier's uniform is one of those English pieces that catch the popular idea on this side of the water.

Orpheum Theatre.

No more important vaudeville engagement has ever been announced for Boston than that of James K. Hackett. America's most popular actor who with his former star, E. M. Holland will appear at the Orpheum Theatre next week presenting "The Bishop's Candlesticks," a playlet founded on Victor Hugo's Les Miserables. Mr. Hackett's advent into vaudeville has been the big theatrical surprise of the season. For years he has been one of the bulwarks of the legitimate, doing more to uplift drama than any other single figure on the stage. From a most successful star he developed into a manager as well, having under his wing some of the best actors and actresses in the country. Mr. E. M. Holland was one of these who was starred by Mr. Hackett and it will be particularly gratifying to local theatre-goers to find the actor manager and his star appearing together. The playlet of "The Bishop's Candlesticks" is the work of Norman McKennell who has taken the plot from an episode in Victor Hugo's masterpiece. Despite the extraordinary engagement of Mr. Hackett and Mr. Holland the balance of the bill will be up to the high Orpheum standard.

—A large plot of ground in New York city has been given by Mrs. C. P. Huntington to the American Geographical Society ,on the condition that the society raises money for the erection of a building on the site. The society has accepted the condition. It may be of interest to note that the society is the oldest in the United States, havin gbeen founded in 1852, when there were but twelve similar associations in the world.—Scientific American.

The Minister's Answer.

By SYLVIA MEREDITH.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

The little minister—little in stature, little in power, little in salary—sat before a table in his study diligently and laboriously searching amid the leaves of various volumes of reference and occasionally scribbling a few sentences on paper which later on should serve as notes for his sermon on the following Sunday.

The Rev. James Philander Dubois smiled fondly and proudly and gratefully while he thought. He was an unmarried churchman who felt it incumbent upon himself to become one of the two principal performers in a ceremony in which already he had become quite proficient as an agent of fate where others were concerned.

So he leaned back and gazed at the ceiling and thought of a beautiful, brave young creature. He lingered mentally on her radiant face, her graceful form, and heard in his brain the sweet thrill of her voice.

He had never thought thus of any woman before. Until he first saw Marguerite Van Diemen a year ago he looked on all women with an academic eye as parishioners and studied them only to decide what branch of church work, if any, they were best fitted for.

But the year that followed his first sight of the violet eyes of Miss Marguerite, and the brown hair that shone like sunny light drowned in amber pools in a forest brook, had been a year of awakening for him.

It was not a quite complete awakening, however. He was very thoroughly awake—wide, staring, stark awake—to the knowledge that he was so deeply in love with her that to lose her would mean a dreary, sorrowful life for him, but he was not awake enough to suppose that he had any qualities or attributes to please so wonderful and clever and bright a creature.

However, though the Rev. James Philander Dubois was thus humble and devoid of any proper self esteem, and though he did not believe that she could possibly want him, he was in love, and love sneers at logic. He expected her answer to be "No," but he was pining just the same to ask the question.

So, like the courageous and determined little minister that he was, he had written to her asking for the favor of an interview on a matter very important to him. And she had replied, appointing that very evening and adding, "You should know that I have declined an invitation to the County club dance in order to give you this evening, though the dance is the last one of the season and I was really anxious to go."

Perhaps it was this letter rather than the Rev. Mr. Philander's conviction of the stereotyped nature of all sermons that made it so difficult for him to finish the construction of his discourse.

Determined though he was, the question he was to ask Miss Marguerite in a few hours was the kind that no man ever asks without perturbation, and there was the last paragraph of her letter. It showed him that she was losing an evening of great enjoyment, for, though Marguerite Van Diemen was a good parishioner, she loved dancing with an ultra worldly love.

No doubt she expected to hear some immensely important news from him. Wouldn't she be indignant and angry when she learned that he had kept her from her pleasure simply to propose to her?

The clock struck the hour, and the minister became aware with a sharp start that it was high time to keep his appointment. He arose and put on his overcoat.

At that moment the doorbell rang.

It is only because we are so used to the really dramatic things of life that we do not know and feel the dramas that each moment makes.

The ring of the doorbell was such a dramatic instant in the life of the Rev James Philander Dubois.

Passing through an adjoining room, he opened the door and saw before him a young woman, poorly dressed in a faded gown of blue, her head topped off with a hat of uncertain texture, under which her hair hung forth in all directions. Her face was terribly wasted and sallow, and its piteous aspect was only increased by a touch of the incongruous in a suggestion of red high on the cheeks.

The reverend gentleman shrank back. He wished that he could escape what he foresaw would be a long delay, but sense of duty conquered the human instinct at once.

The young woman spoke as soon as he opened the door. "Won't you give me something to eat?" she begged. "I haven't had anything since morning."

"Poor soul!" muttered the little minister. "The housekeeper is out for the afternoon, but I shall do the best I can for you. Will you come to the kitchen while I investigate the pantry?"

As the unkempt young woman followed him into the kitchen the minister felt such deep, angry annoyance as only a man can feel when the woman he loves is waiting for him while circumstances keep him away. But the moment he realized that he, a minister, pledged to help the afflicted and the sinning, had what was almost an emotion of hatred toward this poor creature he crushed down what were wicked and shameful thoughts to him. He hastened to bring out all the food he could find and set it before her. Food taken to the door would not have come under the head of Christian charity with the Rev. Mr. Philander, though he was the head of an ultra fashionable church.

"Have you been a victim of circumstances or what is termed hard luck?" was one of the first things the minister asked after he had dished up cold victuals and a quantity of vegetables.

"Oh, it's a long story," insinuatingly replied the woman, while she devoured the stuff set before her.

"Whatever may have been the past," said the little minister, "don't forget that forgiveness is yours for the asking."

He spoke in his most persuasive accents to the poor creature. His advice was wise and sound, for with all his modesty and simplicity the minister was both clever and alive to daily needs, a fact that the woman repeatedly acknowledged with a mournful eye and lagging appetite. At times she even desisted in her siege of the eatables when the little minister said something particularly simple and kind.

Finally she broke down and told all her story—an old, old story, not at all romantic, not even interesting to any except the poor creature herself. The minister listened patiently to her long, labored, tedious recital, and if sometimes he felt as if he would go wild with impatience when he thought of Marguerite he promptly forced himself in punishment to concentrate his mind and soul even more than before on the object before him that demanded so much of his pity and his help.

Here was a soul for him to succor and save, and what was his own heart's ease to that?

It was late that evening before the little minister returned home after having found a home for his distressed protegee. He should have felt a thrill of gratitude for duty done and a sense of humble satisfaction for his success in bringing back the straying one to the right road.

He blamed himself for not feeling it. But the more he tried to feel content because he had done his duty the more his soul sank in him and the heavier did his heart seem.

The Rev. Mr. Dubois, though a most devoted minister, was none the less an intensely human man, and all the satisfaction in doing a duty could not lift him from the despondency that he was in, for he felt sure that he had lost any chance, if he possessed one, with Marguerite Van Diemen.

His belief was strengthened to conviction next day when he called at her house, wondering what he could say to gain her pardon. It was characteristic of him that it never entered his head to explain to her what had kept him away. That would have seemed like cant and self praise to the little minister.

The only excuse he could offer was "parochial business." And he realized sharply that would seem a paltry excuse, though he didn't consider anything in the line of his duty as paltry.

So he sent up his card in low spirits, and he was not surprised, though he was grieved, when the maid returned and said that her mistress begged to be excused and added a request that he write to her, saying what she could do for him.

Another man might have felt offended and haughty. The little minister was too just for that. He went home quietly and wrote a very simple little letter telling Miss Marguerite Van Diemen all that was in his heart. He begged her forgiveness for not keeping the appointment and explained it by saying: "A little matter of church business came up to keep me. I could not evade it, though I assure you that it was a great sorrow to me to be kept away."

Then in his mind he wrote "Finis" to his romance and turned sturdily to his work on the unfinished sermon.

Twenty minutes after he had dispatched the note his doorbell rang again. This time the little minister did feel that there were dramas in little things. He laid down his pen and thought.

He heard the maid open the door. He heard a soft voice ask for him. Before he could rise a gown rustled, and Marguerite Van Diemen came toward the open library door.

"I have brought you the answer to your note myself," said she. She held up her hand. "Before I tell you what it is," she continued very hurriedly, with her breath coming short and fast and her eyes shining, "let me tell you something else. Do you know what I have always abhorred the most? The preaching that does not practice! And next to that I object to the practicing that preaches too much of what it does!"

The little minister looked at her with questioning bewilderment in his dark eyes.

Marguerite Van Diemen made a few steps forward and toward him.

"I saw you last evening on the street with a young woman," she went on. "I was a little angry that you should have thought of anything except our appointment. This morning I went to carry some medicine to old Mrs. Anston and found that you had taken the young woman there to nurse her. She told me what you had said to her and what you had done for her."

"Will you forgive me for seeming to neglect you?" faltered the little minister.

"Wait," said Miss Van Diemen. "I still wanted to test you. I wanted to see what you would do. So I waited till you wrote. If you had tried to explain more than you did, why, then perhaps I would not have brought you my answer."

And as she came toward the minister with her hands held out even the modest Rev. Mr. Philander did not need anything more to tell him what the answer was.

SUFFOCATED IN QUAGMIRE

Supposed Fate of Man Who Was Last Seen Crossing a Pond

Brookfield, Mass., June 5.—The unusual and slow death caused by sinking into a quagmire is believed to be the fate of George McKay, for whom a party of men search the borders of Cranberry pond without success.

McKay and Leroy Eaton went fishing. Seeing a boat on the other side of the pond, McKay started after it, saying he would meet Eaton in the highway. McKay has not been seen since and is supposed that he sank in the morass which borders part of the pond and was suffocated.

McKay was 36 years old and lived with his mother here. The town will take official steps toward searching for the body.

PATRICK STAYS IN PRISON

Habeas Corpus Writ Is Refused the Slayer of Millionaire Rice

New York, June 5.—Albert T. Patrick's application for a writ of habeas corpus releasing him from Sing Sing prison, where he is under life sentence for the murder of William M. Rice, was denied by the appellate division of the supreme court in Brooklyn.

In the opinion of the court, which was written by Justice Jenks, the most striking paragraph was one holding that the "degree of punishment is not determined by the preference of the convict."

This was in answer to Patrick's declaration that life imprisonment was a greater hardship than death.

Only heroic measures by priests and attendants prevented the child from being burned to death before the horrified audience of worshippers. Her burning clothing was snatched away by several hands, while a robe wrapped quickly about her served to smother the flames.

CONCESSIONS TO STRIKERS

Philadelphia Railway Men Resume Positions on Cars

STRIKE BREAKERS LEAVE CITY

Men Agree to Accept Twenty-Two Cents an Hour and Other Terms Offered by Traction Company—Will Demand Further Advance If Books of Company Show It to Be Warranted—Further Rioting Occurs

Philadelphia, June 5.—The strike of the employes of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company, which began one week ago this morning, has ended, and at the same hour the men quit their positions on May 29 they again took up their burden today, following the deportation of the 450 strike breakers who came here from New York.

The termination of the trouble between the company and its employes was brought about primarily by State Senator McNichol, the Republican leader of this city, at conferences with the traction officials and the strikers' representatives.

The delegates chosen by the strikers met and discussed the propositions which had been made by the traction people. After being in session nearly all day the men agreed to accept 22 cents an hour. The old "swing system" has been abolished; ten hours will constitute a day's work; all employes will be permitted to purchase their uniforms in the open market; all future differences are to be adjusted between the company and a grievance committee chosen by the employes.

If, after an investigation by the city comptroller of the books of the company, it can be shown that more than 22 cents an hour can be paid without crippling the finances of the Rapid Transit company, then the men will insist upon a further advance in wages.

A sub-committee of seven employes, which was chosen by the committee of nineteen—one from each car barn—met and ratified the agreement with the company. The elevated men are also to receive an increase of 1 cent an hour.

Notwithstanding that the strike, to all intents and purposes, was practically settled before 6 o'clock last evening, no effort was made to run cars after dusk. There were several incipient riots in the northeastern section of the city early in the evening, but the crowds which congregated were soon driven to shelter by rail.

There was a small riot at Twelfth and York streets, where a mob of several hundred persons took up a position along the elevated tracks of the Reading railroad and pelted a passing car with rocks, coal and bricks.

The crew and passengers dashed from the car and the mob, bent on destroying the car, made a rush for it, but a score of policemen drew their revolvers and fired several shots into the air. The crack of the firearms had a quieting effect upon the lawless crowd and they withdrew in double-quick time. There were half a dozen arrests.

The present strike has been the most complete tie-up ever experienced by local trolley companies, and the temper of the people was more violent than in the strike of 1895.

DEADLOCK CONTINUES

Danbury Hatters and Employes Fail to Reach an Agreement

Danbury, Conn., June 5.—The meetings between the national executive and advisory boards of the United Hatters of America and Rev. J. D. Kennedy, looking toward a local settlement of the hatters' strike, were brought to a close last night without an agreement being reached.

It is understood that the union boards would not assent to the men returning to work, pending a settlement by arbitration, in open shops. Owing to the membership of the local manufacturers in the Manufacturers' association, they are unable to open their factories on other than an open shop basis without resigning.

THE MACHINISTS' STRIKE

Baltimore and Ohio Road Said to Be Filling All Vacancies

Baltimore, June 5.—Both sides are apparently entirely satisfied with the strike conditions in the shops along the line of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, inaugurated in this city in protest against the introduction of the piecework system.

The railroad officials admit that the strike has extended somewhat. The figures furnished by the company show that outside this city 505 men are out, while the strikers claim that the number is a half larger than this. The company is said to be filling vacancies as fast as they occur.

Master Carpenters Yield

Marlboro, Mass., June 5.—The four days' strike of 120 carpenters—all there are in the city—ended last night with the concession of the master carpenters to the union's demands for an increase in wages from 37½ cents to 40 cents an hour, and a Saturday half-holiday, without pay.

STATE HOUSE LETTER.

Boston, June 2, 1909.

Beef and politics have been mixed in legislation this week. Inevitably, therefore, the stronger political party won. Henceforth there is no doubt that good Republican beef must be eaten by the Democrats, if they eat any at all. Perhaps this may seem like cramming beef down their throats but considering the high price of beef and all other meats, he must be a chronic kicker who objects to the method of getting his beef down his throat, as long as he gets it down at all. Gov. Draper has become identified with the policy that it is safe to sell meat according to the United States law, which was practically what was in force before the recent sensation and is the same in effect, as is secured by the bill which just finished its passage of the legislature. Hence Democratic leaders saw politics in it, and, of course, Republican leaders saw that they must make a political defense. It was inevitable, under the circumstances that the governor the United States law and the Republican majority should win. The bill went through the Senate after much discussion. It took its first stage in the House without debate, but with notice that the scrap would come on the second debatable stage. Curiously enough, the main contention was between two doctors. Dr. Coleman of Nantucket, Republican, argued that tuberculosis in even a gland, might be carried by the blood to any part of the system; therefore any meat whatever from an infected animal was dangerous. But Dr. Oliver of Athol, also Republican ,argued that Dr. Coleman's ideas were ridiculous ,and he told how nature builds little sacks around the bacilli so that it is impossible for them to get into the circulation. He insisted that an animal might have bacilli in a gland and the meat be perfectly healthful. The Democratic bill of Mr. Duane of Waltham, requiring the destruction of the entire carcass, even if a slight taint of tuberculosis were found in any part of it, was thrown out by Speaker Walker on a point of order by Mr. Bishop of Newton, who led the debate for the bill, that as the governor's message referred to beef alone and Mr. Duane's bill included other kinds of meat, the bill was broader than the subject matter upon which it was based. Speaker Walker also said that the bill could not be amended to meet the point of order, nor could the point be withdrawn. Then Mr. Duane tried to kill the original bill, but was overwhelmingly voted down and could not get a rollcall.

Another issue which has been settled by politics is the legislative salary bill. It went through the House by a large majority and its opponents were considerate enough of their associates not to try to put them on record by a rollcall. In the Senate, on the first stage, the bill also had a majority vote. But on the second it received its quietus by 10 to 15 and six pairs ,thus making a majority of the entire Senate on record against it. Shortly before the vote was taken President Treadway was in consultation with Gov. Draper, though it does not follow that there was any connection between the two incidents. If it were not for the fact that the Republican party would be obliged to stand up before the people and defend its vote for an increase, there is no doubt that the bill would go through. But politicians are exceedingly timid when it comes to taking needless risks and so it was thought best not to leave any opportunity for Democrats to ask questions which would require an explanation next fall. Some think that Gov. Draper will have a close rub in November, it being the off year, but there is not the slightest sign of any trouble for him or for the party ticket at any point.

Politics in the Boston charter bill has been the foremost feature from the beginning of the debate in the House, when Mr. Cushing of Boston, in charge of the bill, declined the Democratic request for an explanation of the leading features of the bill, said it was not for the friends of the bill to explain or defend it at first, but "to await the attack." The double referendum had the strong opposition of Mr. Willcutt of Boston, Republican, and there was otherwise a slight break in party loyalty, but nothing to speak of. Though the bill has yet to make the passage of the Senate, there is no reason to expect other than a straight party vote. The one point which makes the most criticism is that there is no general referendum on the bill. Boston cannot say whether or not she will have it, but only choose between a large council, and loss of direct nominations, or a small council and retain direct nominations. With either alternative there is a seriously objectionable feature. Most of the bill is accepted by the Democrats in its administrative features as an improvement.

There has come in from the taxation committee, with a unanimous report, a short little bill which is perfectly amazing, considering the bitter opposition the plan has encountered in the past, and whose fate should be watched closely to see if it really means a change in the perennial taxation fight. It is a bill to exempt from taxation in this state personal property in way of merchandise and animals situated and taxed in other states, but owned by residents of Massachusetts. Years ago this proposition was the center of bitter oppostion on the part of the entire double-doomage element, and that element was strong enough to prevent any legislation to put an end to double taxation under our laws. Considering the passage, for this year (perhaps only to be be defeated next year) of the constitutional amendment to permit classification of property for purposes of taxation, it seems, at last, as if something were really about to be accomplished to reform our tax laws, which everybody seems to agree are about as unjust as can be found anywhere in the United States.

Business is progressing rapidly toward prorogation. The Senate is holding sessions short and sweet, for the most part, while the House has disposed of its calendar every day for quite a time and there is not enough work brought in from the committees to keep the branches in session during the possible legislative day. The session has been very pleasant for most of the members. They have made many delightful acquaintances and there are probably very few of them who have suffered from overwork. They keep their business along at home, for the most part, and there have been many agreeable features connected with their public service. In the case of most of them, the plan for next year is already arranged, who will return and who will remain at home. Political plans are made early,—with corporation help, in case of the senators. ONE WEAK SPOT

Most Quincy People have a Weak Part And Too Often It's The Back.

Everyone has a weak spot.
Too often it's a bad back.
Twinges follow every sudden twist.
Dull aching keeps up, day and night.
Tells you the kidneys need help—
For backache is really kidney-ache.
A kidney cure is what you need.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys,
Cure back ache and all urinary ills.
Quincy people recommend the remedy.

Mrs. F. Olsen, living at 197 Whitwell street, Quincy, Mass., says: "For some time my back was weak and gave me a great deal of trouble. I could not sit up in a chair no more than a few minutes at a time without having severe pains in my loins. I was subject to headaches and dizzy spells and at times was very nervous. I was becoming disocuraged when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store, began their use, and received immediate relief. I did not expect to oe speedily cured as my condition was so serious, but I can say that the results could not have been more satisfactory. In a few weeks' time my health was restored and I felt better generally. Doan's Kidney Pills certainly have my highest endorsement."

At the home of Mrs. Nahum Ward, 51 Claxton street, Mattapan, a delightful musicale, one of a series, was given on Wednesday afternoon.

The guests had the pleasure of listening to Mrs. Ward and Mrs. W. Crawford Folsom in several of their incomparable duets and solos very ably accompanied by Mrs. Bradford. The violin numbers by Miss Bigelow of Brookline with her sister as accompanist were finely rendered and the piano performance by Miss Peterson was remarkably brilliant. Several other soloists graced the occasion with their fine voices among them Miss Terry and Mrs. Ipsen.

The latter, mother of Mrs. Ipsen the artist, was formerly a noted singer. She yielded to the urgent request of her friends and sang in two duets with Mrs. Ward and also a solo. It was astonishing what volume and sweetness of tone she possessed after so many year of non-practice. Refrehments were served.

A Pretty Contest Up to the Seventh Inning.

Pitching a swell game, holding his Plymouth high school opponents to three scattered hits and no runs and having the game well in hand for seven innings, "Stan" Bates with the Quincy team, took a balloon ascension in the eighth yesterday at Merry Mount park and when the smoke had cleared away, Plymouth had sent six runs across the plate, enough to win the game 6 to 3.

For seven innings it was one of the prettiest contests seen here this season. Bates and Bennett were in a pitchers battle and things broke a little the better for Bates. It looked like a 3 to 0 shut-out for Quincy till the eighth inning started. Parker was the first man at bat in this session and he got a life on an error by Mil Chapman, who threw wild allowing the visitor to go to second. He advanced to third on a wild pitch and crossed the pan on a scratch hit by Howland, after Roane had struck out. Howland stole second and went to third on a wild pitch. Bennett then hit to deep short and McCarthy tried for Howland at the plate, but the ball was too late. Bennett then stole second and went to third on Martin's scratch to M. Chapman. Carleton then hit to McCarthy who was too late to get the speedy Bennett at the plate, Carleton going to second and Martin to third. Both scored on Clarke's slashing single to left, Clarke taking on the throw. A passed ball sent him to the third corner. He scored on an error by "Stan" Bates on St. George Briggs flied to Galvin and Parker struck out.

It was funny baseball in this inning, the visitors being lucky. Only two errors were made and ordinarily they wouldn't have amounted to anything. Of the three hits made, only one was clean, the other two being of the scratchy order, that can't be fielded in time to get a man anywhere, even though they are fielded clean. However, this is baseball luck and that's how Quincy lost the game yesterday.

Quincy's runs came two in the fourth and one in the seventh. McCarthy opened with single to centre going to the pivot bag when Parker let the ball get through him. M. Chapman hit to Howland, who booted the sphere all over the infield and then when he finally did pick it up and saw McCarthy and Chapman safe he slammed in down at Bennett and away it bounded to the bleachers, McCarthy crossing the rubber.

Galvin fanned and H. Chapman walked, R. Bates struck out and Brooks walked, filling the bases. Howe was hit forcing M. Chapman across the plate. Manning struck out ending the fun. The third run came in the seventh on a hit by Manning, his steal of second and error by Howland.

Bennett was pretty near the whole show for Plymouth fanning fifteen men and allowing only three hits. In the fourth when the locals got their two runs, he struck out three men.

For Plymouth Carleton, Clark and St. George excelled, while McCarthy, H. Chapman and R. Bates excelled for Quincy

EAST BRAINTREE.

Rev. R. L. Roberts was unable to preach on Sunday, as he was at the Eye and Ear Infirmary in Boston for treatment for an abscess. Rev. William B. Heath, a former pastor, supplied the pulpit very acceptably, and received a cordial greeting.

Capt. and Mrs. George B. Beardsley, (formerly Miss M. A. Orr of East Braintree), who are now making an extended tour of the West, spent Tuesday, June 1st, at Canton, Ohio, the home city of the late President William McKinley. They were visiting Mrs. Barber, sister of Mrs. McKinley.

The building committe for the new schoolhouse at East Braintree, for which $25,000 was appropriated by the town last week, has selected the George R. Dobson lot of about three acres on the corner of Hobart and Nay street. The price agreed upon is $2,500. Specifications are being drawn which will permit of the erection of the building according to the Hurd & Gore plans within the appropriation. The committee of which George H. Holbrook is chairman is holding frequent meetings.

The graduation exercises of the Jonas Perkins school will be held Tuesday evening, June 22, at 8 o'clock. Admission to the exercises will be by ticket. Only those who hold tickets may attend. Anyone desiring tickets may obtain them from Miss Rowley at the schoolhouse any school day during the week, beginning June 14, from 3.30 to 4.15 P. M. Scout Cruiser Salem Leaves Fore River for R. I.

The scout cruiser Salem which has been having her turbines thoroughly overhauled at the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. during the past few weeks left the works this morning all of the repairs have been completed.

It was shortly before 11 o'clock this morning when the Salem backed away from the dock into the channel and headed for the draw in the Quincy Point bridge.

Accompanying her were several tugs. As the cruiser forged a head she was given a parting salute by the whistles at the works and by cheers from hundreds of the workmen who gathered on the docks.

There was another large crowd on the Quincy Point bridge to see the race horse of Uncle Sam's navy pass through the draw.

The Salem goes immediately to Bradford, R. I., for coal and on the trip down will be sent at top speed. After coaling she goes to Liberia to join the cruiser fleet.

The Salem will return to Massachusetts waters in the middle of July and will be in Salem harbor July 24 at which time she will receive the gifts from the city of Salem.

LONG A QUINCY SCHOOLTEACHER

Miss E. A. Newcomb, Teacher 52 Years, Passes Away.

Miss Emeline A. Newcomb, who last April completed her 52 years of continuous service as a teacher in the public schools of Quincy, passed away at her home on Hancock street Sunday morning aged 70 years.

Two weeks ago Miss Newcomb took a severe cold but did not mind it at first. A week ago however the cold developed into pneumonia and although everything possible was done for her she passed away.

Few school teachers have ever seen as long active service as had Miss Newcomb. She began to teach in April 1857 at the Willard school building and has continued to teach there ever since. No matter how severe the weather, if there was a session of school Miss Newcomb was sure to be found at her desk.

Two years ago upon the completion of her fiftieth year of service her co-workers and friends, who included many who had taken their first steps to secure an education under her guidance gave her a reception. At that occasion which was a memorable one Miss Newcomb was presented with a purse of gold.

Miss Newcomb continued to teach until last month when she tendered her resignation to the school committee who accepted it with regret and appointed a special committee to draft resolutions on her long and faithful service. It was her intention to sever her connection with the schools at the close of the present month.

Miss Newcomb must have had a premeditation that her days on earth were few for it was but recently she said to a friend that there had been a death in her family every year of late and that she felt sure that this year she too would go.

The funeral of Miss Newcomb will be held Tuesday at 2.30 from her late residence 1061 Hancock street.

GEOLOGISTS PUZZLED.

Can not Understand Nature of Matter Found in Fallon's Quarry.

A party of geologists from Harvard college spent the greater part of Saturday in examining the curious find made at the old Frederick & Field quarry now being operated by John Fallon & Sons.

The party arrived during the forenoon and although it rained hard at times, so interested were they that it was six o'clock before they took their departure.

All of the party pronounced it to be the most curious thing they had ever seen and they were at a loss to determine the cause and just what the mass was. Several large boxes of the matter were forwarded to Harvard college where it will be subjected to a thorough examination.

One peculiar thing about the mass is that while it is soft and putty like when found it becomes as hard as a rock when exposed to the air.

Hundreds from Quincy and adjoining towns visited the quarry Sunday and not a few of them carried away specimens of the matter.

Two large specimens of the matter are on exhibition in the window of Sandberg Bros. jewelry store in the Faxon block.

SILVER WEDDING.

Friends Help Mr. and Mrs. P. F. O'Brien Celebrate Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick F. O'Brien of Manet avenue, Houghs Neck, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage Saturday night entertaining about 100 friends at their beautiful home at the beach. Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien received congratulations on all sides and were also the recipients of countless and beautiful presents of silver and cut glass.

An excellent musical program was arranged for the evening including vocal and instrumental numbers. Among the entertainers were the Bryces of Hyde Park, Miss Margaret on the piano, Miss May on the violin and Robert on the cornet. The three gave several excellent trios during the evening. There were also piano solos by Charles Winchester of Dorchester, Miss Gertrude Keisle of Houghs Neck, Frank Hewitt and Sile Smith. Vocal numbers were contributed by Miss Sadie Payne, Miss Theresa Doherty, Wallace Higgins, Frank Davis, George O'Brien and Charles Webber. Miss Payne also gave an exhibition of buck and wing dancing, giving some of the steps that she made a hit with in the R. H. White annual minstrel show.

During the evening an excellent wedding supper was served including lobster salad, chicken salad, cold meats, fruit and ices.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien have four boys to bless their happy union, George, Charles, Henry and Loring, who assisted in receiving. The couple have been living at Houghs Neck during the summer since their marriage, but for the last few years they have been permanent residents at the beach. Mr. O'Brien is a civil engineer by trade, doing business in Boston. His home was in Hyde Park formerly and here he was married and lived until he came to Houghs Neck.

IN DRIVING RAIN.

Iris Captures Cape Cat Race of Quincy Yacht Club.

In the driving rainstorm of Saturday the Quincy Yacht club held its cape catboat race over the triangular course off the clubhouse at Houghs Neck. The course was twice around a triangle from the clubhouse across to the black buoy on Bunker Island ledge, to the buoy off the government wharf at Peddocks island and back to the house, the distance being about nine miles.

Frank Crane's "Iris" took the lead almost at the start and was never headed, holding her advantage throughout. It was a pretty race despite the weather, the big cats plowing through the heavy sea in great style. The judges only took the actual times of the boats, but the corrected will not change the positions. The judges were George S. Morse, F. W. Esterbrooks, Albert H. Taber and F. Burke. The summary:

Name and owner	El time h m s
Iris, F. F. Crane	1:33:00

GIVEN A GOLD HEADED CANE

James T. Penniman Remembered On 90th Birthday.

The passing of the ninetieth birthday anniversary of James T. Penniman was fittingly observed by the members of the Granite City club, of which he has long been an honored member, Saturday evening.

The weather was extremely stormy but it would take a pretty hard storm to keep Mr. Penniman at home on that night for he had planned to give the club members a little treat. Unbeknown to him the club members had also prepared a little celebration for him. It was shortly after 8 o'clock when he made his appearance at the club rooms and he was immediately surrounded by the members who showered him with congratulations.

A few minutes later he was deeply engrossed in a game of cards with Dr. Hallowell, and John Q. A. Field two of his long time friends. Mr. Penniman was interested in the game in hand until 10 o'clock at which time the lunch he had ordered prepared was served. During the serving of this Mr. Penniman with Dr. Hallowell, Mr. Field, Mayor Shea and President Tilden occupied seats at the head table.

The lunch over President Tilden addressed the club briefly and congratulated Mr. Penniman for them on his having arrived at the age of ninety years. He then called upon Dr. Hallowell for a few congratulatory remarks. Dr. Hallowell said that he considered it a great pleasure to perform the duty that had been assigned to him. He briefly referred to his long acquaintance with Mr. Penniman both as his family physician and socially, closing by presenting him with a bouquet of ninety day break carnations.

Mayor Shea was next called upon and also extended his congratulations to Mr. Penniman. It was an honor to the city he said to number among its citizens such a man as Mr. Penniman. No one to see him tonight would believe that he was ninety years old. In fact he hardly believed that he could be. He deemed it an extreme pleasure and an honor to be delegated to present to him a gold headed cain as a reminder of the friendship of the club members for him and hoped that it would be many years before he had occasion to use it. He then presented to Mr. Penniman a handsome gold headed cain in behalf of the club. The cain was a heavy ebony stick and bore the following inscription:

Mr. Penniman was visibly affected at the gift and asked the president to thank the club members for him.

John Q. A. Field another old time friend was then called upon and added his word of congratulation to Mr. Penniman.

President Tilden then called for three cheers and a tiger for Mr. Penniman which were given with a will.

Hardly had the sound of the cheers died away than Clarence Fouche, who presided at the piano played the familiar air "Harrigan" which the members sang using the word "Penniman" in place of the word "Harrigan."

This concluded the exercises after which Mr. Penniman was surrounded and again showered with congratulations and wishes for continued health and happiness.

MORE LAUNCHING.

Three Submarines to be Launched Soon at Fore River.

Three more submarine boats are to be launched by the Electric Boat Company at the Fore River in a short time, the date set being June 15. The three boats are the Bonita, Snapper and Grayling. All are of the Holland type and are practically sister ships to the three recently launched by this company.

Saturday and Sunday air tests were taken on the boats and all three passed the test successfully. This air test is quite interesting and is done in rather a unique manner. The entire outer surface of the shell is covered with soap suds and the boat then filled with air. If there is the slightest leak in the shell, the air going through will make a soap bubble on the outside. In this way the very slightest leak can be discovered.

RAIN SPOILS BIG DAY.

Some Classy Sporting Events Stopped by Jupiter Pluvius.

If the weather man ever disappointed the sports he has this season, for almost every Saturday has been rainy. For a wonder Memorial Day was fair and as usual it was fair all the week until Saturday. Then Jupiter Pluvius got busy and all the plans for the day were all spoiled.

The Quincy Old Colony league team with Randolph as an attraction expected a big crowd and were preparing to handle an overflow. They lost a bunch of money on the rain, but will try to make arrangements to play the game off June 17.. All the other Old Colony league games were called off, too, so that the standing remains the same as it did a week ago, Taunton and Dewey leading the league with two games won and none lost.

The Makaria team was scheduled to appear in Middleboro, but called the game off. The Bigelows too postponed their game with the Randolph, A. A.

The event of the day however was the monster athletic meet of the Fore River apprentices which was to have been held at Merry Mount park. It was out of the question to try to run off the meet in the heavy rain so Manager Neary decided to call it off.

There was to be a soccer football game, too, the Fore River team being scheduled to meet her old rivals Howard & Bullough from Pawtucket, R. I. These boys play their game in almost any kind of weather, but it was decided that Saturday's weather was too much.

The only things in the sporting line that were not called off were the golf and yacht racing. The Wollaston golf played a team match at the Montclair links and even though they played in a driving rain, good scores were made. Frank F. Crane's cat "Iris" won the nine mile race of the Quincy Yacht club house at Houghs Neck.

CONDUCTOR INJURED.

Was Struck by a Passing Car and Thrown Off.

George Winter a conductor on the street cars was thrown from his car Sunday and had a narrow escape from receiving serious injury. Winter who is one of the new men was running on the Houghs Neck line.

He was on the running board taking fares and in passing from one seat to another leaned out too far and was struck by a car going in the opposite direction.

He was knocked off but fortunately fell so that the passing car missed running over him.

He received a general shaking up and his shoulder was somewhat bruised. He was brought to Quincy and attended by a physician after which he was taken home.

MANSION SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT

Baccalaureate Sermon Sunday By Rev. Dr. A. Z. Conrad.

The graduation exercises at the Quincy Mansion school began Sunday with the baccalaureate sermon given by Dr. A. Z. Conrad, pastor of the Park Street church, Boston, who took for his subject "The Value of the Individual."

The exercises were held in Livermore hall and opened with prayer by Rev. William J. Heath.

Rev. Dr. Conrad in his address said in part:

"Self consciousness and reflective thought are the distinguishing characteristics of personality. Nothing in connection with individual life is more sublime and, withal, more overwhelming than the sense of personal accountability. Herein lies the worth of the individual. For it is all in the moral nature that we find real human value.

Human life is held sacred in proportion as man's relation to God is understood and emphasized. Until the coming of Jesus Christ human life was lightly esteemed. Jesus taught the sacredness of life by emphasizing the worth of the individual.

"It is to the doctrine of the incarnation more than to any other fact of history or truth of revelation that we owe the new appraisement of the individual.

"There is a law of increase with which we have to reckon. There is no such thing as chance. What we invest we sooner or later discover to have been wisely or wastefully used.

"We are urged by human destitution to help the dependent. It is required of us that we lift the burdens from the overburdened and the weary. Never were there so many appeals and opportunities calling for response. It is not enough to give advice. It won't do to rest back upon even a generous material charity. What this great, hungry, unhappy world needs most is not yours but 'you.'

"Motive is all determining. Not the thing you do but the why of your action determines its merit or demerit. Ambition imperils. It is likely to be selfish. Aspiration climbs, but ambition crawls. Aspiration respects the rights of all other aspirants. Ambition sees the goal but tramples on all that stands between itself and the goal."

LARGE STONE.

One of the largest blocks of granite seen for some time arrived at South Quincy Saturday and was moved this morning to the yards of J. N. White & Co., on Miller street. The block weighed 24 1-2 tons and required 10 of Fallon's best horses to move it.

The circus tent seems to get bigger and bigger every year.

It looks like a big night tonight at the City Council meeting.

The best laid plans of base ball fans wouldn't hold water Saturday.

Will the trolley freight order slip its trolley at the council meeting tonight?

Although the bath house will not be officially opened for a week, it's a safe bet that the "brownies" will be "in the swim" before the end of the present week.

The wonder of it all is that such a tragedy as happened at Somerville, Saturday, never occurred before. It is small surprise that men who work day after day in the work of killing and shedding blood, even though it be that of animals, should have the work "get on their nerves," as a surfeit of anything is likely to.

There was an idea expressed yesterday in Rev. Dr. Conrad's sermon to the graduating class of the Quincy Mansion school that can be thought over seriously by everyone, whether school girl or man in public life. It was contained in these words: "Motive is all determining. Not the thing you do but the why of your action determines its merit or demerit. Ambition imperils. Ambition is likely to be selfish. It moves on horizontal lines. Aspiration climbs but ambition crawls. Aspiration respects the rights of all other aspirants. Ambition sees the goal but tramples on all that stands between itself and the goal."

The city ordinances concerning the feeding of horses on the public streets should be strictly enforced by the police. There have been so many runaway horses, due to the fact that horses have been left to feed without any guard, that in justice to the public the laws governing the feeding of horses on the public highways should be enforced. A frightened horse is bad enough under any conditions but a frightened horse made double so by a feed bag over his head is a menace to everybody and everything in their path. It is easier to enforce the law than to pay damages and doctors' bills afterwards.

There will be genuine regret among hundreds of people, representing at least three generations, over the death of Miss Emeline A. Newcomb, for 52 years a faithful teacher at the Willard school. For over half a century Miss Newcomb was enrolled on the teaching staff of one school and gave faithful, conscientious service to the city which employed her, and to the little ones committed to her care. Hundreds of children learned their first lessons from her and her teaching and example helped in a large measure towards the making of better boys and girls and, consequently, better men and women. The community at large owes an immeasurable debt to the school teachers, be he or she placed over large or small children. Especially should the thanks of the public go out to those teachers who take the little ones that first enter school and so shape their little ideals and inspirations that succeeding steps shall be along the road to clean living and decent citizenship. In this special line the work of Miss Newcomb was exclusively given and with great success. She has left behind her living fruits of her long and ungrudging work in the men and women and those growing to that stage of life who are the better for her having been their teacher. It is to be regretted that she could not have lived to finish the present term as she had intended to give up teaching then. In fact, her resignation was sent to the school committee at the last meeting held two weeks ago. Her life will be a pleasant memory in the minds of hundreds who received their early education at the Willard school.

CHILDREN'S SUNDAY.

Annual Festival of First Church Sunday School.

The annual floral festival of the Sunday school of the First church was held Sunday morning in place of the regular morning service. The festival was under the direction of Superintendent Charles H. Johnson and the program rendered was an interesting one. The service opened with a processional during which the school marched in from the chapel singing "Onward Christian Soldiers." This was followed by an anthem by the choir and opening verse and song by the school. Then came the baptismal rite when Ramon Burke Putnam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Putnam was baptised by Rev. Ellery C. Butler.

The balance of the programe included scriptural reading, prayer and response, carol singing, responsive readings and brief addresses by Rev. Ellery C. Butler and Rev. Charles B. Ames.

There was also a memorial service in memory of Jane Childs Burke who died Feb. 9, 1909.

Supt. Johnson briefly eulogized Mrs. Burke telling of her long connection and active work in the Sunday school. The school then read the 23 Psalm and sang "It singeth low in every heart."

The report of the treasurer showed the receipts of the school for the year to have been $350.33 the expenditures $348.33 and the penny collection $154.75 the largest in the history of the school.

Supt. Johnson then presented diplomas to 22 members of the school who had been present at every session during the year. Of this number some had been present at every session for two, three and six years.

It was announced that the date of the annual picnic had been changed to Monday June 28.

Boston, June 7.—This will be a big week for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology not only because it is the occasion of the grand reunion of all the classes, but because today witnessed the inauguration of Richard C. Maclaurin as president of the institute.

RICHARD C. MAC LAURIN.

Following the inauguration exercises there were class day exercises in Huntington hall. At 3:30 p. m. there will be an automobile excursion. From 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. there will be a reception by Governor Draper at the state house. Tomorrow, besides the receptions and excursions, commencement exercises and presentation of diplomas will take place in Huntington hall.

At the annual banquet Wednesday night some of the speakers will be Charles Nagel, secretary of the department of commerce and labor; Governor Draper, Samuel J. Elder and Ambassador Bryce of Great Britain.

Symphony hall was the scene of President Maclauin's inaguration this morning, and the spacious hall was elaborately decorated for the occasion. A number of noted speakers were present, including Ambassador Bryce, Bishop Lawrence, Governor Draper, Frederic P. Fish and James Munroe.

The interest in this year's reunion is worldwide, and a loving cup is to be given to the Tech man who makes the longest journey to be present. Up to this time Norman Watkins, '98, who comes from Honolulu, looks like the winner. Others from a distance are: A. H. Keleher, '06; Charles W. Johnson, '08; A. L. Stephens, '05; William J. Deavit, '06; Robert Hursh, '06, and Charles V. Allen, '93, all from points in Mexico. Two will come up from the canal zone, J. W. Roland, '04, Gatun, and Frank A. Browne, '02, Culebra; George F. Lull, '84, will jaunt across the continent from Oregon with Guy J. Burnham, 92, of Nanaimo, B. C.

ACCIDENTALLY DROWNED

Mysterious Disappearance of Lowell Man Is Accounted For

Lawrence, Mass., June 7.—The fourteen weeks' disappearance of Edward Latourneau, a furniture dealer of Lowell, was explained Sunday when his body was found floating in the Merrimac river here. The medical examiner pronounced the case to be one of accidental drowning.

Latourneau leaves a wife, who had offered a reward of $200 for the recovery of his body, dead or alive. Foul play had been suspected, as Latourneau had left Lowell on Feb. 24 to collect a bill in this city and failed to return.

MOB LAW RULES

Negro Already Sentenced Taken From Jail and Lynched

Talahassee, Fla., June 7.—Dangling from a limb of a tree in the county jail yard and within sight of the dome of the Florida state capitol, the lifeless body of Maik Morris, a negro, met the gaze of the people of this city Sunday.

Condemned to death for the murder of William Langston, late sheriff of this county, the negro would have, within a few weeks, legally paid the penalty of the crime, which is life.

"War Must Be Abandoned"

Carlisle, Pa., June 7.—In an address to Dickinson college students last night, Bishop Hamilton of Boston denounced war as "an antiquated relic of paganism and a disgrace to the nation and to the church." He said that it "had never settled anything and never would, and must be abandoned."

SAVINGS INSURANCE PROGRESS.

More than One Hundred Savings Bank Insurance Policies a Week Are Now Being Written—Many New Agencies of the "Savings and Insurance" Banks Have Been Authorized—Part of the Work is Directed from the Boston Merchants' Association.

Quiet but continuous progress toward complete success is being made by the scheme of savings bank life insurance and old age annuities which has now been in operation for nearly a year. In the six weeks ending May 29 the records at the office of the State Actuary, 161 Devonshire street, show that applications for 621 policies were written either directly through the two savings banks that have opened insurance departments or through their agencies. Women workers made application for 143 of these policies, an excellent showing considering the fact that women as a rule are less familiar than men with the life insurance proposition.

The great majority of the applications came from a few communities where a work of education in behalf of the plans has been under way—mostly from the shoe manufacturing towns south of Boston, Boston itself, Cambridge, Beverly, Brookline, Haverhill, South Framingham and Walpole.

The general public, outside of the factories whose managements have taken pains to see that their employees are fully informed about the advantages of cheaper life insurance and old age pensions, is only beginning to wake up to the existence of the system.

The agencies of the Whitman Savings Bank and the People's Savings Bank of Brockton now number about seventy. Among the new ones are those at the following places: United Shoe Machinery Co., Beverly; Tubular Rivet and Stud Co., Quincy; Boston Gear Works, Norfolk Downs; Melrose Liberal Union; Winship, Boit Co., Wakefield; Winslow Brothers and Smith Co., Norwood; Frazer Dry Goods Co., Brockton; Dennison Manufacturing Co., South Framingham; Woman's Educational and Industrial Union, Boston, and Holtzer-Cabot Electric Co., Brookline.

There is now a tendency on the part of many of the smaller industrial establishments of the state to apply for agencies. George S. Hutchinson, who directs the work of the savings insurance committee of the Boston Merchants' Association, has charge of the dealings with manufacturers who are considering the possibility of cooperating with the State Actuary for the benefit of their employees.

ELM LEAF BEETLE.

Those stately elms on your property, now so green and vigorous, may turn yellow before the season is well under way. The leaves may curl up, die and fall off. If this happens early enough they may leaf out again this summer, else they may become as bare as in the gloomy days of winter; they may lose their vitality gradually and die in the course of two or three years. Their fate is as certain as time itself if there are little holes through their leaves now, unless they are treated properly at once, because those holes indicate the presence of the ravenous elm leaf beetle.

There is on time for delay. The remedy lies in the hands of the owner and the municipalities, but it must be applied at once. That beetle which is eating the holes has been living in hidden places during the winter, under shingles, under boards, boxes and barrels, in the fences and under the bark. It is feeding greedily on the leaves preparatory for the egg-laying period. If allowed to continue unassailed it will begin inside of a week or two to lay eggs on the under side of the leaves, feeding and laying eggs alternately for several weeks until each female has deposited anywhere from 400 to 600 eggs. Then the old beetle, its duty done, retires from the tree to seek eternal rest, but by that time the fate of the tree is nearly sealed. Ten or twelve warm days are sufficient for the eggs to hatch and the millions of young slugs will assail the foliage with such voracity that that verdant tree top will melt and crumble, sacrificing its life and beauty to one of the four worst tree-pests in the State of Massachusetts today. And it will be these young slugs, multiplied many hundred-fold, that will form the basis for a much worse crop next summer—in fact some years there are two crops in one season.

How to stop this destruction of the elm is the question. From what has been said it is evident that the liking of one beetle now is equivalent to killing several hundred hungry larvae or slugs a little later, but more than that it means the saving of the foliage from an attack which may devitalize it. Spraying the trees with a solution of arsenate of lead is the most effective treatment known, and this should be done at onee. This solution is made by mixing 10 lbs. of arsenate into 100 gallons of water. It is not a very expensive treatment, nor very difficult of execution in these days when spraying for the gypsy and brown-tail moth is so general in the Eastern part of the State. Arsenate of lead is a deadly poison for the beetle. When the leaves are sprayed with it and the beetles eat the leaves they die from the poison, and this dose should be administered to them at once before they begin to lay eggs.

The elm leaf beetle is a growing nuisance in Massachusetts. It is an imported insect. In the past it has not been feared much, because it has not been numerous enough to cause serious damage. But it has been increasing in such proportions that three years ago it took certain parts of the State by surprise and became one of the most destructive tree pests the local authorities had to deal with. It is so serious now that a general campaign is to be waged against it by the State Forester, F. W. Rane, who can be reached at State headquarters, 6 Beacon street, Boston. Also consult your local tree warden.

WEATHER IN MAY.

Characterized by Cold and by East Winds.

The weather during May was colder than usual with frequent though not heavy, rains. The mean temperature of the month was 2.1 degrees below the average and 4.0 degrees lower than that of May, 1908. There were no extreme temperatures, the highest reached being 82 degrees on the 6th and the lowest 35 degrees on the 1st. From the 16th to the 24th the temperature did not rise above 60 degrees and the wind was continuously from the east and northeast.

There was a great excess of wind from these quarters throughout the month and a corresponding deficiency of south and west winds, and for the first time in May on record at Blue Hill the prevailing direction was from the east. The mean velocity for the month was the highest in May since 1897, and gales occurred on six days, the maximum velocity being 60 miles per hour from the south on the 10th.

The total precipitation of 2.51 inches was 1.10 inches less than the usual amount and fell on 16 different days, which is four more than the average number of rainy days. The relative humidity was slightly higher than the normal and the total amount of sunshine of 229 hours was 3 per cent. greater than the average. Thunderstorms occurred on the 7th and 16th and a brilliant aurora was seen on the evening of the 15th. Frost occurredin the neighboring lowlands on the morning of the 21st.

Baroness Uriu Visits the Scene of Her Schoolgirl Days

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 7.—Baroness Uriu, who was one of the five girls sent over by the Japanese government in 1871 for education in American colleges, visited Vassar college today, from which she was graduated twenty-eight years ago. BOON TO NAVIGATION

Work on Cape Cod Canal Breakwater About to Be Begun

Plymouth, Mass., June 7.—The Cape Cod canal is developing into a reality, with the arrival here from Maine of some of the granite to be used in its construction. Already three schooners have brought cargoes of granite, which will be used in the breakwater to be built at the cape entrance.

Two million tons of the stone have been contracted for, which will require the employment of about fifty vessels. It will all be from Maine.

The canal is to be eight miles long, with a five-mile approach in Buzzard's bay and another of 3000 feet in Cape Cod bay. It will eliminate the hazardous trip around the cape.

GRIM EXECUTION OF DEATH PACT

Man Kills Sister and Self When About to Lose Home

Boston, June 7.—Anticipating the arrival of a constable and the landlord armed with a writ of ejectment for non-payment of rent, Walter F. Towns, 46, and his sister, Anna I. Towns, 50, grimly executed a death pact and the tenement they occupied for a number of years at 21 Center place, Jamaica Plain, is without a tenant, and their landlord, Henry Frazer, is stricken with remorse because he believes his notice of eviction directly caused the double tragedy.

When Frazer and Constable Brooker got into the house they found the discouraged brother and sister lying lifeless in a lower front room, locked in each other's arms. Towns had first given his sister chloroform and then deliberately slashed her throat with a razor found near. This duty, as he evidently believed it, accomplished, he calmly shot himself through the middle of the forehead with a revolver. This is the version of the associate medical examiner.

PLUNGED KNIFE INTO EIGHT MEN

Awful Deed of a Maniac in a Packing Establishment

FIVE STABBED IN THE HEART

Three Others In Critical Condition and Unlikely to Recover—First Man Assaulted Was a Government Inspector, Who Is Practically Disembowelled—Powerful man Given Fearful Beating Before Overpowered

Cambridge, Mass., June 7.—The death of Dr. Daniel C. Hays, who was probably fatally stabbed by John Murphy, the hog butcher who slew five men and seriously wounded three others at Somerville Saturday, is expected hourly, while John Cheevas and Joseph Chicosk, the others to receive dangerous stabs, are both in a critical condition and their recovery doubtful.

All three are at the Cambridge relief hospital. Dr. Hays is a government inspector of slaughter houses, 37 years old, and has a family in Waltham. Cheevas and Chicosk are Poles, aged 29 and 24 years respectively, and living in this city.

The men killed by Murphy are: Thompson Crowe, 42; Michael Yenson, 48; John Carper, 21; Joseph L. Leveroni, 30, and Edwin Neurese, 26.

Murphy, who weighs 200 pounds, became violently insane while engaged at his regular occupation of killing pigs at the North Packing and Provision company, Somerville, and in his mad lust for blood drove more than 300 employes from the seven floors of the building. He was finally overpowered and disarmed in a fierce struggle after he had stabbed eight men.

In a padded cell at the Somerville police station Murphy is still stark mad and allows no one to approach him. As murder was committed the maniac will have to go through the different courses of the law before he can be adjudged insane and confined in an asylum.

Murphy was working on a platform killing the pigs as they were swung into the long room on the seventh floor of the building. Extending from the platform was a long bench at which the pigs were being dressed by 125 workmen, while only ten feet away stood Dr. Hays, the government inspector.

According to some of the workmen, Murphy had been acting peculiarly for some days, but he returned from his dinner Saturday noon apparently in good spirits.

Shortly after 2 o'clock he suddenly uttered a terrific shriek and jumped at Hays waving his 15-inch razor edged knife in his hand. He cut Hays a deep gash in the neck, stabbed him over the heart and practically disembowelled him.

The terrified workmen leaped from their places and rushed for the door, but were not quick enough for Murphy, who ran after them, slashing right and left. Every man whom he struck went down with a groan,

The crowd plunged downstairs, with Murphy after them, and at every landing he struck somebody. On the third floor he caught up with two of the men, to whom he delivered death blows. On the second floor one of the workmen seized a heavy bar of iron and felled Murphy to the floor, but before the others could come up Murphy was on his feet again and wounded another on the way to the street floor. There he was given another terrific blow on the head and his knife was wrenched from his hand. Two police officers came in to assist the crowd and Murphy was given a fearful beating before he was finally overpowered.

So closely were the blows delivered and so accurate was the aim that every man was killed by being stabbed to the heart. Those who were wounded suffered great gashes in the back and on the arms, which they received in the flight downstairs.

Murphy is 50 years old. He was regarded as one of the strongest men in the plant. He is married and has two children.

ANOTHER RUNAWAY.

Horse Feeding in City Square Creates Excitement.

Runaways are getting to be almost daily occurrences in Quincy Square, and it is a wonder that nothing serious has resulted from some of them. One occurred Saturday afternoon and for a few minutes caused quite a little excitement.

The horse, attached to the furniture and piano moving wagon of Miller & Lakin of Boston was standing on Hancock street in front of the Hancock Market, enjoying his noonday meal. The animal was thinking of nothing else but his dinner when a big rail car came along.

The horse did not wait for finger bowls. He did not wait to pay for his dinner but started down the street at a merry clip. Fortunately there were no cars in the square at the time and the frightened steed had a clear course. Away he went unobstructed, while the passersby looked on in wonder. Across the street he set his course, headed for Johnson Bros. store and for a time it looked as if he was going to finish his dinner on the contents of Johnson's show window.

The high curbing at this point, however, kept the horse from going up on the sidewalk and threw him out of his course. The animal then decided to change his course and so turned the corner into Maple street, one of Johnson's teams was standing just around the corner, but escaped safely, the runaway clearing it by inches only.

Here the animal was stopped in his wild dash by George Troupe the hero of the day. George saw the horse turn the croner and dashed out the side onto Maple street to head him off. He succeeded in grabbing the beast by the head and stopped him. It takes nerve to grab a runaway horse without a bridle, but George was there with it.

The only damage done was a broken shaft, which snapped when the animal struck the curbstone in front of Johnson's. The driver said the horse was gentle as a rule and was never known to start unbidden before.

JUNE BARGAINS WITHOUT PRICE FAKING

Price faking so largely indulged in today has about reached its limit. Marking goods up for the sake of marking them down. Claiming an article worth say $20, sale price $14, for the purpose of deceiving people in newspaper and other advertising. Holding fake foreclosure, fake auction, fake creditors and various other kinds of fake sales to lure customers into a store trusting to their ignorance of values to make a sale has long since ceased to attract the majority of the intelligent buying public. The people want a safe store to trade in, and we know it from our intimate acquaintance with the buying public. We value integrity above everything else and on this policy we have built up a tremendous business. Nothing will cause us to swerve from this principle. We have sold goods in the past on a closer margin than any other dealer ever dared to. It is volume of business we desire. A hundred customers at a small margin are more valuable to us than ten, even though the entire profit may be no more. June the month of weddings is our busiest month. During June we offer the greatest concessions within our power to get in trade. This June is no exception. We ask a comparison of prices and values before you buy. Cash or Credit.

A Story of Development.

There are over 310,000 telephones connected with the system of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company in the four northern New England States; to be exact, the figures as of Feb. 27, 1909, showed 310,440, of which 42,533 were sub-licensees.

This tremendous growth here in northern New England shows:

That this section of the country is a unit in its closely interwoven business and social interests;

That there is a necessary interdependence of city and country;

That the Telephone Company has anticipated the needs and desires of all classes of users—the large manufacturer and the small dealer—the metropolitan merchant and the country storekeeper—the office and the home;

That its foresight has been approved, that its service is efficient and that its rates are equitaale; this is manifest from the mere recapitulation—310,000 telephones.

This is a business argument, not a contented retrospect. We want the business man to picture a possible customer at every telephone. We want the residence subscriber to appreciate the telephone's potential value to the home.

We will send a contract agent to explain different classes of rates and their cost, and to advise the subscriber as to the kind best adapted to his individual needs. A word to the Local Manager will suffice.

BODY IDENTIFIED.

Was Drowned May 30, Came Ashore at Squantum Sunday.

The body of a man supposed to be and this morning identified as Raymond von Lindberg of 11 Monk street, South Boston, was found Sunday morning on the beach at the causeway between Squantum and Moon Island, by Timothy Nagle, who is employed at the Boston sewer pumping station at Moon Island.

A week ago Sunday a boat with five men in it was capsized between Thompson's island and Squantum, one of the men being drowned. The name of the drowned man was given as Raymond von Lindberg.

When found the body was in an advanced state of decomposition and from the features was beyond identification. The body was viewed by Medical Examiner Jones and was removed to Hall's morgue.

This morning Louis Van Brett of South Boston, who had a man by the name and description of von Lindberg in his employ, came to Quincy and identified the man. The man was of a powerful build, nearly six feet tall and weighed 175 pounds. He was probably identified by his clothing and a bunch of keys which he had in his pocket. He was later removed to South Boston.

MIDNIGHT SESSION CITY COUNCIL

Many Committee Reports, Hearings and Discussion Prolonging Meeting.

Another late session of the City Council was held Monday night it being near the hour of midnight when an adjournment was reached.

The late session was due largely to several debates and public hearings on accepting new streets.

There was some debate on the report of the Committee on Ordinance relative to an order establishing an ordinance fixing the pay of city laborers. Councilman McDevitt endeavored to show that other cities had passed similar ordinances while City Solicitor McAnarney was as emphatic that no cities whose charter was like that of Quincy had done so.

Mr. McAnarney claimed that the charter of Quincy vested in the Mayor and heads of departments the right to fix wages of laborers it employed.

Also that the City Charter was explicit in the statement that the executive should not exercise any legislative function or the legislative department exercises any executive function. In support of this he quoted at length from an opinion rendered to ex-Mayor Porter twenty years ago by the City Solicitor at that time.

There was also some debate over the order reported by the Committee on Streets granting approval of the operating of a trolley freight. This order however was advanced a stage and ordered to a second reading.

One or two attempts were made to put in applications for permits to transport liquor but in each case the Council refused to suspend the rules that they might be acted upon.

Every member was present.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing Charles F. Veazie a constable. Confirmed.

A communication was received from the Mayor calling attention to the need of connecting the Gridley Bryant school building with the public sewer and inasmuch as it will involve considerable expence to extend the sewer to the building he recommends an appropriation of $9,000 to extend the mains and connect the building. Referred to Committee on Sewers.

A communication was received from the Mayor calling attention to the necessity of providing additional school accommodations for the Coddington district and he recommends that a building be erected at Houghs Neck. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

A communication was received from the Mayor asking that an appropriation be made for the purchase of a scarifier. Said machines cost from $390 to $550. He recommends that the cost be charged to the Excess and Deficiency Fund. Laid on table until later when Councilman Bryant offered an order appropriating $550 for that purpose. Referred to Finance Committee.

A communication was received from the Mayor asking for an appropriation of $7,000 for the purpose of establishing a system of surface drainage. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing F. P. Loud a weigher of coal. Confirmed.

A communication relative to a sidewalk on Calumet street was referred to the Executive.

A communication was received from the School Committee calling attention to the needs of additional school accommodations in the north and south parts of the city. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

PETITIONS.

Petitions were received from the Telephone Co., for attachments Clark, East Squantum, Channing, Thayer and Whitwell streets and South Central avenue. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition was received for the acceptance of Hull street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Several applications for minor licenses were received and referred.

A petition was received for the acceptance of Arlington street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition was received to lay out a foot way leading from Avon way to Glendale road. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition was received for the regrading of Cyril street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Application was received to grant permits to transport liquor to John J. Connors and Coteldo Colletti.

President Hobbs announced under the rules they could not be acted upon.

Councilman Walsh moved to suspend the rules in favor of the Connor's application. The Council refused to suspend the rules 10 voting yes and 7 no.

A public hearing was held at 7.45 on petition of the Citizens' Gas Light Co. to keep and sell gasoline. No one appeared for or against and the order was recommitted.

Councilman McDevitt presented a petition of Italian residents that a liquor transportation permit be granted Jerry J. Bizzozero. Placed on file.

VETERAN SURPRISED.

Comrades Help J. W. Pierce Celebrate His Birthday.

James W. Pierce, a former business man and one of the prominent member of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., reached another milestone in his career Monday, a fact that was not forgotten by his comrades of the Grand Army.

Shortly before 8 o'clock a squad of 17 of Mr. Pierce's comrades whose combined ages aggregated 1185 years, marched up School and Granite street to his home and informed him they had come to help him celebrate. The youngest of the party was 61 years of age and the oldest 80 years, yet their step seemed almost as firm as in the days when with musket in hand they advanced toward the enemy.

Their welcome was a hearty one and the evening was made one of pleasure to all.

Henry O. Studley brought his banjo with him and there was music and singing.

Many a battle was fought all over again by the veterans during the evening and the stirring scenes of '61 were vividly brought to mind.

During the evening an appetizing supper was served and when the boys took their departure it was with wishes that they should all meet again with comrade Pierce a year hence.

"Then, if ever, come perfect days."

The trolley freight bill is, temporarily, on the siding, waiting for the block light to go off.

The Braintree town meeting which began in March ended last night. Why don't they provide for bi-weekly meetings all the year round like the City Council of Quincy?

The gas company is encountering one of the toughest propositions it has ever been up against in the laying of a trench on Scammel street the short distance of some 400 or 500 feet. It looks as if every inch of the way would have to be blasted. The workmen are throwing up enough of rocky material to keep a portable stone crusher going for weeks.

There is one arc electric light in City Square ,the location of which should be changed. The light at the southerly corner of the First church yard, directly at the corner of Hancock and Temple streets, is on the top of a pole among the branches of a tree so thick in foliage that the light does not properly illuminate the street as was intended when the light was located there. The light should be suspended over the center of the street so that the light may do what was intended when it was first set out.

The hardest worked men in the city yesterday were the newspaper reporters. After being on duty all day they tackled the Council meeting at 7.35 and when the Council got through at nearly midnight, the reporters had to start in to work transcribing their notes. It wasn't very far from sunrise when some of them got through this morning. The long hours of the meeting and the hours of midnight had some effect on the nerves of the Councilmen and some wanted to smoke to help out matters a little but President Hobbs was firm and those who wanted a pull at the weed had to take to the anterooms.

The long expected, much discussed trolley freight bill was reported to the City Council last night by the street committee. The committee reported a favorable order, limited to ten years, and surrounded with a number of safeguards in the interest of the citizens, the particulars of which will be found in the report of the Council meeting. That there will be some opposition develop there is no doubt as there were indications to that end last night. The report was passed to a second reading so that when it comes before the Council for final consideration it is expected the opposition will if anything, increase. There were two reports offered last night by the committee. The minority report, signed by one Councilman, wanted to limit the franchise to five years on the understanding the workingmen's and children's tickets should be issued. This report was voted down and the track was left clear for the main proposition. That the franchise as reported by the committee is a very valuable thing to the company there can be no doubt. It is more valuable in this city, under present conditions, than to any other place in the state, with the exception of the city of Boston because the company already has similar franchises in all cities and towns from New eBdford and Fall River to the Braintree and Quincy line, leaving the city of Quincy the "missing link" between the rest of the system and Brockton. Those councilmen who opposed the report last night advanced as an argument that while they were not hostile to a trolley freight franchise, properly guarded, they thought the city was getting poor car service which should be improved before the company was allowed to run freight cars through the city streets. Lack of accommodations to Houghs Neck were publicly cited by two of the Councilmen while after the meeting cases of want of proper accommodations on Memorial day at the base ball grounds and other places were talked over. On the other hand there were Councilmen who said publicly that the company's representatives had said they were willing and anxious to improve conditions here and would do so whenever their attention was called to the needs of the people. For the sake of fair play to the city and company it is hoped every Councilman will express his views at the next meeting of the Council.

MAINE VILLAGE FARES BADLY

Flames Sweep Through Large Portion of Presque Isle

A HUNDRED HOMES DESTROYED

All Were of Frame Construction and Fell Easy Prey to the Devouring Element—Church, Railroad Station and Potato Storehouses Licked Up—High Wind Aided In Destruction—Loss Placed at $300,000

Presque Isle, Me., June 8.—Fire swept an area of fully one-quarter of the village last night, burning 100 dwelling houses, ten potato storehouses, the Canadian Pacific railway freight station, the Congregational church, Masonic hall and causing a loss estimated conservatively at $300,000.

The residences bubrned included some of the best in the village, although the greater number were of the poorer sort. Upwards of a thousand people are homeless.

A high wind which prevailed all day is responsible largely for the extent of the disaster. It carried blazing embers a distance of a quarter of a mile in many cases and new fires quickly started in many places after the first fire was well under way.

All the burned buildings were of frame construction and although they were not very close together, their shingled roofs were easily ignited by the showers of sparks.

Steamers and volunteer fire companies from Houlton and Fort Fairfield assisted the local firemen with their hydrant service, but even with this aid the blaze could not be said to be fairly under control until the wind had died down after all the northeasterly part of the town had been levelled and the flames had reached the woods and farming country.

The fire broke out in the kitchen of John Brown's boarding house on North Main street and it was seven hours before the work of destruction was finished. The burned section covers an area of half a square mile.

From the boarding house the flames communicated to the Congregational church and from that time it was entirely beyond control, the wind making the hydrant streams practically useless.

Several persons were injured in various ways during the fire, but there were no fatalities. Miss Ethel Scott was injured in an automobile collision while assisting the fire sufferers. She was thrown from her machine, suffering severe contusions and possibly internal injuries.

Every able-bodied man in the village turned out to assist in fighting the flames. All the stores and all the factories closed their doors and proprietors, clerks and operatives worked together to save property and assist the unfortunate.

Every house in the town which escaped the flames were thrown open to the fire sufferers and the churches and school buildings were also a refuge for many. Hundreds spent the night in the open, guarding such effects as they had been able to save.

"Beloved Students: I thank you for your kind invitation to be present at the annual meeting of the mother church on June 7, 1909. I will attend the meeting, but not in propria persona. Watch and pray that God directs your meetings and your lives, and your leader will then be sure that they are blessed in their results. Lovingly yours, Mary Baker Eddy."

LEGAL CONTEST STILL PREVAILS

Dewey and Presiding Judge Differ In Their Views

PLAINTIFF PRESENTS "ESSAY"

His Opinions on Wide Variety of Subjects Embodied In Statement Read to Jury—Becomes His Own Witness and Starts to Tell of Early Recollections When Defense Suggests That Plaintiff Ask Himself Questions

Boston, June 8.—Unusual incidents continued Monday in the trial of the libel suit of former Judge Henry S. Dewey against certain officials of the Good Government association, in which the damages are placed at $75,000,000, on the ground that Dewey was libelled in the mayoralty campaign of 1905.

Monday, in the course of the trial which Dewey is conducting in his own behalf, a long statement, which the court declared was an essay, was read to the jury by the consent of the defense and was found to contain Dewey's opinions on Plato, Cicero, poetry, rhetoric, music, politics, religion, weather, stars, and the unwritten law. The paper was entitled: "The Work of a Police Court Justice."

Mr. Dewey in this essay divided law into four parts, the law of God, which he said was the eternal; the law made by the angels, or the celestial law; the law of the inanimate, or the law of nature, and the law made for man.

A dozen witnesses were called during the day, but as many of the questions asked by Dewey were excluded, very little evidence reached the jury. In fact the trial was a continual legal contest between Dewey and Judge Sherman, who presided, questions being ruled out and exceptions taken in each case.

Mr. Dewey himself was sworn. He went on to tell of his early history and of the connections of his family. He said that he was born in Hanover, N. H., Nov. 9, 1856. His father was a merchant there and was at one time a partner of Levi P. Morton. He said that his father was always active in the Republican party and was a Congregationalist. He said that his first recollection of the outside world was in being at the postoffice in Hanover and hearing that Fort Sumpter had been fired upon.

At this point Attorney McClennen objected to the line of testimony as not material. He thought that Dewey should ask himself questions and then reply, as that was the only way counsel for the defense could tell in advance what the testimony would be.

"If asked to rule on the question whether the testimony is material, I should say that it is not," Judge Sherman said. "None of it is of any consequence. Whether one is born of first-class parents or mean ones, he would be in the same position in court. All persons stand on the same level in court."

Judge Sherman then referred to the request that Dewey ask himself questions and then reply, which Dewey proceeded to do.

TRUST, NOT FEAR

Best Plan For Bringing Out Best There Is In a Boy

Buffalo, June 8.—A feature of the sixth annual conference on the education of backward, truant and delinquent children was the time devoted to discussion rather than the reading of papers.

James A. Burnett, a cottage officer in the national training school for boys at Washington, after an address, was the target for a volley of questions for over half an hour.

"A man who maintains discipline through fear is a dismal failure," declared Burnett. "Reduce the use of the rod to the minimum. To bring out the very best there is in a lad trust him and don't institutionize him."

Mr. Burnett condemned the solitary confinement of boys in unmeasured terms.

AS WHITE'S SUCCESSOR

Robert Bacon Accepts Position as Ambassador to France

Paris, June 8.—Private advices received here from Washington say that Robert Bacon, ex-secretary of state, has accepted the ambassadorship to France and that he will succeed Henry White at the end of the year.

ROBERT BACON.

According to these advices, Bacon, when he was first offered the post, declined to accept it, preferring that White should be retained as ambassador, but, finding that President Taft was resolved in any event to replace White, he finally agreed to accept the position.

TO SHUT OFF GAMBLING

Reform Ticket Wins at Narragansett Pier by Small Margin

Narragansett Pier, R. I., June 8.—The anti-gambling element in this town won a close election here, electing their entire ticket, headed by Harry B. Kane, by small margins.

This ticket, which was designated as the "People's Party" and had to take out nomination papers to secure a place on the ballot, was opposed by a fusion ticket of the Democrats and Republicans.

It is expected that sweeping action against the gambling interests in the town will be forthcoming soon.

RICH MEXICAN WILL NOT BE DEPORTED

Evades Customs Officials, Leaving Valuable Jewels Behind

New York, June 8.—The customs authorities of this port have on their hands a diamond collar and bracelet appraised at $12,120 which the owner apparently did not value sufficiently to claim. The jewelry was seized on April 24 when Celso Del Villar, a wealthy Mexican, who had arrived here in company with a Mexican actress, failed to declare it.

A special agent of the treasury department, armed with a warrant, was looking for Del Villar Monday to learn why, on the testimony of his companion that she was not his wife, he should not be deported. The agent and two inspectors traced Del Villar to the Grand Central station, where it was learned that he had bought two tickets for Montreal.

DUEL WITH BURGLAR

Funston Fired at In Bed and Replies With Three Shots

Leavenworth, Kan., June 8.—Brigadier General Funston, commandant of the army service schools at Fort Leavenworth, engaged in a revolver fight with a supposed burglar in his quarters at the post. The man escaped and Funston was unharmed.

General Funston had gone to bed late. He lay awake in bed for an hour. Then a closet door opened and a man stepped forth. Funston saw him and reached under his pillow for a revolver. The intruder saw the motion and fired. The bullet pierced the mattress near Funston, who leaped to his feet. He fired three shots as the man fled.

GREAT WAVE OF PROSPERITY

Indications That It Is About to Take Place With a Rush

Pittsburg, June 8.—From a canvass made of the principal iron and steel manufacturers, it is apparent that a wave of prosperity, equal to any experienced in this country, is about to take place.

The recent stangnation in the iron and steel business is described as the "little industrial rest." From a majority of the interviews secured here the fear is expressed that wants in the iron and steel business will return with such a rush as to cause congestion.

Death of Labor Leader

RALSTON SHOES are so constructed as to preserve the natural tread line of the foot regardless of the style of the shoe. In other words you can select the style of toe which best pleases your fancy with the knowledge that you are not sacrificing comfort for style.

Your feet will take as naturally to a pair of RALSTON SHOES as a duck takes to water—no cramping; no breaking in Ralstons; for they are foot-moulded when in process of manufacture.

If your feet bother you—wear RALSTON SHOES. Let us show you the styles we carry.

CONSPIRACY TO DEFRAUD

Charge Against Prominent Chinese Merchant of Boston

SEQUEL TO A CHINESE "PICNIC"

Only Notary Public of His Race In United States Accused of Being Implicated In Smuggling Nearly Two Score Mongolians Into the Country —Bought Tickets Which Resulted In Their Landing In Boston

Boston, June 8.—The campaign of the government inspectors to end the smuggling of Chinese into this country in the vicinity of Boston, where it has been said to have flourished for many years, resulted last night in the arrest of Chin Shue, a prominent Chinese merchant of the city and the only notary public of that race in this country.

The warrant upon which officers arrested Chin Shue charged him with "conspiracy to defraud the United States government in illegally smuggling Chinamen into the country."

It is understood that the specific case against him is connected with the landing of nearly two score of Chinamen at Marblehead on Aug. 24, 1906. Chin Shue is alleged to have purchased the railroad tickets for the transportation of the Chinamen from Marblehead to Boston. Chin Shue spent last night in Charles street jail, unable to furnish bonds of $5000.

Until the trials growing out of the capture of the schooner Frolic at Providence a few years ago, when she had landed a cargo of Orientals, no correct explanation had been made of the gathering in the town of Marblehead on Aug. 24, 1906, of nearly two score of Chinamen.

During the trial, however, the hitherto supposed picnic was shown to have been a carefully organized smuggling party and the picknickers were Chinamen who had never before set foot in this country.

The projectors of the trip of the schooner Bonita to Marblehead and of the Frolic to Providence were declared at the trial to be identical.

FIRST RIDE IN ELEVATOR

It Proved Fatal to Girl Who Was Sight-Seeing In New York

New York, June 8.—On her first visit to New York and her first ride in an elevator Miss Lena Schoenmaker, 19 years old, one of a party of sightseers from Kingston, chaperoned by Mrs. Charles M. Hall, was crushed to death when her head was caught between the floor of the elevator and the sixth floor of the Flatiron building.

Four of the girls with Mrs. Hall went shopping and visited the eighth floor of the Flatiron building. When they started to descend in the elevator, Lena fell forward in a faint, her head near the door of the car. The operator, who had seen a signal light burning at the sixth floor for a stop as he dropped down, threw over the controlling lever.

The car stopped with a bounce and started up again. As it did so the head of the prostrate girl rolled over the edge of the car and the protruding ledge of the sixth floor caught and crushed her skull, broke her neck and crushed in her chest. She died instantly.

The elevator boy was placed under arrest under a technical charge of homicide. Arraigned before the coroner, he was held in $5000 bail for the inquest.

dington school lot. Ordered to a second reading.

The Committee on Legislative Matters reported leave to withdraw on the Petition for a public hearing for Assessor Pratt removed. Accepted.

LINCOLN SCHOOL FURNISHINGS.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an amendment to the order appropriating $1,500 for furnishings for the Lincoln school addition. The amendment added the borrowing clause to the order. Referred to the Finance Committee.

HOUGHS NECK SCHOOL LOT.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported that it could obtain suitable lots for a school at Houghs Neck from 5 to 15 cents per foot according to location. Report accepted.

TROLLEY FREIGHT.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting approval of the Old Colony Street railway operating a trolley freight in Quincy.

The order provides that the approval shall expire at the expiration of ten years. It also contains restrictions as to the rate of speed, the kind of cars to be used, the hours in which the cars shall be operated and that no discrimination shall be shown to any person or corporation.

Councilman McDevitt offered a minority report that the approval should not be granted for over five years as the company had refused to issue workinemen's tickets and school tickets. Also that the approval should not become operative until they granted these things.

In support of his report he said there were many things to be considered. The company did not have the right to enter Boston and could not give rates to that city. Local expressmen had seen him and said that it would ruin their business. The loss to expressmen and workingmen would be $75,000 a year.

Councilman Walsh opposed the granting of the approval at this time. The railway had asked for a right to build on Chubbuck street which had been granted but they had not built. Their facilities for carrying passengers was inadequate and before granting any further rights we should get something in return. He moved to lay the whole matter on the table.

Councilman Abele moved as an amendment that the order be printed.

Councilman Moir opposed. There had been some discussion about service in the committee and the officials had said it was their desire to give accommodation. If representatives of any section desired better service the company would be glad to meet them and talk the situation over. It seemed foolish to talk about these things at this time. There was a proper way to get at it.

Councilman Whiton was in favor of the approval. He had talked with the officials and they were willing if any extra service was needed in any section to make good. Nothing will be gained by laying on the table.

Councilman Freeman said this matter was brought up in the committee. They have given us rates between Quincy and cities south of us including New York. They have no right to enter Boston as yet and therefore could not give rates to Boston. They said that they would not promise to give certain things in return for a vote, but if proper representatives came to them they would be glad to give them all consideration.

Councilman Whiton. Nothing has done so much for Quincy as has the railroad. Houghs Neck would be almost a barren spot but for the railroad. You can now go from one part of the city to another for five cents. In the winter time but for the paths made by the railroad it would often have been impossible for people at Quincy Point to get to the depot. The railroad pays more taxes than any one else in Quincy. They have a plant at Quincy Point that is valued at a million dollars. Do not kill the goose that lays the golden egg. There is no doubt the railroad should do something but there is a proper way to get at it.

Councilman Russell favored the approval and opposed laying on the table. He looked at this matter as an evolution in the right direction. No matter what we do some one will be hurt.

Councilman Abele explained why it was he was not present at the committee meetings. He believed that the term should be limited to five years. He also believed that in time the laws would be changed so that we could charge something for these grants.

Councilman McDevitt argued that the workingmen were entitled to some consideration.

The motion to lay on the table was lost 7 voting yes and 13 no.

The minority report was refused by a vote of 2 in favor and 18 against.

The majority report was then accepted and the order ordered to a se cond reading.

A motion of Councilman Freeman to take up matters in the calendar was lost.

HOUGHS NECK SCHOOL.

Councilman Gilson offered an order appropriating $5,750 for 50,000 square feet of land known as the triangular Cavanagh lot for a school building at Houghs Neck. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

PUBLIC LANDING.

Councilman Walsh offered an order for a public landing place at the Ward Two bath house. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

Councilman Cherrington offered a resolve that the Railroad Commissioners be requested to examine into the conditions at the Wollaston depot in relation to building a subway under the tracks. Adopted.

Councilman Hadlock offered an order accepting Chapter 423 of the Acts of 1909 entitled an act to regulate the sale of ice cream, confectionery and fruit on the Lords day. Adopted.

PUBLIC FIELD DAY.

Councilman Carey offered an order appropriating $300 for a public field day with athletic sports, band concerts and fireworks on July 5. Referred to Finance Committee.

CINDER TRACK.

Councilman Flynn offered an order for $150 to be expended by the Park Commission in building a cinder track in the Ward Two playground. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

MEMORIAL WANTED.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order that the Mayor be requested to confer with Congressman O'Connell relative to having the Navy department erect a suitable memorial on the grave of William J. Burke who lost his life on the battleship Georgia. Adopted.

Councilman McDevitt moved to refer back to petitions. Voted.

He then offered a petition of Jerry J. Bizzozero for a permit to transport liquor, and moved the rules be suspended that the petition might be acted upon.

By a vote of 11 yes and 6 no the Council refused to suspend the rules.

MORE SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

Councilman Moir offered an order for the Committee on Public Buildings to secure estimates for a lot of land for a school building in the Montclair Downs district.

Councilman Gilson amended by adding the Bigelow Park district. Order adopted.

Several orders for firework licenses were adopted.

Councilman Hadlock offered an order transferring the pool table license of J. N. Page to the Adams building. Adopted.

Upon motion of Councilman Bryant it was voted when the Council adjourn it be until Monday June 14.

Councilman McDevitt asked the Commissioner in regard to the poles on Copeland street.

Commissioner Bainbridge replied that an agreement had been reached by the companies owning poles.

SUFFERED FOR SIX MONTHS
Now Able to Attend to Business
The following letter given for publication by Mrs. E. S. Jackson, living at 110 Park St., Portland, Maine, about Kickapoo Sagwa, which recently was demonstrated at E. H. Murphy's drug store, speaks for itself:
"I feel it my duty for the benefit of suffering humanity to write and request you to publish the following statement:
"Last November I was taken very ill with congestion of the Liver and have had since then the attendance of six Portland Physicians and three trained nurses. I have been since that time a great sufferer from inflammation of the surface nerves and rheumatism, some of the time not being able to wear my clothing. I have also suffered greatly with my stomach and kidneys, and have not been able to obtain any relief during the past ten months.
"About three weeks ago I began taking the Kickapoo Sagwa, and also using the Kickapoo Oil. In this very short time it has put me on my feet, so that I am able to attend to my business, and also to walk quite a distance, which I have not been able to do in the past ten months.
"I cannot speak too highly in the praise of the Kickapoo medicines, and I hope that through me others may be influenced to try them.
"Thanking you more than I can express for the benefit I have derived from the Kickapoo Medicines, I am, very sincerely yours, Mrs. E. S. Jackson, Proprietor, The Melbourne Apartments, 110 Park St., Portland, Me."
Kickapoo Oil, the healing family liniment, should be in every household. It stops all pains, earache, toothache, headache, rheumatic pains, external or internal.
The Kickapoo Remedies are for sale at all druggists. If you wish to test Sagwa before purchasing, drop us a postal card, and we will mail you a free trial bottle. The Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co., Clintonville, Conn.

The 56 gas lights which are to illuminate the Quincy Shore Boulevard from Atlantic street to the National Sailors' Home, were lighted for the first time Monday night.

In addition to these lights, many seats have been placed along the boulevard and they will doubtless be much used during the coming summer.

It is notieed, however, that the seats are all placed near the lights so that no spooning can escape the officer's eyes.

$100 REWARD, $100.
The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

It was one of the best recitals that has been given by the school. The program was varied and each number received the commendation it merited.

At the close of the evening Mrs. Child who accompanied the young ladies who sang, kindly consented to sing, and A Dream by Hawley and Bendemeers Stream Old Irish Melody was enthusiastically received. Altogether it was an evening's entertainment long to be remembered.

PIANO RECITAL.

Pupils of Mrs. Lucie N. Emery Entertain at Colonial Hall.

Colonial hall was crowded Tuesday evening with parents and music lovers, to listen to the piano recital given by the pupils of Mrs. Lucie Newcomb Emery. It was the third recital given by Mrs. Emery's musicians and those present received a big treat. The boys and girls played cleverly and with skilful touch, all giving promise of being stars at some time.

There were twenty-one numbers on the program including waltzes, marches and all kinds of musical compositions. The playing of Victor Staub's "Sous Bois" by Wendell H. Luce and Barelett's Polka de Concert by Curtis Arnold, were the features of the concert. Both these performers are older than the others, but show what practice and experience can do for a player. POLICE DEPT. GETS BUSY Digs Up Cellar of Granite St. House for Dead Body.

The police department got busy for a short while Tuesday after receiving a report that the body of a child was buried in the cellar of a house on Granite street. The word came to the police through an agent of the state society for the prevention of cruelty to children who had been called to the house to take care of two children who were in a condition that suggested something should be done with them as it was evident the mother was not in condition to care for them. While the agent was at the house it was reported to him that a baby had been born there two weeks ago and that it was thought the body was buried in the cellar.

Chief of Police Burrell, Lieut. McKay and Acting Inspector Goodhue got busy on the case and interviewed the woman who was thought to have given birth to the child. She was found in a very weak state, not having had medical attendance throughout her sickness. She said a child had been born but was dead at the time of birth and had been carried to the cemetery by her husband and a friend.

The officers could find no records at any cemetery of the burial of the child and on looking up the husband it was found he was doing two months in the house of correction at Dedham for drunkenness. The police notified Medical Examiner Jones and City Physician Hallowell. The latter was called to give medical attention to the woman and the medical examiner was wanted on hand in case the police should unearth the body. The officers dug through the cellar but found nothing and dug in places around the yard but to no purpose. After further questioning of the woman the officers learned that the child was not developed at the time of birth and that it had been disposed of in such a manner that there was no trace left.

The two children were given over to the care of the overseer of the poor for the night and will be committed to the care of the state authorities and the mother was taken to the city farm for medical treatment.

RECEPTION TO MISS BUMPUS.

One of the happiest receptions of the season was that of Tuesday evening at Bethany chapel, when a reception was tendered by Unity Circle of King's Daughters to Miss Amelia L Bumpus, honorary member of the circle and senior deaconess of Bethany church.

Miss Bumpus was assisted in receiving by Mrs. W. E. Blanchard, Leader and Mrs. J. F. Welch, Vice Leader of Unity Circle.

The reception was held in the church parlors which were beautifully decorated with flowers and palms. In the reception room, purple iris and wisteria were used, that being the King's Daughters color.

There was music throughout the reception by an orchestra with Mrs. John F. Hunt at the piano.

In the refreshment room peonies, snowballs and pink hawthorn were the flowers used.

The invited guests were the Rev. E. N. Hardy and Mrs. Hardy, Deacons and their wives, the Deaconesses and their husbands, the church committee, Rev. Edward Norton and Mrs. Norton, Miss Mary Bumpus and the honorary members of the circle.

Before the reception, Miss Bumpus received a bouquet of daybreak pinks and on her return to her home on Spear street a surprise awaited her in the form of a writing desk.

These were gifts of love to this Daughter of the King by Unity Circle.

The reception was given in recognition of Miss Bumpus' long and faithful service as librarian of the Thomas Crane Public library, from which position she retired last year and in appreciation of her sterling qualities. Miss Bumpus is a woman who is always doing good work somewhere, but so quietly that only her immediate friends appreciate and know how her womanly ministrations comfort and help the sick, the afflicted and the poor.

ESTATE LEFT TO WIDOW.

The will of Frank J. Revere formerly of Quincy which was filed for probate Tuesday gives practically his whole estate to his widow Mrs. Minnie Revere. Three silver spoons used by Paul Revere and some family heir looms are given to his daughter Miss Pauline Revere.

LOW—PRESCOTT.

Pretty Afternoon Wedding at First Church.

No day could have been fairer for a bride than Tuesday or place more fitting than stately old First church with its high mahogany pulpit banked with palms and garlands of fragrant white flowers. The bride was Miss Alice Keith Prescott, youngest daughter of the late George W. Prescott and Mrs. Prescott. The groom was Mr. Russell Cutler Low, younger son of Mr. Henry Cutler Low of Brooklyn, New York.

While the guests were gathering Mr. John D. Buckingham at the organ played continuously. Promptly at five o'clock to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march the wedding party entered the church and were met at the altar by the Rev. Ellery Channing Butler, pastor of the church, the groom and his brother, Mr. Henry Cutler Low, Jr., who acted as best man. The bride was preceded by the ushers: Rev. Roger S. Forbes of Dorchester, Henry L. Trowbridge of Newton, H. Gerrish Smith, Dexter E. Wadsworth, C. Eaton Pierce and Rev. Charles B. Ames of Quincy. Two little flower girls, Helen Louise Prescott and Eleanor Prescott of Braintree, nieces of the bride, scattered flowers in her path as she proceeded up the aisle accompanied by her sister Miss Etta Marsh Prescott. The double ring service was used and was most impressive.

Instead of leaving the church immediately after the service as is customary Mr. and Mrs. Low received their friends informally; a pleasing innovation, which gave an opportunity to offer congratulations which would not have been possible otherwise as owing to the bride's mother being on invalid no reception was held at the home.

The decoration of the church was very effective, palms banking the pulpit with bouquets of spiria bridal wreath and syringa on each pew in the main aisle. The palms were from the greenhouse of Paterson of Wollaston and the flowers from the home of the bride, arranged by young friends under the artistic direction of Miss Georgiana Cushing Lane.

The bride's gown was of Princesse lace over Liberty satin with Point Applique lace. The veil was of tulle and she carried a shower bouquet of Bride roses. Her only jewelry was a gold brooch set with pearls a gift from the groom, who also presented his ushers and best man with scarf pins of gold set with topaz, designed by Tiffany of New York. Miss Prescott, maid of honor, wore a white silk crepe with bertha of Burges lace. The little flower girls were in white muslin carrying baskets of roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Low left during the evening for Boston and will spend a few weeks quietly at East Gloucester, where the bride has passed several summers and where they will enjoy yachting in Mr. Low's boat the "San Toy." Most of the summer they will spend in Quincy at the home of the bride's mother and go to housekeeping in the fall.

The quantity of beautiful gifts in silver, cut glass, oriental rugs, pictures and checks attest to the wide circle of friends of the young people.

There was a large attendance of family friends at the ceremony; friends of years standing, especially among the newspaper fraternity, many of whom had traveled extensively in this country with the bride and her father, who was one of the best known editors and publishers in New England.

—We examine in our dark-room with modern instruments. If we find disease we send you to a reliable oculist. Williams 1743 Hancock street.

CLASS DAY EXERCISES

Gayeties Close With Old Time May Pole Dance

Class Day exercises of the Quincy Mansion school were held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Stadium on the grounds—which were never more beautiful in their freshness and bloom.

The juniors came across the lawn, paused near the stadium in two lines and with clasped upraised hands formed an arch through which marched the dignified seniors in caps and gowns. The class included Miss Beatrice Atwood Miss Hawthorne Cate, Miss Bernice Engley, Miss Margarethe Frankel, Miss Hazel Goodman, Miss Inez Harwood, Miss Gretchen Longley, Miss Helen McQuesten, Miss Kathleen Moses, Miss Alice Polsey, Miss Cora Reinherz, Miss Doris Richards, Miss Ernestine Smith, Miss Marion Smith, Miss Stahl, Miss Freda Tuckerman, Miss Helen Wade, Miss Susan Wales, Miss Mary Wolston, and Miss Florence Zimmer. The class history was read by Miss Beatrice Atwood. It was well written and well read and she paid a touching tribute to Mrs. Willard. The school slams given out by Miss Florence Zimmer, Miss Hazel Goodman, Miss Bernice Engley, Miss Kathleen Moses and Miss Gretchen Longley made much laughter, the recipients taking the jokes goodnaturedly. The class quotations came in the form of telegrams and were very clever. They were read by Miss Mary Wolston and Miss Helen Wade.

The Class prophecy by Miss Cora Reinherz was very bright and she pictured her classmates in the years to come, as an opera singer, nurse, artist, mayor, farmer, doing settlement work, flying an Aeroplane, etc., caused much amusement. The class will by Miss Freda Tuckerman was a well executed document by which the goods and chattels of the seniors were given to the juniors.

The class planted a catalpa tree around which they sang and gave their class yell.

The sunshine environment and atmosphere socially all added to the gayeties of the afternoon which ended with "Ye olde-tyme May pole dance by ye merrie Maydes" in pretty Swiss costumes.

Refreshments were served and a hurdy-gurdy was kept busy for an informal dance on the lawn.

Did you find any trouble in waking up your boy this morning?

There are a great many crosswalks in City square that do not speak very well for the reputation of the Granite City of New England.

Thanks to Councilman Bryant, the members of the council know now what a scarifying machine is. To those who were not present at the council meeting it might be well to say that a scarifying machine is one that scarifies.

Before one begins to argue that this or that can be done under the city charter of Quincy because the charter of some other city allows it, the safest plan would be to read carefully both city charters and study the limitations of each. By this much subsequent misunderstanding and explanation would be avoided.

The Quincy Mansion School girls had a stadium of nature's own making yesterday afternoon for their outdoor class-day exercises. The spacious lawns which surround the old Quincy manse and the beautiful, massive trees for which the place is noted, made a combination that the handwork of man could not duplicate.

The historic First church is always an ideal edifice for a public event of any kind but it never looks to better advantage than during the late afternoon of an early summer day when the sun's rays are flooding the western windows and lighting up the historic tablets with which the interior is so richly adorned. The effect of nature was especially noticeable yesterday afternoon when Miss Alice Keith Prescott, the daughter of the late George W. Prescott, for many years editor and publisher of this paper, became the bride of Russell Cutler Low.

For the first time in the history of the city, the flag on city hall was half masted yesterday for the memory of a woman—Miss Emeline A. Newcomb, for 52 years a teacher in the public schools of the city, whose funeral was held yesterday afternoon. It was a thoughtful and tactful thing for the chief executive of the city to do and in the case of Miss Newcomb it was deserving. With Mayor Shea it was more than an act of public duty to order the flag placed at half mast as Miss Newcomb was the teacher of His Honor at the Willard school some 40 years or more ago.

It looks as if the Houghs Neck school lot was at last upon the right track leading towards success. After all is said and done, regardless of the ownership of any of the various lots of land which have been offered or suggested, it would seem to be the duty of the council to give to the people of Houghs Neck what they want in a matter of this kind. They are the ones [illegible] the school, if one is ever built there, and it is to be presumed that they know better than anyone else what they want and where they want it. It is to be regretted that there has been so much delay already on a subect that seems to be of vital importance, vital in that the object for which legislation was undertaken was one that called for expedient haste.

Mayor Shea has asked the city council for $7,000 to continue the system of street drainage begun last year. A little appropriation made every year for work of this nature, to be carried out in some systematic manner, will soon help to preserve some of the streets of the city. In the past years when streets were rebuilt or repaired no attempt was made on many of them to carry off the surface water. The result has been that the streets have had pools of water standing on them after every rain storm, a condition of affairs that eventually will undermine any street. A system of surface drainage is as essential as a system of road building; in fact the two go hand in hand and one is useless without the other. The communication of the mayor should receive serious consideration.

The calling of the attention by the mayor and school committee Monday night to the needs of more school accommodations was the biggest plan yet suggested in connection with the public schools for this city. In past years the necessity for a new school in this or that district has been received and acted upon, but at last night's meeting it was pointed out that three new school houses were needed, and needed urgently; one at Houghs Neck, one in the Montclair-Norfolk Downs district, and one in the Bigelow park district. It shows that the rising generation bids fair to come onto the stage of active life with more than filled ranks and it suggest a very marked increase in the school appropriations in, say, five years time. The Houghs Neck lot is practically picked out and in both Montclair and Bigelow park it is said that beautiful pieces of property are available. It would be a good thing for the city to acquire these pieces of propetry as soon as possible if the school house buildings have got to come.

The increasing traffic over Maple street to and from the new post office every day shows clearer and clearer each day the mistake that was made when Maple street was widened. It should have been made twice the present width. A horse and wagon backed up to the side entrances to the Johnson building takes up nearly the entire width of the street. It will only be a question of time when the street will have to be widened again. When that time comes the job should be a thorough one as the indications point to the post office building remaining where it is for good and all.

In his sermon on "The Challenge to the Churches," Rev. Dr. Hardy on Sunday scored that class of people who stand idly by in the market place criticising the work of the churches and its ministers without ever a helpful thought or suggestion as to where conditions might be improved. Not only does this class of critics aim their shafts of ridicule at the church, but all people in authority are subjected to the same scoring by this type of people who would destroy everything not to their liking, but who never have a constructive idea or helpful suggestion to advance. Perhaps the reason for it is that their reasoning matter isn't far enough advanced to do anything more than break things like a child.

The resolution introduced into the council Monday evening starting a movement towards having a memorial erected on the grave of William J. Burke is a worthy and fitting one Young Burke was a sailor on the U. S. battleship Georgia. Two years ago he threw himself on a bag of burning powder in the after turret of his ship to prevent an explosion and was so terribly burned that he died a few hours afterwards. He lies buried in St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy. Already the city council has passed resolutions eulogizing the heroic act of this young sailor but it is said that none of the organizations which decorated graves on Memorial day remembered the grave of young Burke, and that his last resting place would have gone undecorated by the flag he served if it had not been for the action of the Makaria class of Bethany Congregational church. This class was prompted to the act by the thoughtfulness of Herbert Cobb, a former bluejacket on the U. S. battleship Illinois.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. UNION SERVICE.

On Sunday, the Epworth Leagues of the Wollaston and West Quincy M. E. churches held a union service at Wollaston. The evening service at the Hall Place M. E. church was omitted so that a larger number from West Quincy could attend, the Epworth League service at 6 P. M. and remain to the evening service at 7 P. M.

The singing was in charge of the president of the Wollaston Epworth League, Mr. Herbert Cassidy, and fully aroused the people to grasp the whole meaning of the words of the leader, who spoke on "Legal Obligations" or "Loving our neighbor as ourself," the reference being taken from Mark 12:28, 34, which was read by Rev. C. H. Raupach, pastor of Hall Place M. E. church, and tried to point out our obligations, not only to God but to our fellowmen, to those whom we associate with at our work as well as to those who are our dearest friends, that all may know Jesus Christ and accept Him as their personal Saviour, and urged each and everyone present to go out and try to win others by personal efforts and unselfish labors of love into the fold of Christ.

An enthusiastic testimony service gave added force to the words of the speaker, as each tried to show the benefit derived from working for Christ, and inspired all present to renewed efforts in winning souls for Christ.

The evening service at 7 P. M. was well attended. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Wiggin, spoke on "The Call of Abraham" and pointed out that, as, in earlier days, Abraham was called of God, so we, of these later days, are called of God to a great work, to unselfish labors of love and charity, to help in upbuilding the kingdom of God.

EPWORTH SOCIAL.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Epworth League was held in the vestry of the Hall Place M. E. Church, Monday. The meeting opened at 7.45 with the president in the chair and all the officers present. Reports were given by the vice presidents of the various departments, showing the work of this chapter of Epworth Leagues to be progressing.

Plans were made for a lawn party to be held under the auspices of the Epworth League and the Ladies Aid sometime during the month of June.

The social hour was in charge of the fourth vice president, Miss Maude E. Hodgkinson. Ice cream and cake were served by the fourth vice president and her assistants Beryl Hannant, J. M. Francis, Julius Fuller. Miss May Williams, Miss Ada Williams, Miss Hilda Francis, Miss Florence Manhire and Miss Eleanor Steele.

QUINCY MAN A HERO.

Chester Lenner Stops Runaway and Saves Woman and Baby.

Chester Lenner, a colored chauffer, of 2 Water street, this city, proved himself to be a hero Monday afternoon, when he prevented what for a time looked like the certain destruction of the occupants of a carriage which was being madly dashed from side to side on Freeport street, Dorchester, behind a runaway horse.

The affair happened about 4 o'clock near the Boston Consolidated gas plant. Mrs. McLaughlin went to the plant stable to see her husband, who worked there, and took her baby with her. Mr. McLaughlin had just hitched up a nervous horse for one of the officers of the company and when her husband went away for a minute she got into the carriage to sit down. In so doing it is thought she scared the horse who started down Freeport street at a fast clip.

Lenner, who is employed by the Boston and Quincy express company, happened to be fixing his large truck, when the runaway came down the street. Seeing the danger that the woman and child were in he dropped his tools and proceeded to show his nerve. Instead of jumping in front of the horse, which he said later would have probably overturned the buggy, he ran alongside until the carriage was abreast of him.

He then reached as it passed, for the side of the buggy and although nearly thrown to the ground, succeeded in keeping his feet until he could reach with his other hand and grab the reins, which had been placed between the whip-socket and the dasher Gathering in the reins he started to pull the horse up and was dragged for some little distance before the horse finally came to a standstill.

Lenner then helped the woman to the ground and although she was in a hysterical condition, she was none the worse physically for her wild ride.

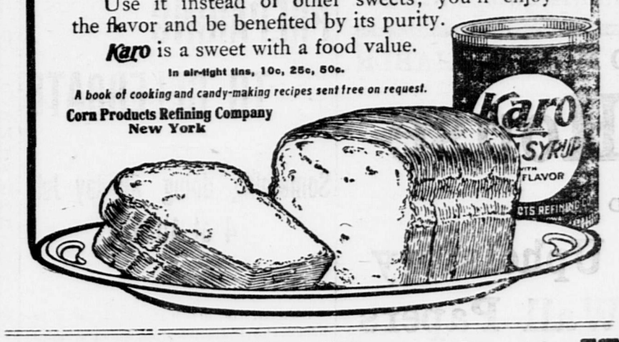

Chester Lenner is a modest young man and thought nothing of the act. His coolness and nerve and evident knowledge of stopping runaways however saved two lives from almost certain death, at least terrible injuries.

THE PRESQUE ISLE FIRE

Five Hundred People Homeless and Property Loss of $250,000

Presque Isle, Me., June 9.—While sincerely regretting the $250,000 fire which wiped out thirty acres of buildings and rendered homeless about 500 people, the citizens of Presque Isle are thankful that so much of their town has been saved. Every effort has been made to make as comfortable as possible those who were turned out of doors by the fire.

Food and clothing furnished by local people are dispensed to those who required such assistance. Besides the Congregational church and Masonic block, there were destroyed fourteen potato storehouses, fifty-three dwellings and twenty-five stables.

Buildings were threatened all day Tuesday by the fires which spread in the woods. Firemen and volunteers worked all day wetting down the burning embers.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S FRIEND

Boston Loses an Honored Citizen In Death of William Baldwin

Boston, June 9.—William H. Baldwin, a philanthropist who for more than forty years was president of the Young Men's Christian union, died at his home here last night. The cause of death was old age.

Mr. Baldwin was born in Brighton (now part of Boston) in 1826, and in his early days was head of the firm of Baldwin, Baxter & Curry, woolen importers and jobbers.

In 1868 he retired from the woolen business and took up the work of the Y. M. C. U. He had been identified with many societies and institutions and was widely known as a freind and helper of young people. He was a member of the Boston school board for several years.

His wife was Mary F. A. Chafee, and of the union there were nine children.

OPEN SHOP BASIS FOR NINETY DAYS

Hat Manufacturers Will Then Recognize Union Label

Danbury, Conn., June 9.—The hatters' strike, which has been in progress in the twenty-three factories in this city, New Milford and Bethel since Jan. 15, was practically brought to a close when fifteen of the manufacturers agreed to open their factories for a ninety days' period on the open shop basis.

With the return to work of the strikers the manufacturers agree to resign from the Hat Manufacturers' association and to allow all difficulties to be settled by arbitration, with the exception of the use of the union label, which will be resumed at the end of the ninety days' period, when the manufacturers have severed their connection with the Manufacturers' association.

Danbury makes 90 percent of the stiff hats made in the United States.

LIKE HOWLING DERVISHES

Bishop Doane Warns Girls Against Shrieks of Suffragettes

Albany, June 9.—Addressing the graduating class of St. Agnes' school here on the subject of "Womanhood," Bishop Doane of the Episcopal church had this to say on the woman suffrage question:

"I cannot count it necessary to caution you against the loudly shrieked call to give women the right to vote and to be voted for. I am disposed to think that the quiet and decent appeal of a few of the 'suffragists' will be so drowned in the howling dervish performance of the 'suffragettes' that the former will fail of any effect.

"One is justified in saying here to you that your womanhood will gain nothing by suffrage and is losing every day in its dignity and its true influence by the hysterical clamor which is employed in the pursuit of this chimera."

TWICE TRIED FOR MURDER

Whitmore Placed Behind the Bars on Charge of Larceny

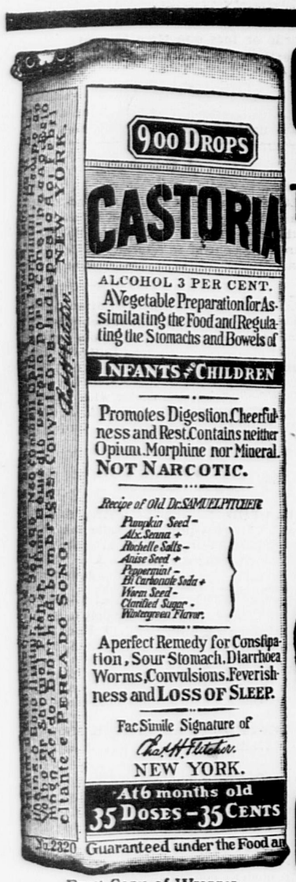

New York, June 9.—Theodore S. Whitmore, whose wife was found murdered in "Lamp Black" swamp near Harrison, N. J., more than a year ago, and who was twice tried and on the second trial acquitted of the murder, was locked up at police headquarters last night, charged with grand larceny.

The complainant is a woman tenant of an apartment house, who reported to the police that some one had entered and robbed her flat through a window. A number of workmen were putting up awnings at the place. Among the men was Whitmore.

A Story of Development.

There are over 310,000 telephones connected with the system of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company in the four northern New England States; to be exact, the figures as of Feb. 27, 1909, showed 310,440, of which 42,533 were sub-licensees.

This tremendous growth here in northern New England shows:

That this section of the country is a unit in its closely interwoven business and social interests;

That there is a necessary interdependence of city and country;

That the Telephone Company has anticipated the needs and desires of all classes of users—the large manufacturer and the small dealer—the metropolitan merchant and the country storekeeper—the office and the home;

That its foresight has been approved, that its service is efficient and that its rates are equitaale; this is manifest from the mere recapitulation—310,000 telephones.

This is a business argument, not a contented retrospect. We want the business man to picture a possible customer at every telephone. We want the residence subscriber to appreciate the telephone's potential value to the home.

NEW ENGLAND TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH CO. LOCAL AND LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE BELL SYSTEM AMERICAN TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH CO.

POLLY of the CIRCUS

BY MARGARET MAYO

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY DODD, MEAD AND COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Polly, a child of the circus, is brought up by Toby, a clown, and by a boss canvasman called "Muvver Jim." She learns to ride Bingo, a circus horse, and grows to woman hood knowing no life except that of the circus. II—A church near the circus lot interests Polly. Jim rerpoves her for her reckless riding. III—Polly urges Bingo to unprecedented speed and falls. Toby and Jim carry the injured girl to the parsonage nearby. IV—The Rev. John Douglas, much to Deacon Elverson's disgust, takes Polly into the parsonage. Tobby and "Muvver Jim" are received kindly by Douglas, who has placed Polly in charge of his colored servant, Mandy. Douglas promises to care for the girl until she is well. V—When Polly becomes conscious she declares that she must rejoin the circus at once. "Are you a sky pilot?" she asks the minister. Her mother was killed riding a circus horse, and her father "got his'n in a lion's cage." The minister reads to her about Ruth and Naomi, and Polly says, "I guess I'd like to hear you spiel." VI—Douglas offends Deacon Strong by defending boys who play baseball on Sunday. VII—Polly recovers her health, but is saddened by the death of Toby. Jim sends the news and promises to keep in touch with her. VIII—Polly recovers from the blow dealt her by Toby's death. She has ceased using slang and is educating herself under Douglas, guidance. She endeavors to improve Mandy's grammar.

"Is it possible?" gasped Elverson weakly.

"Well, what are you goin' to do about it?" asked Strong when he could trust himself to speak again.

"I shall do what is best for Miss Polly," said the pastor quietly, but firmly.

He turned away to show that the interview was at an end. Strong followed him. Douglas pointed to the gate with a meaning not to be mistaken. "Good afternoon, deacon."

Strong hesitated. He looked at the pastor, then at the gate, then at the pastor again. "I'll go," he shouted, "but it ain't the end!" He slammed the gate behind him.

"Quite so, quite so," chirped Elverson, not having the slightest idea of what he was saying. He saw the frigid expression on the pastor's face; he coughed behind his hat and followed Strong.

CHAPTER X.

DOUGLAS dropped wearily on to the rustic bench. He sat with drooped head and unseeing eyes. He did not hear Polly as she scurried down the path, her arms filled with autumn leaves. She glanced at him, dropped the bright colored foliage and slipped quickly to the nearest tree. "One, two, three for Mr. John!" she cried as she patted the huge brown trunk.

"Is that you, Polly?" he asked absently.

"Now it's your turn to catch me," she said, lingering near the tree. The pastor was again lost in thought. "Aren't you going to play any more?" There was a shade of disappointment in her voice. She came slowly to his side.

"Sit here, Polly," he answered gravely, pointing to a place on the bench. "I want to talk to you."

"Now I've done something wrong," she pouted. She gathered up her garlands and brought them to a place near his feet, ignoring the seat at his side. "You might just as well tell me and get it over."

"You couldn't do anything wrong," he answered, looking down at her.

"Oh, yes, I could, and I've done it. I can see it in your face. What is it?"

"What have you there?" he asked, trying to gain time and not knowing

"Now I've done something wrong," she pouted.

how to broach the subject that in justice to her must be discussed.

"Some leaves to make garlands for the social." Polly answered more cheerfully. "Would you mind holding this?" She gave him one end of a string of leaves.

"Where are the children?"

"Gone home."

"You like the children very much, don't you, Polly?" Douglas was striving for a path that might lead them to the subject that was troubling him.

"Oh, no, I don't like them; I love them." She looked at him with tender eyes.

"You're the greatest baby of all." A puzzled line came between his eyes as he studied her more closely. "And yet you're not such a child, are you, Polly? You're quite grown up—almost a young lady." He looked at her from a strange, unwelcome point of view. She was all of that as she sat at his feet, yearning and slender and fair, at the turning of her seventeenth year.

"I wonder how you would like to go away"—her eyes met his in terror—"away to a great school," he added quickly, flinching from the very first hurt that he had inflicted, "where there are a lot of other young ladies."

"Is it a place where you would be?" She looked up at him anxiously. She wondered if his "show" was about to "move on."

"I'm afraid not," Douglas answered, smiling in spite of his heavy heart.

"I wouldn't like any place without you," she said decidedly and seemed to consider the subject dismissed.

"But if it was for your good," Douglas persisted.

"It could never be for my good to leave you."

"But just for a little while," he pleaded. How was she ever to understand? How could he take from her the sense of security that he had purposely taught her to feel in his house?

"Not even for a moment," Polly answered, with a decided shake of her head.

"But you must get ahead in your studies," he argued.

She looked at him anxiously. She was beginning to be alarmed at his persistence.

"Maybe I've been playing too many periscuous games."

"Not periscuous, Polly, promiscuous."

"Pro-mis-cuous," she repeated haltingly. "What does that mean?"

"Indiscriminate." He rubbed his forehead as he saw the puzzled look on her face. "Mixed up," he explained, more simply.

"Our game wasn't mixed up." She was thinking of the one to which the widow had objected. "Is it promiscuous to catch somebody?"

"It depends upon whom you catch," he answered, with a dry, whimsical smile.

"Well, I don't catch anybody but the children." She looked up at him with serious, inquiring eyes.

"Never mind, Polly. Your games aren't promiscuous." She did not hear him. She was searching for her book.

"Is this what you are looking for?" he asked, drawing the missing article from his pocket.

"Oh!" cried Polly, with a flush of embarrassment. "Mandy told you."

"You've been working a long time on that."

"I thought I might help you if I learned everything you told me," she answered timidly. "But I don't suppose I could."

"I can never tell you how much you help me, Polly."

"Do I?" she cried eagerly. "I can help more if you will only let me. I can teach a bigger class in Sunday school now. I got to the book of Ruth today."

"You did?" He pretended to be astonished. He was anxious to encourage her enthusiasm.

"Um—hum!" she answered solemnly. A dreamy look came into her eyes. "Do you remember the part that you read to me the first day I came?" He nodded. He was thinking how care free they were that day. How impossible such problems as the present one would have seemed then! "I know every bit of what you read by heart. It's our next Sunday school lesson."

"So it is."

"Do you think now that it would be best for me to go away?" She looked up into his troubled face.

"We'll see, we'll see," he murmured, then tried to turn her mind toward other things. "Come, now; let's find out whether you do know your Sunday school lesson. How does it begin?" There was no answer. She had turned away with trembling lips. "And Ruth said"— He took her two small hands and drew her face toward him, meaning to prompt her.

"'Entreat me not to leave thee,'" she pleaded. Her eyes met his. His face was close to hers. The small features before him were quivering with emotion. She was so frail, so helpless, so easily within his grasp. His muscles grew tense, and his lips closed firmly. He was battling with an impulse to draw her toward him and comfort her in the shelter of his strong, brave arms. "They shan't!" he cried, starting toward her.

Polly drew back, overawed. Her soul had heard and seen the things revealed to each of us only once. She would never again be a child.

Douglas braced himself against the back of the bench.

"What was the rest of the lesson?" he asked in a firm, hard voice.

"I can't say it now," Polly murmured. Her face was averted; her white lids fluttered and closed.

"Nonsense! Of course you can. Come, come; I'll help you." Douglas spoke sharply. He was almost vexed with her and with himself for the weakness that was so near overcoming them. "And Ruth said, 'Entreat me not to leave thee'"—

"'Or to return from following after thee'"—she was struggling to keep back the tears—"'for whither thou goest I will go, and where thou lodgest I will lodge. Thy people shall be my people and thy God my'"— She stopped.

"That's right; go on," said Douglas, striving to control the unsteadiness in his own voice.

"'Where thou diest will I die.'" Her arms went out blindly.

"Oh, you won't send me away, will you?" she sobbed. "I don't want to learn anything else just—except—from you." She covered her face and slipped, a little broken heap, at his feet.

In an instant the pastor's strong arms were about her; his stalwart body was supporting her. "You shan't go away. I won't let you—I won't! Do you hear me, Polly? I won't!"

Her breath was warm against his cheek. He could feel her tears, her arms about him, as she clung to him helplessly, sobbing and quivering in the shelter of his strong embrace. "You are never going to leave me—never!"

A new purpose had come into his life, the realization of a new necessity, and he knew that the fight which he must henceforth make for this child was the same that he must make for himself.

MISS E. A. NEWCOMB.

Teachers and Pupils Attend Funeral Service and Send Flowers.

Funeral services for Miss Emeline A. Newcomb were held Tuesday afternoon at her late home 1061 Hancock street. The casket in which lay the first guide of so many Quincy people, was literally buried in flowers showing the love and esteem in which Miss Newcomb was held by her countless friends.

Among the floral tributes were two beautiful wreaths of roses and ferns, one from Miss Newcomb's associates, the teachers of the Willard school and the other from the pupils of the school.

The services which were attended by the members of the school board, teachers of the Willard schools and numerous friends, were conducted by Rev. Ellery Channing Butler pastor, and Rev. Charles B. Ames, assistant pastor of the First church.

Rev. Mr. Ames read appropriate selections from the Scripture and Rev. Mr. Butler offered the prayer. Mrs. Emma S. Moore sang "Some Sweet Day," "Still Still With Thee," and "Passing Out of the Shadows."

Burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

CHARITY CONFERENCE WORK.

The problem of relieving the distress of the poor is always with us. To give money, food or clothing without investigation is unwise for it may make paupers of those who find it easier to beg than to work. The public is hereby warned of a woman who asks late Saturday nights, and other times, for money and food for herself and children. Her case is known by those who are willing to aid her when she is ready to help herself. She is proven thoroughly unreliable and untrustworthy, willing to beg but unwilling to work.

The Charity Conference has, through its members and friendly visitors, personally acquainted itself with the conditions of each appeal and information or further attention will be given to any case referred to them. They may be reached by telephone or letter through its representatives Miss Harriet Turner of Wollaston or Mrs. Francis Abele, Jr., of Quincy.

CIRCUS TODAY.

Frank A. Robbins circus arrived in town at an early hour this morning and a large number of youngsters and adults witnessed the interesting work of unloading the trains and putting up the tents on the Common. The parade was very spectacular and of quite large proportions. Music was furnished by three bands, one of them said to be one of the foremost Italian bands in the country. The ponderous elephant and the clumsy, trudging camel attracted the usual attention, and the other wild animals and birds in open cages caught all eyes. The horses made a good appearance and the dimunitive ponies were much admired.

The Frank A. Robbins circus was here two years ago, and gave two excellent performances, it will be remembered by the large crowds who attended.

Features of the circus this year are: Grand Dude, the dancing horse ridden by LaBalle Clarke, and "The Leap to the Moon" by Daredevil Burr. He rides a bicyle furiously down a steep incline, crosses space unsupported, leaves wheel and ascend to a trapese. The performance is a most thrilling one. The athletic work of the Gregory family (six in number), is a show in itself.

The New Britain Record of May 26, in speaking of the circus which appeared in that city says:

"The attendance at the performance this afternoon was large and wonder was freely expressed at the remarkable things seen. In all the towns of Connecticut, the capacity of the big tent was taxed, and in Torrington, South Norwood and other places, people had to be turned away for want of accommodation."

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class o classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY will be happy to answer inquiries.

ORGAN RECITAL.

Prof. Wrigley Renders Fine Program at Christ Church.

An appreciative audience was present at the organ recital of Prof. Frank Wrigley, Wednesday evening at Christ church. Prof. Wrigley was assisted by Mrs. Emma S. Moore, who was down on the program for two selections.

Her first number was "My Redeemer and my Lord" and her second, "The Ninety and Nine." Of Mrs. Moore's singing, but little can be added to what has been said many times in the past. Her voice is a remarkably sweet one and it is always a pleasure to hear her.

Prof. Wrigley opened the recital with an overture from Handel's "Otho." He also rendered selections from such well known composers as Dvorak, Freyer, Wely, Wolstenholme and Thomas.

Prof. Wrigley is a thorough master of the organ and his recital was a rare musical treat.

GEORGE N. NASH.

George N. Nash, whose name was familiar to every business man in City Square, passed away Wednesday night at the City Hospital after a brief illness, aged 53 years.

For years, Mr. Nash has been connected with business houses in City Square, where his geniality won for him a host of warm friends.

He has been connected at various times with all of the gentlemen's furnishings stores and he was a familiar figure.

He gave up active business some months ago and has been in poor health for several weeks.

He leaves a widow and several children.

WANTED IN QUINCY.

Word was received from Fall River this morning that Jeremiah, alias Daniel Carey, who was wanted by the Quincy police, had been arrested in that city.

The police claim that Carey is the man who broke into the blacksmith shop of Fred Landon on Arlington street, May 30, and carried off a lot of tools.

Carey, who said he was unfortunate, had been given employment by Landon whose shop he is accused of robbing. Inspector Goodhue has gone to Fall River after Carey.

HUNTINGTON—THAYER.

A quiet wedding took place at noon on Wednesday, June ninth, at the residence of Mrs. Edmond Gilles Thayer of 60 Willow street, Wollaston, when her daughter, Elizabeth Hamilton Thayer, became the bride of Raymond Edwards Huntington of Newton Centre. The ceremony was performed by Dr. William E. Huntington, president of Boston University, and father of the groom.

HOUGHS NECK OF OTHER DAYS

Some things of Interest of the Past and Present

The season at Houghs Neck is now well under way and from now on it will be a busy place. There are very few vacant cottages and these are all let for the season and will be occupied as soon as schools close.

During the winter and spring season there have been many new cottages built and there are quite a few under way at the present time. Land values have advanced and even at the advanced price good building lots are a scarce article, that is good ones. There is plenty of good land to build on when the tide is out, but at high tide a boat is needed to find it. Instances are told of parties who purchased land at Houghs Neck of some land shark for building purposes. The land looked fine on paper but when the parties went to view it was found to be under water.

Since the amendments to the building laws were passed a better class of buildings have been erected. It is to be regretted that the changes in these laws was not made some months ago. If they had been there would not be as many shacks scattered over the beach to become an eye sore as there are at present.

The Houghs Neck Associates have done much to improve the condition of affairs at the beach showing what united action may accomplish. There are several things to which they can point to as their handy work particularly the many lights that illuminate the streets at night. The officers of the associates are hustlers and it there is anything to be got they can be depended upon to get there with both feet.

Practically all of the amusement places are open and running full blast and there is something doing every night. Dancing seems to be the popular form of amusement and every night, but more especially, Wednesday and Saturday nights, hundreds of young people from all sections of the city may be found in these places.

The view of the Atlantic from the top of Great Hill is a very beautiful one and some of the best cottages at the beach are located on the hill. One of these is that of A. F. Baird the hustling President of the Associates. Mr. Baird makes this his all the year home and thoroughly enjoys the fine view in summer and does not mind the cold winds in winter. Mr. Baird's reputation as an entertainer is widely known and there are very few Sundays or holidays when he does not entertain a house party.

Tom Dwyer, who has been called the Mayor of Houghs Neck can be found at his real estate office attending to the wants of all callers. He has charge of most of the property at the beach and is a very busy man. He however finds time to attend to the meetings of the several social organizations of which he is a member.

If you have anything to sell see Arthur Dunham. It does not matter what it is Arthur will buy it, providing of course that the price is not unreasonable. Arthur built a small store a few years ago and started in the grocery business with John Ross as his best man. The business grew and grew and nearly every year it was found necessary to build an addition. If you could see a picture of Arthur's first building and the one of his present building you would be surprised to see how he has expanded.

Mrs. Hattie Connors who is always first in any philanthropic movement for the benefit of residents of the beach or of any movement to better the conditions at the beach is still numbered among the all the year residents. There was a time when she was the proprietor of a thriving restaurant, but that was years ago. Now she lets her property and enjoys herself in every way possible.

Although many people found fault with J. D. Taber he did more to improve the beach in his day than anyone since. He was a hustler and built many buildings that are now in use. It broke his heart however when the City Council refused to permit him to run his merry-go-round on Sundays and from that time he began to go backwards.

If there is a happy man at the beach it is Jimmie Malone the driver of Houghs Neck's combination fire wagon. When Jim was appointed to the position he moved his family down to the beach so that he could be near them and it is indeed a happy family. Jim attends strictly to his duties as a fireman and in case of an alarm he is sure to be Jimmie on the spot.

There is another resident who has built many fine houses at the beach and that is William John Tilley. Mr. Tilley is an enthusiastic member of the Quincy Yacht club and until his health begun to fail spent many a happy day cruising in his fast power boat.,

Houghs Neck residents want many things but nothing as badly as a school building for its children. This building it wants on the Cavanagh lot and if Capt. Fosdick does not land it there it will not be because he has not worked hard for it. The Captain is all right and is very dramatic when he addresses the City Council.

Jim Sullivan is still on hand to look after fishing parties. He knows where the fish may be found. By the way, Jim says there is nothing in sight yet.

William Norteman can be found as usual at the pavilion, near the Quincy Yacht club house, where he continues to serve shore dinners. How good these dinner are those who were fortunate enough to be present at his opening last month can testify to.

Harry Tirrell takes a world of comfort at his cosy cottage on Manet avenue. When his duties do not call him to the stone building in City Square, Harry can be found enjoying the invigorating sea breezes from his piazza, meditating doubtless on the changes that have taken place in City Hall since he has held down the City Messenger's chair. Mayors may come and Mayors may go but Harry is one of the necessities.

If you want to know all there is to know about gas just ask Henry W. French. Henry was the first president of the associates and he did good work in getting that organization on its feet.

It is somewhat of a wonder how it is that so many common victuallers eke out a living. There are more of these establishments to a square foot at Houghs Neck than in any other similar section in the state.

One of Quincy's councilmen is frequently seen at the dances. Perhaps it is here that he gets his inspiration for some of the orders he introduces.

Half hour car service is now in force at the beach and another month it will be fifteen minute service. What a change from the days of the old Manet street railway. Then it was cars once an hour and the fare was ten cents each way. In winter the cars were put away where the snow would not hurt them and if one wanted to get to the beach it was walk,or part with a dollar for a carriage. Yet they say the Old Colony Street Railway company has done nothing for Quincy.

There is probably no more cosmopolitan yacht club than the Quincy club. Its membership numbers nearly four hundred and its club house is much used by the residents of the beach. Although it is supposed to be for members and their families it is frequented daily by many non members for the door is seldom locked.

If the steamboat is such a grand good thing for Houghs Neck it is a wonder that it did not pay better. The owners claim that the patronage was not sufficient to pay expenses and there is serious doubts if it is run between this port and Boston this season.

Drownings are becoming too frequent in Quincy waters. People who have hoats to let should be more carehave bats to let should be more careful to whom they let their boats and should be reasonably sure that the parties know how to manage them. As it is now the only qualification seems to be, have you got the price?

How many of the present residents remember Capt. Veader? The good old captain has gone but he has left behind him many who can with pleasure recall the hours passed in his camp listening to his yarns.

With the challenge cup races, the club races, hops and ladies' day there will be something doing most every week at the yacht club house this season. It is too bad that the funds necessary to enlarge the club house could not have been raised so that the work could have been done last spring.

More next week. Watch out for me.

SENIORS IN WHITE GOWNS

Make Pretty Picture at Commencement Exercises

Mrs. Willard is heartily congratulated on this the thirteenth annual commencement of the Quincy Mansion school. The graduation exercises were held Wednesday afternoon in Livermore hall which was completely filled with the alumnae, parents and friends of the students and teachers. Shortly after two, lavender and green cords were drawn down the aisles and the processional "The Angel of Peace" was taken up by distant voices accompanied by piano and violin and drew nearer and nearer until the juniors were within the hall. They continued to the front, where they faced the audience as the seniors in white gowns made their entrance. The effect was most artistic. Mrs. Willard said the usual address would not be delivered as the program was a lengthy one—she liked the old fashioned graduation as did Dr. Willard, when each graduate was given a part.

The program was:

Processional—Angel of Peace, Keller
Chorus—Blow, Soft Winds, Vincent.
Prayer—Rev. Edwin N. Hardy, Ph. D.
Salutatory Addresses:
English Miss Wolston
German Miss Moses
French Miss Richards
Piano Solo—Novellette in F major, Schumann Miss Stahl
Yellowstone Park Miss Marion Smith
New England's Forests in Jeopardy Miss Tuckerman
Chorus—Jocund Spring W. Herman
The Rose Ciro Pinsuti
French Play entitled "Facilite."
Miss Atwood Miss Polsey
Miss Goodman Miss Reinherz
Miss Harwood Miss Wales
Song—"Noel d'Irlande" Mrs. Child
The Treaty of Portsmouth Miss McQuesten
Automobiles Miss Engley
Song—"Silently Blending" from "The Marriage of Figaro," Mozart Miss Ernestine Smith
The Evolution of the Kitchen Miss Wade
Current Events Miss Cate
Piano Solo—Scherzo Opus 31. Chopin Miss Zimmer
Valedictory Miss Frankel
Presentation of Diplomas
Presentation of Class Picture Miss Longley
Unveiling Picture Miss Atwood
Song—"What the chimney sang" Bertha Cushing Child
Benediction.

Miss Wolston's voice as she finished her well written salutatory address told even more plainly than her words how her class were pained at leaving Quincy Mansion school. Miss Smith's visit to the Yellowstone National Park, made a most interesting paper.

Miss Tuckerman spoke wholeheartedly on the heedless ways our forests have been devastated and the need of forest federation.

Miss McQuesten was fortunate enough to be in Portsmouth when the Peace treaty was signed and it was in a pleasing letter she told the story.

Miss Engley's paper clearly showed both sides of the automobiles as—use and abuse—and delightful enjoyment of rides through the Berkshires in the early morning hours.

Miss Wade pleasingly described the primative kitchen of the open air—those of the middle ages and down to our modern conveniences.

Current events by Miss Cate gave a brief history of the school year in a clever manner.

A delightful variation in the program were the piano solos by Miss Stahl and Miss Zimmer who proved to be masters of their art and whose touch was firm and true. Their rendering of the difficult selections was splendid.

The French play was admirably done by the participants and showed not only careful training but natural ability.

The songs by Mrs. Child were received with the enthusiasm that always follows her singing, her rich contralto voice and charming personality never failing to please. Her rendering of "Noel d'Irelande" and "What The Chimney Sang" were artistic interpretations and the applause was appreciative and hearty.

After the Valedictory by Miss Frankel in which were appropriate leave-takings of Mrs. Willard, teachers, and classmates the presentation of diplomas to the twenty graduates followed and were given by Mrs. Willard.

Miss Helen Atwood vice president of the Alumnae replied to Miss Longleys presentation of the Class picture which was unveiled by Miss Beatrice Atwood.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Father Field S. S. J. E. of Boston.

The alumni business meeting was held at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning. Election of officers resulted as follows: Miss Louise Kidder president, Miss Helen Atwood vice president, Miss Mazie Alice Simpson secretary and treasurer.

In the graduating class were: Beatrice Atwood Wauregan, Conn., Hawthorne Alexander Cate, Weymouth; Bernice Webber Engley, Attleboro; Margarethe Clara Frankel, Mercer, Penn.; Hazel Mai Goodman, North Dana; Mary Inez Harwood, West Dudley; Gretchen Fiske Longley, Hudson, New York; Helen Barnet McQuesten, Cambridge; Kathleen Elizabeth Moses, Ayer; Alice Franklin Polsey, Meriden, Conn.; Cora Sylvia Reinherz, Brookline; Doris Eleanor Richards, Wilkes-Barre, Penn.; Ernestine Smith, Medina, New York; Marian Clough Smith, Lowell; Selma Louise Stahl, Berlin, New Hampshire; Frederica Tuckerman, Amherst; Helen Marjorie Wade, Wollaston; Susan Hervey Wales, Beverely; Mary Shannon Wolston, Sharon; Florence Zimmer, Buffalo, New York.

Nearly everyone's a kid on circus day.

We venture the opinion that there were a good many cases of "hooking Jack" yesterday.

Now is the time for all good men and true to come to the aid of the sweet girl graduate.

The somewhat abbreviated animal exhibit at the circus yesterday was explained by the fact that Theodore Africanus is still working the magazine rifles overtime.

It has been suggested, if future council meetings are to be as long as the last two, that the members should adjourn for luncheon during the evening.

From the looks of the $8000 order introduced into the council meeting Monday night, it looks as if a good-sized permanent sidewalk plan was under foot.

Another dance hall has been finished at Houghs Neck and judging from the size of the crowds that come up from that place on the midnight cars there will be enough to pay for the fiddlers.

The Fore River company was awarded another torpedo boat destroyer yesterday. There are already two of these crafts on the ways. They are to be engine-burning, turbine boats and will make 30 knots an hour. That's going some and puts them in the class of the "speed boys."

That the street railway company isn't always out to "do" the city as some seem to think, it is only fair to say that the city has been helped considerably in the rebuilding of Farrington street by the railway company in carrying tons of stones in their work cars. It was a big help as the street was so torn up that teaming at places is extremely difficult.

There will be genuine regret among a large circle of acquaintances at the death of George N. Nash, who passed away yesterday afternoon. As a valued employe of the old-time Boston branch grocery store and later as a clerk in many of our city square clothing houses, George Nash will be remembered by hundreds as a competent, painstaking man and a genial, obliging friend.

The frequent arrests of late on the trains for disturbances leaves it to be regretted that somebody with plenty of sinew and muscle could not get afoul of the rowdies and give them a good stiff dose of their own miserable medicine. As a general thing the loud-mouthed bully is the biggest bluff that walks. All he needs is the slightest evidence that somebody means business and he'll wilt so quick that the ordinary passengers will wonder why they tolerated him so long.

Somebody, somewhere, somehow, [illegible] a movement for the ever built th[illegible], and[illegible]sterly side of Hansumed that the[illegible]w[illegible] City Square and [illegible]. At least a beginMr. George P. Fr[illegible]ade if it is only for son [illegible]ought of Water a short dis[illegible]ay. If there is any other street Quincy that is used more and in worse condition it ought to be photographed for the rogue's gallery. How anyone can ride over this piece of street on a wagon and come through without having some part of his anatomy disarranged is beyond human belief and physical possibility.

It looks as if Atlantic would be the big noise again this coming July 4th. The sixth ward is a lively section of the city and the people down there know how to get up a celebration worthy of the name. After having the preparations well underway for several weeks past it would seem as if the council could well afford to pass by the resolution introduced to have the city give a celebration in Merry Mount park the same day. Atlantic has been coming to the city for a good many years; let the city go to Atlantic next July 4.

Every father and mother of school children or prospective school children should attend the public hearing to be given Friday evening by the city council committee on public buildings and grounds. This committee is to listen to arguments for or against school house locations at Houghs Neck, the Montclair-Norfolk Downs and Bigelow Park sections of the city. The agitation in favor of a location at Houghs Neck has been a continuous one for several months. A public hearing has been held on this subject once before and at several private hearings residents of Houghs Neck have been heard. By a curious turn of affairs the Houghs Neck school house lot is back at the beginning of the circuit again. The other two propositions are new ones. In the territory between Norfolk Downs and Montclair there seems to be a demand for a new school in order to accommodate many children in that growing section of the city and also to relieve the Quincy and Wollaston schools of the present overcrowded conditions. The Bigelow Park section of the city lies between South and South Walnut streets, halfway between the Centre and Point districts. A schoolhouse in that section, it is stated by the school board, will relieve the Washington, Coddington and Adams districts and spare many little ones the long walk of nearly two miles to the Washington school or the mile walk to either the Coddington and Adams schools. The matter of properly accommodating the school children of the city is fast becoming a serious one. At the present time the appropriations for the school department take up over one third of the entire yearly expenses of the city. Time was, and it is not so long ago either, when the people of Quincy lived in well-defined groups, like the Center, the Point, South and West Quincy, Wollaston and Atlantic, A school house in each of those districts was sufficient but within the past few years Quincy has been paying the penalty of a rapidly growing city. People have come here so fast that the line of population has begun to stretch from the outlying districts mentioned above towards the Center and new localities, so to speak, have been added. As a result of this increased population the city has, in recent years, been obliged to erect the Massachusetts Fields, Lincoln, John Hancock, Cranch and Gridley Bryant schools and now that the population still continues to increase, it looks as if three new school houses would have to be added shortly. We doubt if such a marked increase in the number of school children can be duplicated in any Massachusetts city. It speaks volumes for the general increase of adult population a few years hence. If the ship yards continued to be a successful business proposition and if other business enterprise establish themselves here as seems likely to be the case now, a tremendous increase in the city's population is due in a very short time. Residential sections north of Boston and even in the Dorchester district are beginning to feel the pinch of crowded conditions and the tide of home-making has got to come this way. Already we can see how the seashore resort of Houghs Neck is becoming a home for permanent residents. A few years ago the Wollaston Park-Norfolk Downs section was rolling, meadow country. Today the place is covered with handsome homes and building is fast going on in the Montclair district, a place deemed inaccesible within a period of five years. So to, with district lying between South Quincy and the Braintree line. Today, some of the prettiest homes in the city are there. The tide is setting in towards Quincy very fast and it behooves us to make the most of the opportunity while we have the chance.

The reception given Miss Amelia L. Bumpus Tuesday night was a fitting tribute to a woman who gave the best years of her life to the public as librarian of the Thomas Crane public library and also was a testimonial to the other side of Miss Bumpus' life which many know nothing about. If the good deeds of Miss Bumpus' private life could be told it would outbalance the value of her public life. It is only those who have had sorrow, sickness, distress and death in their homes that know Miss Bumpus' real worth but those knew it so well that any public testimonial is unnecessary to prove to them that Miss Bumpus is one of God's ministering angels.

The town of Braintree is considering the advisability of constructing a sewerage system and expert opinion obtained by that town has reported the most feasible way of disposing of the sewage is to have the town's pipes connect with the sewer mains of Quincy. No doubt, if such a plan becomes operative, the city of Quincy will get a fair rental return for allowing the use of its mains. Braintree is situated on a higher level than Quincy and has no tide water where it can empty its sewage. The proposed plan to run pipes to the Quincy mains seems as easy a way out of the difficulty as any that have been proposed.

Will President Taft be able to avoid a quarrel with Congress? Speculation has been rife as to whether President Taft would have the courage of his convictions and veto a bill which does not carry out his pledge of revision downward, and from out the chaos of doubt and uncertainty comes the voice of his Secretary of the Treasury; and in the circumstances the significant utterances of the Secretary must be taken as a message from the President himself. "This administration will be conciliatory if you do not ask it to give up a principle or to go back on its promises. Neither of these things will it do. It will stand by its policies" said Mr. MacVeayh. Again, "and you and I must agree—for we cannot escape the conclusion—that it might become at any time the duty of any great party leader to create for his party a new majority and a new control." Referring to the President's disposition to respect the rights and privileges of Congress and to meet everybody half way, Mr. MacVeagh continues, that this is "a disposition which can be interpreted only as a statesmanlike conciliation and which it would be a fatal mistake to consider as a change of actual policy or puspose." Surely these utterances are a message to the people of the United States that President Taft will stand by his guns—for the higher ideals of the people and the progress of the nation as a whole. It can hardly be contended that the present tariff bill is in harmony with the President's promises, nor with the platform on which he was elected. Will the party leaders in Congress whose ideals are known in Congress whose ideals are known to be so diametrically opposed to those of the President, see the error of their ways and in conference make all necessary concessions and modifications, or will they come to open rupture with President Taft?

The Secretary of the Navy is not alone in being appalled at a condition at the Naval Academy which could result in debarring from graduation, because of physical disability, forty-three out of a class of a hundred and eighty midshipmen. And when it is recalled that last year, out of a graduating class of two hundred, eight or more midshipmen were rejected after the physical test, the most obtuse must reach the conclusion that there is something radically defective in the system at the academy. It must be remembered, too, that the members of these classes were subjected to the severest physical examination before being admitted to the academy, where they live, presumably, under ideal physical conditions for four years. Some of the members of the faculty at Annapolis have expressed the opinion, privately, that the course of study is so hard as seriously to overwork the men, and to constitute a grave menace to their physical well-being and the causes, for the most part asigned for the disability, defective eyesight and a pathological condition of the valves of the heart, would seem to bear out this verdict. Whatever the cause, and Secretary Meyer has already instituted a vigorous investigation of the conditions at Annapolis, they should be corrected, and at once.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

As a rule the newspapers of this country have come to the conclusion that it is time for moderation in the alleged celebration of Independence Day, while some of them are going so far as to call for the drastic suppression of all the explosives which have heretofore made the day reverberant. Probably the chief influence in bringing about this state of mind has been the persistence of one or two agencies, notably the Chicago Tribune and the American Medical Association, in publishing year after year the statistics of disaster which has accompanied the Fourth. At first, not much attention was paid to the figures except to jeer at them; but they have undoubtedly in the long run made a powerful impression upon the country. Beyond that, there has been a growing antagonism to the noise-making, largely because the noise-makers were not willing to keep themselves within reasonable bounds. They have developed it into such an abuse that protest has been forced from people who were inclined to look with indifference if not with approval on the traditional small boy and his firecracker. As it came to be realized that under the cover of the small boy the young hoodlum was going from bad to worse, the protest grew. In fact, if the small boy were by some chance deprived of his firecrackers for a few years, the probability is that he would never think of wanting them afterwards.—New Bedford Standard.

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

Ketchel Disposes of O'Brien In Third Round of Bout In Quaker City

Philadelphia, June 10.—Stanley Ketchel, the middleweight champion, defeated Jack O'Brien in the third round of their fight scheduled for six rounds, thus accomplishing a feat that Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion, failed to achieve in six rounds three weeks ago.

The fight was stopped in the second minute of the third round, after O'Brien had been knocked down twice in the second round and once in the third, and was almost unable to raise his hands to defend himself. The fight was a whirlwind affair from start to finish.

Ketchel was cheered wildly by the crowd, which was quick to comment on his showing as compared with Johnson's against O'Brien to the disadvantage of the black champion.

O'Brien felt his defeat sorely, but gave Ketchel full credit for his quick victory.

PRESQUE ISLE'S NEEDY

Relief Committee Formed to Look After Their Welfare

Presque Isle, Me., June 10.—A relief committee to assist in the immediate relief of those rendered homeless or destitute by reason of the fire which, on Monday night, destroyed over fifty homes, besides other buildings, has been organized. As many offers of assistance have been received the committee has arranged to have all remittances for that purpose forwarded to the Presque Isle National bank or to C. F. Daggett, treasurer.

The people of this town are responding liberally to the call for aid. Fifteen state militia tents were received from Augusta and were distributed about town. Those rendered destitute by the loss of all their possessions are being supplied with the necessaries of life.

GOLD MEDALS GIVEN WRIGHT BROTHERS

Aeroplane Inventors Are Highly Honored In Washington

Washington, June 10.—Wilbur and Orville Wright of Dayton, O., the aeroplane inventors, were today presented with the gold medals awarded them by the Aero Club of America, in the East room of the White House. President Taft made a short speech and Representative Parsons of New York briefly reviewed the achievements of the two brothers.

The Wrights arrived here this morning and were entertained at luncheon by the Aero club of Washington. Prominent statesmen, diplomats, scientists, aeronauts and army and navy officers met the Wrights at the luncheon. Miss Catherine Wright accompanied her brothers.

HAS BUT EIGHT PUPILS

Old and Once Powerful Academy Is About to Close

Dudley, Mass., June 10.—A career of ninety years seems about to be closed for Nichols academy here. The trustees have announced that because of the dwindling in the number of pupils the academy will not open next year. The use of the buildings has been tendered to the town.

The trustees place the cause for the decadence of the once powerful preparatory school to the gradual encroachment of public high schools into its territory.

The academy was opened in 1819. It reached the height of its career thirty years ago, when 150 pupils were cared for. Today there are but eight.

REDMOND GIVES WARNING

Will Oppose British Budget If Tax on Irish Whisky Is Raised

London, June 10.—John E. Redmond hoisted the signal of revolt in the course of the debate in the house of commons on the second reading of the finance bill. He notified the government bluntly that the Nationalist party would vote against the budget, on the ground that it was grossly unfair to Ireland and constituted a breach of the act of union.

Mr. Redmond's objection was to the proposed increase in the taxes on whisky, which he characterized as a crushing impost on one of Erin's few remaining industries.

Danderine

Grows Hair and we can PROVE IT!

DANDERINE is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

A lady from St. Paul writes in substance, as follows:

"When I began using Danderine my hair would not come to my shoulders and now it is away below my hips."

Another from Newark, N. J.

"I have been using Danderine regularly. When I first started to use it I had very little hair, now I have the most beautiful long and thick hair anyone would want to have."

NOW at all druggists in three sizes 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle

Danderine enjoys a greater sale than any other one preparation regardless of kind or brand, and it has a much greater sale than all of the other hair preparations in the world combined.

RECITAL BY PUPILS.

While Mr. Buckingham's recital received the very greatest notice from the Ledger, it seems to us that the occasion was worthy of further interest from the public. There are few teachers here or abroad who could produce upon an amateur program of young talent such work as did Mr. Buckingham on that Friday evening at Woodward hall.

Two of the pupils might become professionals if they choose; one is Miss Anna Levenson, who played the Nocturne op. 27 by Chopin and the finale of the Raff Concerto in C, and the other is Miss Alta Kurinski, who played Godard's Adagio from op. 94, all of them concert pieces.

Miss Levenson was thoroughly musical in her interpretation. She played with fire and spirit and was at all times the artist. Her technique was splendid and she was fully equal to both the pieces. A graduate of Leipsic Conservatory who was present, said that Miss Levenson played her pieces as well and better than some professionals.

Miss Kurinski's two pieces were widely different and it was a proof of her talent that her interpretation of the one was as fine as of the other. Her style was finished and charming. She has both strength and fluency.

Miss Beatrice Turner, who played the last number, the Liszt Fantasie on Themes from Ruins of Athens is a High school girl of sixteen, who is not only pursuing her school studies and the study of music, but has fifteen pupils on the pianoforte. Her playing was excellent. The Fantasie is a big, difficult work which calls for flexibility of temperament and a high grade of execution. Miss Turner showed herself entirely adequate to the piece. To some it seemed little short of genius.

There were those among the pupils who through natural nervousness did not do their best.

Miss Flora Cohen played exceedingly well. Her style is good.

Miss Teresa Keating, a pupil of Mr. Buckingham's in vocal study, gave much pleasure by her singing. Miss Keating is young and her voice has not reached its full strength, but it is remarkably sweet and sympathetic, and Mr. Buckingham is to be congratulated on her use of it.

Miss Rosalie LeBlanc played beautifully and it is a pleasure to hear her.

It was noticeable throughout the recital that the younger pupils played their pieces with as much finish and as sure a touch as the older ones displayed in their more pretentious works. This seems to us the most telling fact of the entire concert. When a child can play a lesser piece with a beauty of tone and a perfection of style equal to that shown by an adult, it is time to realize what the teacher has done. It is not only rare, it is an achievement.

Following was the program:

Mendelssohn, Concerto in G minor—Miss Teresa Small.

Schumann, Novelette E. major—Miss Marguerite Gavin.

Chopin, Fantasie Impromptu—Miss Bertha Trepanier.

Aus der ohe, Concert Etude—Miss Louise Wilde.

Wieniawski, Waltz D. flat—Miss Clara McClure.

(a) Godard, Adagio from op. 94, (b) Liszt, Gnomenreigen—Miss Alta Kurinski.

(a) Chopin, Nocturne op. 27 (b) Raff, Concerto in C. (finale)—Miss Anna Levenson.

Bizet, Agnus Dei (violin obligato by Miss Ruth Keating)—Miss Teresa Keating.

Haydn, Sonata E. minor—Miss Llora Cohen.

Staub, Sous Bois—Miss Amy Fallon.

(a) Schuett, Romance, (b) Reinhold, Impromptu C. sharp minor—Miss Marguerite King.

(a) Chopin, Nocturne F sharp, (b) Poldini, March Mignonne—Miss Rosalie LeBlanc.

Old Scotch Air—Miss Helen Cashman.

Liszt, Fantasie on Themes from Ruins of Athens (Beethoven)—Miss Beatrice Turner.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. STRAY CHECKS ARE RECOVERED

Important Discovery by Post-office Inspector at Boston

PRIVATE LETTER BOX THIEF

He Is Caught In the Act and Discloses Place Where Many Checks Drawn on Various Banks Are Found—Believed to Be Member of Organized Gang—Alleged Opium Joint Incidentally Unearthed

Boston, June 10.—By the arrest of a man caught robbing a private mail box and the raiding of an alleged opium joint, the police claim to have unearthed a gang of clever men and women whom they believe to have been concerned in robbing mail boxes in Boston and New York since May 30.

Edward C. Dane, aged 22 years, of Brockton, was caught on Atlantic avenue, as he was taking letters from a private mail box, where letters had been missed for some time and which was being watched by Letter Carrier Hyman, who was instrumental in making the arrest. William Gordon, aged 21, who was with Dane, made his escape, but was later captured.

Postoffice Inspector Jennings, in following up the case went to 30 Yarmouth street at the suggestion of Dane, and found there Gordon, a woman he claimed as his wife, and Miss Edith Nelson. Soon after the police raided the place and claim to have discovered an opium layout. The inmates were placed under arrest on the charge of running an opium joint.

Making an investigation of the premises Jennings discovered a large amount of mail matter which had been opened. Amng the checks found were the following:

Check for $28.87 drawn on the Enterprise National Bank of Charlestown, S. C.; check drawn on the Columbian Bank of New York for $295.20, check drawn on the Rhode Island Trust company for $2.95, check for $248.90 on the Citizens' National Bank of New York.

A check for 98 cents drawn on the National Shawmut bank of Boston had been raised to $370. Other checks were drawn for various amounts upon the Essex County bank of New Jersey, Union National bank of Philadelphia, East Side State bank of Minneapolis, and the Union Savings bank and Trust company of Cincinnati.

TUCKER'S RESIGNATION

It Is Reluctantly Accepted by Trustees of Dartmouth College

Concord, N. H., June 10.—A minute on the retirement of William J. Tucker, D. D., LL. D., from the presidency of Dartmouth college, his successor, Professor Ernest F. Nichols of Columbia university, having been elected Tuesday night, was unanimously adopted by the trustees of the college Wednesday.

They recognize the compelling nature of the reasons which led Tucker to offer his resignation two years ago, and which now lead to the fixing of July 15 next when it shall become operative, and with reluctance they acquiesce in both.

The trustees accompany this action with a record of their convictions regarding the significance of Tucker's presidency and their personal feelings toward him.

—At a joint meeting of the Trade School and Course of Instruction Committees of the Milwaukee School board, it was recommended to report favorably to the Board for the establishment of a Trade school for girls.

FIELD DAY OF QUINCY CLUB

Will hold all Day Meet, Open to Amateurs June 17

The Quincy baseball club is certainly working hard to boom athletics in this city. They have got a league baseball team here and their latest move is to run a monster field day, June 17, at the League grounds, Water street. The fun will be started at 10 o'clock in the morning with a set of track games.

These games have been sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union and are open to all registered athletes. Stanley Barnicoat is receiving the entries, which close June 15, and letters addressed to Harlow's drug store South Quincy will reach him. The entry fee will be 25 cents for the first event and 10 cents extra for each additional event. All athletes must be registered and must send their registration number with their entry. For registration address J. Frank Facey, 36 Prospect street, Cambridge.

There will be four events, all handicap, including 100 yard dash, 600 yard run, mile run and hop-step and jump. Hugh McGrath the well-known instructor and coach at the famous Charlesbank gym will start the games. This will be a big attraction as Hugh is known all over the country as a starter, being the man with the gun at the annual B. A. A. games.

A big string of the best athlets in and about Boston are billed to compete in the games including members of the B. A. A., South Boston A. C, St. Alphonsus A. A., Cambridgeport gym, Brookline gym and several other smaller athletic clubs. In the 100 yard dash will be seen Bill Prout of the B. A. A. the Olympic champ., Ernie Nelson, the former Volkman star, Fred Burns of Exeter, Powell of Milton, Joe Elcock of South Boston A. C. and a score of others.

There will be some hot competition among these boys, as all are old rivals, especially Elcock and Powell, who it will be remembered, ran a special 100 yard dash at the Copeland club games last Labor Day. "Joe" Elcock won the race that day and the dusky flyer from the Blue Hills district will attempt to beat Joe on the 17th.

In the 600 and mile a bunch of cracks will appear including McVicar of the South Boston A. C., the New England champion, Mike Norris, the Brookline gym miler, Joe Ballard of Providence Tech, the wonderful schoolboy runner and holder of the inter-scholastic one mile record, Ike Sheehan of the South Boston A. C., the national half-mile champion, Jimmy Lee, the B. A. A. flyer, Bob Fowler of Cambridgeport the well known Marathon runner, A. Roy Welton of Lawrence who finished fourth in the Olympic Marathon at London last summer, Bernie O'Kane, the Boston College star and a big field of other lesser lights. In the hop, step and jump some of the best will be seen chief among them being Eddie Farrell of the South Boston A. C. With this field of entries there surely ought to be some swell stunts pulled off at this meet and with good weather watch the time made in some of the events.

Gold watches will be given for first place in the 100 yard, 600 yard and mile, and a dress-suit case for first in the hop, step and jump. Valuable prizes will be given for second and third place.

There are several Quincy athletes entered in the games such as "Joe" Elcock, the crack 100 yard man, Leo Elcock, "Tom" Elcock, "Trick" McIntosh and Johnny McLaughlin.

This is the first time that an open meet has been held in this city, that is, under the A. A. U. rules, and the local sport followers ought to be there strong. This will be a good chance to see some of our local athletic stars and the meet should draw a large crowd. Besides the track events there will be many other attractions, including a baseball game between Quincy and Randolph in the Old Colony League.

Children's Sunday will be observed in the Congregational church on Sunday morning June 13th with a special program.

DRAWS A CROWD.

Tents Packed at Both Performances of Robbins' Circus.

Although Frank A. Robbins has a big tent for his circus it was none too large for the crowd that was in attendance Wednesday night. As one man said it was packed to the roof and at the conclusion of the show everybody went home satisfied.

The bunch of clowns kept the audience in constant roars of laughter and there was not a dull minute from start to finish.

Some of the pleasing features were Grand Duke the dancing horse ridden by LaBelle Clarke; the leap to the moon by Daredevil Burr, who rode a bicycle furiously down a steep incline, crossing a space unsupported and leaving the wheel to ascend to a trapese. It was a thrilling feat.

Then there was the athletic work by the Gregory family which in itself was a show.

There were numerous other features which space does not permit mentioning. Everything advertised was carried out and Mr Robbins is sure of a warm welcome when he comes this way again.

EXCELSUS VS. PONTIACS.

The baseball team of the Excelsus class will again cross bats with the Pontiac A. C. of Roxbury on Saturday afternoon at Merrymount park. An interesting game is promised as the home team won before by only one run. The battery for the local team will consist of E. Pletsch, C. Mansfield and H. Chapman. The team is looking forward to a successful season under the efficient coaching of George F. Cole.

☞ By special permission from chief Whitney of the state district police a big vaudeville and moving picture show will be given at Quincy Music hall Saturday night. Nothing better has ever been given in this city in the line of vaudeville and the pictures will all be new.

DOUBLE WEDDING AT QUINCY POINT

English Maidens Who Arrive Thursday Marry Brothers

After a pleasant ocean voyage on the steamship Saxonia which made port Thursday and after successfully passing the various inspectors, two comely English maidens Miss Mary Elizabeth Staples and Miss Bessie Evelyn Brown came to Quincy where friends awaited them and that evening they became the brides of John Gibson, Jr., of Everett and Walter Gibson of Quincy.

The double ceremony was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hayes at 58 Edison street, Dr. Edwin N. Hardy of the Bethany church officiating the double ring service being used.

Both brides came from Ulverston, England, and the trip over was one of pleasant anticipations.

The prospective grooms met their lady loves at the wharf and the greeting was a most affectionate one.

Both brides were becomingly gowned but were unattended.

A wedding supper was served by Mr. and Mrs. Hayes after the ceremony and they were showered with congratulations by the friends who had gathered to witness the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gibson will reside in Everett and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gibson in Quincy.

It was a day filled full of interest for the young ladies for it is not often that an ocean vogage is completed by young ladies who are wedded and settled in their new homes all in one day.

At the conclusion of the supper Rev. and Mrs. Matheson were welcomed in behalf of the church by Alexander Clark.

There were also brief addresses by Alfred Bishop, Andrew Milne, John McLeod, and other prominent members of the church.

During the addresses there were vocal selections by Miss Minnie Miller, Mrs. Robert Grant and James Wythe.

BENEVOLENT SOCIETY.

The Ladies Benevolent Society of the Memorial Congregational church held their final meeting on Wednesday afternoon in the annex of the church, Mrs. D. C. Pope the new president presiding, owing to the illness of Mrs. Harry Read who was the former president. Mrs. Seth Ellis Pope gave a most interesting talk on her trip abroad during the months o. January and February of this year; she spoke particularly on Berlin, and tho' very favorable and interesting were her relatings of the foreign countries she felt confident to say that as good an education may be obtained in our own United States without travelling miles and miles to find it in other lands. Numerous choice photographs were passed among the ladies and a most delightful afternoon spent.

A committee was appointed for a fair to be held in the hall in the fall, consisting of Mrs. Harry Read chairman, assisted by Mrs. D. C. Pope, Mrs. William F. Cummings, Mrs. F. J. Peirce and Mrs. Charles E. Cherrington.

The missionary committee were reelected Mrs. Welcome Young, chairman; assisted by Mrs. Wilson Hammond, Mrs. Sarah C. Butler and Mrs. Rogers.

Fruit punch and fancy crackers were served under the direction of Mrs. Frank Jenkins.

LAWN FETE.

One of the star events of the season will be a lawn fete and band concert to be held on the grounds of the Adams Academy, Saturday, June 19, from two to ten o'clock, under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary to the Young Men's Christian Association.

A program of special interest is being prepared. It includes entertainment, games and specialties. Refreshments will be on sale. A band concert will be given from 8 to 10 A. M. by the Wollaston Military band, Harry W. Sprague, leader. The occasion will be one of popular interest and will draw a large attendance.

MANY SPORTS FOR SATURDAY

Fore River Field Meet, Base Ball and Yachting

Unless rain steps in again and spoils the plans, some good sporting events will be pulled off tomorrow afternoon. The big noise in this city will be the postponed field day and track meet of the Fore River Apprentices, which will be held at Merry Mount park, in the lower field.

James E. Neary, who has charge of the boys, is running the meet and has had his boys out every day this week training for the various events which include 100 yd. dash, broad jump, mile run, high jump, 440-yd. run, shotput, half mile run, and a 7 mile Marathon run. The course of the Marathon will be once around the track at the Park, then to Hancock street, to Washington, to South, to East Howard, to Quincy avenue, to Hancock street, back to the Park and one lap around the track.

There will also be a soccer football game between the inside and outside apprentices, with five men on each side. Some first class officials have been secured and will run off the events in a snappy, lively fashion. J. E. Neary, who is an old Cornell athlete, will start the games and P. K. Griffin, captain of the Y. M. C. A. track team will be the referee. The judges and timers will also be experienced men.

The meet was scheduled for last Saturday, but the rain put it off. However the week has given the boys some more training time and has also given the management an opportunity for more extensive advertising.

A big crowd is expected to turn out to the games in anticipation of seeing some good sport. Several of the boys will later run in the open meet of the Quincy Baseball club to be held Thursday, June 17.

In the baseball line, the Quincy team goes to Weymouth to play the crack Dewey team which with Taunton leads the league. An oldtime, keen rivalry exists between the towns of Quincy and Weymouth and a record breaking crowd is expected. It is said that more than 500 royal rooters will accompany the local team to cheer for a victory. Some ball is sure to be played, that's a cinch.

The Makaria team with Charlie Ganzel will go to Middleboro to play off their game postponed from last Saturday. The local boys ought to have no trouble getting away with the game. The Bigelows go out of town tomorrow, probably to Randolph. They tried to get another game with the Roger Wolcotts, whom they came near beating May 31, but the close call evidently gave the Wolcotts a scare as no terms could be reached.

The Adams A. A. will have as opponents the Beacon A. A. of Boston the game to be played at the Old Colony league grounds, South Quincy. The old rivals the Cranch A. A. and the Bryant A. C. will meet at Ward Four playground and a hot game will surely result. The Atlantics will go to Bridgewater where they will clash with the fast St. Thomas team, one of the best teams in that section.

At the Quincy baseball club field day to be held June 17, the local Old Colony league team will meet the Deweys of Weymouth in the big game of the day. The game will not be in the league series, but this will not detract one whit from the speed of the contest. A second game will be played between St. Mary's and Copeland teams of West Quincy.

The keenest of rivalry exists between these two clubs, so some fast ball will be seen, as both teams have got their eyes on the $100 purse that has been offered. Besides the band concerts, baseball games, track events and other attractions, a big feature will be a greased pig race. Entry fee for this is ten cents and all South Quincy is going to enter. "Dan" Driscoll is training for the event to represent the Iroquois club.

SKELETON MASTS.

Quincy Built Battleships have been Thus Equipped.

The battleships Vermont and New Jersey, built at the Fore River works in Quincy have been equipped with skeleton steel masts at the Charlestown navy yard. The new masts take the place of the military masts with which the ships were equipped.

The new "battlemasts," or the new type conning and "fire control" tower, as they are variously called, are of steel tubing, much higher, much lighter and much more effective in every way than the old solid steel military masts with their armored fighting tops.

Practical tests by gun fire have shown that the new skeleton type can be almost shot to pieces and yet will stand and permit of its use for small gun fire, for observation work and the general control of the gun fire of the ship.

One shot properly landing on the old type of military mast would put it effectually out of commission, and in its fall considerable damage, if not loss of life, might result.

The new skeleton steel towers or battlemasts tower even higher than the old military masts, and consequently are of more value. The old military masts which ran up to a slender spar where available for small gun platforms and general observation towers for but a small section of their hight.

The new towers are surmounted by a perforated steel floor forming a shallow basket top, from which the observance of an enemy's ship or fleet can be carried on, as well as from several similar floors or platforms at various hights within the skeleton structure. A large number of small caliber, rapid-fire guns to repel torpedo boat attack can be carried on the intermediate platforms.

To a large extent the ships will be "fought" from the tops of the new towers, as the observation or "con" work will be done from them, the ranges communicated from there. The old conning towers and conspicuous bridges have been removed.

BODY FOUND OF C. A. MATTSON

Comes ashore this morning at Peddocks Island

The body of Charles Alfred Mattson, who with Albion Hendrickson was drowned in Hull Gut, Sunday May 30, came ashore on the east end of Peddock's island this morning and was found by some soldiers from Fort Andrews. The body is being held for Mattson's relatives in Quincy to come and identify him.

WAS A SOLDIER.

Body Found on Wollaston Beach was Fort Warren Soldier.

The body of a man was found this morning on Wollaston beach and was later identified as Cornelius Crowley of the 9th artillery corps stationed at Fort Warren. It was at first thought the body was that of Alfred Mattson, who with Albion Hendrickson, was drowned in Hull Gut on Sunday May 30. Mrs. Mattson however could not identify it.

Fort Warren officials were then notified and Capt. Clark, accompanied by a surgeon and a soldier came to Hall's undertaking rooms where body had been removed, and after a thorough examination, identified the body as that of Cornelius Crowley. The body was in a very advanced state of decomposition and could not be identified by the features, as they were completely gone.

The Fort Warren men, however, immediately noted the red stripe on the man's trousers and recognized the clothing as that of a soldier. They also examined the underclothing of the man and found on each garment the mark "9,123 M." which was Crowley's number at the fort. This was sufficient to identify him and he was later removed to the Fort where he will be buried.

The accident which caused Crowley's death happened about four weeks ago. Crowley accompanied by two other men, was out in a boat and in some unknown way the boat was capsized and all three men were soon floundering in the waters of Boston harbor, between Hull Gut and Fort Warren. One of the men was saved by a boat which came to the assistance of the unfortunate trio, one was pulled, into the boat but died soon after, and the third was drowned this being Crowley who was found this morning.

Crowley was a comparatively young man and came here a short while ago from Ireland. Not being able to find any work, he enlisted in the army and met his fate in the service.

The two soldiers who were fined $25 for being drunk and disorderly on a train Wednesday night probably realize by this time that peace hath her penalties no less than war.

Considering the large number of licenses granted and petitioned for the sale of fireworks, it looks as if the store keepers expected the Fourth of July to be on time, despite the weather.

The Quincy Mansion school has had its graduation; the graduation of the Woodward Institute will come next week, as will the graduation of the public schools and then will follow the High school. If, by that time we get a little warm weather, we may be tempted to think that summer is about due.

The drivers of the city watering carts haven't been overworked so far this season in contrast to the almost rainless summer of last year. There was so very little rain last summer that the drivers of the watering carts are said to have lost money. It looks as if they might make some of it up this year.

Mayor Hibbard of Boston has appointed a newspaper man as a principal assessor and, by a curious trick of fate, this newspaper man's father is, and has been for 52 years, a clerk in the assessors' department. The son now becomes his father's boss which only goes to show that the boy becomes father to the man once in awhile.

In view of the fact that certain councilmen stated publicly Monday night that the officials of the street railway company were only too willing to give more accommodations when the necessity was shown, it is respectfully submitted that West Quincy is entitled to a late car from Quincy Centre. Every other section of the city gets one. Why the people of West Quincy have waited so long without urging their claim is a matter of some wonder.

There are hundreds of Quincy people who were sorry to hear of the death of Rev. Edward Everett Hale because they had met the man personally and talked with him, which was a privilege and an inspiration. Although a Boston man, Rev. Dr. Hale was too big a man to be claimed by any one place. Known to fame as the author, among other work, of "The Man Without a Country," Rev. Dr. Hale could have claimed all countries and all countries would have been proud to claim him as their own. The world will be poorer for his death.

It wouldn't be a bad idea to hold public hearings on nights other than those when the city council meetings are held. Last Monday night there were nearly a dozen public hearings [illegible] of streets which ever built th[illegible], and sumed that they [illegible] luable time. If [illegible] Mr. George P. Fr[illegible] be arranged for a council meetson [illegible] of Wat[illegible] time could be given a short [illegible] other street [illegible] more and in [illegible] ings ago, the various to be pho[illegible] who appeared to talk at the gallery had to be cautioned to be this, owing to the large number of other hearings and the general business of the council that had to be transacted. With the hearings assigned to a special night the entire evening could be given up to the discussion; everyone would have time enough to be heard in full and all sides would be better satisfied.

FILTHINESS IN PACKING HOUSE

Charged by Inspector Who Resigns In Disgust

HE CITES SPECIFIC INSTANCES

Lard Accidentally Spilled Into Sewer Is Taken Out and Passed Over Protest of Inspector—Condemned Beef Winked at by Government Officials—Unclean Meats and Casings Used In Making Sausages

St. Louis, June 11.—After eighteen months' service as a United States meat inspector in East St. Louis packing houses, J. F. Harms has resigned, he says, writing a letter to Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, demanding an investigation of the meat inspection system at the National stockyards.

Harms asserts that he resigned because he could not tolerate conditions. His letter says:

"The inspection of the National stockyards is costing the people approximately $100,000 a year, and it is not actually worth $1 to them. For when the word is passed from the inspector in charge to the inspectors actually doing the work on the floors that they are getting too many condemned animals and to change the grading, it means that the whole thing is a farce. Mr. Secretary, the packers are getting today from 70 to 80 percent of what ought to be condemned or destroyed.

"I have seen from 1200 to 1500 pounds of lard spill and run into an open sewer in the floor, the sewer outlet quickly blocked, and said lard taken up from the floor and out of the sewer, both of which were unclean and unsanitary. And your doctors passed same to the packers over the protest of the inspector on that floor and it went to the public marked 'U. S. Inspected and Passed.'"

Another excerpt from Harm's letter to Wilson says:

"To illustrate, on April 1, 1909, Drs. Graham and Stingley retained and condemned eleven beef carcasses for emaciation. On April 2, Drs. Clancey and Meadors released six of said carcasses to the packers. The remaining five were tanked and destroyed.

"On the morning of April 2 I was in a cooler and a packing company superintendent came in. When his attention was called to the eleven carcasses he said: 'Yes, they are a bad lot and had I been on the floor last evening I would not have let them come down, but would have sent them to the tank.'

"Men holding good positions with the packers see and know these things and acknowledge they were wrong. I have seen animals in a dying condition draggd into the killing beds and marked 'U. S. Inspected and Passed.'

"Some of the filthiest things imaginable are practiced in the sausage departments, such as using bladders for casings without thoroughly washing or cleaning, the use of filthy tripe in sausage, the use of slimy hog stomachs for casings or containers, the using of meats that have fallen on the floor and are taken up and used without any pretense of cleaning.

"These are all permitted by those in charge. If an inspector calls their attention to any of the wrongs he is told as I was, that the people who eat such stuff are too lazy to prepare anything for themselves and ought to have such stuff.

"I will give another instance that happened elsewhere. The meat inspector in the department held some 6000 or 7000 pounds of meats for being sour, and mind you, four or five other inspectors were called in and they all pronounced the meat sour. Your Dr. Meadors released it to the packer."

Harms cites several specific instances of lax inspection, declaring meat condemned by sub-inspectors was released to the packers by higher officials.

Chief Inspector Clancy, discussing the charges, asserted that such cases were not uncommon, because the duties of chief inspector called for decisions in matters of doubt.

GENERAL STEPHEN DILL LEE.

Honored Today at Vicksburg, Miss.

Not the least interesting of the events scheduled to take place at Vicksburg, Miss., during the visit of the United Confederate Veterans is the dedication today of the statue of Lieutenant General Stephen Dill Lee, C. S. A. To thousands of loyal supporters of the lost cause, this work of the sculptor Henry Hudson Kitson, the model of which was recently finished at his studio at Quincy, will henceforth call to mind vividly the career and personality of one of the best beloved of southern leaders. It is particularly notable as the first memorial of a Confederate officer to be placed in the National Military park.

The heroic spirit in which the Southern men and women took up the tasks of civilized life after the reverses of the severest war in modern history General Lee has himself described in the clear, terse English which is the birthright of the educated Southerner. Everyone who is familiar with the accomplishments of the Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College during the years of his presidency is aware how large a part this hero of Vicksburg has had in the upbuilding of the New South. The degree of LL. D. which was conferred upon him by Tulane University in 1896 was in recognition of his services in promoting both cultural and practical scholarship in the South. He was a valuable member of the Constitutional Convention which provided for a new constitution for the state of Mississippi in 1890. His appointment March 1, 1899, by Secretary of War Alger as a member of the commission that was organizing the National Military Park led fortunately to General Lee's devoting much of his time and thought during the latter part of his life to the means of adequately memorializing the brave men who fought on both sides in the years 1861-5.

How devoted General Lee was alike to the cause that was lost and to the welfare of the reunited nation has nowhere perhaps been better indicated than in a passage which he wrote shortly after the victories of the Spanish War had thrilled old soldiers, North and South. "The writer of this article," he said, "an ex-Confederate soldier—although he was always loyal to the Stars and Stripes from the moment he laid down his arms as a soldier of the Confederacy and took the oath of allegiance to the restored Union; although he conscientiously did his duty as a citizen under that oath of allegiance and althought he was ready at any time to defend the Stars and Stripes had it become necessary, as a duty—still when he heard of the great victory of Admiral Dewey at Manila his heart leaped with joy and pride because he was a citizen of the United States. There was no longer a doubt as to his possessing loyal and true love for his reunited country."

Mr. Kitson, the sculptor who was commissioned to model the statue of General S. D. Lee, had become one of his intimate friends during the first years in which state memorials began to be scattered about the grounds of the National Military Park. The energetic artist from Boston, whose wife was comsioned to do the Massachusetts Monument, the first to be installed in the park, arrived on the scene in Vicksburg to find that prominent officials of his own state had not fully appreciated the importance of the dedication. With assistance from members of the commission he undertook to do a little work of awakening. It is still told gleefully in Vicksburg how when the Governor and other officers of Massachusetts reached the city just before the dedication they were met with preparations for their entertainment such as they had not expected to witness. In the elaborate preparations for the patriotic exercises which did so much to promote good feeling between Mississippi and Massachusetts, between South and North, General Lee, Captain Rigby, Sculptor Kitson, worked hard and enthusiastically; as subsequently on several occasions.

A little later the sculptor was chosen to do a magnificent memorial to the soldiers from Iowa. This includes a remarkable series of bas reliefs which rank amongst the most important sculptural records of the great conflict. He has already been selected to memorialize both sides, for he recently witnessed the dedication at Paducah, Kentucky, of his full length statue of General Lloyd Tilghman, slain at Champion Hills during the Vicksburg campaign. As a tribute to the memory of his deceased friend he has also modeled at his Quincy studio a bust of General Lee as he appeared in the later years of his life. One copy of this work has gone for installation at the Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College, the other to Columbus, Mississippi, which was accounted General Lee's home town after his marriage in 1866 to Regina Harrison, daughter of one of the most distinguished citizens.

Mr. Kitson though a Massachusetts citizen of several years' standing, is an Englishman by birth, a native of Huddersfield where he was born in 1865. He was trained at the Ecole des Beaux Arts, Paris. He holds the gold medal and honor of the Art Association of New York, the Royal Order of Bene Merenti from the King of Roumania, medals from the expositions at Paris, 1889, Chicago, 1893 and Paris, 1900. He is a member of the Society of France and the National Sculpture Society. He has lately executed an important commission for the King of Italy. As a technician Mr. Kitson steers a course between the reserved and somewhat frigid manner that is affected by several leading American sculptors and the exaggerations of attitude and movement that a few artists still regard as necessary to dramatic effect. What he aims at first is the character of the personality depicted. Then he imbues the form with as much virility and animation as can be introduced without losing the naturalness of the general espect.

Mr. Kitson's wife, Theo Alice Ruggles Kitson, is one of the best known of the world's women sculptors. She designed the Massachusetts State Monument to the 29th,, 35th, and 36th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry at Vicksburg, the patriot medallions of Generals Logan, Blair, Howard, A. J. Smith, Grierson and McPherson for the Sherman Monument at Washington, various soldiers' monuments in American cities and the Mother Bickerdyke group for Galesburg, Ill. Mr. Kitson, who looks like a typical Southerner, has become a familiar figure in Vicksburg these past five or six years. He has visited the city twice this spring.

PERRY GETS FIVE YEARS

Killed Woman and Then Drank Acid Which Paralyzed Him

Boston, June 11.—After pleading guilty to manslaughter, Hiram M. Perry was sentenced to not less than five or more than ten years in state prison for having shot and killed Miss Catherine McDougall in a house in the South End.

Perry was indicted for murder in the first degree, but the state accepted his plea on the ground that Perry was temporarily crazed by despondency over business troubles.

Perry, who is paralyzed from his hips down from the effect of poison which he took after the shooting in an attempt to end his life, declared that he had no recollection of having shot the woman, with whom he said he had been on friendly terms.

City Will Settle Mayor's Expenses In Recount Fight With Hearst

New York, June 11.—Mayor McClellan's bill of personal expenses incurred in the mayoralty recount fight forced upon him by W. R. Hearst is to be paid by the city.

Presiding Justice Patterson of the appellate division of the supreme court has decided that the provision in the city charter for the reimbursement of city officials who may be put to expense in defending their title to office applies to the case.

The order of the court calls for the reimbursement to the mayor of $83,000, the major portion of which is for counsel fees.

CONFEDERATE VETS GO WILD WITH JOY

Swoop Down on General Grant to Shake His Hand

Memphis, June 11.—A frenzied demonstration of welcome by the men in gray for the son of the man who defeated them marked the final scene of the annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans.

In the reviewing stand during the parade stood General Frederick D. Grant of the United States army. A cavalry division approached and its commanding office peered steadily at Grant for a moment. Then he turned in his saddle and yelled: "Come on you kids, here's General Grant come to life again in his son."

With an old rebel yell, the division charged on the stand and the men jostled one another for an opportunity to shake the hand of the son of their old time enemy. From that moment, every gray clad veteran who could reach the stand rushed up to do the same.

The army officer's eyes filled with tears and his shoulders shook with emotion as he murmured: "God bless you all, boys."

Battle-torn banners were grouped at his feet and waved over his head in salute by more than one veteran in tears at the thought of what an amicable situation had grown out of a bitter past.

CREW FORESAW DISASTER

Forsook Steamer Just Before She Was Blown to Pieces by Dynamite

Algiers, June 11.—Steamer Ava, from Hamburg to Vladivostok, blew up about ten miles off Pantellaria Island. Fire broke out in the steamer and, as dynamite formed a large part of the cargo, the crew lost no time in making their escape in the boats.

A few minutes later the dynamite exploded with terrific force, tearing the steamer to pieces. All the crew were picked up by steamer East Gate and landed here last night.

Boston Charter Bill Passed

Boston, June 11.—The senate passed to be enacted the bill providing for a new charter for the city of Boston containing many changes in the method of government of the city. The bill now goes to the governor.

WHOLE NATION MOURNS LOSS

Love For Rev. Dr. Hale Not Confined to His Native City

PASSES PEACEFULLY AWAY

Achieved Fame as Divine, Voluminous Author, Journalist and Philanthropist—Life Crowded With Work For Uplifting His Fellow Men—Atmosphere of Printing Office Imbibed Early and Always Retained

Boston, June 11.—The morning light was breaking as the venerable Rev. Edward Everett Hale, D. D., chaplain of the United States senate, Unitarian divine, philanthropist, author, journalist and lover of the peace, breathed his last in his home in this city.

EDWARD EVERETT HALE.

At the bedside was his aged wife, his daughter, Miss Ellen D. Hale, and his son, Philip L. Hale, the artist. Two other sons, Arthur Hale of Washington and Professor Edward Everett Hale, Jr., of Union college, returned home last evening.

On his return from Washington, a few weeks ago, it was reported that Dr. Hale was not in good health, but he soon regained his activities, and until Tuesday attended meetings and received friends. Wednesday night, however, he showed signs of distress, and rapidly weakening, passed peacefully away in the morning.

It seems as if the whole country joins in mourning the loss of Dr. Hale. Messages expressing sorrow and esteem are pouring into the Hale household, one of the first being from President and Mrs. Taft. People of all walks of life, and especially those whose professional careers brought them in contact with Boston's leading citizen, are eager to pay tribute to a life so full of fruitful works, so inspiring to his fellow beings.

As an author his fame rests on the short stories, such as "The Man Without a Country;" as an instigator of the social uplift the work of the two great organizations, the Lend-a-Hand clubs and The King's Daughters, will always be to his renown; as a minister and pastor, his half a century in the pulpit of the South Congregational church and his preaching in many other churches was prolific of wise spiritual inspiration; while as a historian, drawing patriotism from his famous uncle, Captain Nathan Hale, the Revolutionary martyr, his writings and antiquarian works have become authorities.

It was Dr. Hale who, many years before its consummation, predicted a world-wide peace tribunal; it was Dr. Hale who upheld Garrison and Phillips in their anti-slavery work; it was Dr. Hale whose benevolent counsel brought comfort to the sick and wounded soldiers of the battlefields of the Civil war, as a member of the sanitary commission.

Edward Everett Hale was born in Boston April 3, 1822. Dr. Hale's father, born in Westhampton in 1784, was a journalist and one of the editors of the Boston Weekly Messenger, the first weekly periodical devoted to literature and politics to be published in the United States. In March, 1814, he purchased the Boston Daily Advertiser. He was also editor of the Monthly Chronicle and was one of a club that founded the North American Review in 1815 and the Christian Examiner in 1823.

With his father so deeply interested in newspaper and magazine work it was not at all surprising that the son should imbibe something of the atmosphere of the printing office, especially as he early learned to set type in his father's office. Indeed, in after life it was Dr. Hale's proud boast that he had been through every department of a newspaper office, from reporter to editor-in-chief, and in his interviews with representatives of the press he never lost an opportunity of fondly referring to those days.

Hardly at any period of his busy life did he relinquish his association with the press in some form or another, and up to the last issue of the Christian Register he had edited a department called "Good News," which was eagerly read. He also contributed a signed weekly letter to the Lend-a-Hand Record.

Do Children Need Alcohol?

Ask your doctor how often he prescribes an alcoholic stimulant for children. He will probably say, "Very, very rarely." Ask him how often he prescribes a tonic for them. He will probably answer, "Very, very frequently." Then ask him about Ayer's non-alcoholic Sarsaparilla as a tonic for the young.

A BOOM FOR JEROME

District Attorney Tells East Siders How Much He Admires Them

New York, June 11.—The hope that District Attorney Jerome would continue in office for another term was the keynote of the many eulogistic speechs delivered at a "Neighborhood dinner" given to Jerome in an East Side restaurant by business and professional men of that section of the city.

Mr. Jerome declared he owed a debt to the people of the East Side, who had been his inspiration during the seven years spent among them. Wealth and possession, he said, had appealed to him as a young fellow, but now he valued more health and the friends such as he believed he had found in the people of the East Side.

BLACK HAND ARRESTS

Government Officials Said to Have Secured Important Evidence

Cincinnati, June 11.—Having rounded up and arrested the alleged ringleaders of the Ohio division of the Society of the Banana, commonly known as the "Black Hand," Postoffice Inspector Oldfield and his assistants are now busily engaged in going over the evidence and preparing for the preliminary hearing of the prisoners next week.

The government will rely on documentary evidence, said to have been found in the letters and books found in the possession of prisoners, to prove that an elaborately planned organization exists in the central west to extort money from Sicilians.

ALLEGED BRIBERY IN TOWN ELECTION

Constable Charged With Making a Deal With Negroes

South Kingston, R. I., June 11.—Four warrants charging bribery were served on James M. Taurgee, Jr., a police constable, it being claimed by John G. Clark, chairman of the Republican town committee, and by Roland Hazard, who was Republican candidate for president of the town council and who was defeated in the election on June 1, that there was bribery on the part of the Democrats. Four negroes are alleged to have been bribed by Taurgee.

The latter was arraigned before a justice of the peace, pleaded not guilty and was held in $500 bail, which he furnished on each count.

GREAT AMUSEMENT PIER

It Will Extend Half a Mile Into Ocean and Cost $1,200,000

New York, June 11.—Contracts were signed by Frederick Thompson and John L. DeSaulles which call for the immediate construction at Long Beach, Long Island, of the longest and most pretentious amusement pier ever built.

Associated with Thompson and DeSaulles are a number of capitalists who are said to have subscribed $1,200,000 to defray cost of operation.

Engineers who have been called in consultation have reported that it is entirely feasible to build the pier one-half a mile into the ocean.

PASSENGERS ALL LANDED

Spanish Liner In Bad Position on Dangerous Section of Coast

New York, June 11.—Without a mishap, the 526 pasengers of the Spanish liner Antonio Lopez, which went ashore in the fog Wednesday night off Fire Island, reached New York last night.

The Lopez lies in a bad position, broadside to the sea. Several efforts were made to drag her from the sand, but all were unsuccessful. Wreckers lay alongside, prepared to take off the crew if a change in the wind should threaten their safety. If the wind dies down the wreckers hope to save the vessel.

MONEY FLOWED AWAY FREELY

Mrs. Gould Parted With $776,000 In Eight Years

ALLOWED $10,000 A MONTH

She Testifies In Long Delayed Hearing In Suit For Separation From Her Husband, In Which She Asks Allowance of $120,000 a Year—Defendant Charges Extravagance, Intemperance and Misconduct

New York, June 11.—Katherine Clemmons Gould took the stand Thursday in her suit for separation from her husband, Howard Gould. So far as the presence of her husband was concerned she seemed not to know that he was in the same room, although he sat but a few feet from her throughout the day's session.

The long delayed hearing before Justice Dowling, who will make his finding without the aid of a jury, is the culmination of a case which began in May, 1907, and has been marked in its continuance by many sensational accusations of misconduct and attempted subornation of witnesses.

Mrs. Gould alleges that her husband deserted her without just cause on July 16, 1906. Howard Gould answers that his justification was the habits of the plaintiff; that, since he left her, he had made her an allowance of $25,000 a year, but that she is extravagant and intemperate and has been guilty of misconduct. His wife denies the charges and asks for an allowance of $120,000 a year to enable her to live in the manner to which her husband had accustomed her.

"During the years that you were living at Castle Gould," asked Clarence Shearn, Mrs. Gould's counsel, "how large an establishment did you have?"

"From fifteen to eighteen servants in the house, from ten to twelve around the estate and eighteen or twenty gardeners," answered Mrs. Gould.

In answer to questions she rattled off the amounts her husband had allowed her month by month. They averaged about $10,000.

"In the eight years," said Delancy Nicoll, counsel for the husband, "Mr. Gould says that he paid you $776,000."

"I gave him credit for more," was the impertubable comment.

"Did you know that at the time of the separation there were bills for $112,000 outstanding against you?"

"I haven't the slightest idea."

She had the same inevitable answer for a long file of questions as to accounts with dressmakers, jewelers, and department stores, running sometimes as high as $20,000.

Mrs. Gould varied her answers when asked if her expenditures at Castle Gould included wines and liquors.

"Yes," she said, "everything. I bought the apples, onions, potatoes, vinegar, sugar, salt, flour, horse feed and chicken feed."

Testimony to show the manner of life in which the witness was accustomed to live was further adduced by counsel. She told with evident relish of the palatial yacht Niagara, with its crew of eighty men, its saloon with seats for sixty guests and its decorations, which in one room alone cost $52,000.

More recent events she could not recall. She couldn't recall seeing Dustin Farnum, the actor, whose name figures in one affidavit introduced as evidence, in 1908 or 1909, but she was positive she had not seen him within a month.

Details of money in her own name and how she came to own a farm in Virginia were hard to elicit, and the witness began to show signs of some temper. The day was closed, however, with her still on the stand and smiling sweetly, with prospects that she would continue her testimony for the better part of today. She was the only witness during the day.

MOTOR BOATS.

Must be Mufiled Under the New State Law.

People living on the shores of Quincy Bay, especially at the Wollaston and Atlantic ends, will get a good deal of satisfaction if our police will make one or two arrests for violation of the new muffler law which the present General Court passed in April. In recent years one of the great drawbacks in living at the seashore has been the unmitigated nuisance created by power boats being operated by an imitation muffler or perhaps oftener, by no muffler at all. The Italian herring torchers precipitated the cruisade by operating all night with their gattling gun exhaust. The Legislature stepped in and enacted laws which drove them out of our bays. But the local man with his little boat and rapid fire exhauster still remained with us. The present Legislature looked after his case as appears from the following.

Section 1. It shall be unlawful to use a boat propelled, in whole or in part, by gas, gasoline or naptha, unless the same is provided with an underwater exhaust or a muffler, so constructed and used as to muffle in a reasonable manner the noise of the explosion.

Section 2. Any person who operates a boat in violation of the provisions of the preceding section shall be punished by a fine of not more than twenty-five dollars. (Approved April 1, 1909.)

MRS. MARGARET REYNOLDS.

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Reynolds, mother of Dr. John T. Reynolds of West Quincy, was held this morning from her home in Woburn. Mrs. Reynolds who died Wednesday night was 61 years old and was born in Ireland.

A MIGHTY FORTRESS.

The Famous Rock of Gibraltar and Its Armament.

A GUN IN EVERY CREVICE.

The Place Stored With Food and Munitions of War to Stand a Siege of Seven Years—An English View of the Cannon Studded Stronghold.

"An enemy's fleet could be sent to the bottom in ten minutes before getting within five miles of Gibraltar. Not even a torpedo boat could succeed in entering the bay unobserved on the blackest night." That sums up the opinions of the most eminent naval experts as to the impregnability of the world's greatest fortress.

But disappointment awaits the sightseeing visitor. The rock, though barren, is covered with luxuriant vegetation—not a fort prominent, not a gun to be seen even with the most powerful glasses, no discernible ammunition magazines, no strongholds, only a peaceful, prosperous harbor and a sleepy, straggling town.

It is night, and the maneuvers are on. Swift playing searchlights transform the bay into a sheet of shimmering silver upon which are seen majestic British warships and elongated flying shadows, the torpedoes. Guns answer guns out of every conceivable crevice and corner, blending in one deafening uproar, while scores of shells plow the water for miles around.

Sentries are everywhere; infantry parties crouch in the shadows; hundreds of gunners stand ready behind hundreds of guns in these mysterious labyrinths hewn out of the solid rock—"the galleries." The vicious barking of Maxim guns gives contrast to the deep toned baying of these mammoth pieces of ordnance, the mere report of which cracks stone roofs and bursts doors and whole windows. Could any fleet live through the murderous hail of gigantic shells?

Gibraltar never sleeps. By day and night two perfectly equipped signal stations, proudly flaunting Britain's flag of ownership, unceasingly sweep the seas around to a distance of fifteen miles on a clear day, instantly reporting the coming and going of each vessel. Sentries guard all the prominent forts, magazines and gateways; gunners sleep beside their guns; engineers are ever ready beside the powerful searchlights.

Modern "needle" guns, the finest in Europe, are installed on all the most prominent points. They are unreachable from the sea, even as they are undiscernible, owing to the skill with which they are painted and draped to match the surrounding vegetation, while huge screens drop automatically before them as each shell is fired. They have a range of fifteen miles and could drop shells on Ceuta, in Africa, opposite, quite comfortably. One gun weighs 110 tons and is capable of throwing a shell weighing three-quarters of a ton. In that marvel of engineering under great difficulties, the galleries, are concealed guns for every day in the year.

These galleries are divided into three sections, entry to which is guarded, while one is closed even to high officers, containing preserved stores, munitions of war, rainwater (for Gibraltar has no springs) and a complete condensing plant—all calculated to outlast a siege of seven years.

The firing is the most mathematically perfect imaginable. The surrounding waters are mapped out into squares, upon which certain guns are kept ready trained, so that it is almost impossible to miss. During practice targets are towed across the bay, the object being to hit the water a few yards in advance of them.

Although the sentries have now been reduced, a few years ago 158 were needed daily, the most important point being the north front, where English sentries face Spanish sentries. But the mere pressure of an electric button by the officer of the guard would cause a miniature earthquake on the neutral ground.—Cassell's Saturday Journal.

Haggis as the Scotch Make It.

To make haggis take the heart, tongue and small liver of the sheep, one pound of bacon, four ounces of crumbs of bread, the rind of one lemon, two eggs, two anchovies (sardines may be used), a quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper and two teaspoonfuls of salt. Chop the heart, tongue, liver and bacon, mix thoroughly, add the breadcrumbs, the anchovies, chopped fine; the lemon rind, grated; then the pepper and salt. Beat the eggs and pour them over. Pack this into a kettle or mold, cover and boil or steam continuously for two hours. Turn it on a dish and serve very hot.

A Clever Cook.

Mrs. Nurich was in the jewelry store.

"Here are some new souvenir spoons we have just got in," said the clerk, placing a tray for her inspection.

"Oh, ain't those lovely!" she exclaimed. "I must have some of those! Our cook makes such lovely souvenir!"—Argonaut.

Well Posted.

"What was that musty old explorer talking about?" inquired the languid lady.

"Progressive Patagonia."

"And how do you play it?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

It is not the quantity of the meat, but the cheerfulness of the guests, that makes the feast.—Clarendon.

NORTHFIELD SEMINARY.

Plans for Celebrating Thirtieth Anniversary.

Northfield seminary, the first of the institutions founded by D. L. Moody, is preparing to celebrate fittingly the close of the thirtieth year of its existence. From a school of a few girls, held in Mr. Moody's own home in 1879, it has grown under the principalship of Miss Evelyn S. Hall to a Young Ladies' seminary of nearly five hundred students. It is in possession of a beautiful campus, a large equipment of buildings, which has been enlarged by the gift of a Memorial chapel and a Music hall. These buildings given by Mrs. Russell Sage, will be dedicated during commencement week, the program for the week being as follows:

Saturday, June 12 at 7.30 P. M. dedication of Music hall with address by John Hopkins Denison, D. D. 8.00 P. M. sacred concert in Auditorium.

Sunday, June 13 at 10.45 A. M. baccalaureate sermon, by W. W. Weeks, D. D., of Springfield, Mass., in Auditorium. 3.30 P. M. dedication of Russell Sage chapel with address by David James Burrell, D. D. 7.00 P. M. Round Top Meeting.

Monday, June 14 at 9.00 A. M., meeting of Alumnae association. 11.00 A. M., meeting of Students' Aid society. 12.30 P. M. to 4.00 P. M., class reunions. 4.00 P. M. Principal's reception. 8.00 P. M., Estey chorus concert.

Tuesday, June 15, 11.00 A. M., commencement exercises and address by Rev. Glenn Atkins. 1.00 P. M. banquet.

NEW BUSINESS BLOCK.

Will Contain Several Stores and Public Hall.

Work has been commenced demolishing the old Gallagher house on Cottage avenue and the old brick pumping station to make room for a large brick block which is to be erected on the site by Henry L. Kincaide.

The new brick block will have a frontage on the street of 100 feet and a depth of 50 feet and will cost in the vicinity of $18,000.

The first floor will be devoted to store purposes and there will be five or six. On the second floor will be a large public hall with stage, antirooms, etc.

CAR SMASHED.

The train that leaves for Braintree at 6.16 P. M., was backing into the South station track 23, Thursday afternoon and accidentally crashed into the bumper at the end of the track, nearly causing a whole lot of damage. The train stopped just inside the gate, after having demolished the bumper. The steps on the rear car were smashed to pieces, but otherwise there was no damage.

There were six cars in the train and all were empty at the time. E. K. Hannigan and F. H. Bradford were in charge of the train, while L. Tirrell was at the throttle. The cause of the accident is not known.

Polly Of the Circus
IN SATURDAY'S LEDGER.

GIVEN A TRY OUT.

New Cup Defender of Charlie Adams a Fast One.

The new sonder boat built for Ex-Mayor Charles Francis Adams and with which he will probably defend the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup was given a try out Wednesday.

Mr. Adams and Mr. Wilson had her out in the harbor, and after trying her on every point of sailing Mr. Adams seemed quite pleased with the boat. Like all of this year's Boardman sonders this boat is an out and out scow, with very long and flat overhangs. Her design is partly the conception of her owner, fn that it has a very long and fine entrance. In fact she appears to have at least two-thirds of her overhangs at the bow with a short and wide stern.

"Charlie" Adams is considered by all Massachusetts yachtsmen the best Corinthian helmsman in this country, especially so in small boats. He seems to get speed out of any boat he handles, whether fast or not.

Thus this new sonder boat of his is sure to be in the running in the races this summer, and can almost now be selected for one of the three that will comprise the American team in the German-American match.

CITY COMMITTEE.

Republicans Meet and Plan For Fall Campaign.

The first meeting of the Republican City committee since the organization in January, was held Thursday evening. The storm prevented a large attendance, but those present discussed plans for the fall campaign.

It was announced that County Commissioner Richardson of Millis and Dr. Bowker of Brookline were both seeking the support of Quincy for nomination in the fall.

The matter of completing the election of executive, finance and other committees was deferred until a later meeting.

HAS BAD RECORD.

Daniel Carey the man arrested at Fall River Thursday for the Quincy police has a bad record according to the police.

He has been convicted of larceny and assault eleven times in Fall River alone since January 1900.

It is also said that he has a record in Newport, R. I., and other places.

Carey was wanted by the Quincy police for breaking and entering the blacksmith shop of Fred Landen at Atlantic, May 30.

Uncle Must Pay For Old Mishap

Bellefontaine, O., June 11.—Because his uncle lifted him in his arms twenty-two years ago in such a rough manner as to make him a hunchback, a jury yesterday awarded $4250 damages to Harley N. Piper against his wealthy uncle, George H. Clayton. Piper sued for $10,000.

Death of Nashua Financier

Nashua, N. H., June 11.—George F. Andrews, president of the Peterboro railroad, and a financier and business man of this city, died at the age of 71. Andrews held the former office but two weeks, having been elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Charles H. Burns.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Being a genius is hard on the constitution, distracting to the family and a perfectly hopeless financial proposition.

The great trouble is that the majority of people are not content to let the past stay past.

Don't be afraid of what the other fellow may think. Nineteen out of twenty men don't think straight anyway.

Having a sense of humor is one way of heading off the doctor.

The man with horse sense doesn't get stampeded by the pony ballet.

There is plenty of luck lying all along your way, but the trouble about it is you can't tell whether it is good or bad until afterward.

The young man who has never been taught to work is pretty apt to be on the road to destruction without stop-over privileges.

The best part of wisdom is in trying to keep in tune with progressive things irrespective of what has gone before.

We judge a tree by the fruit of its graft and are prone to measure man by the same standard.

Cast your bread upon the water and there are nine chances out of ten that the suckers will get it.

Little Bruises.

Oh, lackaday, that trifles small
Should cause us so much worry,
That little ripples on the stream
Should put us in a flurry.
The missing of a railroad train,
A slight delay in payment
Of bills that we have owed awhile
For shelter, food and raiment,

The scratching of a vandal hen
Where garden seeds are planted,
The antics of a slot machine,
Requests that are not granted,
A neighbor's children sassing back,
A mail man's stupid blunder,
Are not the things to fume about
And struggle daily under.

The troubles that annoy today
And cause so much commotion
Will in a year from now appear
As specks upon the ocean.
All wool they may appear today,
But then they will be cotton
Or just a mass of tattered rags
And most of them forgotten.

The more attention they receive
The more they will keep growing
Until it seems your cup is full
And almost overflowing.
But if you bid them chase themselves,
Go on and do not heed them.
Perhaps at once, to your surprise,
You'll find you do not need them.

Beware!

Take time by the forelock lest he take you unawares.

Got Him.

"Are you fond of nonsense, sir?"
"I? Not at all."
"I was sure of it."
"What?"
"Certainly, and I have here a collection of the latest things in solid reading especially adapted for thoroughgoing men like you. I shall be delighted to take your subscription."

Keep at It.

If you miss the first time trying,
Keep a-coming.
Don't be moping round and sighing.
Go a-humming.
Bare your arms and strike out lithely.
Show you're willing.
Time will come when you will blithely
Make a killing.

Desire to Be Prepared.

"I have an extravagant wife."
What for?"
"To spend my money, of course."
"Where did you get your money?"
"Haven't got any yet."

Getting Passe.

Twinkle, twinkle, little star,
Just on the horizon's bar.
If you don't a new stunt get,
Little star will soon have set.

Too Dear.

"Why don't you marry?"
"Can't afford it."
"But marry a rich girl."
"She can't afford it."

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION.

Richard G. Moulton has said: "University Extension in the near future will do for Education what the Reformation and the Revolution have done for Religion and Politics. The widening extension of the spirit and influence of the University is unquestionably one of the most significant tendencies of the present time. The great educational fact today is that only one person out of one hundred and twenty-one men and women we meet gets a college education. The University Extension movement represents the one hundred and twenty. To them it attempts to bring, as far as possible, the humanizing influences and teaching of the University.

In the United States the pioneer in this system of adult education by means of University Extension was the American Society for Extension of University Teaching. The friends of this society point with pride to the fact that it has been the inspiration for more movements for adult education than any other body in the United States. Founded in Philadelphia in 1890, by Dr. William Pepper, the late provost of the University of Pennsylvania, well described as Philadelphia's "second Benjamin Franklin," and maintained partly by endowment and partly by subscriptions from public-spirited persons of wealth, the American society has had a career of uninterrupted success for nineteen years, and its recent reports furnish abundant testimony that it is an institution whose value is widely recognized. The society's lecturers are carrying an education stimulus to hundreds of men and women in all walks of life on every evening of the week from September to April. During the past year, over 165,000 persons were reached through its educational courses, delivered at some 100 "centres" in large and small communities throughout the eastern states. The membership, attendance, number of centres and courses are now at the highest levels in its history. Even more significant of the increasing interest in the society's work is the growth in membership from less than 200 in 1902 to 900 to-day.

Of the influence of the American Society's work upon Philadelphia, the Philadelphia Press says. "The extraordinary and remarkable results secured by the American Society in this city makes that organization the most important supplementary work in Philadelphia. Has the time not arrived for the introduction of such a movement in Quincy? If "Centres flourish in towns of less than 1500 as well as in larger places, there is no reason why this system of instruction should not be established here. The whole community will not suddenly awaken to the idea; it must first be seen and worked for by a few. Some of the Centres of the Society have had a continuous existence since 1891 and have exerted an inestimable influence for good upon their respective communities. If a few of our public-spirited people could be found to do the preliminary work, there is little doubt but that their efforts would be well rewarded."

GIVES TROUBLE AS A WITNESS

Mrs. Gould Brings Forth a Rebuke From the Court

MEMORY UNCERTAIN AT TIMES

Spectators In Courtroom Gasp and Stare as Enormous Bills For Jewels and Finery Are Produced—Plaintiff Said to Have Run Up Over $70,000 Worth of Bills In 1907—Sometimes "Without Provisions"

New York, June 12.—What appeared to be the hazy memory of Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould on the second day of her testimony under cross-examination caused a rebuke by Supreme Court Justice Dowling, who is hearing her suit for separation against her husband, Howard Gould. Another interesting phase of the case was a tilt between Lawyers Delancy Nicoll for the defendant and Clarence J. Shearn for Mrs. Gould.

"Please try to be polite," Shearn cautioned Nicoll, when the latter asked the witness a question sharply.

"Oh, I'm sick of trying to be polite. I've been polite all day and Mrs. Gould won't answer a straight question," retorted Nicoll.

"Yes, the witness has given Mr. Nicoll much unnecessary trouble," Justice Dowling interrupted.

As uncertain as the witness' memory was at times, she did not fail to take advantage of that very fact twice when occasion offered. Once she apologized for her inability to tell whether certain restaurant checks were hers or not; and again, when she could not tell whether a diamond pendant valued at $13,300 was bought by her or by her husband "for another." Nicoll protested vigorously against this insinuation and Justice Dowling ordered it stricken from the record.

The amounts figuring in assorted jewelers', tailors', costumers and bootmakers' bills continued to make the spectators admitted to the courtroom gasp and stare. The articles purchased included the pearl rope which the witness wore in court, listed at $27,000; the disputed pendant at $13,300, a diamond chain at $22,000, a diamond diadem at $24,000, and a sapphire ring at $6000. Such little things as $500 worth of silk stockings at a time or $1528 for shoes were trivial by comparison. Fine tailor made suits were ordered at a cost of $5807.

"What was the total amount of the articles you purchased on Mr. Gould's credit in 1907?" asked Nicoll.

"I couldn't tell you," was the reply. "I have never seen all of the bills."

Mrs. Gould identified a letter which passed between counsel for both sides. It was dated Nov. 23, 1907, and was addressed to Shearn. It said that Mrs. Gould had run up $70,773.51 worth of bills in that year. Notice was given that responsibility for these bills would not be continued by the defendant. The alimony allowance of $25,000 was to be paid to Mrs. Gould in monthly installments.

"I have not the slightest idea of the correctness of these bills," declared Mrs. Gould, after the letter had been read.

There were bills, bills, bills and then more bills; bills for finery and for necessity, jewels, lingerie and gifts for servants. Some of them Mrs. Gould could identify as hers; others she couldn't.

In striking contrast with this recital of luxurious articles was Mrs. Gould's testimony that at times at Castle Gould she was actually without provisions.

"You told Mr. Shearn that while you were at Castle Gould it was impossible for you to have any provisions sent to the house. What period do you speak of?" she was asked.

"From the time when Mr. Gould left on July 16 up to August of the next year when I left for the last time—when I was really forced to leave," was the reply.

"Are you prepared to swear that within this period you were not supplied with all the necessaries?"

"I am prepared to swear. I was refused every day," was the answer.

AGED WIDOW MURDERED

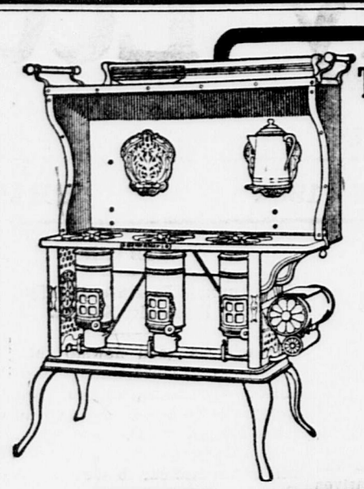

Tramp Suspected of Committing Awful Crime In Nutmeg State

Trumbull, Conn., June 12.—Mrs. Sarah Dibbble, a widow, 81 years old, was brutally murdered while alone in her home on the Trumbull road, about two miles north of here. An autopsy showed that her nose was broken, her face badly bruised and death was directly caused by strangulation, the throat showing the marks of finger prints where she had been choked. The body was nearly nude when found.

Mrs. Dibble lived with her son, who was at work when the crime was committed. The authorities are looking for a tramp seen in the neighborhood.

STATE HOUSE LETTER.

Boston, June 9, 1909

Greater today than the interest in the merger bill is that in the milk producers bill. It was expected that the resistless steam roller would smooth out all opposition in the Senate to the railroad holding bill, so called, but which is coming to be generally recognized as nothing but a genuine merger bill, but it was not so well understood that the fates had dug a deep pit for the bill whose object is to save an innocent man from being put on official record as a criminal, with liability to fine and imprisonment. In the House, the milk producers' bill had finally gone through the enacting stage without a word of opposition. The latest vote in the Senate on it was a roll call of 16 yeas to 12 nays and four pairs. That put a majority of all the Senate (and there are only 39 members now that former Senator Stevens of Middlesex has been made state treasurer), and it seemed as if the case were settled. But yesterday, when the enactment was expected in the Senate, there was a loud chorus of "no," to the question, and the subsequent roll call of 10 yeas to 23 nays and two pairs seemed to settle the case for the farmers finally for this session.

At the meeting of the council this afternoon Gov. Draper nominated Representative Kemp of Springfield to be highway commissioner in place of the late John H. Manning of Pittsfield. But it is not likely that the appointment will become operative till Mr. Kemp finishes his work as chairman of the House ways and means committee.

Both branches are in concurrence upon the Boston charter bill and once more the might of the steam roller is evident as a smoother out of roughnesses in legislative progress. And the reputation of Boston Democrats is so chronically bad that the Republicans are perfectly safe in putting the bill through without fear of a revolt from the rank and file, or a display of independent voting.

There is in progress a bill which exempts from taxation personal property owned by residents of this state, but situated in another state and taxed there as either merchandise, machinery or animals. This is going through without opposition, though formerly the proposition was bitterly and successfully resisted. But some two years ago the United States supreme court gave a decision that double taxation of such property as Massachusetts had always taxed it, was unconstitutional. Since then Tax Commissioner Trefry has instructed the assessors not to tax such property. Here was a curious instance of judge-made law, and the legislation this year, without opposition, is merely making formally legal what the commissioner has been doing on his own hook.

Out of a regard for the feelings of the friends of the deceased, as the supporters of the holding bill put it, they forebore to press their advantage Tuesday afternoon in the Senate and send the bill at once to the House, as Senator Cowee said he was willing to have them do, after having shown him the courtesy of giving him opportunity to make his little speech against the bill. At the same time, in the Senate there is evident the same indisposition to debate when it is realized that talk is not necessary. As to reasons why the bill should be passed, there was nothing at all adequate given in the debate. What was said was brief and perfunctory, as it would not do to have the bill go through without some show or reason why. But no talk was necessary and they did not care to waste it.

But when the House gets the bill there will be a much stronger effort. Representative Washburn of Worcester will make a good speech for his minority bill, which postpones action for over a year. In the meantime, the Anti Merger League is sending many circulars to the House members which must produce effect, showing how the promises of President Mellen have proved but thin air, how the freight rates on the New Haven are much higher than they are on the Boston and Maine, how the New Haven has paid in dividends in one year millions of dollars more than it had as surplus for dividends, and otherwise trying to make it clear that the New Haven road is untrustworthy not in the best financial condition and that it would be much better for New England if the present arrangement were continued. Many places are named where the New Haven is competitive with the Boston and Maine and it is insisted that the two systems are sufficiently competitive to require separate operation. For all that, the steam roller is expected to smooth out the House as it has the Senate.

In subordination in the militia promises to make trouble. Representative Holt of Methuen, who is a member of the militia, has carried the House with him by a good majority against a bill giving more offices and salaries to the adjutant general's department. He asserted in debate that the militia is top heavy, that there is one commissioned officer to every 11 men when the ranks are full, and one for every five or six under ordinary conditions, that officers are appointed for wealth and social pull, not for merit, and that there is a deplorable condition in the department. Mr. McCarthy of Marlboro defended the bill as all right and said the truth was as stated by Mr. Bazeley of Uxbridge who said that all the trouble grew out of the fact that the legislature would not let an officer sell a book for his personal profit to the members of the coast artillery He charged that the House had been much lobbied by the opponents of the bill. Dr. Oliver of Athol and others rushed to defend Adjutant General William H. Brigham, saying he was the best for a long time. But the insurrectors carried the House by 73 yeas to 90 nays on ordering the bill to a third reading. Now it remains to be seen how Gen. Brigham will get back at the rebels when he can hit them, as they attacked him when they were safe from damage.

No debate occurred in the House on the automobile bill, making numerous changes in the law, although it had been expected that there would be much opposition. It brings the new class of offenders more vigorously under control.

By the objection of a single member, who would not permit reconsideration of an enacted bill in order to remove a doubtful provision, it looks as if the bill for the registration of osteopaths was killed for this year.

Mrs. C. L. Lewis, living at 344 Granite Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I gladly add my endorsement to the hundreds of others in Quincy, who have been benefited by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. I suffered for a long time from kidney trouble, the principal symptom being backache. Being advised by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Occasionally we meet a man whose estimate of himself is so high that he ought to be made to pay taxes on it.

It is hard to believe that anybody would do wrong and not lie about it afterward.

Having to pay for it afterward is what makes saints of sinners—not.

How any woman can bear to have such a careless husband is what the other woman can't understand.

A cheerful liar is often an enduring joy to the erring and downcast.

The world solves its own problems, but very rarely to the satisfaction of those inhabitants of the world who constitute the problem.

Being able to take care of yourself should be a guarantee that you are able to take care of some one else.

Some men are unique in that they make a specialty of believing their own lies.

We would not so much mind not being able to tell what some people will do if we could only be sure what they won't.

Happy Medium.

Are the moments wasted
In a hammock swinging,
Listening to the birdies
Practicing their singing,
Or on the veranda
In a rocker sitting,
Watching summer shadows
O'er the landscape flitting?

Are we truly sinful,
Useful labors slighting,
If we pack our tackle
When the fish are biting,
If we go a-Maying,
Nature's features rubbing,
When the neighbors tell us
We were better grubbing?

Every blessed minute
Working like a beaver
Hands our nervous system
Down to the receiver.
It may bring us treasure,
Lengthen out our purses,
But it gets us ready
For a crew of nurses.

There's an average proper.
One extreme is folly.
Too much of the other
Brings us melancholy.
With judicious mixing
No returns are bitter
Half and half is better,
Neither slave nor quitter.

A Failure.

"She was so disappointed she felt like crying."

"What was the matter?"

"She overheard some one say her hat was pretty."

Contaminated.

"How are your hens doing this spring?"

"I am afraid they have gone into politics."

"How does it manifest itself?"

"Getting so they make enough noise with each egg they lay for a dozen."

Guessed at It.

"Mr. Buyer, won't you please bark for us?"

"What's that, child?"

"Isn't that the way you do it?"

"Do what?"

"Uncle Jake says you talk like a sausage."

Dr. MacNicholl on Depravity of Gotham School Children

HAS MADE A CAREFUL STUDY

Startling Conclusions Arrived at After Examination of Forty Thousand Children of All Ages—Alleged Conditions Equal to Those of Ancient Sodom—Enormous Consumption of Alcoholic Beverages by Youngsters

New York, June 12.—In a statement issued last night Dr. T. A. MacNicholl of this city reiterates over his signature all his recent estimates of the depravity of school children in New York.

As originally reported, his paper, which was read at Atlantic City before the American Medical society for the study of alcohol and other narcotics, created much indignation and brought forth many denials here.

But Dr. MacNicholl says his conclusions were drawn after studying 40,000 children of all ages. He did not wish them to have publicity, he adds, but since they have attained it he feels that they should be set forth as he would have them.

His studies, he says, "reveals conditions existing in some sections of our great American metropolis that parallel the historic depravity of ancient Sodom; conditions with a growing disregard for legal restraint that are capable of an extension that would endanger the integrity of our municipal life."

The statement says further of the children:

"Fifty-eight percent drink some form of alcoholic beverage occasionally or at regular intervals; 37 percent drink one glass of beer a week to five glasses of beer a day; 21 percent drink wine or spirits.

"In some groups," he concludes, "the percentage of occasional and regular drinkers runs as high as 79; of those attending schools 46 percent are backward in their studies."

FIGHT OF LIQUOR MEN

Reaches Point Where Maine High Sheriffs Are Summoned to Court

Augusta, Me., June 12.—Nine Maine sheriffs were in conference here regarding the bill in equity brought by Boston wholesale liquor dealers against each one of the Maine sheriffs, asking that they be restrained from seizing liquor in transit into Maine under the Wilson pure food and drug act.

The conference was called for the purpose of meeting with Attorney General Philbrook and securing his assistance in outlining a defense to be put forward by the sixteen Maine high sheriffs who have been summoned to answer to the petition of the complainant before the United States circuit court.

Owing to some misunderstanding Philbrook was not present and it was decided to bring the matter before the governor and counsel.

LYNN'S "OLD TUNNEL"

Dedication of Tablet on Site of the Old Meeting House

Lynn, Mass., June 12.—The "Old Tunnel," as the Second Meeting House of Lynn was generally known, was commemorated today by the dedication of a tablet marking the site of the ancient structure. The tablet was placed on the First Congregational church, near the spot where the "Old Tunnel" stood from 1682 to 1827.

In the "Old Tunnel" took place the separation of town and parish in 1722, an unprecedented step towards civic freedom and religious liberty and a forerunner of the separation of church and state. In the same building on Dec. 16, 1773, resolutions were passed asserting the colonists' "rights of freedom." Until 1806 all the town meetings and other civic occasions were held in the structure.

Cunard Liner Slavonia In Bad Position Off the Azores

New York, June 12.—A report reached here that the Cunard line steamship Slavonia was stranded southwest of Flores Island and that her passengers have been taken off by other vessels.

The Slavonia left New York June 3 for Naples. Of her passengers the 110 in the cabins were taken on board the Princess Irene of the North German Lloyd line and the Batavia of the Hamburg-American line, both bound for Naples.

The news received here was to the effect that it was feared the Slavonia would prove a total wreck. Flores Island is one of the Azores group.

American Capital In Guatemala

Guatemala City, June 12.—Congressman Sulzer of New York, who has been for some days in Guatemala, has left here for home. It is understood that he has secured extensive mining concessions from the president of the republic. The investment of American capital in the republic is expected.

A HUNDRED YEARS OLD

Many Noted Men Graduated From Miami University In Ohio

Oxford, O., June 12.—Miami university, Ohio's oldest institution of higher learning, celebrates its centennial this week, beginning tonight. For six days the town and college will be given over to the enthusiasm of the alumni and undergraduates, joined in celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the college that has turned out many men distinguished in the history of the state and the nation.

The centennial will be held as a feature of commencement week. Among the visitors to Oxford will be representatives of Miami's sister universities and colleges, many of whom will deliver addresses. The centennial address, the chief oratorical feature of the week, will be delivered by Dr. Henry M. McCracken, chancellor of New York university, who was graduated from Miami in 1857.

In 1892 Miami had the honor of having two of her sons named as candidates for president and vice president on the Republican ticket. They were Benjamin Harrison and Whitelaw Reid. The famous war governors of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois—William Dennison, Oliver P. Morton and Richard Yates—were Miami boys.

BROKER COTTON ARRESTED

Indicted by Grand Jury on Charge of Larceny of $11,500

Fall River, Mass., June 12.—James M. Cotton, a stock broker of this city, who suspended business last July, following an assignment for the benefit of creditors, was arrested upon a bench warrant following an indictment returned by the Bristol county grand jury at New Bedford.

Cotton is charged with the larceny of $11,500 from John W. Coughlin of this city. Coughlin has a civil suit pending against Cotton for the recovery of money alleged to have been lost as a customer of the broker, and several other persons have also preferred civil suits against him.

Cotton furnished cash bail in $5000 last night, and will appear in New Bedford on Monday to answer to the charges.

BANK SECURITIES ARE IMPAIRED

Rhode Island Savings Institution to Have a Receiver

Providence, June 12.—A temporary receiver will be applied for by Bank Commissioner Goodwin today to take charge of the affairs of the Kingstown Savings bank of Kingstown, which was closed by his order. Goodwin expresses the opinion that the receivership will straighten out the affairs of the institution so that every depositor will be paid in full.

According to Goodwin a marked depreciation in the value of its securities as a result of the recent failure of the banking firm of E. H. Gay & Co. of Boston, led to the closing of the Kingstown bank.

The bank has been in successful operation for fifty-four years.

OPERATIONS DELAYED

Cape Cod Canal Engineers Overlooked an Important Formality

Plymouth, Mass., June 12.—A formality which will delay the actual starting operations in the construction of the breakwater at the outer end of the proposed Cape Cod canal was discovered just as a lighter was about to sink the first schooner load of granite from Maine in the bottom of Sandwich harbor.

The discovery was that necessary permission of the war department had not been obtained for the harbor operations.

Four schooners loaded to their gunwales with stone have arrived here from Maine. The breakwater is to be one-half a mile long, and it is estimated 2,000,000 tons of granite will be required to complete it.

DEWEY WANTS NEW TRIAL

Asks That Recent Verdict Against Him Be Set Aside

Boston, June 12.—Former Judge Henry S. Dewey has filed a motion for a new trial in the superior court in his case against certain members of the Good Government association, in which he asked damages for $76,450,000 for alleged libel during his campaign for mayor of this city in 1905.

A jury decided against Dewey last Wednesday and Dewey asks that the verdict be set aside on the grounds that it was against the evidence, etc.

A hearing on the motion will be given later.

Cartridge Factory Blown Up

Lisbon, June 12.—A cartridge factory at El Grozze was destroyed by an explosion. Five persons were killed and seventeen dangerously wounded. The disaster is attributed to the carelessness of an employe of the factory.

Trade Is Increasing

New York, June 12.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says that records of bank clearings and railroad earnings continue to speak loudly of an increase in trade and an augmented business confidence.

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The daring of Mr. Keith in presenting Vesta Tilley, the three thousand dollar a week star, and the vaudeville bills in keeping, for a summer attraction, was fully justified after all for there has not been in Boston during the entire winter season an attraction that equals this brilliant young woman, who has been drawing record breaking houses all week. All Boston, and New England for that matter, are alerady whistling her songs and talking about her startling costumes, but there will be only one more week to see her, and if you haven't already done so, don't miss the opportunity this week, for there is only one Vesta Tilley. Miss Tilley has a striking personality and a winning way about her, and the most fascinating figure in men's clothes. She has one of those strong personalities that is able to sway a tremendous audience, please them and send them away talking about her. Yet it would be almost impossible to tell just what there is about her that impresses you most. For the past seven days she has certainly created more talk than there has been in Boston in many years over one artist, and the advance sale for the second week has broken all records for this time of year.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Those who go to the Castle Square next week will see a college play that is one of the best of its kind. It is called "At Yale," and it does for that Connecticut college what "Brown of Harvard" does for our own university across the Charles. Its successive scenes give a lively and rollicking picture of life on the Yale campus and in the Yale student dormitories, and it contains not a little athletic rivalry and excitement. Mingled therewith is a romantic plot in which the hero's character is traduced by his enemies, and from his entanglement he emerges unseathed. Of course there are beautiful girls—what college play would be complete without them, and they give life and color to the most inspiring scene of all in the play—the great boat race between Yale and Cornell in which Yale comes off victorious, as she usually does in athletics. Songs will be sung during the progress of "At Yale" that will give it additional interest, and the cast will include the entire John Craig Stock Company. The run of "At Yale" will be limited to a single week.

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

Lovers of stock production will sincerely welcome the announcement that the Lindsay Morison Stock Company, composed of big Boston favorites will open the summer season at the Orpheum Theatre next Monday matinee with Geo. W. Broadhurst's screaming farce, "What Happened to James." The history of stock productions in Boston during the last fourteen years would be incomplete without a chapter and a very important chapter on what Mr. Morrison has done in this particular line of entertainment. His wonderful success with the Empire Stock company three years ago, gave that company a reputation which extended far beyond the limits of Boston and his wonderful organization last season known as the Boston Theatre Stock Company was pronounced by critics, the greatest in the country. During the summer he will have with him many of the old favorites who have been with him in the past and all of these will take part in "What Happened to Jones." The leading male role will be taken by Howell Hansel who is too well known as Boston's own favorite to need any comment. In the matter of a leading lady, Mr. Morison has been most fortunate in securing Edna Bruns, the charming niece of Francis Wilson and his leading woman during the past two seasons.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Monday there comes to the Majestic Theatre for a summer run, a new comic opera by Reginald DeKoven and Edward Paulton, "The Yankee Mandarin." There will be Wednesday and Saturday matinees. "The Yankee Mandarin" is not a musical comedy like Mr. De Koven's latest work, "The Beauty Spot," but approaches more nearly the idea of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas in its form and purpose. Its scenes are laid in Northern China, and the greater majority of its characters are Chinese. During the action of the opera Mr. DeKoven has introduced no less than twenty-two musical numbers, some of which are destined to popular favor. Among the most popular of these are, "Gypsy of Poughkeepsie," "The Willow Pattern Plate," "Something Tells Me," "If I Had a Chance Like That," "Song of the Siren," "Dot and Carrie," "Don't Run Away From us," "The Pocket Telephone," "The Old Clock," and "The Mighty Hunter." The locale of the opera gives opportunity for gorgeous costuming and elaborate scenery, of which the fullest advantage has been taken. The piece was staged by Joseph Herbert. A notable cast has been engaged, prominent in which are Ada Lewis, Frank Belcher, William Danforth, George Lydecker, Irene Dillon, Violet Seaton and a beauty chorus of sixty.

TREMONT THEATRE

On June 14 the regular scale of summer prices will be inaugurated at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, where B. C. Whitney's laughter and song play, "A Broken Idol" with Otis Harlan, is proving the biggest kind of a big success. The prices under the new scale will be the same as in former summer seasons giving 200 seats on the first floor at 50 cents and 200 more in the first balcony at the same price. "A Broken Idol" has proven to be "just what the doctor ordered" for those who are obliged to be in the city during the summer months. There is nothing like laughter to make one forget the sultry days of late Spring and early Summer when the heat is doubly uncomfortable because it is unusual. And if laughter will banish thoughts of hot weather then surely the audiences at the Tremont have nothing to complain of. But the best thing of all about "A Broken Idol" is its absolute novelty. The biggest novelty of all is the balloon which carries Alice Yorke far out over the audience, floating gracefully, without apparent means of support. This is positivley the most unique stage feature ever devised and should not be missed. The are many others, of but slightly lesser originality. The usual matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday during the engagement.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

GREAT BRIDGE OPENED

New Structure Connects Little Old Manhattan With Queensboro

New York, June 12.—Although the splendid new and big Queensboro bridge, which was formally opened today, connects only the boroughs of Queens and Manhattan, the entire city was represented in the celebration. In addition, other cities joined with New York in celebrating the acquisition of its latest municipal improvement by sending official congratulations and personal representatives. The great structure has also attracted to this city many engineers desirous of inspecting the country's biggest cantalever bridge.

The city's celebration of the opening of the bridge will last a week. In that time there will be parades, speeches, exhibitions of fireworks, athletic contests, automobile races and many other features. The celebration began today with the big military, civic, political, industrial and fraternal parade, which started in Manhattan and marched over the bridge into Queens borough. The celebration will close on the night of Saturday, June 19, with a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Only three bridges with longer spans exist—the Brooklyn bridge, of 1595 feet; the Williamsburg bridge, of 1600 feet, both of the suspension type, and the Firth of Forth bridge, Scotland, of 1710 feet. The Queensboro comes next with 1182 feet. The total length of the structure formally opened today is 8231 feet. The bridge was thrown open to traffic informally March 30. Its cost was $20,000,000.

WHILE ON HIS HONEYMOON

Young Boston Lawyer Is Mysteriously Lost While at Sea

Boston, June 12.—Holland Bennett, aged 27, son of Josiah Q. Bennett, a banker of Cambridge, member of the law firm of Forbush & Bennett of 53 State street, who was on his honeymoon with his bride of less than a month, was mysteriously lost at sea from the steamer Berlin between Genoa and Naples last Thursday.

That the well-known young lawyer and Harvard man accidentally fell overboard, committed suicide, was the victim of Neapolitan robbers or of the Black Hand are all theories that have been advanced in explanation of his disappearance at sea.

Mrs. Bennett, who was Miss Lucetta Upham of Cambridge, and who was married May 12 of this year, is on her way home from the honeymoon that ended so tragically, prostrated with grief.

MOTIVE AND CLUE NOT YET SOLVED

New York Police Have Identified Dismembered Body

New York, June 12.—After making rapid progress not only in finding the missing head of the victim, but in identifying him as Samuel Bersin, a Russian painter and decorator, the New York police find themselves with a sordid murder case on their hands, which is puzzling as to the motive and contains no direct clue to the murderers.

An autopsy performed on the victim's dismembered body showed that Bersin was partly asphyxiated before his throat was slashed and his body terribly mutilated.

CRACK ATHLETES ENTERED

More Than a Hundred to Participate In Bicycle Marathon Race

New York, June 12.—After weeks of preparation everything now is in readiness for the running of the first bicycle marathon race ever held in the world. It will take place at Valley Stream, L. I., Sunday, and over 100 riders from all parts of the country and Europe will compete.

When James J. Corbett fires the starting pistol he will send away the best lot of trained athletes that has competed in a bicycle race in ten years. The handicap limit is 8½ minutes. The course will be the full marathon distance of 26 miles, 385 yards.

HEADED OFF BY GALE

Schooner Restless Reaches Bermuda Far Behind Her Competitors

Hamilton, Bermuda, June 12.—Schooner yacht Restless, owned by Leedon Sharpe, the last but one of the contestants in the race which was started June 5 from Gravesend bay, New York, for Bermuda, crossed the finish mark yesterday afternoon. Sloop Marchioness, owned by J. P. Crozier, was sighted last evening.

At one time a gale was encountered and the sailors on the Restless were compelled to put their craft about and run her before it. The Restless was within sixty miles of Bermuda Tuesday morning, but was blown off her course.

"Old Cy" made Boston sigh.

As a smoke talk, last night's public hearing was a fine success. Chairman Gilson's first ruling was: "Smoke up."

"We want what we want when and where we want it" seems to be the up-to-datedness of the Houghs Neck national anthem.

Capt. Fosdick asked the Ledger last night to take notice that he didn't argue for the Houghs Neck school house dramatically but sincerely. All right, Captain, but could anyone listen to his eloquence and doubt his sincerety?

President Hobbs of the city council put up an argument last night for the sprayer to be sent to ward 6 and today the sprayer answered the prayer.

School committeeman Miller said last night that the Washington and Adams schools are crowded to the roofs with pupils. It isn't a very nice state of affairs to contemplate.

Now that the Boston city charter bill is signed by the governor and up to the voters, the Democrats of that city would like to be in a position to follow Dr. William Everett's advice; "Of two evils choose neither."

Last night's Ledger suggested that a late electric car to West Quincy would be about the proper thing. The mayor took the matter up with the street railway superintendent last night and, beginning tonight, the West Quincy people will get a car at 11.50 on Wednesday and Saturday nights. Why didn't somebody think of it before?

H. L. Kincaide is one of Quincy's most enterprising merchants. Not only does he conduct business in one of the largest and most up-to-date blocks in the city but owns and controls valuable property in City square and is about to erect a large business block on Cottage avenue at the corner of Hancock street. Eevery piece of property built upon in this manner is of real benefit to the city adding greatly to its business appearance as well as to the industrial growth.

The sea continues to give up its dead. Yesterday two bodies came to the surface on our shores; last week two others were discovered and there are more missing bodies to be heard from. Drowning fatalities along the Quincy shore line have been more numerous than usual this year and the summer season hasn't reached here yet. Too much care cannot be used while rowing or sailing on the water. The inexperienced one who thinks it knows it all is the worst fool of all. Give him a wide berth on the water.

Although it had been generally announced that there would be a public hearing at City Hall last night on the question of school house sites in Montclair and the Bigelow Park sections of the city, the hearing on the Houghs Neck lot took up so much time that the other two were not touched. Councilman Gilson, chairman of the committee in charge of the hearing said after the meeting that it was not intended to hold hearings on the Montclair and Bigelow parks school houses last night but that some other night would be reserved for those issues. There were a number of ward 2 people present to speak on the Bigelow Park site and they felt disappointed when the hearing was not called. There seems to be an impression among a large number of citizens that these hearings are for those people who have land available for school house sites and are willing to sell their land to the city. Such an impression should not be allowed to go out through the city. Generally speaking ,the land owner has a selfish motive in a hearing of this kind and the expressions of those parents who have children of school age, or children growing to that limit, reflect the real sentiment that should be considered in such matters. It is to be regretted that more women do not attend hearings of these kinds. If there is anybody who is vitally interested in the subject of where their children's school houses should be situated, it is the mothers. Incidentally, it is worthy of remark that the people of Houghs Neck seem to take more interest in public matters of this kind than the residents of other parts of the city. It wouldn't do these other sections any harm to get up a little enthusiasm in such matters.

We had a word to say about street surface drainage the other day. We have had a case of surface drainage that doesn't drain called to our attention since then. A catch basin near the junction of Cottage avenue and Hancock street evidently isn't capable of taking care of all the water that is consigned to it with the result that every time there is a rain storm of any size, the catch basin overflows and floods the sidewalk and part of Cottage avenue. It would seem to be an easy matter to rectify this condition of affairs. The catch basin is quite close to Town brook into which it is supposed to drain. There is no street in the city that has to carry off more water than Cottage avenue. Practically all the water from City Square goes to Cottage avenue by way of Hancock street or Chestnut street and a number of other streets also drain into it. This condition of uselessness, so close to City Square, is too flagrant to allow it to remain unnoticed for any length of time.

Taken as a whole, the public hearing on the Houghs Neck school house lot, given last night by the city council committee on public grounds, brought forth no facts that had not been advanced at the public meeting held earlier in the year. All of the speakers, but one, excepting Councilmen, were from Houghs Neck and it was evident to everyone present that there had been no change, since the last public hearing, in the minds of the advocates of the various lots offered for a school house site. The one speaker who does not live at Houghs Neck, who spoke last night, was John L. Miller, a member of the school committee and a man who, from his connection with the school department of the city, is just as anxious as any resident of Houghs Neck to see a school house erected there. Mr. Miller made that evident at the beginning of his remarks. It was evident, also, that Mr. Miller did not favor the lot which seemed to be the choice of a majority of the Houghs Neck citizens who argued for a school house. Mr. Miller was of the opinion that the proposed school house should be situated further towards Quincy, arguing that in five years' time the land between Post Island and Houghs Neck would be built up, to a large extent, with permanent homes and the wants of these prospective residents should be considered as well as those of the present residents. The answer of the greater part of the Houghs Neck people was that the site opposite the fire station was the one best suited for present needs and that the school house was a pressing and immediate necessity. Mr. Miller said that the style of school buildings or the site of lots did not make the scholars, which is true but the question of prime importance in locating any school building, either in this city or any other, is to place it so that it will be of the most service to the greatest number. That is a good rule to follow in erecting school houses or any other public buildings.

It isn't often that members of the city council attend public hearings and argue as private citizens. Last night Councilman Whiton and McDevitt took the floor on the Houghs Neck school house lot hearing and discussed the issue with the freedom and frankness of the residents of Houghs Neck. It would be a good idea if more councilmen would appear at hearings not conducted by the committees of which they are members, and state their views. Unfortunately there is such a pressure of general business at council meetings that much time is not given to discussing such matters and very few councilmen, at such times, talk to any great extent. At these public hearings they have a chance to give ideas, learned through legislative experience, which the ordinary citizen does not have a chance to acquire. As the Ledger said last night, more public hearings on evenings not taken up with council meetings, would serve the councilmen, and citizens in general, to better advantage than the abrupt hearings that have been held on council meeting nights in the past. The closer the councilmen get to the ideas of the people who send them to city hall, the better will be the result all 'round. And there is no better way to get the ideas of the people than to let them appear and take part in the discussion of a public hearing. It is the nearest approach we have left, under our city charter, to the old town form of government, probably the best scheme of government ever devised.

A Hurry-up Medicine.

Every housekeeper recognizes the need of effective remedies to be used in emergencies—when some thing must be done right away. Such a remedy is Perry Davis' Painkiller, for sprains and bruises, for strained muscles and for the aches and pains resulting from blows and falls. Burns and cuts are instantly relieved by it and helped to healing. Its mission of mercy began seventy years ago. It is used in all countries and millions of bottles are sold annually. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'. Have you seen the new large 35c. size?

WILD WEST SHOW.

Announcement is made of the appearance in this city on June 24, of the 101 Ranch Wild West Show, which is probably the most remarkable traveling tented amusement organization of the country. Every member of it is a resident of the 100,000 acres of prarie the Millers own and operate at Bliss, Okla. One of the advance representatives characterizes it as the "101 Ranch transported in miniature for a day to this city."

The Millers are undoubtedly the most famous cattlemen of the great southwest. There are three of them and they strted with a homestead allotment of 160 acres when the Cherokee strip was opened to settlement. Today the Miller holdings include three towns and parts of three counties, and some European principalities would be lost in the vast 101 ranch area. Cattle and horses roam the fertile acres in thousands and the Millers buy and sell by the train-load.

The Millers are new-comers in the professional amusement field, and enrolled more by accident than design. Two years ago they yielded to insistence of the directors of the Jamestown Exposition for a whooping illustration of real western life by sending a show to the national fair which created an immediate furore. Whether or not the exposition in whole was an artistic and financial success, it served to attract the attention of the amusement-loving public upon the entertainment which the three Oklahoma ranchmen provided. Nothing quite like this Oklahoma show had ever been seen before. Before the fair was half over, New York City demanded a duplicate show and another foray was made upon the ranch to gratify the eastern meropolis. It remained at Brighton Beach, New York City, for six weeks and crowds came in unceasing numbers.

Hundreds of cities clamored for a sight of the 101 Ranch arenic wonders, but the Millers packed up in fall and journeyed back to the Oklahoma prairie with no thought of further experiences as showmen. But fate and the astute professional amusement purveyor willed otherwise. By spring Edward Arlington, a well known circus man, had formed a alliance with them and the 101 Ranch Wild West Show was a permanent factor in the amusement world. The Brighton Beach and the Jamstown Exposition organizations were consolidated. The success of the big new institution last year has never been equalled on the records of tented entertainments. In cities great and small, in Canada and as far south as Mexican City Mexico, it gave its tournament before cheering crowds.

Preformances will be given here afternoon and evening and the enterprise will introduce itself in the forenoon with as street parade which is unique in the annals of outdoor pageants. It stretches more than a mile in length and the romance and adventure and fanciful spirit of the actual west pervade it throughout.

AUTO RACES AT READVILLE.

Plans for the great auto races to be held at Readville, June 17, under the auspices of the Bay State Automobile Association are practically all completed, and chairman Chester I. Campbell of the touring committee has arranged a program which will make this the automobile event of the year. Never before have so many clever drivers been brought together in the east, or such valuable trophies been offered with the result that the committee have been able to arrange eight great events, from the contest of the light runabouts to those powerful engines of many horsepower.

The Trophy event will be that for the Harvard Trophy, given by the students of Harvard College, a magnificent piece of jewelsmith's art, this is one of the events that all the "big ones" are out to win, as it also carries a cash prize of $500 to the first man, and $200 to the second. Next in importance will be the special matched race of 25 miles between DePalmer with his Fiat Cyclone, and Basle with his Renault. Both of these cars are holders of records and no more daring drivers can be found than these contestants.

The Automobile Trade Trophy will also introduce the big ones, and many other valuable prizes will be contested for by well known local drivers. Two other interesting events which are bound to be well contested are for the Bailey Trophy for stock cars to be driven by owners or representatives and for the beautiful Knowles cup for runabouts or roadsters over 30 horse power. Special attention has been given by the committee to the comfort of the patrons, and everything possible has been done for the accommodation of the great attendance expected. There will be special trains from South Station direct to the track.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Polly, a child of the circus, is brought up by Toby, a clown, and by a boss canvasman called "Muvver Jim." She learns to ride Bingo, a circus horse, and grows to woman hood knowing no life except that of the circus. II—A church near the circus lot interests Polly. Jim rerpoves her for her reckless riding. III—Polly urges Bingo to unprecedented speed and falls. Toby and Jim carry the injured girl to the parsonage nearby. IV—The Rev. John Douglas, much to Deacon Elverson's disgust, takes Polly into the parsonage. Tobby and "Muvver Jim" are received kindly by Douglas, who has placed Polly in charge of his colored servant, Mandy. Douglas promises to care for the girl until she is well. V—When Polly becomes conscious she declares that she must rejoin the circus at once. "Are you a sky pilot?" she asks the minister. Her mother was killed riding a circus horse, and her father "got his'n in a lion's cage." The minister reads to her about Ruth and Naomi, and Polly says, "I guess I'd like to hear you spiel." VI—Douglas offends Deacon Strong by defending boys who play baseball on Sunday. VII—Polly recovers her health, but is saddened by the death of Toby. Jim sends the news and promises to keep in touch with her. VIII—Polly recovers from the blow dealt her by Toby's death. She has ceased using slang and is educating herself under Douglas, guidance. She endeavors to improve Mandy's grammar. IJ—Deacons Strong and Elverson reprove the pastor for harboring the circus girl. Douglas declares that he is merely doing his duty. Strong declares that the girl must go. Douglas defies him. X.—Douglas suggests to Polly that she go to a seminary. Her quotation "And Ruth said, 'Entreat me not to leave three.'" reveals to both the fact that they love each other.

CHAPTER XI.

"I'S goin' into de Sunday school room to take off dat 'ere widow's finishin' touches," said Mandy as she came down the steps.

"All right!" called Douglas. "Take these with you. Perhaps they may help." He gathered up the garlands which Polly had left on the ground. His eyes were shining. He looked younger than Mandy had ever seen him.

Polly had turned her back at the sound of Mandy's voice and crossed to the elm tree, drying her tears of happiness and trying to control her newly awakened emotions. Douglas felt intuitively that she needed this moment for recovery, so he piled the leaves and garlands high in Mandy's arms, then ran into the house with the light step of a boy.

"I got the set—sit—settin' room all tidied up," said Mandy as she shot a sly glance at Polly.

"That's good," Polly answered, facing Mandy at last and dimpling and blushing guiltily.

"Mos' de sociable folks will mos' likely be hangin' roun' de parsonage tonight, 'stead ob stayin' in de Sunday school room, whar dey belongs. Las' time dat 'ere Widow Willoughby done set roun' all ebenin' a-tellin' de parson as how folks could jes' eat off'n her kitchen floor, an' I ups an' tells her as how folks could pick up a good squar' meal off'n Mandy's floor too. Guess she'll be mighty careful what she says afore Mandy tonight." She chuckled as she disappeared down the walk to the Sunday school room.

Polly stood motionless where Mandy had left her. She hardly knew which way to turn. She was happy, yet afraid. She felt like sinking upon her knees and begging God to be good to her, to help her. She who had once been so independent, so self reliant, now felt the need of direction from above. She was no longer master of her own soul. Something had gone from her, something that would never, never come again. While she hesitated Hasty came through the gate, looking anxiously over his shoulder.

"Well, Hasty?" she said, for it was apparent that Hasty had something important on his mind.

"It's de big one from de circus," he whispered excitedly.

"The big one?"

"You know—de one what brung you."

"You don't mean"— Polly's question was answered by Jim himself, who had followed Hasty quickly through the gate. Their arms were instantly about each other. Jim forgot Hasty and every one in the world except Polly, and neither of them noticed the horrified Miss Perkins and the Widow Willoughby, who had been crossing the yard on their way from the Sunday school room with Julia.

"You're just as big as ever," said Polly when she could let go of Jim long enough to look at him. "You haven't changed a bit."

"You've changed enough for both of us." He looked at the unfamiliar long skirts and the new way of doing her hair. "You're bigger, Poll, more grown-up like."

"Oh, Jim!" She glanced admiringly at the new brown suit, the rather startling tie and the neat little posy in Jim's buttonhole.

"The fellows said I'd have to slick up a bit if I was a-comin' to see you, so as not to make you ashamed of me. Do you like 'em?" he asked, looking down approvingly at his new brown clothes.

"Very much." For the first time Jim noticed the unfamiliar manner of her speech. He began to feel self conscious. A year ago she would have said "You bet!" He looked at her awkwardly. She hurried on: "Hasty told me you were showing in Wakefield. I knew you'd come to see me. How's Barker and all the boys?" She stopped with a catch in her throat and added more slowly, "I suppose everything's different now that Toby is gone."

"You mean that you ain't never comin' back?"

"He'd 'a' liked to seen you afore he cashed in," Jim answered, "but maybe it was just as well he didn't. You'd hardly 'a' knowed him toward the last, he got so thin an' peeked like. He wasn't the same after we lost you—nobody was, not even Bingo."

"Have you still got Bingo?" she asked, through her tears.

"Yep, we got him," drawled Jim, "but he ain't much good no more. None of the other riders can get used to his gait like you was. There ain't nobody with the show what can touch you ridin'; there never will be. Say, mebbe you think Barker won't let out a yell when he sees you comin' back." Jim was jubilant now, and he let out a little yell of his own at the mere thought of her return. He was too excited to notice the look on Polly's face. "Toby had a notion before he died that you was never a-comin' back, but I told him I'd change all that once I seen you, an' when Barker sent me over here today to look arter the advertisin' he said he guessed you'd had all you wanted o' church folks. 'Jes' you bring her along to Wakefield,' he said, 'an' tell her that her place is waitin' for her,' an' I will too." He turned upon Polly with sudden decision. "Why, I feel jes' like pickin' you up in my arms an' carryin' you right off now."

"Wait, Jim!" She put one tiny hand on his arm to restrain him.

"I don't mean—not—today—mebbe," he stammered uncertainly, "but we'll be back here a-showin' next month."

"Don't look at me now," Polly answered as the doglike eyes searched her face, "because I have to say something that is going to hurt you, Jim."

"You're comin', ain't you, Poll?" The big face was wrinkled and careworn with trouble.

"No, Jim," she replied in a tone so low that he could scarcely hear her.

"You mean that you ain't never comin' back?" He tried to realize what such a decision might mean to him.

"No, Jim," she answered tenderly, for she dreaded the pain that she must cause the great, good hearted fellow. "You mustn't care like that," she pleaded, seeing the blank desolation that had come into his face. "It isn't because I don't love you just the same, and it was good of Barker to keep my place for me, but I can't go back."

He turned away. She clung to the rough brown sleeve. "Why, Jim, when I lie in my little room up there at night"—she glanced toward the window above them—"and everything is peaceful and still I think how it used to be in the old days, the awful noise and the rush of it all, the cheerless wagons, the mob in the tent, the ring with its blazing lights, the whirling round and round on Bingo and the hoops, always the hoops, till my head got dizzy and my eyes all dim, and then the hurry after the show, and the heat and the dust or the mud and the rain, and the rumble of the wheels in the plains at night, and the shrieks of the animals, and then the parade, the awful, awful parade, and I riding through the streets in tights. Jim—Jim!" She covered her face to shut out the memory. "I couldn't go back to it, Jim! I just couldn't!" She turned away, her face still hidden in her hands. He looked at her a long while in silence.

"I didn't know how you'd come to feel about it," he said doggedly.

"You aren't angry, Jim?" She turned to him anxiously, her eyes pleading for his forgiveness.

"Angry?" he echoed, almost bitterly "I guess it couldn't ever come to that atween you an' me. I'll be all right." He shrugged his great shoulders. "It's just kinder sudden, that's all. You see, I never figured on givin' you up, an' when you said you wasn't comin' back it kinder seemed as though I couldn't see nothin' all my life but long, dusty roads an' nobody in 'em. But it's all right now, an' I'll just be gettin' along to the wagon."

"But, Jim, you haven't seen Mr. Douglas," Polly protested, trying to keep him with her until she could think of some way to comfort him.

"I'll look in on him comin' back," said Jim, anxious to be alone with his disappointment. He was out of the gate before she could stop him.

"Hurry back, won't you, Jim? I'll be waiting for you." She watched him going quickly down the road, his fists thrust into his brown coat pockets and his hat pulled over his eyes. He did not look back, as he used to do, to wave a parting farewell, and she turned toward the house with a troubled heart. She had reached the lower step when Strong and Elverson approached her from the direction of the church.

"Was that feller here to take you back to the circus?" demanded Strong.

She opened her lips to reply, but before she could speak Strong assured her that the congregation wouldn't do anything to stop her if she wished to go. He saw the blank look on her face. "We ain't tryin' to pry into none of your private affairs," he explained, "but my daughter saw you and that there feller a-makin' up to each other. If you're calculatin' to run away with him you'll save a heap of trouble for the parson by doin' it quick."

"The parson!"

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Here's to Johnnie Harvard. Fill 'em up another. Friends of the University across the Charles River Basin are quietly rejoicing over the acquisition of the nights of the John Harvard house at Stratford, England. The trustees of the Harvard house at their first annual meeting were given the ancient form of mart and license by King Edward which gives them the privilege of holding the supposed birthplace of the famous educator. It is not known whether the recent desecration of Harvard's statue in front of Memorial hall was incidental to this jubilation.

Laurels in plenty are being awarded under the Back Bay trees. This is the season of commencement festivities at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, including the installation of its president, Dr. Richard McLaurin, which occupied the early part of the week. To add to the gayety of the Puritan capital the Ancient and Honorable artillery Company, the most highly decorated and decorative of American military organizations, celebrated its 271st birthday, with much beating of drums, parading and attending ceremonies. Yet a supercilious New Yorker is quoted as referring to the "oppresive silence of Boston."

Babies should be kept off the asphalt. Persons hurrying through Copley Square a day or two ago were treated to a spectacle which made them clutch each other for support. A young woman was walking carelessly along drawing a baby in a go-cart behind her. As she crossed the street toward the library the carriage lurched as it struck the car track and the baby was thrown headlong to the pavement, where it lay a crumpled heap exactly as it fell with its head on the edge of the track. In her self-absorption the nurse maid (one cannot believe her to have been the mother) sauntered along, drawing the empty carriage behind her, while the helpless infant lay at the mercy of teams, automobiles or cars, as the case might be. Before she reached the sidewalk, however, a score of shouts concentrated in a roar of horror from the throats of a hundred people brought her out of her trance, and the last seen of her she was rushing to the nearst drug store with the child, unconscious or dead, in her arms. The sight of that tiny speck of helpfulness lying in the busy thoroughfare, which by contrast looked a mile wide, it is safe to say sent more than one mother to her home with the resolve to look after her own children instead of leaving them in the hands of careless maids.

The Hub's leadership in educational affairs receives an added impetus in the announcement that an appropriation of $100,00 has been made for the enlargement of Tuft's College. President Hamilton made the statement at the annual dinner of the alumni association this week, when it was received with great enthusiasm. Despite the presence of the "co-eds" who, according to Dr. Hamilton drive men students away, the institution that now covers all College hill and a little section of it near the Fenway has become one of the great schools of higher education in New England.

Exploring their own good town by trolley is a fad of Boston girls this spring. It is no wonder that the diversion has become popular locally, for ever since the lines of the Boston Elevated Company have been extended throughout the metropolitan district the cars in the pleasant months of the year have always been filled with eager crowds of sightseers from every section of the country. Nowhere else, of course, in America, is any city such a veritable museum of antiquities as Boston is. The popular lecture service which the progressive Boston Elevated Company has developed here has certainly had much to do with the recent increase of this kind of pleasure riding. Today the New England maid, who with or without an accompanying young man, wants to get a quick and comprehensive survey of historic attractions that westerners and southerners regard as more interesting than anything else in the big cosmopolitan city, takes the "see-in Boston" trolley at Park Square, either at ten in the morning or at two in the afternoon. The comforable "people's automobile" thereafter follows a circuitous route that is characteristic of old Boston and that gives the lecture-conductoran an opportunity to amuse his charges with some wellworn but adways amusing jests at the expense of the founder of the Puritan capital. The South End is traversed rapidly and then the patriotic sites and structures dear to the American patriot spirit along Washington street. The course followed extends subsequently by way of North Station into Charlestown, past the Navy Yard, just now the scene of especially clangorous activity directed to repair of part of the fleet, up in under Bunker Hill Monument, through Sullivan Square terminal and thence over portions of the route followed by Paul Revere into Arlington. The car returns by way of Massachusetts Avenue to Harvard Square, making a great and inspiriting circuit among literary chrines of old Cambridge and back to the City via Harvard bridge. The last mile of the landmarks of the Back Bay gives instruction enough to fill the note book even of the Bostonian who is thoroughly familiar with their outer aspects. Not the least pleasurable of the experiences of this tour of the town is watch the faces and listen to the comments of the strangers to whom Boston sums up all that is fascinating in the study of history.

New England's most enviable individual this spring is a full bearded, large hearted newspaper man who is still sometimes seen swinging his blue bag in Boston streets but who is fortunately able to spend most of his time loafing about in the fields and woods of the picturesque region ten or twelve miles to the south of the city which originally gave the state its name, "Massachusetts, the place of the great hills." This is Mr. Winthrop Packard, editor for some years of the New England Magazine and now fortunately able to carry out his manifest destiny of picking up "stories" where hardly any one else since the days of Thoreau has ever really found them—in the ponds and swamps and stony pastures of New England. The series of nature articles of this writer, which began about a year ago to be published in a Boston afternoon paper, immediately caught on. The public recognized instinctively, that although cast in the form of essays, they contained news of the livliest character. The author each week turned up with facts charmingly set forth, of whose existence not one reader in a thousand had ever suspected. Having a keen news sense he was not above retailing many of the sensations and scandals of the wild life that is lived in the pretty country which he explores daily. In due course of time clippings of those intimate studies of outdoors, which have been liberally copied—with great credit, of course—in many other New England papers, accumulated in a scrap book. They were submitted to a Boston publishing house whose manager was not at first particularly enthusiastic at the prospect of handling mere "nature stuff" but who turned them over to his readers. "The best things of their kind since Thoreau" was the comment of one of the board of judgment, herself a western nature writer of some distinction. The other opinions were equally enthusiastic. In the circumstances it is not strange to note that Winthrop Packard, of Canton, Massachussetts, is now listed as author of "wild pastures," embodying some of the most striking of the "feature stories" with which he has been entertaining the local public.

MAINE HAMLET BLOTTED OUT

Hillman Falls Prey to Fire In First Year of Its Existence

HABITATIONS ALL DESTROYED

That No Lives Are Lost Is Due Alone to Timely Arrival of Relief Train—Forest Fires Dot Territory Covering a Hundred Square Miles—Township In New Brunswick and Valuable Timberland Burned

Smyrna Mills, Me., June 12.—The flaming forests of northern Aroostook overwhelmed the village of Hillman, a new hamlet seven miles north of Smyrna Mills, and destroyed every building in the settlement. The hamlet was only a year old.

The population of fifty persons was saved from death by the timely arrival of a special train sent from Houlton. The fire sufferers were brought to Smyrna Mills and were cared for by the villagers. In all twelve buildings were destroyed, but few of them were of great value and the financial loss will not exceed $20,000.

For several days flames have extended along a line for twenty miles in northern Aroostook. The width of the fire zone is about five miles. Although the territory represents about 100 square miles, the entire block has not been burned over and large sections have been jumped and the main conflagration has divided into several sections.

One of these fires reached a point within three miles of the village of Hillman. A saw mill owned by Simeon T. Dean is located at that point and for a time it was difficult to save the property. About $8000 worth of lumber was recently burned, but the fire fighters succeeded in turning the fire away from the mill buildings. Later the fire made a detour and swept down upon Hillman itself, consisting of the residence of Dean, the Bangor and Aroostook railroad station, a schoolhouse and ten dwellings.

Station Agent McAllister notified the railroad company and a special train was sent from Houlton, with a steam fire engine and a squad of firemen. When the train arrived at the village the fire had extended from the woods to the schoolhouse, and it might have been possible to have saved the hamlet had there been an adequate water supply.

The firemen, however, were unable to find sufficient water to start their steamer and the village had to be abandoned in haste. Before the locomotive could rescue four of its cars on a siding, the flames licked up the railroad station, destroyed the four cars, 130,000 feet of pine lumber stored at the station, and consumed the ties of the track.

Whole Township Destroyed

St. John, June 12.—An entire township sheltering ninety persons, together with thousands of acres of valuable timberland, fell prey to the ravages of the forest fires in the southern and central sections of this province. The electric lighting systems of the cities in the province are inadequate to pierce the heavy pall of smoke which encompasses the districts surrounding the burning areas, and towns are in almost complete darkness.

MANY CITIES SHAKEN UP

Earthquake Shocks Cover a Wide Territory In France

Marseilles, June 12.—Two earthquake shocks running from northeast to southwest were felt through the Riviera last night. While the damage done here was not great, reports from smaller cities show that the effects of the second shock were serious.

At Lambeso, a town of 2500 inhabitants, several houses collapsed and eight persons are reported to have been killed.

Several buildings also fell at Enguilles, and at Aix a vermicelli factory was partially demolished. The disturbance also extinguished the arc lamps in the streets and broke crockery and window panes.

MIND PROBABLY DERANGED

Old Man Takes Life of Aged Brother-In-Law and Kills Self

Honesdale, Pa., June 12.—Mark VanDusen, aged 86 years, shot and killed his brother-in-law, George E. Baker, aged 87 years, at the latter's home near here and then committed suicide.

Mrs. Baker had been ill for several weeks and her husband had told VanDusen that he must find another home. It is believed that worry over this order unbalanced his mind and caused him to commit the crime.

Ennis Has Broken Down

New York, June 12.—Thomas A. Ennis, a member of the bankrupt brokerage firm of Ennis & Stoppani, is suffering from a nervous breakdown, according to a physician's certificate, and was unable to appear at a continuation of a hearing bearing on the case. Adjournment was taken until June 17.

MUSIC SCRAP BOOKS.

A New Venture For the Feminine Collectors' Talent.

The scrap book—that heterogeneous collection of fugitive verse, anecdote, humor or general information in which for some reason we are interested—is always satisfactory in the making and, if at all intelligently put together, bound to be of value later on. Let any one who doubts starts a scrap book instantly and find out the truth.

But of all scrap books the one likely to prove most profitable for the young girl, particularly one who sings and plays, is the music scrap book, in which are treasured the vocal and instrumental waifs that constantly appear in magazines and journals.

These fugitive productions which interest the young girl include the ballad which just suits her young, fresh voice, the simple nocturnes or the fetching twostep which even her not overlimber fingers can render effectively.

The main difficulty—procuring a proper sized and shaped book—is obviated by cutting heavy packing paper into the right dimensions and tacking firmly together in the back. Two or even three such volumes are better than one very thick one for convenient handling on the piano rack. A simple decoration on the outer leaf or, still better, a decorated pasteboard cover gives the desired artistic touch.

A scrap book of this kind—given as a valentine years ago to a sixteen-year-old lassie—merits description. It is made of the smooth, thick wrapping paper procurable at any big stationery store for 5 cents the huge sheet. It is decorated with a violin and bow, the former in the shape of a heart in deference to St. Valentine's day, on the outside. The name of the recipient and the date beautifully lettered appear just below. The book was quite blank but for the first pages, upon which were neatly pasted two charming child songs, by Michael Kergise, which appeared in a series of twenty or more in the magazine section of a New York paper some five or six years ago. Since then the book has been gradually filled by clippings from well known papers, an American magazine and two celebrated German house magazines. The series of Kergise songs before mentioned is plentifully represented. Opening the book haphazard one finds the largo from Dvorak's "New World Symphony," a "Fanfare Militaire," by Golde; an "Air de Ballet," by De Koven; Rubinstein's "Du Bist Wie Eine Blume" and Kergise's "Congo Bongo" and "When I'm a Man." Some of them are the best of their kind, many of them not easily obtained and all of them charming bits of melody secured at small cost and the effort of cutting out and pasting in.

A FALSE ECONOMY.

The Housewife Who Boils Her Window Shades.

Here is a new one for the frugally minded housewife:

"Whenever I have old window shades which have become too soiled to put up again," writes a housewife in a certain magazine for women, "I take them off the rollers, give them a thorough boiling, then wash and dry and iron the same and"—now listen to this; they don't turn out to be piano scarfs or mantel drapes or even little girls' petticoats, but says this careful person—"I have excellent cloths, which are good for dusting, cleaning windows or drying cut glass." Now, will you listen to that—"excellent dust cloths"—and how would you like the task of boiling up a lot of old window shades? 'Twould be a pleasant undertaking, wouldn't it?

There can be no question that the effort to economize is in every way commendable and, dear knows, rare enough in these days of prodigality, but there is a limit past which economy ceases to be a virtue.

There are women with whom economy has become almost a mania.

Doubtless she of the boiled window shades is suffering from such a malady, else she wouldn't be boiling up her old shades to make dusters when she ought to be standing in front of her looking glass curling her front hair or sitting down and studying her Sunday school lesson.

But this is only one example of the false economy that saves and makes over to poor purpose. Economy is doubtless a poor name for this particular sort of thing. It is, in truth, more of an overpowering desire to make something out of nothing, which generally ends in exactly the other, very much the other, way about.

Old dresses made over at great labor and expense and leftover food reheated with more eggs and butter than a new dish would be worth are examples of this same mania, which possesses many a good woman.

A Question of Nerves.

A nerve expert says that when women begin to long for the right to vote or feel inclined to fritter away their time at card parties and in a general way are no particular good to their families it is a sign of disease. If husbands would only consult the doctors when family conditions become unbearable he thinks much trouble might be avoided.

Potatoes a la Princesse.

To one pint of mashed potatoes add one tablespoonful melted butter and one egg well beaten. Cut the potatoes into strips two inches long, one inch wide and half an inch thick. Dip the strips first into the melted butter, then into the egg and lay them with a knife on lightly buttered tin pans. Cook in hot oven for ten minutes and serve.

GOOD WORK OF DEPARTMENTS

Report of Board of Directors of Quincy Y. M. C. A.

The Young Men's Christian Association has just finished its eighteenth year of service for the young men and boys of this city and the fourth year of operation in the new building.

During the year that has just closed the Association has been of practical service along physical, mental, social or spiritual lines to 690 different men and boys in the membership and has come into vital and helpful contact with several hundred others.

While the effect of the business depression has been felt seriously, the work as a whole has been even more effective than in former years and is making a decided impression upon the community.

In addition to the usual lines of work, this year has marked several new lines which are briefly summarized as follows:

Payment in full of the deficit of the year 1907-08 amounting to $874.79, in addition to the full expenses of the year just closed.

Second—Extending and developing the educational department.

Third—The opening of special work for the foreign speaking men in "English" with work outside of the building. Fourth—The inauguration of extensive clubs among boys at South Quincy and Quincy Point.

There are several important phases of work for men and boys yet untouched and some fields just entered where time and money could be invested with splendid results. We are believing more and more that the Association's mission is to all the young men and boys of our city in whatever place or condition they may be found.

The Association management is finding that it is requiring the closest attention to keep the financial side of the work abreast with the opportunities for broad service and they need the continued hearty co-operation of all friends of such work.

STATISTICAL SUMMARY OF THE ANNUAL REPORT.

690 different men and boys connected with the Association.

The Building has been a centre of activity throughout the entire year, for both members and non-members. A large number of members and non-members have been temporarily helped and counseled; many of these were strangers in the city and greatly appreciated the advice and sympathy of an interested friend.

MEMBERSHIP.

The analysis of the membership is much the same as in previous years; some additional facts of interest are revealed however. The total membership on April 30th, was 483, a net increase of 35 over last year. 690 different men and boys were members during the year just closed. The Senior department numbers 295 and the boys 188; the increase has been made this time in the boys membership. The membership is constantly changing owing largely to the shifting conditions of our city. 52 left the city before the time of their expiration came. We have received 237 new members and 246 renewals—57 per cent. of the membership renewing. This renewal figure is 10 per cent. larger than last year in spite of hard business conditions.

Eighteen different nationalities are represented, showing the cosmopolitan character of the membership. The thirteen different religious denominations indicates also that the work is broadly non-sectarian in its character and purpose. There are 57 different ocupations or vocations represented, 33 percent. are of the industrial class. The average age of the men's departments is 27 years and of the boys' department 15 years.

SOCIAL.

While the social side of the individual is not the most important of his make-up, social life enters into every department of Young Men's Christian Association work, and may be said to be fundamental to the success of every phase of it. The young man who is away from home and the young man in search of companionship finds the Association building a most attractive social center, with its games, music, recreation rooms, organized clubs, banquets, suppers and spreads. There have been 27 social occasions for men and 30 for boys, including suppers during the year. This does not include the number of "informals" about the fireplace and other good times in connection with the educational and physical departments.

The Mandolin Club has again had its part in promoting sociability and their part in promoting sociability and the Boys' Orchestra of ten pieces has also kept things "alive" with exceptionally good music on many occasions. Fifty-six different men have found homes in the dormitory.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

The Association Evening School has had the most satisfactory year in the history of the work in spite of the financial depression. Eighty-four men were enrolled in all classes. The character of the work accomplished was shown by the exhibit given in March and April and the interest is further emphasized by the percentage of attendance which was 81 per cent. of the entire enrollment. The money received in tuition fees meets the cost of teachers.

CLASS WORK—Nine classes in Industrial subjects have been conducted in addition to one class for Italians in "English." During the summer 60 boys took Sloyd in four classes which work was conducted in co-operation with the Quincy Women's club.

The School is divided into Four branches, First, for men in the stone cutting trades, carvers, letter cutters and draughtsmen. Second, for the iron and wood working trades; machinists, ship fitters, joiners, house carpenters and other tradesman. Third, for the "Newer Americans" in English, government, and good citizenship principles. Fourth, miscellaneous subjects.

Courses taught	Total enrollments
1 Architectural Drawing—First and Second Year	9
2 English (for non-English speaking men)	22
3 Freehand Drawing—First and Second Year	12
4 First Aid to Injured (2 classes)	18
5 Illustrating and Cartooning	3
6 Monumental Drawing—First, Second and Third Year	9
7 Mechanical Drawing—First and Second Year	27
8 Music in Orchestra and Mandolin	17

The reading room has been well patronized. Special attention was given to aiding men in their choice of reading matter.

RELIGIOUS.

The religious work while treated as a separate department is not separate at all, but permeates the whole work as a spiritual influence, as an influence toward moral and christian living, with the constant purpose of all interested to lead young men and boys to a knowledge of Jesus Christ as their personal Lord and Master. The work is along sane, sound and practical lines, and touches non-members outside as well as members inside the building. The religious work committee and the executive officers of the Association were vitally interested and took an active part in the Chapman-Alexander campaign. The enginery of the Association was placed at the disposal of the General Committee and proved a very useful influence throughout the campaign.

The usual Sunday Men's meeting was not conducted regularly this year; instead of it were held social sings and Bible classes. Emphasis being laid on the latter with both men and boys.

Six hundred and seventy-five men attended meetings inside the building and two meetings outside; one in Music hall and another at the Presbyterian church.

Twenty Bible classes sessions were held for men with an attendance of 97.

Thirty-three Shop classes were held for men with an average attendance of 47 and 22 for boys with an average attendance of 30.

Fifty-three boys were enrolled in Bible classes in the building and 92 outside.

Fifteen Saturday morning meetings were held for younger boys averaging 94 in attendance.

Thirteen Sunday afternoon meetings for older boys were held and proved very helpful.

Fifteen boys were led to join our churches through the Association influence.

BOYS' WORK.

The Policy for the Boys' Department during the past year has been:

First. To harness energy.

Second. To develop latent ability.

Third. To eliminate the undesirable.

Fourth. To make Christian character.

The following means have been used.

Bible study.
Religious meetings.
Extension work.
Educational work.
Physical work.
Social work.
Conferences.

One hundred and forty-four boys have been enrolled in Bible study, weekly, with an average attendance of one hundred and thirty. Through these classes boys have been given a new vision of the Manly Man, Christ Jesus, and many have consecrated their lives to higher and nobler things. A teacher's Training class for older boys was a feature, older boys were taught how to lead younger boys in Bible study. Boys of all classes have been reached. A shop class at the Fore River for boys touched many who could be reached in no other way.

Religious meetings for older and younger boys were a success and gave opportunity for many boys to acknowledge publicly their Lord and Master. The Week of Prayer was observed by a boys' meeting every night for a half hour of prayer. The spirit of service which was stimulated by these meetings added much to our work during the year.

"He that gives most gets most" has been the motto of the Extension Work committee. Twenty dollars was given for the State work for boys and eight dollars to foreign work.

In addition to work done for 18 boys who were enrolled in regular classes in the Evening school, practical talks were held for employed boys, educational trips and talks for Juniors, and dramatics for students. The orchestra of ten pieces played at fifteen engagements and rendered valuable service during the Evangelistic campaign and on many other occasions. The Sloyd school during the vacation days developed latent ability in many boys. A class in First Aid to the injured was conducted with success.

"College Nights" for students were strong attractions. These informal gatherings consisted of music, readings, refreshments and talks on college life by leading students of the eastern colleges. Receptions, outings, hikes, hare and hound chases, gypsy camps, socials of all kinds added much toward making the Association the social centre for the boys of Quincy. Over fifteen hundred boys attended these events. One play was given with an attendance of two hundred.

A "Parents Night" held in the Association building brought out two hundred adults to spend a social evening and witness an exhibition and listen to an address on "The relation of the Association to the Church, the home and the school" by Supt. H. D. Hervey of the Malden schools. The occasion was an innovation and a marked success.

Two Extension clubs conducted at Quincy Point and South Quincy show the broad spirit of the Association, reaching out to meet the needs of all the boys of the city. These clubs were conducted in the vestrys of the churches, receiving the co-operation of pastors and people. They were conducted on a similar basis with work in the Association building. Seventy-five boys were reached. Bible study religious meetings, patriotic nights, educational talks and trips, social and physical work were the attractions.

About 100 new boys have been added to the membership since October, an average of four to five hundred boys have been reached each week. Seventy-five boys have served on committees during the year. Ten boys ably represented the Association at the Providence conference, the spirit brought back by these fellows has permeated the whole departments. The motto for next year is "Do your Best."

PHYSICAL DEPARTMENT.

The Physical department has again demonstrated its value as a dominant factor in the building of strong manly character. With the principle in mind of the "greatest good to the greatest number" the work has been made as interesting as possible, without scarificing its scientific basis.

We have endeavored to develop a correct carriage, grace of movement, and organic vitality. The exercises are kept simple enough at all times to interest beginners, while advanced work has been encouraged. The larger classes have been accompanied by music, which added greatly to the discipline and good feeling. Sixteen classes each week have been held from October to May. During the summer the boys are kept together through the interest in hikes, base ball, over-night camps, etc. A leader's corps of twenty-eight men and boys was a factor in the gymnasium work. The bowling alleys have again been popular holding many men who do not care for the gymnasium classes.

SUMMARY.

Total number different men using Physical department 77 (in classes 62).

Total number different boys using Physical department 175 (in classes 142).

Total number Gymnasium classes 290.

Total number men and boys in classes 5,156.

Total number men and boys using department 7,256.

Ninety-five men and boys competed on ten organized teams in 85 games or contests in our gymnasium. Eight Gymnastic exhibitions have been held.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

The Association's property is now valued at $42,000. The mortgage which was placed at the time of building stands at $15,000, there is also a temporary building loan incurred in the enlargement of the Boys' department standing at $1,053.43.

Building fund paid in and on deposit at the National Granite bank is $91.57.

The Building and equipment are kept in good repair and are covered by insurance to the amount of $32,000.

The Finance Committee are pleased to report that in spite of general business depression all current bills are paid, and that the last year's deficit of $874.79 is also paid in full. The expenses of the year were $8,064.58 plus the deficit of 1907-08 of $874.79 this is $854.00 under the expenses of last year.

The expenditures were kept well within the estimated budget. This careful and economical handling was made doubly necessary owing to business conditions. While some departments were handicapped owing to lack of funds, the work as a whole did not suffer seriously.

The receipts from membership fees were within $23 of last year and only $140 less on the entire receipts from members. The dormitory receipts fell off $279. The receipts from contributions consequently had to be larger than any previous year and amounted to $4,375. This amount was received from 228 persons or companies and was secured only after a final systematic canvass. The committee desires to thank most cordially all friends who so generously responded to the urgent call.

Unpoised Lives.

The life of the criminal is simply an unpoised life. If a person were perfectly poised wrongdoing would be so repugnant that it would be unthinkable.

It is the one sided, the unpoised mind that goes wrong. It is just as normal for the balanced mind to choose the right, the good, as for the magnet to draw to itself whatever is kindred.

Just as the needle in the mariner's compass always points to the North star, no matter how thick the fog or how the tempest rages, there is a needle within every human being which always points to the North star of rectitude, of right, of truth, no matter what storms of discord, of weakness or of crime may be raging in the individual mind. Nothing can prevent this little indicator from pointing to the right, no matter how far the individual may drift from it, how low he may sink in vicious living.—Success Magazine.

A New Part of Pork.

The teacher had been reading to her class of the industries of Russia. Among others mentioned was pig raising. The pig is used almost exclusively as an article of food, very little of his body being valued except his flesh and his bristles.

"The Russians have much to learn from the Americans in this respect," she continued. "In America all parts of the pig are used except his squeal."

At this point a pupil raised her hand and asked in all innocence:

"What part of the animal is the squeal?"—Lippincott's.

TRAINING CROUPIERS

THE WAY THE EXPERTS AT MONTE CARLO ARE MADE.

Picked Men Undergo a Rigid Course of Instruction Until They Are Molded Into the Right Form to Preside Over the Gaming Tables.

The stereotyped words ring out in but slightly varying tones from the throats of those immaculate black coated functionaries. Indeed the most sensational coup of the season would, we believe, be powerless to move any of these suave officials into betraying even a momentary gleam of interest in the mere mortals he thus adjures to plank down "their ready."

The casual frequenter of the salle de jeu pays but little heed to these things—indeed takes them as a matter of course—nevertheless the croupier is "made," not "born," though he may have inborn qualifications. He is a creature of selection, and, given a candidate of seeming promise, there follow months of training and trial—aye, little temptations which shall test his honesty—before the three chiefs who watch him and consider all his points decide upon his actual election, and he is carefully molded into the "right form," that of the quiet, courteous yet ever alert gentleman, whose well kept hand spins the marble ball and throws the coins so dextrously across the green cloth.

It may be interesting to those who do not already know to hear that no more than thirty-six men can go up at a time for election. Thirty-six—the number which exactly corresponds with the numerals on the board—and of these, again, only the very fittest are chosen for final training and appointments.

The "making of the croupier" takes place during the dead season—that is, from about August till the end of December, by which time it is calculated a smart man may be considered fit to try his paces in public. The training is indeed no play, but consists of regular attendance at the classes of the "ecole des croupiers" for six hours a day, the exact time being from 8 to 11 in the forenoon and from 2 to 5 in the afternoon. Before admittance to the "school," however, a medical examination has to be undergone as well as examinations in viva voce arithmetic and tests put with regard to correct and fluent French and refinement of accent. Yet would all these avail a man nothing should his antecedents and character not bear the strictest and most searching scrutiny. During this time of probation coins of the value of those they will have to handle at the tables are not used, notes being represented by squares of paper of much the same size and texture and the louis d'or being "understudied" by one franc pieces, while the smallest stake permissible, the clumsy five franc piece, remains the same.

As we have, however, already observed, tests of honesty are at times resorted to in order to make sure of the man's qualities in this respect. Yet in order not to strain this point too highly the management pays the probationer a sum of 150 francs a month salary during his period of training. The daily "lessons" consist naturally enough principally in the acquirement of a nice manipulation of the ball and the rake, in quick "head reckoning" and in dextrously pitching the coins across so that they seem to fall in an orderly golden row, each separate and distinct.

A distinction is made between candidates for the trente-et-quarante tables and those devoted to the more easily grasped game of roulette. The men serving the former are, as may have struck any observant visitor, of a distinctly better class, a higher mental caliber. Their salaries, too, are proportionately higher, ranging from 400 to 600 francs a month, while the "chef" draws 725 and the inspectors and subdirectors from 750 to 1,000 a month, with a bonus also at the end of the season and the comforting prospect of a pension when old age or sickness comes along to lay them on the shelf. That these men are also well worth it goes without saying.

A lesser grade of intelligence is required at the rouge-et-noir board, yet here, too, the salaries are such as many a civil service clerk might well envy—earned, too, in a lovely climate and bearing in mind that, given fair health and a steady devotion to duty, the appointment may be considered good for all the man's working life—leading also to the ultimate pension in recognition of faithful services. The salary of the roulette croupier starts at 250 francs a month and may rise to 400 francs, and he also is the recipient of an annual bonus at the end of the "grand season." It should also be observed that while "on duty" the strain is continuous. Each man is "relieved" every two hours, when occurs that curious little ceremonial of turning the cushion on his chair, a "matter of form" to show he has hidden no coin beneath it.

The ages at which men may enlist in Fortuna's ranks lie between twenty-five and thirty, the adventurer, in the general and derogatory acceptation of that term, having no chance whatever, there being no place for such under the red and black flag of M. Blanc. A few of the older men one still meets—and there are now less of them every year—have "won their spurs" on other fields before the fickle goddess was driven into exile on the fair shores of the Mediterranean. Such who have grown gray in her service remember Homburg and Baden-Baden, have lively memories even of those halcyon days when the chink of the gold was borne out through the open windows of the now decorous Kurhaus in Wiesbaden.—London Pall Mall Gazette.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class o classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

LANDMARK GONE.
Old Gallagher House Built From Old Church Lumber.

The demolishing of the old Gallagher house on Cottage avenue removes another old landmark for the house was erected in 1829.

It is not perhaps generally known that the lumber with which the house was built was once a part of the old First church that stood on the green on the site of the present church.

The old building was sold at auction and was purchased by Ebenezer Adams. The lumber was saved and in 1829 Mr. Adams built four houses on Cottage avenue with it, one of which was the old Gallagher house now being demolished. The carpenters who erected the building were Cotton and Henry G. Pratt.

In the old Gallagher house were some turned wooden posts which were probably part of those used to support the tower of the old church.

PAY STREAK WAS UNIQUE

Many Features at Wollaston Unitarian Lawn Party

"One-two-never hit him— Eat him alive—Ring yer canes here, ring yer canes. The cane yer ring is the cane yer have. Pop corn a nickel a bag."

These and other similar sounds in the direction of the Summit of Winthrop avenue, Wollaston on Saturday afternoon and evening did not come from a traveling circus or wild west show but from the "Pay streak," one of the novel features of the annual lawn party held by the Wollaston Unitarian church aptly termed the June Festival.

That the affair covered a large area may be judged by the fact that it comprised the lawns of Frank A. Page, E. J. Cummings, F. W. White, William S. Sayward, Arthur P. Russell, Henry F. McLean, W. A. Bense, W. E. Rowe and Arthur B. Hillman.

Across Winthrop avenue were hung many large flags while numerous smaller flags and strips of bunting gave the grounds a holiday aspect.

As evening approached the light of 1500 electric lights together with searchlights and 300 Japanese lanterns arranged effectively among the trees changed the whole into a veritable fairyland.

Among the attractions in the Pay Streak was a bona fide African dodger imported from Boston, canes to ring, dolls to hit shooting gallery and other similar amusements.

In tents a band of gypsies composed of Mrs. George K. Boyce, Miss Gertrude Greene, Mrs. Robert Park and Miss Florence Olney in appropriate costume under the direction of Mrs. N. O. Parker, looked into the future of those who entered.

In the afternoon and evening, "The Elopement of Ellen" which was so successfully presented at the High school senior dramatics was reproduced by the same cast.

The play was given in the open air and the finish which characterized the whole production testified to the thorough and efficient instruction of Miss Molly G. Brown, under whose direction it was given.

An orchestra consisting of Messrs. Harry Smith, Charles Sayward and Max Pinkham furnished music between the acts.

Late in the afternoon and during the time supper was served music of a small Italian orchestra was enjoyed.

One of the useful as well as novel portions of the affair consisted of a bureau of information in charge of Mrs. Walter J. Wellington.

The goose pen or grabs in charge of Miss Dorothy Fay was presided over by Miss Olive Fay in the costume of Mother Goose.

A pretty feature of the affair was a May pole dance by the little girls of the Sunday school under the direction of Miss Fanny Johnson and Miss Evelyn Cummings.

In the afternoon sports were enjoyed under the direction of Rufus F. Leach, H. A. Stevens, A. R. Moulton and H. H. Ralph.

Following are the winners:

Wheelbarrow contest for Married Men—Won by Nathen S. Robinson, Rufus F. Leach second, R. S. Hirtle third.

Girls Shoe Lacing Contest—Won by Helen Thompson, Dorothy Sprague second, Helen DeNormandie third.

Nail Driving Contest for Young Ladies—Won by Mrs. Geddes, Mrs. Thompson second, Miss Weston third.

Wheelbarrow Contest for Young Men—Won by Gordon R. Jameson, Leon D. Browne second, Harold M. Gore third.

Shoe Lacing Contest for Boys—Won by Stanley Cummings, Wesley Browne second, Horton Page third.

In the afternoon auto rides were enjoyed by young and old through the kindness of Dr. C. S. Adams, Dr. Charles L. Munroe, Albert W. Fay, Arthur B. Hillman and E. E. Jameson.

Mayor Shea was an interested guest and before leaving spoke a few words congratulating the committee upon the success of the affair.

In the evening vocal solos by Miss Winifred White were enjoyed, as were also stereoptican views in charge of Roy C. Baker. Graphaphone concerts were enjoyed throughout the day.

Dancing on the lower floor of the Page residence under the direction of Mrs. F. C. Merrill, to the music of Merrill's orchestra closed the evening and one of the most successful as well as extensive affairs which Wollaston has even known.

Following are the committee under the charge of an executive committee, with Mrs. W. E. Rowe as chairman, composed of Rev. Carl G. Horst, Walter J. Wellington, Mrs. E. J. Cummings and Dr. C. S. Adams.

Advertising—Miss Harriet Turner chairman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Baker, Mr. Fred C. Sanborn, Mr. A. W. Rohn.

MRS. M. E. HANSON.

The many friends of Sergt. Mark E. Hanson, of the Police department sympathize with him in the great loss which has overtaken him in the death of his wife, who passed away Sunday afternoon after a very brief illness.

Mrs. Hanson was taken ill last week and it was decided that the only hope of her life was in an operation which was performed Friday. She rallied from this but Saturday night complications set in and her illness took a turn for the worst. Sergt. Hanson was summoned to her bedside Sunday morning and he with a daughter remained by her side until the end came shortly before 5 o'clock.

Mrs. Hanson who was in her seventieth year was a Maine woman but has resided in Quincy for many years. She was a woman of sterling qualities who loved her home and family. She cared not for travel or outside amusement but took great comfort and happiness in her own home, surrounded by her husband and daughters, and it was indeed a very happy family until the grim reaper made its appearance.

Mrs. Hanson leaves besides a husband four children, one son, Frank who resides in Providence, and three daughters who reside at home. Funeral services will be held from her late residence 963 Hancock street, Wednesday at 2. 30.

Today is flag day and flags are being displayed on many public buildings and private residences.

CHILDREN'S SUNDAY

Special Services Held by Several Churches

Sunday was observed by several of the Sunday schools as children's day with appropriate exercises.

BETHANY CHURCH.

At the Bethany church the children's day service was held in the morning under the direction of Ernest W. Branch the superintendent. The program included a carol service entitled "Open Doors" after the service there was an address by the pastor Dr. E. N. Hardy.

Bibles were presented to all the children of the school who had attained the age of seven years during the past year.

The service was followed by the baptismal service at which the following children were baptized by the pastor:

Ryder; Joseph, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Arbuckle; Mildred Sherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Parsons; Russell Cameron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Scammell; Sarah Gertrude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hughes; Harold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen W. Parry; Doris Florentine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Nelson; James Millidge, and George Hoyt, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Millidge LeCain, Dorothy Blanche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Acorn; Frank Oscar, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Irwin. Also the consecration of Dorothy Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Goddard.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

A somewhat novel sermon was preached by Rev. Joseph Walther of the Wollaston Baptist church on Sunday morning entitled "Emblems of the Bible." The day was Children's Sunday at the church and his sermon was especially addressed to them, a large number being present.

In turn he compared the Bible to the energy of the fire, the destruction and destructive power to the hammer; the reflection of the mirror; the planting of the seeds; the protections of the sword; the healing power of the medicine; the light of the lamp; the guide of the pattern; the purity of the water; the nourishment of the meat and the sweetness of the honey.

As he dwelt upon each subject he held in view a representation of each in order to make the lesson clearer to the childish mind.

In the Sunday school, two classes were graduated from the primary department with appropriate exercises and the presentation of diplomas by the pastor.

ATLANTIC MEMORIAL.

In the Memorial church, Atlantic, Sunday morning, Children's Sunday was observed with a splendid program. It is customary to have the children's concert in the evening, but a new plan was adopted by Rev. Mr. Davison and it worked very well, the church being filled, with many standing. The exercises lasted one hour and a half after which potted plants were distributed to every member of the school. The stage and platform were decorated beautifully by the members of Mrs. Harry Wells's class with a profusion of daisies and syringa. The opening number was a hymn sung by the congregation, followed by a prayer led by Mr. Davison. The quartette consisting of Mr. Clifford N. Bean, Miss Annie B. Harding, Miss Maude E. Read, Mr. W. N. Ware sang "Who Could It Be," as a response from Alexander's Gospel Hymns. The exercise by Mrs. Frank Bowman's class, followed by a duet by Adelaide Figenbaum and Eldene Young.

Recitations and song by Miss Florence Hill's class.

Recitations by Ralph Smith, Jeanie Brown, Annabel Brown and Marion Stocker.

Song by primary department under Miss Annie Harding's direction.

Quartette, "A Lort Most Holy," following Mr. Davison's Scripture.

Exercises by Miss Louise Wildes, Miss Cora Harding's, Miss May Buckley, Miss May Young, and Miss Iva Brigg's class.

Song by Onida Keay, Gretchen Young, Marion Newcomb, Doris Cummings and Margaret Read of Mrs. Wells' class.

In conclusion, Assistant Superintendent Walter F. Blake and Fred M. Burditt made a few remarks, after which the congregation was dismissed by the benediction.

WEST QUINCY M. E. CHURCH.

"Children's Day" was observed at the Hall Place M. E. church on Sunday. In the morning the pastor, Rev. C. H. Raupach, took for his text, Mark 10: 14. "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of God."

In the evening an interesting program was given, which included singing by the Sunday school, responsive reading, recitations by Maud Nichols and Milton Campbell; exercises by scholars of Miss Lillian Johnson's class; recitations by Ralph Newcomb, Addie Newcomb, Leslie McCormick, Margaret Matteson, Carl Olson and Edith Nichols; exercises by Miss Miller's class; recitations by Grace Nichols, Artis Raupach, Mona Norris; Herbert Farnham, Willis Conway, Henry Nichols and Edna Miller.

The church was beautifully decorated with plants and flowers under the direction of Miss Catherine Hodgkinson and Miss Mary Williams.

WASHINGTON ST. CHURCH.

Children's Day was observed by the Sunday school of the Washington Street Congregational church Sunday morning.

The program included responsive readings and singing by the school and exercises by several of the classes. There was also an address by the pastor.

Stranger Undressed in Street Went to Bed in a Church

Strange and mystical are the tales connected with grave yards, stranger still, some of the things which happen to churches in lonely rural districts; but the strangest thing in the history of the Hall Place M. E. church took place between Saturday night and the wee small hours of Sunday morning. Just when or how it happened, no one knows and the affair will probably always remain a mystery to those connected with it.

On Saturday afternoon several of the young ladies connected with the Sunday school were at the church decorating for "Children's Day" to be observed by the Sunday school on Sunday, and after completing their work they went home, forgetting to close and lock the window in the library. No one thought of the open window, but the janitor finding it necessary to go to the church at an eary hour, was surprised to find lying in the street, in front of the church, a man's suit of clothes, which a number of boys were ransacking.

After sending the boys along the janitor looked about for the owner of the clothes but not finding any clew to the mystery, he went on his way to the church.

On entering the building he was surprised to hear loud sounds coming from the vestry of the church and upon investigation found a man curled up on the platform apparently enjoying his hard bed.

It was no easy task to arouse the heavy sleeper, but great was the man's dismay when he at last came to himself and found that he had spent the night in the church.

The funniest part of the experience is the man had found the janitor's "duster," which he had put on evidently thinking it was his nightshirt.

Conversation revealed the fact that the man was on his way home from Boston and he very plainly remembers climbing in the church window, but the rest remains a blank. Just why he left his clothes in the street in front of the church or how he became so comfortably curled up in his strange bed will probably always remain a mystery as no one saw or heard him, and the man himself cannot remember all that happened, but it is safe to say that whoever goes to this church again to decorate will be very careful to close and lock every entrance to the building.

A holiday this week Thursday, June 17th.

The sports did get one fine Saturday at last.

The new late car to West Quincy Saturday night was a big success all right as far as the crowds went. In fact the car was filled nearly to the bell rope.

Again we beg leave to call the attention of the city authorities and the electric light company officials that the arc light up among the trees at the corner of Hancock and Temple streets should be located over the center of Hancock street. It ought to be made to at least show itself.

Yesterday was Memorial Sunday for the firemen, the men who perform heroic acts as matters of public duty pure and simple, without any hope of getting Carneigie medals, and little chance of getting more than a passing mention. It has always been a matter of some curiosity why the Veteran firemen's association of Quincy or the relief society does not decorate the graves of dead members of the Quincy fire department. It is done in all the small towns around here and a start ought to be made in Quincy.

The police should use every effort to apprehend the men who stabbed a citizen on a public street last night. No matter what provocation there is, and there seems to have been none last night, the use of dangerous weapons on the public streets after dark should be prohibited as far as it is in the power of the law to do so. It should be given to every man, woman and child to walk the streets of the city at all times in perfect safety. When that right is refused it is time to take drastic measures.

An important council meeting will be held tonight and should be attended by all citizens interested in the public affairs of the city. It is probable that the trolley freight bill will come up for another reading and it is also probable that the Houghs Neck school house order will be reported. There should be a free, frank and full expression of opinion on both of these matters, and especially tonight on the trolley freight order because the Houghs Neck matter will last over until another meeting before any final action can be taken. The committee on streets reported, at the last meeting of the council, a trolley freight order favorable to the railway company but hedged around with a number of safeguards. There is a disposition on the part of some councilmen to hold up the order so that there is sure to be a debate on the question. It is to be hoped that all discussion will be fair, even-tempered and good-natured for a question of so great moment should be approached superbly deliberately and without prejudice.

His connection with the New England Shoe and Leather Association is expected to result in making that influential organization an even more important factor in the upbuilding of the shoe and leather industry of this section than it has been in the past.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

AROOSTOOK'S FOREST FIRES

Unusually Heavy Loss Suffered During the Past Week

POTATO FARMERS IN GLOOM

Presque Isle Fire, In Which Large Quantity of Tubers Was Destroyed, Was Expected to Benefit Those Who Raised Them In Other Sections, but Fate Wills Otherwise—Showers Help Work of Forest Guardians

Houlton, Me., June 14.—From wooded stretches of timberland, aggregating several hundred square miles, and from a thriving township which had shown much improvement during its single year's tenure of life, to barren and desolate stretches of charred tree stumps and a hamlet now composed of only the blackened building supports where formerly the town of Hinman flourished, was the transition of a single week in Aroostook county as a result of the consuming sway of forest fires.

The light rains which fell in some places Friday night and Saturday morning did considerable toward stemming further progress, but the embers were not wet sufficiently to prevent further renewal of a blaze, and it is necessary to be on the alert, watching all sparks.

It is scarcely a fortnight ago since the potato farmers summed up their profits of the season and found they were to have a record-breaker. The first contrary effect was the Presque Isle fire of last Monday, which wiped out part of that town, destroying nearly half a dozen potato storehouses, well stocked with tubers.

To farmers in other sections this proved a further boon, as the price advanced nearly 50 cents before the end of the week. But these other farmers had scarcely contemplated their additional incomes before many of them were forced into the forests and fields to protect their homes and property against the invasion of fire. And not only were their forests, and in some cases their houses, ravaged, but many of them found their potatoes ruined in fires which had caught in the storehouses without destroying them.

While the territory in the vicinity of Smyrna Mills was the greatest sufferer in the extent of the flames, an area of 100 miles being covered in intermittent destruction, last night a brisk wind blew the flames there back over the previously destroyed sections and no further progress was made.

At Island Falls light showers served to lay the embers and, although the same wind tossed them about in some cases rekindledled them, the watchfulness of the wardens prevented any gains.

At Calais the situation remains about the same, the two fires in four towns being well confined by use of back-fires and trenches. The Presque Isle fire was also quiescent last night and no immediate continuation of the past week's excitement is expected.

SPAIN PRODDING CUBA

Expects New Republic to Help Settle the Spanish Debt

Paris, June 14.—It is stated here that the Spanish minister to Cuba has handed the Cuban government a note embodying a claim for the payment of a share of the Spanish debt.

It is pointed out in the note that the American plenipotentiaries in Paris in 1896 refused to make a decision on this point, holding that the suzerainty had descended on the Cuban republic and not on the United States.

The Spanish government now considers that the time has now arrived to press the claim, the republic having assumed sovereignty.

NO SERIOUS DAMAGE

Admission That the Michigan Went Aground During Trial Trip

Washington, June 14.—While it is admitted at the navy department that the new battleship Michigan went aground off Cape Cod during her trial trip last Friday, denial is made to the report that her propeller is badly damaged and that it will be necessary for her to return to drydock for repairs before continuing the trials.

It is said that the vessel barely touched the mud bottom. The vessel is still in the hands of her builders, the New York Shipbuilding company, not yet having been accepted by the government.

Nineteen Killed In Turko-Persian Row

Tabriz, June 14.—An altercation between the Turkish consul at Salmas and gendarmerie led to a conflict with the Turkish troops, in which the Persians lost twelve killed and the Turks seven killed and a large number wounded.

A Compliment to Griscom

Rome, June 14.—Queen Helena received Lloyd C. Griscom, the American ambassador, in farewell audience. This was an unusual mark of esteem, as it is customary for ambassadors when retiring to be received only by the king.

THORDIS A FLYER.

New Boat of Commodore Dawes Wins Opening Race.

The first race of the season under the auspices of the Wollaston Yacht club was sailed Saturday afternoon off the club house in a fresh westerly wind. The race was a particularly interesting one to the club members from the fact that the Thordis, the new flyer of Commodore Dawes sailed her first race under the colors of the Wollaston club.

She was pitted against the Pocahontas who has won many races in other seasons. The latter beat the new boat by 37 seconds in actual time but the corrected time gives the race to the Thordis by 2 minutes, 49 seconds.

The Thordis has recently come from Bayonne, N. J., and is not as yet in the best sailing trim. Her work of Saturday would make it appear that she will give some of the boats of her class a hard run in the seasons races.

The Whisper had things her own way in class B, as she was the only yacht to sail over the course.

In class C the Tyrant had an easy victory over the Kitten.

The judges were George H Stebbins, A. L. Baker and George D. Elmer. The summary:

IRIS GETS ANOTHER.

Postponed Race of the Quincy Yacht Club Saturday.

The Iris added another feather to her cap Saturday in the race of the cape cat boats of the Quincy Yacht club. The race was one postponed from a week ago on account of bad weather. Saturday however the wind was fairly strong from the west, and all the old rivals were out for the fight. The course was a triangular one of seven miles and the Iris was an easy winner, beating the Busy Bee, last year's champion on both actual and corrected time. The Busy Bee got second position however and the Almira third, Josephine fourth, and the Hustler, Commodore Robbins old boat, last position.

In class B the Shoofly was a winner, and in class C the Monsoon.

During the race the Dorchester Woman's club which was holding its annual outing at the beach were extended the use of the club house by Commodore Robbins, and the 100 members watched the race from the broad piazzas of the club house.

The summary of the race was as follows:

THOUSANDS PAY TRIBUTE

Hale's Body Lies In State Preceding Funeral Service

OF A VERY SIMPLE NATURE

Men High In Rank Listen to Prayer and Reading of Scriptures, and Join In Singing Two Hymns—Minister and Patriot's Memory Honored With Eulogies In Church Crowded With People From Every Walk of Life

Boston, June 14.—Under the golden domes of the auditorium of the South Congregational church, where for many years Edward Everett Hale broke the bread of life to his people, there gathered on Sunday the great Unitarian family of Boston to quietly pay its last reverent tribute to the earthly form of the great leader of Unitarianism, the preacher, author, philosopher and friend of all mankind.

Rulers and ambassadors, men high in the councils of state and nation, representatives of the first educational and religious institutions of the land and of national societies also sat among those before the bier of Hale and joined in the simple, impressive service of the Unitarian faith. Great banks of flowers were massed about the Stars and Stripes at the front of the church, many laurel wreaths bearing ribbons emblematical of notable societies of which the deceased was a member.

There were no eulogies pronounced at the South Congregational church, these being delivered by prominent clergymen of other creeds at the Park Street church, where there was gathered at the same hour the friends and admirers of Hale from every walk of life. Throughout the city from sunrise to sunset flags were floated at half mast by order of the city's chief executive.

The body of Hale laid in state from 10 until 1 o'clock in the South Congregational church and was viewed by many thousands. The church was then closed to all except members of Hale's family, former parishioners, close friends and representatives of other Unitarian churches and various societies and organizations, the services for those beginning at 2 o'clock.

Rev. Edward Cummings, pastor of the church, conducted the simple services, which opened with the singing of the Doxology and a prayer by Rev. Charles G. Ames, D. D., now the oldest of the active Unitarian ministers in this vicinity. Rev. James De Normandie, D. D., read the Scriptures and prayer was offered by Rev. Edward Cummings.

Two hymns were sung by the gathering, the Ordination hymn, familiar to all Unitarians, and written by Samuel Longfellow for his classmate at Harvard on the occasion of Hale's ordination in Worcester; and "Brattle Street," a favorite of the deceased.

Although without the immediate inspirations of the body of the departed minister in the Park Street church, the speakers found what little reminder was necessary in a recently executed bust of Hale, the work of H. H. Kitson and his wife.

Some of them, fresh with the memory of Hale's countenance from a visit to the South Congregational church where his body lay, the audience was deeply sympathetic and receptive of the utmost of encomiums which the speakers voiced.

Dr. Hale's body was taken to the Forest Hills cemetery, where the burial services were strictly private and attended only by immediate members of the family.

LIKE RATS IN A TRAP

Men on Board Russian Submarine Meet an Awful Fate

Sebastopol, June 14.—All hope is gone of saving the lives of the crew of the Russian submarine Kembala, which was sunk in collision with the battleship Rostislav during manoeuvres Friday night, or of recovering the wreck, owing to the great depth of water.

Two divers have died in the attempts to rescue the men, on account of the immense pressure. Others have tried to pass chains around the wreck, but finally came to the surface utterly exhausted, having accomplished nothing. All operations have been abandoned.

The Kambala went down in 150 feet of water. Only untrustworthy bulkheads stood between the men and death after the boat was struck by the ram of the Rostislav.

The disaster occurred five miles from Sebastopol. Four men were saved, including the commander, who was giving orders through the speaking tube to the helsman just before the collision. These orders, he says, were misinterpreted, the helm being put to port instead of to starboard.

WILD SHOT HITS STEAMER

Serious Disaster Avoided by Narrow Margin Off Fort Williams

Portland, Me., June 14.—A wild shot from one of the guns at Fort Williams struck the United States quartermaster's steamer Alfred W. Drew during sub-calibre practice at the fort and, smashing through the wooden sides and bulkheads of the steamer, penetrated one of the boiler plates. Fortunately none of the tubes was broken or else there must have been a disastrous explosion that would have wrecked the vessel and killed several people.

Besides the regular officers and crew there were aboard at the time artillery men and observers from the fort, watching the results of the practice. The Drew was towing the target on the range off the fort.

NEVER BEFORE DONE IN THIS COUNTRY

Balloonists Land For an Hour and Set Sail Again

Pittsfield, Mass., June 14.—A balloon journey which started from here at 12:15 a. m. Sunday, with William Van Sleet as pilot and W. C. Bramhall and Edgar L. Robbins of Boston as passengers, ended at 10:32 a. m. in East Alstead, N. H., after a prior landing had taken place three hours previously.

The nature of this landing was such as has never before happened in this country, it is believed. The balloonists landed first at Dummerston, Vt., and in one of the farmhouses there they partook of breakfast while the residents held their balloon.

GOT BUSY WITH PISTOL

Cavalry Corporal Shoots Two Superior Officers, a Corporal and Self

Des Moines, June 14.—Corporal Leslie Crabtree probably fatally shot Captain J. C. Raymond, commanding officer of Troop B, second United States cavalry, at Fort Des Moines, shot and seriously injured Sergeant Washburn and Corporal Such, who attempted to disarm him, and then shot himself, the bullet striking a rib above the heart and crushing the bone. He may recover.

Crabtree had been reprimanded by Raymond because of failure to report when a leave of absence had expired. Later Crabtree dmanded that he be sent to another department of the army. This Raymond refused to consider, telling the corporal he could not do that as long as he was not a good soldier. Immediately Crabtree drew a revolver and began firing.

CONGREGATION IN A PANIC

Lightning Strikes Wisconsin Church, Killing One Worshipper

Green Bay, Wis., June 14.—Lightning struck the steeple of Holy Cross Catholic church at Bay Settlement during mass Sunday and killed Edward Duchane, 20 years of age, and shocked and injured sixteen other persons, two of whom may not survive.

Panic prevailed for several minutes after the bolt struck. It was some time before Father Mickers could quiet the excited congregation of more than 200 persons.

Hill-Climbing Record Broken

Worcester, Mass., June 14.—Overcoming the several steep and uneven rises which have given the incline the name "Dead Horse hill," nearly two score automobiles competed in the annual climbing contest of the Worcester Automobile club. The record for the mile hill course, with a grade averaging 375 feet to the mile, was broken by L. F. N. Baldwin in a Stanley steamer, who reached the summit in 54 seconds.

Weston's Shoes Worn Out

Granger, Wyo., June 14.—Edward P. Weston passed Sunday at Marston, the first town east of Granger, waiting for a pair of new shoes.

TEACH THE CHILDREN TO SWIM.

This is sensible and timely advice and should be more generally heeded than it is. Swimming is one of the most important accomplishments for girls or boys and should be constantly taught as reading or writing.

In some foreign countries swimming is a part of the training of the children and they enjoy the sport and the assurance of it. Here in America learning to swim, until quite recently, was a go-as-you-please boys' sport, and if the boy didn't get drowned before he had learned how to swim, it was a wonder. The boys' summer camps and the Y. M. C. A. camps of late years have had competent instructors and the art of swimming has been taught for years in city natatoriums; but the proportion of American boys and girls who know how to swim is very small and should be largely increased. To have children taught by competent instructors how to swim is most important. Swimming is easily acquired and to be once a swimmer is to be always a swimmer.—Norwich Bulletin.

TWO QUINCY PRIESTS OFFICIATE.

At the 10.30 mass at St. John's church Sunday morning, two Quincy born priests officiated. The mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Stephen of the Franciscan order who, in the world, was known as Samuel F. Donovan, a son of former City Physician Samuel M. Donovan. The sermon of the mass was preached by Rev. William T. Walsh of the Paulist order who gave an eloquent discourse on the fall of the soul into sin and its redemption by penance, his text being: "Out of the depths have I cried, O Lord.

Both priests were given a hearty greeting by former friends after the service. Rev. Fr. Walsh is a former high school pupil and was prominent in the athletics of that school.

—One of the reasons assigned by Mme. Sembrich for her retirement from the operatic stage at the height of her popularity, was the lack of new operas composed for the lyric sopranos. "An artist," she said, "cannot live now on a repertoire of Gildas, Lucias and Traviatas, for the taste of the public has advanced beyond such works. The composers are writing nothing new for lyric sopranos. The last new role I created was Mimi in 'La Boheme' and immediately after that opera Puccini turned his attention solely to dramatic roles. When I first became a singer, the old Italian repertoire was already losing its hold, and the operas of Wagner were beginning to have an influence. Think, then how little those old works must correspond to the musical taste of today! If composers had written new roles for singers with my style of voice, I might have listened to my friends and managers and not ceased to sing in opera. But so long as the old music is all I find suited to my voice, I prefer to sing in concert where I can always make my programme of the best. That I have kept my voice in the condition it is today, is altogether due to the fact that throughout my career I have steadily refused to sing anything that did not lie within my powers."

—The Boston Herald has installed and put into operation for the collection of news, the first wireless sending and receiving apparatus ever used by a New England newspaper. The range of the plant, which is fitted with some of the most perfect appliances known to electrical science, is such as to put The Herald, either directly or indirectly, in communication with wireless operators on land and sea in all parts of the world. Under ordinary conditions, the power of the apparatus enables it to have direct messages from places as distant as the Isthmus of Panama, and from steamers one thousand miles out on the ocean; when conditions are favorable, these distances are much exceeded, a range of at least 2000 to 2500 miles being attainable. As the electrical pulses travel through the ether at the speed of light, a message sent out from the antennae located at the top of The Herald building on Tremont street would compass a quarter of the circumference of the globe in the 1-30 of a second.

NEW ENGLAND COMPOSERS.

If there were any doubt about there being a New England school of musical composers the recent announcement of the prize winners in the competition of the National Federation of Musical clubs would disprove that idea. Harmony still makes its home in the land of the pitchpipe and psalm book. The ancient Puritan Commonwealth where there used to be charges and counter charges of yielding to the Devil's influence whenever it was proposed to introduce a pipe organ into a church has for now so many years given encouragement to the musical arts that serious composition is more successfully studied and practised in and around Boston than anywhere else on this side of the water.

The records of he two young musicians who captured the prizes at Grand Rapids are characteristic. The winner of the prize for the best musical setting of "The Culprit Fay" is Henry K. Hadley, a Massachusetts man whose father was for more than 30 years director of music in the public schools of Somerville. The son studied under Steven Emery and George W. Chadwick at the New England Conservatory of Music, then as now the oldest, largest and best equipped school for professional study of music in America.

A complete account of New England composers would mention musicians like Arthur Foote, born at Salem in 1853 and author of a long list of songs, anthems and oratories; Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, a native of New Hampshire, whose Rose of Avontown is one of the most exquisite of modern cantatas; Miss Margaret Ruthven Lang, daughter of the veteran musician B. J. Lang, and author of several famous overtures; Henry M. Dunham, a native of Brockton, an instructor in organ music at the New England Conservatory for many years, and author for various important works for the church organ; and perhaps a score or more who constitute a school which has long since gained a national reputation for its achievements and of which New England people are rightly proud. It is expected that the development of grand opera under the auspices of the Boston Opera Company will give further incentive for the writing of serious music in New England.

DEWEYS SCALP THE QUINCYS

Result of Games Played on Many Diamonds Saturday

With the score tied 1 to 1, two men out and Dam on third as a result of a pass and two sacrifice hits, Glasco made a wild throw on Butman's grounder and allowed Dam of the Deweys to score the run that beat Quincy 2 to 1. Patterson pitched a beautiful game allowing only three hits and striking out eight men.

It was hard luck to lose such a game, as both Dewey's runs came on mild throws. Just the opposite was Adams' luck. In the fifth inning three hits were made and a base on balls issued but only one run crossed the plate. Adams pitched good ball but certainly got away lucky. He was perhaps somewhat down-hearted though, for he was minus the services of his regular catcher, Parks, who was accidently hit with a bat in the preliminary practice and had his nose broken. He gamely stayed on the field after his injury was attended to and in the sixth inning went to centre field in place of Burrell. Mulvey who caught in his place gave a clever exhibition, but at times wasn't able to hold Adams' speed.

For Quincy Billy Duggan opened with a hit to left field, but was forced at second by Burke in an attempt to sacrifice. Burke stole second and third but died there when Hoye went out on a grounder to Butman and Hayes popped to O'Dowd.

"Phil" Cullen, the old Clapp Memorial pitcher opened for Dewey. He went out on a grounder that Hoye passed over to Hayes in fine style. Dam worked Patterson for a pass and went to second on a short passed ball. Mulvey then singled to left and Dam beat it for third. Duggan let the ball go by him just a little and thinking that Dam would go to the plate, turned and heaved to McIntosh. Dam had some respect for Duggan's arm and decided to stay on third. But Billy's throw was wild passing over Mac's head, while Dam cantered across the home plate with the first run. The next two batters were easy outs.

Dewey went out in order in the second and Quincy only sent four men to bat. In Quincy's half, however, the bad work of umpire Whitney started and lasted all through the game. With one out Spiller hit to left centre and stole second cleanly. Whitney saw otherwise however and called him out. The throw was high and it was evident to everyone that Spiller was safe.

As Glasco followed with a two-bagger over the right field wall the Quincy boys felt pretty sore over Whitney's decision. Glasco was caught napping off second for the third out.

There was no more scoring on either side till the fifth when Quincy got its lone run. Spiller started with his second hit of the day. Glasco laid down a beautiful bunt and beat it to first and McIntosh did the same. Patterson fanned with three men on "Billy" Duggan then bunted down the third base line and Spiller was out at the plate. This was two out and Adams was getting away lucky. Burke then waited for four bad ones and walked, forcing in Glasco with the first run. Hoye, who by the way is the old Brown college star, was the next batter. He made a big try and came near breaking up the game. His long fly to left, however, was captured by Dam after a hard run.

The score remained a tie then until the eighth when Dewey scored the winning run as recorded above. The same teams meet again Thursday, June 17, at the Field Day of the Quincy Club to be held at the Water street grounds. The score:

MAKARIA—WINTHROP.

At Winthrop on Saturday, Makaria defeated Winthrop for the 2d time this year. The contest was fast and exciting. Makaria won through errorless fielding, opportune hitting and great pitching by Michael. Not a man reached first off "Mike" until the 7th inning.

Makaria scored first in the second, on a single by Penley and a triple by Troupe. The game was cinched in the third round on a single by Curtis followed by Bates' double, an infield out and an error.

To start the seventh for Wnihtpor
To start the seventh for Winthrop, R. Dustin bunted safely, stole second and scored on Tialliaq's single to left centre. In the 8th, Winthrop got three hits in a row but nobody scored on account of a little luck and head work by "Wes" Ganzel.

The fielding feature of the day was contributed by R. Dustin. He dove for a fly ball and captured it while stretched out upon the ground.

ANOTHER FOR CRANCH A. A.

The Cranch A. A. defeated the Bryant A. C. of West Quincy at Ward Three playground Saturday 9 to 4. It was the third straight win for the Hill boys.

E. B. DRAFTSMEN WIN.

The Electric Boat company draftsmen defeated the Fore River Hull draftsmen Saturday afternoon at Ward Two playground to the score of 15 to 7. Eggleton's second base playing was the feature.

BIGELOWS LOSE.

For the second time this season the Roger Wolcott A. A. defeated the Bigelows on Saturday, 5 to 2 at the Ward Two playground. The local boys were unable to hit the visiting pitcher who fanned 18 men and allowed but two hits. The game was well played and interesting, but the Bigelows' weakness in batting was deplorable.

READING 6; QUINCY IND., 5.

Joe Ford's Quincy team was defeated 6 to 5 Saturday by the fast Reading team. Reading won by bunching hits in the third and fifth innings. Russell the Reading pitcher, was saved a good beating by the fast fielding of his teammates. Hoyt and Duffy led in the batting, the former getting four clean singles.

ATLANTICS WIN.

The Atlantic team went to Phoenix, R. I., Sunday and defeated the team of that town 5 to 1. Atlantic played errorless ball and hit the local pitcher for 10 hits, including two doubles and a home run.

OTHER GAMES.

At Randolph the Taunton team lost its first game 2 to 0 in a well played game, while Stoughton defeated Rockland 3 to 2 at Rockland, making three straight defeats for the Rockland team.

MONUMENT UNVEILED.

The Boston Firemen's monument, which was unveiled Sunday morning by Margaret and Josephine McLean, daughters of Captain Walter McLean of the protective department at the Forest Hill cemetery, Forest ... was built in this city by J. ... White and is of Quincy granite. The monument is 25 feet high with a 12 foot base. On the top of the pedestal is the statue of a fireman. Inserted in the granite on the sides of the monument are four bronze plates representing characteristic action of the steamer, the hook and ladder, protective wagon and the old-time hand tub. It is a very handsome monument to dead members of the department.

ANASTOS PAPAS.

The funeral of Anastos Papas, who died Saturday in Milton, was held Sunday afternoon from the undertaking rooms of E. L. Bean & Co. Anastos was but 16 years old and wsa a stranger in this country, his parents being in Greece. His brother is employed by Anthony I. Thompson of Quincy, who took charge of the body and had it removed to Bean's rooms.

Services were conducted by Rev. Fr. George Sakelaaris, rector of the Greek Orthodox church of Peabody.

The funeral was largely attended by employes of Mr. Thompson's restaurants in Quincy and Mattapan, who also sent beautiful floral offerings. Mr. Thompson also sent a beautiful piece of flowers.

Burial was in Mr. Thompson's lot in Mount Hope cemetery.

B. J. Evans of the East Milton & Quincy express, has a birthday today and is also observing flag day, his horses and wagons being decorated with flags. Sunday evening his friends gave a reception in his honor which was a most happy occasion.

TROOPS AFTER MUTINEERS

Latter Captured Quarters In American Community

TROUBLE STARTED AT NIGHT

Dissatisfied Philippine Constabulary Descend Upon Americans and Loyal Natives, Compelling Them to Take Refuge In Church, Which Is Transformed Into Fort—Approach of Relief Party Scatters Disloyal Men

Manila, June 14.—Without any warning, a portion of the second company of native constabulary stationed at Davao, in the island of Mindanao, suddenly mutinied and attacked the company quarters on the night of June 6 and gained possession of them, wounding one native officer, before any resistance could be offered by a few native non-commissioned officers and several loyal membbers of the company.

Governor Walker of the Davao province, of which the city of Davao is the capital, immediately rallied the Americans and such natives as could be trusted in a large church, and preparations for defense were hastily made during the night.

Windows and doors were barred, loopholes were cut, food and water were taken into the building and everything was made ready to withstand a siege.

At 5 o'clock on the afternoon of the 7th, the mutineers began an attack on the church. For three hours the fight raged and one man named Libby was killed and four others were injured. Heavy fire was directed against the church and its defenders, but Walker and his small force replied with such vigor that they discouraged all attempts to storm the place.

The mutineers retired and evidently expected to await darkness under cover until a safer and more successful attack could be made on the church. In the meantime, however, news of the mutiny reached Mapi, a large town forty-six miles southeast of Davao. A company of constabulary stationed there hurried to the relief of Davao. Their approach caused the disloyal constabulary force to withdraw during the night. Thirty native troopers escaped to the mountains with their arms and equipment.

With the receipt of the news of the mutiny Sunday also came word that detachments of the Twenty-Third infantry have reached Davao and have quickly succeeded in restoring order. Several columns of troops were immediately dispatched in pursuit of the mutineers.

It is believed here that the mutiny was purely local, resulting from difficulties over food supplies or the care of women members of the family of the constabulary. It is thought to be confined to members of the one company at Davao. Insular officials express complete faith in the constabulary.

Acting Governor General Forbes is absent at Pampanga, inspecting new roads. He is expected at Manila tonight, when a conference with Major General Duval, commanding the division of the Philippines, will be held.

It is expected that the determination will be reached at this conference vigorously to pursue the mutineers until the last one is captured. The mutineers are all Visayens.

Next to Manila, Davao is the most important American community in the Philippines. It was planned only recently to send a regiment of American regulars there to protect the district and friendly natives against Moro bandits.

ENVOY GETS A SURPRISE

Recall Instead of Reward Handed Him by Venezuelan Government

Paris, June 14.—Jose DeJ. Paul, the special envoy of Venezuela to Europe, received his recall by telegraph from the Venezuelan government just as the protocol with France was concluded. Paul says that he was stupefied by the action of his government, as it had previously manifested the fullest confidence in his negotiations in Europe.

"I cannot understand," said the envoy, "how President Gomez could have allowed himself to be hoodwinked by the intrigues of certain political groups."

Paul's recall will necessarily retard the final settlement with France.

Hayes Loses Match With Svanberg

Kansas City, June 14.—John H. Hayes, the Marathon runner, after going nine miles of a 20-mile match race with John Svanberg, was seized with a cramp and forced to retire. Svanberg finished the race in 1:52:33 2-5. Svanberg led Hayes by four laps at the time of the latter's retirement.

Child Killed by Automobile

Boston, June 14.—Evelyn Murphy, 3 years old, of East Boston, was run over and killed by an automobile while playing on the street. The owner and driver of the car was William H. Chadwick, who was not held to be to blame and was not held by the police.

STABBING AFFRAY.

West Quincy Contractor a Victim of Italians.

Philip H. Sullivan, a West Quincy contractor, was stabbed in the back about 10 o'clock Sunday night by a crowd of infuriated Italians, who held him up and surrounded him near his home, 36 West street. The Italians had evidently been waiting for him or somebody and when he came along they surrounded him on all sides.

While he was fighting off his assailants as best he could, his brother, James J. Sullivan, came along and seeing the mix-up that Philip was in, went to his assistance. One of the gang pulled a revolver on "Jimmy" and told him to get out. Jimmy then made tracks for a policeman and getting Officer Curtin, led him to the scene of the trouble.

In the meantime Philip was left to the mercy of the Italians, one of whom pulled a knife and stabbed him in the back. The Italians then made a quick get-away, leaving the wounded victim in the street, where he was found by his brother and Officer Curtin.

Later in the evening, three Italians were arrested. They gave their names as Cesidio Marinio, 22 years old, and Luigi Marinio, 48 years old, brothers, living at 70 West street and Danota Rosso, 21 years old living at 11 West street. They were arraigned in court this morning on the charge of assault, the case being continued until Wednesday morning.

Philip Sullivan was hurried to the City Hospital, where he now rests comfortably. He will recover. James J. Sullivan was in court this morning and in an interview with a Ledger representative said: "I was going home last night when I saw my brother surrounded by the crowd of Italians. I tried to get him away but when one of them pointed a revolver at me and told me to get out I then hurried for an officer and while I was gone Phil was stabbed in the back." He said that he didn't know why his brother was attacked by the Italians. He also stated that the man who had the revolver was Cesidio Marinio. The man who did the stabbing was not arrested but Jimmy says he'd know him if he saw him.

BASEBALL NOTES.

John E. Finn of Wesson avenue, West Quincy, has returned home from St. Anselm's college, Manchester, N. H. While in the Manchester school Johnny was the star pitcher of the best team that ever represented the college, winning 18 games, tying one, and losing one. Jack leaves Friday to join the Harrisburgh team of the Tri-State league.

Spiller, the star short stop of the Quincy Old Colony league team, is certainly playing a swell game these days. He has yet to make an error in the three games played and in each contest he has succeeded in connecting for at least one hit. Going some, Spiller.

Quincy and Dewey meet June 17, at the Field day of the Quincy club to be held at the Water street grounds South Quincy.

One of the features of the Field day will be a greased pig race, for which a small entry fee of ten cents will be charged. This event is merely put on for the fun it will create, the entry fee being charged so that the whole city won't be entered. There will certainly be some fun when the greased porker is turned loose.

Besides the Dewey-Quincy game, another game of much interest that will take place is that between the old West Quincy rivals, the St. Mary's C. T. A. and the Copeland club. At the Copeland field day last Labor day the St. Mary's team defeated Copeland, and the latter will endeavor to turn the tables this year. The game is scheduled to begin at 11 o'clock in the morning.

Johnny Kolson is on the Quincy O. C. league pitching staff now, being right in the job Saturday at Garfield park in case anything happened to "Sid" Patterson. Kolson was and is one of the speediest twirlers the city today has and will prove valuable to Quincy not only as a pitcher, but as a pinch hitter, for Johnny can stick it with any of them. His fine work on the old Merrymount team was recalled by many Saturday when he was warming up.

It seems as though George Fallon should get a chance to show his calibre with the Quincy team. In the preliminary game with Rockport George made good with a vengeance and showed his class by getting two pretty hits. Since then he has not been used except to bat Saturday. To be sure he struck out Saturday but the umpire had natural nervousness of pinch hitter had a lot to do with it. We do not wish to manage the Quincy team, but only suggest that it would be a popular move to give this youngster a chance. George used to play the infield and perhaps he couldn't have played the pivot psoition as well as the man who filled it Saturday.

The Quincy team has lost the services of Fred Smith, its star-catcher who has gone to the New Bedford team of the New England. Fred played the outfield the other day, although he was taken down as a catcher.

Butman, the first sacker and captain of the Dewey team sure is a hummer. He is in the game all the time and his coaching reminds one somewhat of the only and original Hughey Jennings of the Dertiot Tigers.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whall of Webster street, who have been on a three weeks' fishing trip in Montreal and vicinity, returned to their home Sunday morning.

PAVING HANCOCK STREET.

The Committee on Streets reported an order appropriating $10,000 for paving a section of the west side of Hancock street. Referred to the Finance Committee.

HOUGHS NECK SCHOOL LOT.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported a substitute order appropriating $4,170 for the purchase of 41,700 square feet of land known as the Rackham lot for a school lot at Houghs Neck.

Councilman Smith offered a minority report appropriating $6,500 for the purchase of the triangular Cavanagh lot. He moved the substitution of the minority for the majority report.

In support of his report Councilman Smith said that he could not see how the Council could do anything else after the sentiment that had been expressed by the citizens of Houghs Neck. He thought the city would get its moneys worth in the Cavanagh lot.

Councilman Gardner opposed. The Committee gave this very careful consideration. At no time has Mr. Cavanagh presented anything the council could act on. The Rackham lot is high and dry. For a school house it is all that can be desired. It will save the city $2000 and give a lot that will meet all demands. Cavanagh had not given the committee anything in writing and had not met them in a business like manner. It will cost more to put the Cavanagh lot in condition than the Rackham lot. There is no warrant that he will sell his lot for 13 cents a foot.

Councilman Walsh favored the Cavanagh lot. Money expended for the education of children was the best investment the city can make. The Rackham lot is on a side hill. There was no playground with it. No place to widen the street except to take from the lot. There was no chance to get more land if it was wanted. There is also a pond at the foot of the hill. If the Rackham lot is worth 10 cents the Cavanagh lot is worth 35. There is no question but what the Cavanagh lot is the only site for a school lot at Houghs Neck. Public sentiment is all in favor of the Cavanagh lot.

Councilman Whiton favored the Cavanagh lot. This is a business proposition. It simmers down to the fact according to the talk on the street that the majority of the Public Buildings committee will not vote for the Cavanagh lot at any time. The committee ridiculed everything that was done at the public hearing. The access to the Rackham lot is all wrong. The children will be obliged to go through a swamp. You will be

ENTERS SUIT FOR $25,000

F. A. Tupper Claims He Was Libeled By Flag Story.

Brighton High School, Boston,
June 13, 1909.

Editor of the Ledger.

Dear Sir: In reply to your kind inquiry I desire to state with the utmost clearness and positiveness that any and all statements appearing in the press reflecting discredit on my patriotism and my love for the American flag have their origin in vindictive ignorance, and are criminally false in every particular. I have, therefore, brought suit for $25,000 damages against the Boston paper which first published the libel. With kindest regards to all my Quincy friends, I am, Sir,

Ever patriotically yours,
Frederick Allison Tupper.

In a recent interview in the Boston Transcript Mr. Tupper is quoted as follows:

"The whole affair is a most jumbled error and I have suffered for it," said Head-master Frederick A. Tupper of the Brighton High School referring to the alleged charge against him that he had only British flags as decoration in the school hall at the Memorial Day observance by his school.

"When Mr. Skelton arrived to speak before the pupils," continued Mr. Tupper, "there were three flags in the hall and they were not British ones. The flags in question were all American flags, an old State flag, a Bunker Hill flag and the old New England flag, all of Colonial days. They have been in the halls for years. Outside floating over the building at the time was the Stars and Stripes.

"When Mr. Skelton saw the flags on the walls he at once refused to speak because he mistook them for British flags. The utterance came in such a way that, angered, I said: 'I don't see what harm the British flag would do you.' Then, out of courtesy, I went down stairs and got the battalion flag of the school."

Mr. Tupper's Quincy friends have felt all along that he was in the right and that it was a misunderstanding easily explained. A case of over zealousness.

A REMOVAL FROM QUINCY.

Mr. and Mrs. Sproul had lived in Quincy for 25 years and were always identified with movements to help the progress of the community. Since their decision to change their place of residence became known they have received many expressions of regret and of personal regard.

Two bells for the trolley freight.

It was a hot meeting of the Council in more senses than one.

If anyone can tell just at what point of incubation the Houghs Neck school house lot has arrived won't he make it public so he may be entitled to a Rhoades scholarship?

From the apparent unanimity with which the finance committee reported an order for the city to spend an appropriation for fireworks, it would seem as if the members thought the city had money to burn.

The removal of two poles on Chestnut street yesterday was a much needed improvement. For a long time the poles have been a menace to the safety of passersby. There are some other poles which should be treated in a similar way.

After Sunday night's occurrence in West Quincy there is nobody who will doubt the wisdom of Councilman McDevitt's order for an extra police officer in that section Saturday and Sunday nights. The addition ought to be made permanently.

When there was talk of adjourning for five minutes at 10.30 last night, nearly every councilman took out a cigar and a match and sat like so many cannoneers awaiting the word to fire. When the motion to adjourn was carried there was a crackling of snap matches that sounded like the discharge of a rapid-fire gun. An immense white peonie adorned the desk of the president. It was said to be a present from Councilman Bryant so that the president would not smell any cigar smoke. The president's eyes, however, were sharper than his smelling powers and he kept a strict watch for any indication of blue smoke that might arise from behind some councilman's desk or inkwell.

There is one committee in the city council that is doing excellent and thorough work without any accompanying blare of trumpets or heated oratory. That is the committee on ordinances. It fell to the lot of this committee to revise the entire city ordinances this year, a tremendous job of great consequence and unlimited work. The work has been done effectively and every meeting night of the council there comes a long list of revised ordinances from this committee, the reading of which will give the initiated some idea as to the labor that has been put in on the work. The thanks of the citizens are due this year to Chairman Hadlock and his very efficient committee and to the city solicitor whose counsel and advice have been of great value. When one stops to think that our councilmen get no salary the work of the committee on ordinances ought to be doubly appreciated.

The report of the majority of the city council committee on public grounds on the Houghs Neck school house lot order shows how useless a public hearing can become sometimes. This committee held a public hearing Friday night, to which were invited all the residents of Houghs Neck and any other parties interested in a school house site there. There was a large attendance and considerable talk which centered on two lots. Fully 95 per cent of the speakers favored one lot, the other five favored a second lot. The committee, in it's report last night, favored a lot that was not mentioned at all in the public hearing and for which not a single person had a word to say. Naturally, the people of Houghs Neck are asking themselves why they were requested to go before the committee and state their views. Friday night was the second time they appeared before the committee on the same subject and at the committee's request.. Apparently, the committee paid no attention to the wants of the majority of the speakers as they were expressed at the hearing. It can be readily understood that if public opinion was evenly divided on the subject the committee would try to settle the problem by giving something that would be in the nature of a compromise but in the present instance the sentiment of the speakers appeared to be so overwhelmingly in favor of one proposition that the report of the committee was a distinct surprise. Incidentally it may tend to undermine the confidence of the citizens in the value of public hearings. As a trouble breeder the Houghs Neck school lot has been more prominent than a great many subjects of more importance.

DUSTER SHOWER.

A Varied Assortment Bestowed on Miss Nichols.

Surely Saturday afternoon was a most beautiful and appropriate afternoon for a shower to be given to a bride-to-be. Miss Bertha Nichols of Botolph street was the fortunate young lady whose engagement to Mr. Chester Lewis of Dorchester has just been announced. The affair was given by the members of the Billikin club and held at the home of its president, Miss Martha Jenkins.

At 3.30 the young ladies assembled in a cozy corner on the piazza fitted up very attractively for the occasion. The first part of the afternoon was spent in making dusters, each one using a different color and stitch to hem her duster with. After each was finished Miss Nichols was dressed up in a big kitchen apron and on being told to hold it up was showered with the dusters. Luncheon was then served at a table most artistically decorated by Miss Jenkins. The table stood beneath a bower of daisies and with Miss Nichols at the head and Miss Jenkins opposite, it made a very pretty scene.

At each place was a hand painted place card in the form of a box, with a cupid sitting on the lid, on the inside were painted orange blossoms. Miss Nichols had a card differing from the others, but of the same style with a bride and groom on it. On the back of each was a toast, each one being written by Miss Marion White and were very original.

Over the centre of the table hung a large paper bride's rose, from which was draped a white ribbon to every place. Miss Nichol's ribbons were trimmed with small white bows. After luncheon the table was cleared and Miss Nichols pulled her ribbons, and down from the rose came rice, and confetti and ten white handkerchiefs. This took Miss Nichols by surprise as she thought that the dusters which had been showered upon her ended the showering. The girls then sang the Billikin song composed by Miss White, and when the chorus was repeated Miss Nichol's toast was sung, the girls having previously memorized it.

Those present were: Miss Bertha Nichols, Miss Cora M. Harding, Marion H. White, Louisa W. Hinkley, May Buckley, Florence M. Hill, Ardelia Barber, Mary Farrell, Georgianna Prist and Martha Jenkins.

A BEAUTY SPOT.

There was a young couple living in North Quincy last summer, who deserve much credit for their efforts in floriculture. Their little cottage was the beauty spot of the street, with its window boxes and vines; the yard almost tropical with its growth of caladiums, cannas, and the stately ricinus or castor bean.

So pleasing and refining was its influence, that even the little children respected the nasturtiums planted by the curb stones. It is needless to say that all this beauty was brought about by the united efforts of the young couple. We shall watch with interest that little place this summer and hope to see that their good work is continued.

There is no reason why Quincy should not be called one of the most charming towns in the state, if each one would do a little towards beautifying their homes and teaching the young to respect the efforts of others.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. SHERIFF'S RAID ON JAPANESE

Made by Force of Arms and Without Due Process of Law

COMPLAINT IS MADE TO TOKIO

One of Four Members of Editorial Staffs of Japanese Newspapers, Arrested on Charges of Conspiracy In Connection With Hawaiian Strike Situation, Alleges Violation of Treaty Rights

Honolulu, June 15.—The situation growing out of the indictment by the grand jury of seventeen leaders in the strike of Japanese plantation laborers has taken an international turn.

M. Megoro of the editorial staff of The Jiji, a local Japanese publication, who was taken into custody when the office of that paper was raided by the authorities last Friday, made a formal complaint to the Japanese foreign office at Tokio of violation of his treaty rights as a Japanese subject.

He sets forth in his complaint that this violation consists in the search of his office and the seizure of his private papers and documents by the territorial authorities dwithout due process of law.

Territorial Sheriff Henry admits that the search and seizure were made by force of arms and without search warrants or process of law, but contends that the papers seized contained evidence of criminal purpose and that the courts of the territory are open to Megoro for redress if he has been damaged.

Negoro was re-arrested Monday with Y. Sogo, Y. Tasaka and K. Kawamura of the editorial staffs of The Nippu and The Jiji, on indictments, returned by a grand jury, charging them with "conspiring by indirect, sinister and unlawful methods and means of intimidation, inciting to riot and threatening violence to prevent and hinder" the Honolulu, Oahu, Ewa, Waialua and Kahuku plantations from carrying on their business.

Negoro, together with Sogo, Tasaka and Kawamura, were admitted to bail at $1250 in each case. Pending bonds or cash bail being furnished all four are in jail. Negoro is preparing to bring court proceedings against the territory for $500,000 damages.

The city is full of striking Japanese and the tension is so great that orders were issued that the full force of police remain at the police station ready for any emergency.

Addressing the students, Nicholls said: "With your loyal support, I expect to make the college an institution of moral vigor, sound knowledge and manly prowess. In order to attain this end, you must work hard and play hard. Then the good ship Dartmouth will assuredly cross the line first."

PRESBYTERIANS GATHER

Representatives of 25,000,000 People Consider Affairs of Churches

New York, June 15.—One of the most important religious gatherings of recent years in the number of persons represented is that of the world's Presbyterian alliance, which began in this city today. In it are represented five continents, ninety separate denominations and nearly 25,000,000 members. The meeting is known officially as the ninth quinquennial council of the Alliance of the Reformed Churches Throughout the World Holding the Presbyterian System. To facilitate matters the alliance is generally referred to as the Pan-Presbyterian alliance.

The meeting will last ten days, during which subjects of great moment to the Protestant world will be discussed. Addresses have been announced upon many theological questions. In addition the attitude of the churches represented on marriage and divorce, temperance, church union and other questions of the day will be discussed.

England, Scotland, France, Italy, Arabia, Canada and other countries have sent delegates to the convention, as well as the United States. The theologians assembled here are numbered among the leading exponents of Protestant thought in their respective countries. Additional interest is lent to this Presbyterian convention by the fact that this year marks the 500th anniversary of the birth of John Calvin, who is looked upon by Presbyterians as the founder of their church.

For the Ledger.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST SUMMER SEASON.

Boston, June 14, 1909.

Advance indications point to the biggest summer season New England has ever known. Crowds are pouring in from every part of the United States to attend the commencements of the great educational institutions of eastern Massachusetts. The performance at the Harvard Stadium, June 22, at which Miss Maude Adams will be featured, is going to bring a lot of New Yorkers and others over to Boston.

Meantime the regular run of sightseers who are always numerous in Boston during the warm weather months has begun earlier than usual. Many of them are people who stop over for a few days en route for the Maine coast or the New Hampshire resorts. The "Seeing Boston" trolley cars, which have proved one of the greatest boons to sojourners who are anxious to see the points of historic interest in the Hub quickly and inexpensively, are particularly well filled this month.

Reports from every direction show that the revival of summer resort business in this part of New England is as real as the revival of manufacturing which was strikingly brought out in a recent setting forth of facts sent out by the Associated Press. Greater Boston will be without question the summer capital of the nation this year. President Taft and his official family will be at Bevery. More ambassadors, Congressmen and other representatives of official life will spend their vacations on the New England coast than ever before.

A stream of conventions from now on until after Labor Day will keep the hotels and trolley cars of the Hub thronged. The convention season began with the railway conductors last month more than five thousand of whom appeared and stayed a week officially, many of them for some days after making pilgrimages to the places that all patriotic Americans like to visit. It is proof of Boston's capacity for caring for visiting associations that the bigness of this crowd of railroad men was hardly appreciated by one Bostonian in a hundred. The Unitarians had large numbers at their annual convention the last week in Many.

The biggest single event of this vacation season in New England will be the First World's Shoe and Leather Fair, held July 1 to 31 in the magnificent domed building of reinforced concrete which has just been erected on the Cambridge side of the beautiful Charles River basin. This fair will draw to Boston thousands of shoe manufacurers, wholesalers, retailers and traveling salesmen, many of whom will bring their families for the purpose of combining a vacation outing in New England with a detailed study of the most remarkable demonstration which the shoe and leather interests of this section have ever made. The fair itself will be locally attractive, of course, with its fascinating exhibits of processes and products and its musical and social features. With its excursion rates, amounting to about a fare and one third for the round trip, it will bring large crowds into Boston for it is an affair which no New Englander will want to miss.

The Shoe and Leather Fair is expected to become an annual event at the Hub. The building will be useful for many purposes during the other eleven months. The rotunda under the main dome, modeled after the famous Albert Hall in London, will accommodate 12,000 people and will put Boston in line for entertaining conventions of the national political parties, to say nothing of horse shows, automobiles exhibitions and other affairs requiring large space. The National Leather and Shoe Finders' Association is one of the important commercial conventions that meet in Boston July 20-22, during the time of the Shoe and Leather fair. It will receive numerous courtesies at the hands of the local shoe interests.

Various other conventions large and small will come in due course. One of the foremost will be that of the Catholic Educational Association meeting here July 12 to 15. This is a national organization whose meetings will draw a large attendance from the nearby cities of New England. The great automobile meet at Lowell early next fall will draw people from outside of New England some of whom will make their headquarters in Boston, running out for the events on the banks of the Merrimack.

The attractiveness of the New England capital as an objective point for vacationists and for conventions has been greatly increased by many new developments that belong properly to the "Boston-1915" movement, which aims to make the Hub the world's model city.

An improvement which will add to the desirability of Boston as one of New England's summer resorts is the new trolley line into the heart of the Middlesex Fells. This reservation in the northern suburban district, containing some of the loveliest lakes in Massachusetts, has long been rather inaccessible because not reached directly by the lines of the Boston Elevated Company. This summer with a quick service from Sullivan Square, Charlestown, to the shores of Spot Pond another of Boston's famous forest parks, the finest in any metropolitan community, will be at the disposal of visitors as well as of the million and a half people living in the neighborhood.

The trip to see the work of rebuilding the city of Chelsea is one that interests a surprising number of outsiders. The East Boston tunnel cars which take sightseers as well as regular passenger from the centre of the city under Boston harbor and thence along the water front of Noddle's Island to the district that was completely burned in the disastrous fire of a little more than a year ago regularly carry many who are curious to witness the changes that have taken place in this suburban city.

The fame of Boston's Fenway group of educational institutions has gone throughout the country so the Elevated Company's employees frequently have to answer questions from strangers who want to know how to get there.

Many New England people do not realize that south of Copley Square between the dome of the Christian Science Church and the white marble buildings of Harvard's five million dollar medical school there is growing up a collection of schools and museums constituting the most remarkable educational centre in America if not in the world. The group is not yet complete, of course. The striking building of the Boston Opera Company will not be ready for occupancy until next fall. The imimposing structure of the Museum of Fine Arts will be dedicated about the same time. A new home of the Harvard Dental school is in construction. Several of the great hospitals that are to be located near the medical schools have not yet begun to build. Completed structures of the district, besides those mentioned, are the buildings of the Boston Normal School and the Girl's Latin School, Mrs. John L. Gardner's famous Venetian palace, Simmons College for Women, Tufts Medical and Dental School, the New England Conservatory of Music, Symphony Hall, the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's ornate building, and those of the Massachusetts Historical Society and the Boston Medical Library. This collection of institutions is really a permanent exposition of New England's leadership in education and it is naturally a mecca for thousands of Americans who appreciate the importance of Boston's educational industries.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW

What a Heap of Happiness it Would Bring to Quincy Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back.
Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work.
If women only knew the cause—that
Backache pains come from sick kidneys,
'Twould save much nedless woe.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.
Quincy people endorse this:
Mrs. George McDonald, living at 133 1-2 Quincy street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have more faith in Doan's Kidney Pills than any remedy I have ever known and it gives me great pleasure to publicly endorse them. For at least six months I was feeling all out of sorts as the result of kidney trouble. I became tired easily and had but little strength or energy to do my housework. Pains through the small of my back annoyed me a great deal. A friend, knowing of my condition advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I obtained a supply at the Cox Drug store. A short time after beginning their use, they helped me and I now feel like a different person."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
Remember the name—Doan's—and and take no other.

CITY COUNCIL

forever disatisfied if you purchase the Rackham lot and the citizens of Houghs Neck will not be satisfied. It was a dangerous corner for the children. If one life was lost it would be the result of saving a thousand dollars.

There is no nigger in the wood pile in the Cavanagh lot. The committee have no right to ask the price of a lot. All they have to do is to select the site and have the Finance committee look after the money end.

Councilman McDevitt favored the Cavanagh lot. There was no comparison between the two. Any one against the Cavanagh lot is very much out of place. There was no better site than the Cavanagh lot. The land was worth 15 cents a foot.

Councilman Flynn felt it his duty to vote where the city would be the most benefited. He believed a vote at this time an important one. From personal observation he believed there was a little personal spite. He could not see how any fair minded person could hesitate to vote for the Cavanagh lot.

Councilman Moir asked if the mover of the minority report had anything in writing from Mr. Cavanagh.

Councilman Smith said he did not have any signed agreement.

Councilman Moir. Has he said he will sell for 13 cents? Councilman Smith, he said he would sell if the building was moved. In reply to a further question Councilman Smith said he did not ask for it to be put in writing.

Councilman Moir said the Committee on Public Buildings had gone into the matter carefully. He knew of no rule to prevent the committee reporting a finance order if it wanted to. The way Cavanagh has conducted himself before the committee is the trouble. He would not agree to anything. There is a difference of $2000 in the two lots. We do not know that we can get the Cavanagh lot for 13 cents. The other offer we have in writing. The Rackham lot is the highest land of any discussed yet. I shall vote against the Cavanagh lot on the present basis.

Councilman Whiton believed it a matter of personal spite. He moved the Council go into a committee of the whole to hear a resident from Houghs Neck.

Later he withdrew the motion and moved that Capt. Fosdick be permitted to appear before the Council and state what he knew about the price of the Cavanagh lot. Voted.

Captain Fosdick said that he with Mr. Maloney, Mr. Woodbury and Mr. Uran had seen Mr. Cavanagh and he had stated he would sell the lot for 13 cents for the 50,000 feet I stand ready to give the city a certified check that the land can be purchased for that sum.

In reply to a question he said he understood that when the street was widened it would be taken from the school lot. Also that the city would have to move Mr. Cavanagh's house.

In reply to a question by Councilman McDevitt, City Engineer Sargent said that there was practically no difference in the height of the two lots.

Councilman Richards said as a business proposition he should have to vote for the report of the majority. One lot was about as good as the other.

Councilman Abele favored the Cavanagh lot. The difference in price was but 3 cents and the Cavanagh lot was far superior.

Upon motion of Councilman Flynn, Mr. Cavanagh was permitted to appear before the Council and state his price for the lot.

Mr. Cavanagh said that he had told the committee from Houghs Neck and the Councilman that he would for $6,500 sell 50,000 feet. The street to be widened to 60 feet in front of the lot.

Councilman Bryant asked if he made the widening a condition.

Mr. Cavanagh said that was in the agreement. What he meant was when public necessity required it to be widened. In reply to a further question he said he thought it would cost $500 to move the building. He did not think that he would insist that this condition should be put in the deed.

Councilman Moir asked to whom the land was assessed. Councilman McDevitt raised the point of order that the Councilman had no right to ask the question.

The President ruled the point not well taken.

Mr. Cavanagh replied that he did not know to whom the land was assessed but that he owned it. He was then excused.

Councilman Moir asked Assessor Adams to whom the lot was assessed in 1909. Mr. Adams replied that he could not state the name but it was not Mr. Cavanagh.

Councilman Freeman moved the previous question. Motion voted, 10 voting yes and 9, no.

The question was then on accepting the report of the majority. This was accepted on a rising vote, 12 voting yes and 8, no.

The order was then referred to the Finance Committee.

MOTIONS, ETC.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order for $118.50 to pay Henry F. Reiley for medical attendance for injuries received while on duty. Referred to the Finance Committee.

Councilman Smith offered an order for $6,500 for the purchase of 50,000 feet of the Cavanagh farm for a school lot at Houghs Neck.

Councilman Moir raised the point of order that this matter had been acted upon once. The President ruled the point not well taken.

An appeal was taken from the ruling of the President. The President was sustained, 11 voting yes and 6, no.

Councilman Smith moved reference to the Finance Committee. Motion lost, 9 voting yes and 10, no. The order was then referred to the Committee on Public Buildings.

Councilman Walsh moved a reconsideration. Motion ruled out of order.

Councilman McDevitt offered a resolve that the Mayor be requested to give the city laborers a half holiday on Saturdays from the first of July to the last of August.

Councilman Bryant opposed. The Council has nothing to do with the hiring of help by the city. It was left to the Mayor to do as he pleased with it. It was not legal for the Council to try and regulate wages.

The order was rejected on roll call, 17 voting no and 3, yes. Those voting yes were Councilmen McDevitt, Russell and Walsh.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order requesting the Mayor to have additional officers at West Quincy on Saturday and Sunday nights. Adopted.

Councilman Bryant offered a loan order for $2,000 to provide funds for the furnishings for the Lincoln school and for the purchase of a scarifier. Ordered to a second reading.

Councilman Smith offered an order for two lights on Smith street. Referred to Executive.

TROLLEY FREIGHT.

The order granting the street railway company permission to operate a trolley freight took its second reading. The rules were suspended and the question was on passing.

Councilman Abele moved to amend by making the term of years 5 instead of ten.

After some discussion the motion to amend was lost.

Councilman Abele said that he believed the time was coming when the state would allow something to be charged for these privileges. Five years was sufficient for the present.

Councilman Walsh said that while he had been opposed to the order the company had done some of the things it agreed to and he would now vote for the five year term.

Councilman Nowland thought five years sufficient.

Councilman Freeman opposed. The company would be put to a great expense for terminals, etc., and they could refuse to accept the approval with this limit and go to the railroad commissioners and ask for an unlimited approval.

Councilman Bryant opposed the five year term. In order to connect with Boston they will have to build a terminal in Boston that will cost over $100,000, and it will cost them from $7,000 to $10,000 for a terminal in Quincy.

FAKE MESSAGE.

Councilman McDevitt said he had just received a telephone from Mr. Conway asking that the matter be held up. He moved to lay on the table. Motion lost.

Councilman McDevitt moved a recess of five minutes that Mr. Conway might be communicated with. Voted.

During the recess Mr. Conway was called by telephone and said that he had not sent the request to the councilmn to hold up the order.

Councilman Abele moved to amend so as to make the approval void if not operated inside of one year. Voted.

Councilman Abele moved to amend so as to provide that the approval is made on the express understanding that the railroad commissioners approve all of the conditions. Voted.

The order was then passed on roll call. The vote was almost unanimous, Councilman McDevitt alone voting no.

The order appropriating $8,000 for permanent sidewalks took its second reading and was passed.

Orders granting the Electric Light and Telephone companies a location for poles and attachments were passed.

Councilman Bryant moved and it was voted that the Mayor arrange with the City Clerk to have the Council supplied with proof slips of the ordinances as they were reported for amendment.

NON-SUPPORT AND CRUELTY

Two Contentions of Mrs. Gould Swept Away by Court

CHARGE OF ABANDONMENT

Justice Dowling Decides That It Must Be Sole Issue In Woman's Suit For Separation—Question of Her Indulgence In Liquor Is Left Out—Honors About Even In Verbal Battle In Court

New York, June 15.—Abandonment will be the sole issue upon which the suit for separation brought by Katherine C. Gould against her husband, Howard Gould will be decided. This ruling was made in the supreme court by Justice Dowling after counsel for Mrs. Gould had rested the case for the plaintiff.

This sweeps away several phases of the case—notably, cruelty and non-support, and is a partial victory for Howard Gould. As to the charge of abandonment, the court held that this, too, might not stand unless the plaintiff was able to show that Gould's stipulations for a reconciliation with his wife were unreasonable. This phase of the case will be argued today.

Developments in the case Monday were perhaps the most interesting in the trial so far. George Gould, a brother of the defendant, testified, and Mrs. Gould was excused from the stand after three days of searching cross-examination.

After the case for the plaintiff rested, Delancy Nicoll, counsel for the husband, made the usual motion that the suit be dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to make out a case.

"There has been no evidence of cruelty," he argued. "One of the allegations is that the plaintiff was surrounded by spies. Nothing has been adduced to prove it."

Referring to the abandonment charge, he said that Howard Gould left his wife in July, 1906, but offered to return on perfectly reasonable terms, one of which was that she should abstain from intoxicating liquors. Mrs. Gould, he continued, refused.

During the foregoing argument Mrs. Gould became faint, left the courtroom and did not return. Then her counsel, Clarence Shearn, began argument against the motion of the defense to dismiss.

"It is cruelty," he affirmed, "for a husband, without justification, to accuse his wife of being a bad character or to entertain against her, without cause, reflections against her honor. Howard Gould's attempt to have his wife pledge herself not to drink in itself constitutes cruelty."

Inasmuch as the abandonment charge only is to be considered there will be no further mention of Buffalo Bill, "Big" Hawley, the former convict, or Ed Sholes, the reputed gambler. But it still leaves undecided the question of Mrs. Gould's alleged indulgence in intoxicants.

The most pertinent and apparently embarrassing thrust during Monday's proceedings was the exhibition of a faded, old-fashioned photograph of a young woman on a white horse, with the white canvas of a circus tent in the background. Mrs. Gould turned a dull red when it was shown, but she would not identify the photograph as one of herself nor would she swear that it was not. She thought it was "hardly fat enough for me."

This picture was introduced to show, if possible, Mrs. Gould's former association with Buffalo Bill's show. She had denied on the stand that she was in any way connected with the Wild West, though she had admitted that she traveled at times with Colonel Cody and daughter and that he was her manager.

In retaliation for the picture incident Mrs. Gould made one cutting retort to her inquisitor. Nicoll had been asking the witness about her gowns, how many she wore, how often she wore them and what became of them. They were given away, Mrs. Gould testified. "One of them," she shot in, "was given to your own sister, who is on the stage. I have aided many poor girls to get stage engagements by equipping them with my discarded gowns."

"Did it become her?" was Nicoll's only rejoinder.

As was the case Friday, most of Monday was taken up in questioning Mrs. Gould concerning her lavish expenditures. How many frocks to wear a day, how long it took to dress, and the declaration that it was "very bad taste" to wear a gown twice were among the interesting fashion hints in the testimony. The name of Dustin Farnum, the actor, was again brought in, and George Gould testified how he instituted an investigation of an alleged marriage of the plaintiff before she became his brother's wife.

RECEPTION BY PRESIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Adams Receive Historical Asso.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Adams tendered a reception yesterday to members of the Quincy Historical society at their historic home on Adams street. The reception was from 4 to 6 and was attended by most of the members of the society as well as several invited guests from Boston University who came on the express invitation of Mr. Adams. Mr. and Mrs. Adams received the guests and the latter were presented by Fred B. Rice, Delcevare King, Emery L. Crane and H. Houghton Schumacher.

The old house is one of the most historic in the city but one which the general public has not seen owing to the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Adams make their home there. To most of those who were present yesterday the visit was one of unusual interest because the place is a veritable storehouse of historic interest. During the reception dainty refreshments were served in the granite library, adjoining the house, by Mrs. Emery L. Crane. The entire affair was delightfully informal and was an occasion long to be remembered pleasantly.

The old house, or the original part of it, was built in 1731 by Leonard Vassall, a West Indian planter who made his summer home here. One room was panelled with San Domingo mahogany. Originally a small dwelling, the house has been added to until the earlier structure is almost lost in the wide front and deep gabled wings of the later house.

The Vassalls were royalists during the revolutionary war and the place was sequestered as Tory property. On the return of President John Adams from Paris and London where he had served as ambassador to France and England, he bought the Vassall property and lived there till he died in 1826. Here, too, Abigail Adams died in 1818. In this house President John Adams celebrated his golden wedding; here his son President John Quincy Adams celebrated his golden wedding and a third golden wedding was also celebrated here when Hon. Charles Francis Adams, son of John Quincy Adams, observed the 50th anniversary of his marriage.

In 1825 Gen. LaFayette visited President John Adams at this house when he was in this country to attend the laying of the corner stone of Bunker Hill monument.

ASSISTED BY QUINCY MAN.

Charles J. Glidden the world traveler and aeronaut delivered an instructive lecture on his trips Monday night in Pittsfield, Mass., which was reported in the Pittsfield Journal as follows:

"The lecture was illustrated with nearly 300 beautiful photographs taken by Mr. Glidden himself on his tours and which had been exquisitely tinted in Japan. They were pictures of mosques, minarets, churches, public buildings, roads, scenery and types of strange and peculiar people who had never seen or heard of an automobile before Mr. Glidden invaded their midst.

In charge of electrical machine from which the views were thrown on the screen was Dr. A. H. Gilson, a Quincy alderman, who has an office in Boston and has taken up this picture diversion as a hobby. He is an expert and goes with Mr. Glidden wherever the world traveler delivers the lecture which has been given in 18 different places so far this year."

HENRY HOLLAND.

Henry Holland of 556 Washington street died Saturday at the City Hospital after a brief illness with pneumonia. Mr. Holland was employed at the Fore River works and also at the store of L. W. Babcock at Quincy Point and was well known in that district. His home is said to be in New York, but none of his relatives can be located. He boarded at the home of Mrs. T. F. Merrill who with her husband is looking after the funeral arrangements. Mr. Holland's friends are contributing to a subscription to defray the funeral expenses and in the meantime an attempt will be made to locate some of his relatives.

Mr. Holland had an excellent education, both musical and literary, at one time singing in Grace church, New York City. He also wrote for several magazines. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon.

BONITO STUCK ON THE WAYS

Submarines Launched at Fore River This Morning

The submarines Grayling, and Snapper were successfully launched this morning form the Fore River plant. The launching was held at 9. 30 and was witnessed by few outside of the officials of the Electric Boat Co., and Fore River Co. and their friends, the general public not being admitted to the yards. The Bonito was to be launched but got stuck on the ways.

Preparations for the launch were commenced early this morning and everything was in readiness by 9 o'clock. A few minutes later word was given to let the first one go.

Although there was no social function at the launch the crafts were not permitted to take their maiden dip without sponsors. Mrs. J. C. Townsend, wife of Lieut. Townsend of the U. S. N. now stationed at the Fore River works in connection with the construction of the submarines was the sponsor for the Bonito.

Miss Katherine Bowles, daughter of Admiral Bowles, President of the Fore River Co., christened the Grayling and Miss Alice Nicoll, a niece of L. Y. Spear, Vice President and General Manager of the Electric practically duplicates of the Octopus, Snapper.

The Bonito and Snapper are practcally duplicates of the Octopus, one of the first of this class of sea fighters built in Quincy. They are 105 feet in length, 13 feet 10 inches beam. They will have a surface speed of 11 knots and a submerged speed of 10 knots. Each of the boats will carry four torpedoes and will have two torpedo tubes.

The Grayling is a duplicate of the Narwhal, which was launched a few weeks ago. She is 135 feet long, 13 feet 10 inches beam. She will have a surface speed of 13 knots and a submerged speed of 10 knots. She is supplied with four torpedo tubes.

When the time came to launch the Bonito the sun was rather high. This caused the grease on the ways to run so that she got stuck before reaching the water.

She started all right but did not reach the water and no amount of persuasion could start her. She will probably be launched on the next tide.

Mrs. Townsend, who was to christen the Grayling, got lost in the yard and did not arrive in time to perform her part, which therefore fell to the lot of Miss Bowles.

Mrs. Townsend then took Miss Bowles' place as sponsor for the Bonito.

BATH HOUSE LIGHTS.

Bathing In the Evening Will Now Be Possible.

The poles that are to carry the wires that are to light the electric lights on Mound street leading to the City bath house and for the two arc lights on the beach in front of the bath house, are being set today and Supt. Austin promises that the lights will be lighted Thursday night.

—The sight of a bundle of $10,000 bills in the sub-treasury awed into silence a company of 28 school children Monday, from the Gridley Bryant school at Quincy, who under the guidance of Principal Greene, were touring the city. Their merry laughter and prattle resounded throughout many of the historic and noted places in the city before the trip back home was made. Principal Greene says that a jaunt around Boston is an essential part of any child's education.—Boston Record.

BALLOON ACCIDENT.

What appeared to be a serious accident was observed by residents of Wollaston about five o'clock Saturday afternoon. A balloon was seen coming over Third hill and when nearly to South Central avenue what looked like a man was seen to lose his grip and fall. Shortly afterward the other aeronaut descended with a parachute and landed not very softly on the Beckwith barn on South Central avenue. The balloon came down in the middle of Highland avenue.

The ascension was one of the features of a land sale being held in Milton and the start was made from the corner of Beale and Adams streets. This was the first ascension of the aeronaut with a hot air ballon and by some mistake the signal was given to drop before the balloon had reached a sufficient height to prepare for descent. In his haste the artist detached the dummy whose fall caused the excitement. When this was seen, the crowd rushed down the hill expecting to find a tragedy at the bottom. All was safe however and the aeronaut was fortunate in escaping with a few knocks.

FIELD SPORTS FOR HOLIDAY

Many Events On Card For Field Day of Quincy Club

The most important thing in the local sporting schedule for tomorrow is the first annual field day of the Quincy baseball club to be held at the Water street grounds, South Quincy. The fun is billed to begin at 10 o'clock in the morning, the first thing on the program being a set of open track games. In these games there are entered some of the best known athletes in the metropolitan district. Among those entered are "Bill" Prout of the B. A. A., Frank Sheehan of the South Boston A. C., who for four years held the New England half mile championship; "Joe" Ballard of Providence Tech, the wonderful school boy runner and holder of the interscholastic one mile record; Eddie Farrel of South Boston A. C. one of the best known jumpers in this part of the country; Hedlund, the present New England half mile champion and Mike Norris of the Brookline gym and a score of others. Besides those already named there are also several local boys entered. Among these are "Joe" Elcock who won second place in the 220 yard dash at the New England championship games held last Saturday in Brookline; his brother Tom who is one of the quarter milers about Boston and Johnny McLaughlin of West Quincy who has developed into a first class jumper. The events to be contested are 100 yd. dash, 600 yd. run, mile run and hop-step and jump. Gold watches will be given to the winners in the first three events and a dress suit case to the winner in the last named event. Valuable prizes will also be given to the winners of second and third places. Hugh McGrath the well known instructor of the Charlesbank gym and starter at the annual games of the B. A. A., will start the games and this in itself should prove a drawing card. Beside the track games there will also be many other attractions chief among which will be two baseball games and a greased pig race. The first baseball game will be between the old rivals the Copeland club and the St. Mary's C. T. A. This game is billed to begin at 11 o'clock after the track games are over. At 3.30 in the afternoon the big game will take place, that is between the Quincy and Dewey Old Colony league teams. It will not be a league contest but this will not detract from the interest of the game. There will also be band concerts afternoon and evening and all in all it will be a big day in Quincy.

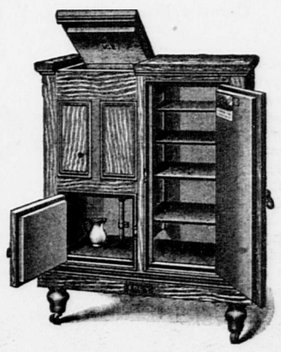

At Merrymount park in the morning the old rivals Makaria and Atlantic will meet. The game is scheduled to begin at 10.30 and as the Makaria team has already defeated Atlantic once this season, the latter will try to turn the tables tomorrow. In the afternoon the Atlantic team will clash with Joe Ford's Quincy team at the Ward Six playground.

Besides these games the Bigelows, the Adams A. A., the Cranch A. A., the Bryant A. C., the Fore River apprentices, the Excelsus class and numerous other teams all have games scheduled for tomorrow.

There will also be several yacht races and golf matches tomorrow and so there will be plenty to take up the minds of all the 33 fr.

If the city council meetings are going to be regular midnight hour affairs, it wouldn't be a bad idea to change the order of things and have them commence in the afternoon.

With the launching of three more submarines at the Fore River yards today, the city of Quincy continues to furnish Uncle Sam with more than its proportionate share of sea fighters. How many people in Quincy know what the launching of a warship means to the city? How many realize that by tomorrow morning the name of Quincy will be printed in papers in all parts of the world because of the unusual event of the launching of three war vessels?

The $10,000 order for paving part of Hancock street is a long step in the right direction. The Ledger called attention to the condition of the westerly side of this street last week. The amount reported in the order will pave the street about a quarter of a mile and a first class job should be done. There have been some paving jobs done in Quincy in past years which would lead one to think that this city didn't know what a paving block was much less how to lay them. As the home of the best granite paving block in the world, Quincy ought to be able to show a fairly good job in this line.

Tomorrow is June 17, the anniversary of a battle which meant much to the colonists in the early days of their struggle for independence. If you have nothing else to do tomorrow, go up to the top of Penn's hill and spend a few hours in careful thought on the spot where Abigail Adams and her little boy, John Quincy Adams, stood on that fateful day, 134 years ago, and watched the smoke from burning Charlestown while she prayed that success might rest upon the arms of her countrymen. The husband and father was in Philadelphia at the Continental Congress and Mrs. Adams was left alone to guard her modest farm house against marauders and hostile soldiers. Take a copy of the Declaration of Independence up on Penn's hill with you tomorrow and, after reading it, ask yourself if you measure up to the standard of that document.

That wealth does not bring happiness was never better illustrated than during the Gould trial that has been going on in the New York courts during the past week. The poor man or woman who is able to pay his or her way in the world ;who is honest and able to look every other man and woman in the face; who is temperate in his or her living and so is a good example to his or her children occupies a position in life that many millionaires could never hope to fill be they ever so wealthy. Wealth cannot produce happiness any more than indigestion can produce an appetite for food. The poor members of man occupies a position in several cemeteries wealth cannot reach. town and or this latest lesson of the into the which wealth can bring about or is to be a hope and an inspiration to the end that no matter how heavily poverty may sit upon man's roof tree, it cannot blight the security of an honest heart or an upright mind.

The courtesy and hospitality extended yesterday by Brooks Adams to the members of the Quincy Historical society was thoroughly appreciated by the members of that society and gave entrance to a delightful home situated in an historical house which is known less to the residents of Quincy than any of the other houses connected with historical events with which the city is well supplied. The reason for this is that the house is occupied as a place of residence by Mr. and Mrs. Adams and is sacred as a home to them. In this old Vassal house, as it is sometimes known, President John Adams and his wife, Abigail Adams died, and at this house, too the Marquis de Lafayette was received by President John Adams in 1825 when the corner stone of Bunker Hill monument was laid. It is a home rich in historical objects an one of the rooms is panelled in rich San Domingo mahogany which was probably done when Mr. Vassal owned the place as he was a wealthy West Indian planter who used the house as his summer home before President Adams bought it for his own use.

A light or two more on Maple street would be appreciated very much by the many people who pass over that street to and from the post office after dark.

The Ledger is pleased to know that the graves of Quincy's dead firemen are decorated every year by the remaining members of the fire department and the Quincy firemen's relief association. The point which the Ledger wished to bring out was that there are no public services in this connection as is customary in other cities and towns. The citizens of every town and city honor its firemen for, as the Ledger said Monday, they are the real heroes of our every day life who perform their work without ever a thought of credit or honor to themselves but simply as a matter of duty. We are of the opinion that the people of Quincy would like to publicly honor their firemen and it is hoped next year that public services will be held in connection with Memorial Sunday. There isn't a clergyman in the city or a man of any prominence with the power of oratory but who would be glad to pay a tribute in behalf of the people of Quincy. Our firemen are worthy of this honor and we hope to see the pretty custom become an established yearly event.

HUMILIATION FOR MRS. GOULD

Her Alleged Bad Habits Are Recited In Court

APPETITE FOR STRONG DRINK

Employes of Gould Estate Testify That Former Mistress Was Intoxicated on Various Occasions—Her Counsel Thinks It Should Have Strengthened Marital Ties—Alleged Doings at Castle Gould

New York, June 16.—Torn with anger and extreme humiliation, alternately flushing with shame, sobbing, or clenching her hands in exasperation, Katherine C. Gould sat through a trying ordeal in the supreme court Tuesday at the continuation of her suit for a separation from Howard Gould.

It was a day of testimony for the defense, during which Gould's attorney sought to bring out through witnesses who had been associated with Mrs. Gould that her habits were such that her husband was justified in leaving her.

Mrs. Gould having previously told what is required of a woman of fashion in the matter of dress, witnesses for the defense recited what they alleged were the indulgences of the same woman of fashion in the matter of alcoholic stimulants, and of certain remarks and conversations not exactly in in keeping with $500 gowns and the palatial Castle Gould on Long Island. Some of the alleged violent and profane language as related was too strong to be printed with propriety.

Specific statements that Mrs. Gould had been intoxicated on various occasions, that she called Howard Gould "you little hound" one night, that once she was apparently so under the influence of liquor as to stagger against the bannister at Castle Gould, that her maid brought liquors to her room, including sometimes two cocktains before breakfast, were brought out as employes of the Gould estate related on the stand their experiences with their former mistress.

Clarence J. Shearn, who had objected strenuously at first to the trend of the testimony but was overruled, injected into the case the rather novel argument that, admitting even that his client had been intoxicated, this should have strengthened rather than have weakened the ties between wife and husband.

"It has been held," he said, "that if a husband drank he needed the love and company of his wife more than if he were sober. Is not this equally true in the case of the wife?"

As opposing this view, Delancy Nicoll, for the defense, argued that Mrs. Gould's alleged excesses had rendered her unfit for her household duties and that this certainly justified her husband's actions and attitude.

Whether or not fit for managing a household, it was a rather erratic administration that Mrs. Gould conducted at Castle Gould, according to most of the testimony. Verbal clashes with the manager of the great estate, heated arguments at the hencoop with carpenters, one of whom testified that she "couldn't walk straight" at the time; a period when she remained in her room for two weeks, consuming during that time seven bottles of brandy with other liquors—these incidents and others were sworn to on the stand.

Also, there was an account by a former steward of an exciting night when, he testified, she wanted the house locked, although Howard Gould was on the front lawn. This, said the steward, did not seem to appeal to Mrs. Gould as an argument against closing the front door, and she told him to go ahead and lock up. To appease her, he testified, he shut the door but did not lock it.

This was the night that Mrs. Gould is said to have called her husband "little hound," a term which she applied to him, as testified, after he had come to her room to see what the matter was, confusion having been spread through the great castle by the ringing of bells in Mrs. Gould's room and the burglar alarm system.

Battleship Specifications Issued

INTEREST IN SONDERS.

Adams' Unnamed Boat Wins First Race of Season.

Interest in Sonder yachting, which calls for a small, inexpensive, easily handled but restricted pleasure boat, is reviving rapidly, in anticipation of the German invasion this summer. This will be the second time the German yachtsmen have come here to race, the cups offered this year being given by Pres. Taft and Gov. Draper.

Already a large number of sonder boats are in the water and inside of a month it is expected that all the aspirants for a place on the three boat American team will be in the race.

The American trials for the team take place Aug. 16 and at least nine clubs will be represented and possibly more as the entry list does not close until July 17.

At present members of the Quincy, Bensonhurst, Beverly, Boston, Chicago, Corinthian, Eastern, Manchester and New York yacht clubs will have boats in the trials.

The first regular sonder race was held Saturday afternoon by the Corinthian Y. C. and the honor of winning the first race goes to the unnamed boat of Charles Francis Adams 2d.

Mr. Adams' boat was designed by E. A. Boardman and was built by Lawley. It had been under sail only twice and this victory right at the start seems to be a good omen for a successful season.

Of the boats that raced the Adams' boat, Spokane III, Lady, Eel, Demon and Manchester III are of a Boardman's design this year, the Sally X was designed by Crowninshield, the Wolf by W. Starling Burgess, the Skeezix by Gardner, the Alarm by Herreshoff and the Bandit in 1908, and the Caramba, in 1906, by Boardman. Therefore it was eight Boardman boats against four other designs.

The result of the race of the sonder class shows that the Adams' boat and the Spokane III are to be feared in a breeze.

THOUGHT WRIT WAS A FORGERY

Claim of Police Official Who Disobeyed Order of Court

IS PUNISHED FOR CONTEMPT

Thirty Days In Jail and Fine of $250 Imposed Upon Officer Who Acted as Captain of Brooklyn Police Headquarters When Banker Jenkins Was Arrested, Forced to Give His Pedigree, and Was "Mugged"

Albany, June 16.—Augustus Kuhne, acting police captain in charge of the detective bureau in the borough of Brooklyn on Nov. 26, 1907, must go to jail for thirty days and in addition pay a fine of $250 for contempt of court. This is the effect of a decision of the court of appeals in the attempt of Kuhne to have the decision of the lower courts set aside.

The action grew out of the arrest of Banker Frank Jenkins of Brooklyn on a charge of forgery. A bench warrant was issued against Jenkins, but before it was executed he was produced by his counsel before County Judge Fawcett and released on bail. As Jenkins was leaving the courthouse he was taken into custody by two detectives, and under protest taken to police headquarters.

After being arrested Jenkins' counsel secured a writ of habeas corpus from Supreme Court Justice Burr, commanding the production of the prisoner before him at once. This writ was served upon Kuhne, but was disregarded, and Jenkins was forced to give his pedigree and later was photographed.

While Jenkins was being photographed Kuhne consulted with an assistant district attorney by telephone and was advised to bring Jenkins before Burr at once.

Kuhne's contention was that he had Jenkins in custody lawfully and did not produce him before the court because he thought the writ was a forgery. He, however, admitted that he knew the object of the writ was to prevent the photographing and measuring of Jenkins.

Police Department May Pay Fine

New York, June 16.—Although no announcement has been made by Commissioner Bingham it is supposed that the police department will endeavor to find some legal way of paying Captain Kuhne's fine and that he will get leave of absence with pay for the term of his sentence.

DEATH OF LOUIS PRANG

Gained International Reputation as Lithographer and Publisher

Boston June 16.—A dispatch from Los Angeles, Cal., announces that Louis Prang of Boston, an art publisher and lithographer of world-wide reputation, died in that city of pneumonia. His wife is the well-known art educator and author. He was 85 years old.

Prang's productions of color printing and reproductions of famous paintings made him known throughout the world. He also devised textbooks on art, drawing books and writing books.

Prang devoted more than forty years to the study of how to create a standard of colors, a problem that had puzzled science for centuries. Anything like a fixed standard of colors previous to his discovery had been regarded as an apparent impossibility.

TELLER HAS DISAPPEARED

Accounts of "Model" Bank Employe Said to Be Short

New York, June 16.—The issuance of a warrant for the arrest of Paul Endemann, paying teller of the Houston street branch of the Jefferson bank, a private institution, revealed the fact that Endemann was missing and that there is an alleged shortage in his accounts.

The amount of the alleged shortage has not been made known, but the bank's president says that it will amount to at least $9000.

Endemann disappeared Sunday. He was a hard worker and regarded as a model bank employe.

POLLY of the CIRCUS

BY MARGARET MAYO

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY DODD, MEAD AND COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Polly, a child of the circus, is brought up by Toby, a clown, and by a boss canvasman called "Muvver Jim." She learns to ride Bingo, a circus horse, and grows to woman hood knowing no life except that of the circus. II—A church near the circus lot interests Polly. Jim rerpoves her for her reckless riding. III—Polly urges Bingo to unprecedented speed and falls. Toby and Jim carry the injured girl to the parsonage nearby. IV—The Rev. John Douglas, much to Deacon Elverson's disgust, takes Polly into the parsonage. Tobby and "Muvver Jim" are received kindly by Douglas, who has placed Polly in charge of his colored servant, Mandy. Douglas promises to care for the girl until she is well. V—When Polly becomes conscious she declares that she must rejoin the circus at once. "Are you a sky pilot?" she asks the minister. Her mother was killed riding a circus horse, and her father "got his'n in a lion's cage." The minister reads to her about Ruth and Naomi, and Polly says, "I guess I'd like to hear you spiel." VI—Douglas offends Deacon Strong by defending boys who play baseball on Sunday. VII—Polly recovers her health, but is saddened by the death of Toby. Jim sends the news and promises to keep in touch with her. VIII—Polly recovers from the blow dealt her by Toby's death. She has ceased using slang and is educating herself under Douglas, guidance. She endeavors to improve Mandy's grammar. IJ—Deacons Strong and Elverson reprove the pastor for harboring the circus girl. Douglas declares that he is merely doing his duty. Strong declares that the girl must go. Douglas defies him. X.—Douglas suggests to Polly that she go to a seminary. Her quotation "And Ruth said, 'Entreat me not to leave three.'" reveals to both the fact that they love each otehr. Douglas takes her in his arms and tells her that she is never to leave him. XI—"Mubber Jim" calls and notes the change in Polly's Polly tells him she has abandoned the circus business.

"You can't blame the congregation for not wantin' him to keep you here. You got sense enough to see how it looks. He'd see it, too, if he wasn't just plain bullheaded. Well, he'd better get over his stubbornness right now. If he don't we'll get another minister; that's all."

"Another minister? You don't mean"—It was clear enough now. She recalled Douglas' troubled look of an hour ago. She remembered how he had asked if she couldn't go away. It was this that he meant when he promised not to give her up, no matter what happened. In an instant she was at the deacon's side pleading and terrified. "You wouldn't get another minister! Oh, please, Deacon Strong, listen to me, listen! You were right about Jim. He did come to get me, and I am going back to the circus—only you won't send Mr. Douglas away, you won't! Say you won't!" She was searching his eyes for mercy. "It wasn't his fault that I kept staying on. He didn't know how to get rid of me. He did try. He tried only today."

"So he's comin' round," sneered Strong.

"Yes, yes, and you won't blame him any more, will you?" she hurried on anxiously. "You'll let him stay, no matter what he does, if I promise to go away and never, never come back again?"

"I ain't holdin' no grudge agin him," Strong grumbled. "He talks pretty rough sometimes, but he's been a good enough minister. I ain't forgettin' that."

"Oh, thank you, Mr. Strong, thank you. I'll get my things. It won't take a minute." She was running up the steps when a sudden thought stopped her. She returned quickly to Strong. "We'd better not let him know just yet. You can tell him afterward. Tell him that I ran away. Tell him that"—

She was interrupted by Douglas, who came from the house. "Hello, Strong! Back again?" he asked, in some surprise. Polly remained with her eyes fixed upon the deacon, searching for some way of escape. The pastor approached. She burst into nervous laughter. "What's the joke?" Douglas asked.

"It's only a little surprise that the deacon and I are planning." She tried to control the catch in her voice. "You'll know about it soon, won't he, deacon? Good afternoon, Mr. Strong!" She flew into the house, laughing hysterically.

Douglas followed her to the steps with a puzzled frown. It was unlike Polly to give way to her moods before others. "Have you gentlemen changed your minds about the little girl staying on?" he asked uneasily.

"It's all right now," said Strong, seating himself with a complacent air.

"All right? How so?" questioned Douglas, more and more puzzled by the deacon's evident satisfaction.

"Because," said Strong, rising and facing the pastor—"because your circus ridin' gal is goin' to leave you of her own accord."

"Have you been talking to that girl?" asked Douglas sternly.

"I have," said Strong, holding his ground.

"See here, deacon, if you've been browbeating that child I may forget that I'm a minister." The knuckles on Douglas' large fists grew whiter.

"She's goin', I tell you, and it ain't because of what I said either. She's goin' back to the circus."

"I don't believe you."

"You would 'a' believed me if you'd seen the fellow that was just a-callin' on her and her a-huggin' and a-kissin' of him and a-promisin' that she'd be a-waitin' for him here when he come back."

"You lie!" cried Douglas, taking a step toward the retreating deacon.

"There's the fellow now!" cried Strong as he pointed to the gate. "Suppose you ask him afore you call me a liar."

Douglas turned quickly and saw Jim approaching. His face lighted up with relief at the sight of the big, lumbering fellow.

"How are you, Mr. Douglas?" said Jim awkwardly.

"You've seen Polly?" asked Douglas shaking Jim cordially by the hand

"Yes, I've seen her."

"The deacon here has an idea that

"You'll save a heap of trouble for the parson by doin' it quick."

Polly is going back to the circus with you." He nodded toward Strong, almost laughing at the surprise in store for him.

"Back to the circus?" asked Jim.

"Did she say anything to you about it?" He was worried by the bewilderment in Jim's manner.

Before Jim could reply Polly, who had reached the steps in time to catch the last few words, slipped quickly between them. She wore her coat and hat and carried a small brown satchel.

"Of course I did, didn't I, Jim?" she said, turning her back upon the pastor and motioning to Jim not to answer. Douglas gazed at her in astonishment.

"What do you mean?" he asked in a hoarse, strained voice. He glanced at the coat and hat. "Where are you going?"

Polly avoided his eyes and continued nervously to Jim:

"What made you come back? Why didn't you wait for me down the street? Now you've spoiled everything." She pretended to be very vexed with him. The big fellow looked puzzled. He tried to protest, but she put a warning finger to her lips and pressed the little brown satchel into his hand. "It's no use," she went on hurriedly. "We might as well [illegible] them everything now." She [illegible] Douglas and pretended to laugh. "You have found us out."

The deacons were slightly uneasy. The frown on Douglas' forehead was deepening.

"Oh, see how serious he looks!" she teased, with a toss of her head toward the grim visaged pastor.

"Is this some trick?" he demanded sternly.

"Don't be angry," she pleaded. "Wish me luck."

She held out one small hand. He did not take it. She wavered; then she felt the eyes of the deacons upon her. Courage returned, and she spoke in a firm, clear voice, "I am going to run away."

Douglas stepped before her and studied her keenly.

"Run away?" he exclaimed incredulously.

"Yes—to the circus with Jim."

"You couldn't do such a thing," he answered excitedly. "Why, only a moment ago you told me you would never leave me."

"Oh, but that was a moment ago," she cried in a strained high voice. "That was before Jim came. You see, I didn't know how I felt until I saw Jim and heard all about my old friends—how Barker is keeping my place for me and how they all want to see me. And I want to see them and to hear the music and the laughter and the clown songs— Oh, the clown songs!" She waltzed about, humming the snatch of melody that Mandy had heard the morning that Polly first woke in the parsonage:

Ting, ling—
That's how the bells ring.
Ting, ling, pretty young thing.

She paused, her hands clasped behind her head, and gazed at them with a brave little smile. "Oh, it's going to be fine—fine!"

"You don't know what you're doing!" said Douglas. He seized her roughly by the arm. Pain was making him brutal. "I won't let you go! Do you hear me? I won't—not until you've thought it over."

"I have thought it over," Polly answered, meeting his eyes and trying to speak lightly. Her lips trembled. She could not bear for him to think her so ungrateful. She remembered his great kindness, the many thoughtful acts that had made the past year so precious to her.

"You've been awfully good to me, Mr. John." She tried to choke back a sob. "I'll never forget it—never! I'll always feel the same toward you. But you mustn't ask me to stay. I want to get back to them that knew me first—to my own. Circus folks aren't cut out for parsons' homes, and I was born in the circus. I love it—I love it!" She felt her strength going and cried out wildly: "I want Bingo! I want to go round and round the ring! I want the lights and the music and the hoops! I want the shrieks of the animals and the rumble of the wheels in the plains at night! I want to ride in the big parade! I want to live and die—just die—as circus folks die! I want to go back! I want to go back!"

She put out one trembling hand to Jim and rushed quickly through the gate, laughing and sobbing hysterically and calling to him to follow.

DEDHAM WAS EASY MONEY

Quincy High Defeats Its Old Rival on the Diamond

Quincy High defeated its old rival Dedham high Tuesday at Merry Park by the score of 7 to 3. It was easy money for Quincy and after the first inning Dedham was never dangerous. The visitors started off like winners in the first inning. With one out Hurley shot a single to centre and was safe stealing second on a bad throw by H. Chapman. Harris then connected for a fine double to right centre, Hurley scoring. This ended the fun in the first, C. Cheney and Doyle being easy outs, although Hannon scratched a hit to McCarthy. Dedham's other runs came one in the third and one in the fifth. In the third W. Cheney was safe on a wild throw by M. Chapman on which the runner took second. He stole third and scored on a wild pitch. In the fifth W. Cheney again started the trouble getting a base on balls. He was sacrificed to second by Hurley and scored on Harris' second two-bagger.

In Quincy's half of the first the visitors went right up in the air and the local boys scored three runs right off the bat. After Manning had struck out, McCarthy got a life on Stevens' error. "Stan" Bates got a base on balls and Galvin got a scratch hit which filled the bases. "Mil" Chapman walked forcing McCarthy over with the first run.

"Russ" Bates followed with a pretty bunt and beat the throw to first while his brother "Stan" scored. With the bases still full Stevens hit O'Brien and forced Galvin in with the third run. H. Chapman then laid down a bunt for the squeeze play, but the Dedham third sacker caught his man at the plate. Brooks ended the agony with a foul fly to the catcher.

With two out on the second, and McCarthy on third Galvin hit to left for two bases scoring "Mac." In this inning Manning got a pass, stole to third and in his success tried to steal home when the pitcher threw the ball. But Harris was there with it. Billy arrived and the Quincy pivot man was an easy out.

Quincy got two in the fourth and one in the seventh making her total score 7 to 3.

It was a slow and loosely played game Bates' pitching and Harris' batting being about the only features of the game. Bates held his opponents to three hits and fanned 14 men. Harris got two pretty doubles, the hits going clean and sharp to the deep right centre. Only fast fielding kept him from getting more than two bases.

Manning, Buss Bates, and H. Chapman also played well for Quincy while Hannon and Hurley excelled for Dedham. The score:

All Tight Overhead

Overhead protection is the most important of all protection. Upon the roof comes the greatest stress of the elements, upon the roof lays the snow and slush of winter, upon the roof beats the sun of summer, and upon the roof lodges the falling spark and firebrand.

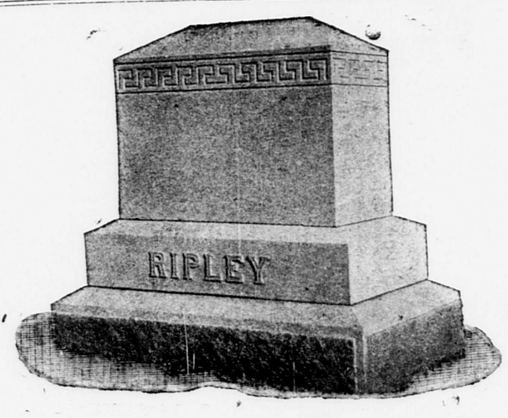

REX FLINTKOTE ROOFING

is made of long-fibre wool felt. It contains no burlap, no paper, no wood-pulp, no tar—nothing to weaken it and allow it to sag or stretch on the roof. This fibre is thoroughly saturated with water-proof materials. It does not warp or blister in the sun, or crack or break in the coldest weather. You can set a live coal on it without its catching fire. It will not stick to the roof-boards. Your farmhands can lay it. Everything needed, but the hammer, is in the roll. Every roll has our trade-mark, "Look for the Boy." Don't take anything else.

MRS. M. E. HANSON.

The funeral of Mrs. M. E. Hanson, wife of Sergt. Hanson of the Police Department, was held this afternoon from her late home 963 Hancock street, the services being largely attended. They were of a simple nature in accordance with the wish of the family and were conducted by Rev. C. L. Paddock of the Universalist church.

The flowers were many and very beautiful. They included a large standing wreath of palm leaves, lilies, carnations and roses from the police department and a wreath of galax leaves and roses from the State of Maine club. On the foot of the casket was several large sprays of roses from Mrs. Hanson's own garden, while at the head of the casket was her favorite chair, which was almost hidden with beautiful flowers, sent by friends and neighbors. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

CLOSING EVENT.

Country Club Members and Husbands Take Trip to Revere.

The ladies of the Country club closed their season Tuesday night with a trip to Revere, where a lobster supper was served to the party. The trip was made on the invitation of ladies' husbands, who looked after the arrangements of the affair. After the supper the party took in all the sights of the beach, enjoying particularly the fun at the "Pit." As there was a doctor in the party everyone took greater chances in the "Pit" than they otherwise would have done. On the return to Quincy the men presented each lady with a prize. Each prize was different but each had the same value, the prizes being done up so that no one knew what she was going to get. The total number of points made by each member during the season was also made known. Mrs. Nelson Spencer having the highest number. The others in order were Mrs. Dr. McClennan, Mrs. Albert Willis, Mrs. George Bolster, Mrs. Byron Miller, Mrs. Richard Gordon. Mrs. George Guathier and Mrs. William Robie.

Mrs. Richard Gordon leaves for England July 13, on the steamer Saxonia. She will spend the summer months there with relatives.

LAWN FETE.

Plans for the Lawn Fete at the Adams academy on Saturday are progressing finely and a big time is anticipated. At band practice Monday evening, leader Harry W. Sprague of Wollaston and manager Orville N. Estes, arranged the program for the concert which will be given from 8 to 10. The band of about twenty-five pieces, is in splendid trim and will give some fine music. They are all seasoned and professional players and this will be their first appearance under their new name—the Wollaston Military band, but most of the men are known in connection with the old Post 68 band and other organizations in and about Boston.

ANNUAL OUTING.

Manet Associates Join With Natick Brothers at Lake Cochituate.

The Manet Associates of Quincy went to Natick on the holiday and joined with their Natick brothers in their annual outing at Lake Cochituate. There were about 40 in the party from Quincy in a special car, including the goat won by the Associates at Scenic Temple this winter.

At Natick they were met by the Natick crowd and a band and were escorted to the Lake where the outing was to take place. The first thing done was to present the Natick association with the goat. The latter received a royal welcome and had a great time roaming the fields and woods about the lake.

At noon a regular shore dinner was served, everything that goes to make up a first class dinner of this kind being laid before the picnicers. After dinner there were athletic contests of all kinds, the local boys winning everything but the tug-of-war and and thereby capturing the big silver trophy for the most number of points won. It was a big day for everybody and all enjoyed the outing thoroughly.

SENIOR RECEPTION.

Fair Graduates of Woodward Entertain Friends at School Hall.

The annual reception of the graduating class of Woodward Institute was held Thursday evening in the school hall. The hall was prettily decorated with palms and potted plants and the class colors. From 8 to 8.30 there was a reception, the following receiving the guests. Principal and Mrs. F. W. Plummer, Miss Mary Dinegan, Miss Charlotee Burgess, Miss Elizabeth Pattee, class president and Miss Frances Murray, class vice president.

The ushers were Misses Gertrude F. Baker, Clara A. Jackson, Gertrude A. Shaw, Bertha W. Smith, Mildred Spear and Bertha W. Vendret.

After the reception dancing was enjoyed until 11 o'clock. During the evening refreshments were served by the following young ladies: Misses Dorothy Alexander, Nellie Drummond, Dorothy Bean, Corinne Samuelson, Emma Walker, Alice Waterhouse and Marion Whitmarsh.

THE SEVENTEENTH SPORTING EVENTS

Base Ball, Field Sports, Yacht Racing Lawn Tennis, Etc.

With flags flying and bands playing and the biggest crowd of the season on hand, the first annual field day of the Quincy baseball club was held June 17, at the Water street grounds. The day was perfect, the warm sun making the athletes lively and sprightly. Everything went off as per schedule, the committee in charge working together as a single person.

Shortly after ten o'clock the track sports began. Long before this hour the grandstand and bleachers were full. Never before in the history of local athletics has such a bunch of track stars been gathered together at one time. Among the entries were Frank Sheehan of the South Boston A. C., junior national half mile champion and a member of the 1908 Olympic team, and Eddie Farrell, also of South Boston, A. C. and champion broad jumper of New England. Besides these two champs there were scores of lesser lights, including several Quincy boys who are making a name for themselves in the athletic world. Among these are Joe Elcock, who last Saturday captured second place in the 220 yd., dash at the New England championship, being beaten only by inches; Tom Elcock, one of the best quarter milers about Boston, both running for the South Boston A. C., Johnny McLaughlin of St. Mary's, who has shown himself to be a classy performer in the hop, step and jump; and Francis Howley of West Quincy, running in the mile under the colors of the B. C. A. A. Altogether there were about 100 entries and this augurs well for future field days of the Quincy club.

The first event was the 100 yd. dash. It took seven heats to weed the boys down to the final. Joe Elcock, running from scratch, had stayed in all the time. B. F. Bowzer of Lynn Y. M. C. A. was first across the tape, closely followed by R. D. Newton of North Dorchester A. C. Joe Elcock was a close third. The time was 10 2-5 seconds.

The mile run was one of the best events of the day. There were twenty starters and the handicaps strung them out half way around the field.

George Allen of Cambridge Y. M. C. A., went into the lead at the start and held it for three or four laps when he began to tire. Then J. A. Graham of North Weymouth went into the lead and though closely pressed was never headed. Frank McPhee of the South Boston A. C. made a game fight to win, but he couldn't overcome the lead. Hackett of the Fore River Apprentices, ran a clever heady race and took third easily. Time 4m. 49s.

The 600 yard run was a fight between Tom Elcock and Powell. Tom led till within a few yards of the finish when Powell went by and crossed the finish line a few inches to the good. Frank Sheehan, running from scratch, was shut out.

John McLaughlin and Eddie Farrell had a fight for the honors in the hop, step and jump. Although local boy had a handicap of 1 ft. 10 in., the champ took the event with a jump of 47 ft. 7in. The summary of the games is as follows:

100 yd. dash—Won by B. F. Bowzer, Lynn Y. M. C. A. (6 yds.); second, R. D. Newton, No. Dorchester A. C. (4 yds.); third, Joe Elcock, So. Boston A. C. (Scratch). Time 10 2-5 sec.

One mile run—Won by J. A. Graham, No. Weymouth (85 yds.); second, Frank McPhee, So. Boston A. C. (40 yds.); third, Hackett, Fore River Apprentices (75 yds.) Time 4m, 49 sec.

600 yd. run—Won by W. L. Powell, Cunningham gym., (38 yds.); second, Tom Elcock, So. Boston A. C. (42 yds.); third F. Halfenstine, Brookline gym., (50 yds.) Time 1m, 17 sec.

Hop, step and jump—Won by Eddie Farrell, So. Boston A. C. (scratch); second, John McLaughlin, St Mary's C. T. A. S. (1 ft. 10 in.)); third, J. H. Dowd, Dorchester A. C. (4 ft.) Distance 47 ft., 7 in.

After the track sports the first baseball game was played between the old rivals, the Copeland club and the St. Mary's C. T. A. S. for a purse of $100. The former won by the score of 10 to 2. For six innings it was a good game, the score being tied 2 to 2 up to this time. In the seventh however Copeland batted Kolson hard and the hits mingled with a few errors gave them four runs. This put the game on ice and just for good measure Copeland added four more in the ninth. The score.

It was dinner time now, but about everybody stayed at the grounds, getting lunch at the booths erected on the field. It was a regular picnic day for a good many.

The next event was the big feature of the day, the greased pig race. The pig was there, covered with grease and held by his owner and donator Pete Williams Chief of the Fire Department.

At 2.30 he was released and the race began. But it was over in a second, the poor pig not getting a chance to run. "Bill" Hogan caught him and thereby won him as his own.

At 3.30 came the final event, the game between the Quincy and Dewey Old Colony league teams. Dewey won 2 to 0. The game did not count in the league standing but both were anxious to win. Dewey as usual had all kinds of good luck, but played a fast game. It was one of the best games seen here this season and several times the crowd of 1600 was brought to its feet by sensational plays.

The opposing batteries were Adams and Park and Patterson and McIntosh. Both twirled good ball and both received great support. Each team had two errors chalked up against it, but these did not count in the run-getting. Dewey's first run was a homer by Adams. It was really only a two-bagger, but the ball was lost in the tall grass of left field and Adams gets credit for a home run.

The second run came in the ninth on Park's single, Dam's out at first and [illegible]'s double to right center.

Twice during the game Quincy had three men on bases, but nothing came of it. In the second with the bases full and two out, Hayes struck out. Hayes is fourth on the list which is the slugger's position. He failed to get a hit yesterday. Again in the sixth, with Dam pitching, the bases were full, but "Sid" Patterson to the catcher.

The team lacks batters and Patterson realizes this. He said last night: "It is a shame we can't win when we are getting such crowds. But I am going to give them a winner. We need batters and in Saturday's game against Stoughton, we will have some. I am going to get a good hitting catcher, first and second baseman. I am going to have a winner for the Quincy fans no matter what it costs."

This shows that the management is trying hard to please the local fans. The fans want good fast baseball and they want a winner, and the Quincy management intends to have a winner.

In yesterday's game the work of Lonergan and George Fallon in the field and at the bat was a feature. Both got two hits and played the outfield like big leaguers.

Billy Duggan had to play short in place of Spiller who was sick and he gave a classy exhibition. Hayes also played a fast fielding game accepting 16 chances without an error. Burke on second accepted seven chances in flawless fashion. But they couldn't bat and so they lost. For Dewey, Nash of Brown college, Butman and Park

GEN. W. B. STETSON.

Prominent Grand Army Man Dies at Middleboro.

Gen. Warren B. Stetson, a well-known resident of Middleboro, formerly of Quincy, a veteran of the civil war died Wednesday afternoon, aged 66. He had been ill for several weeks. He was born in Quincy, Sept. 26, 1842, and was a son of D. B. and Abigail Stetson. He attended the public schools in this city.

When he was 18 years old he enlisted in the 4th battalion of Rifles at Ft. Independence and on July 16 was sworn in as a member of Co. B. 13th Mass., volunteers. He participated in all the battles of his regiment. In the second Bull Run he was slightly wounded. He was discharged at the Fairfax seminary hospital, Dec. 31, 1862.

He served as assistant adjutant general of the department of Mass., G. A. R., in 1898 and 1899. He was commander of E. W. Pierce post, G. A. R., of Middleboro in 1889 and 1902, and under his direction about 25 percent increase in membership of the post resulted. For a great many years he had been historian of the post, and he collected the personal and war record of nearly all its members, which were entered in a massive volume and presented to the post years ago by the late Thomas S. Pierce of this town.

Gen. Stetson also inaugurated a movement which was instrumental in building the soldiers' memorial shaft on the town-house lot. It was dedicated several years ago.

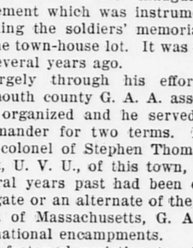

Largely through his efforts the Plymouth county G. A. A. association was organized and he served as its commander for two terms. He also was colonel of Stephen Thomas regiment, U. V. U., of this town, and for several years past had been either a delegate or an alternate of the department of Massachusetts, G. A. R., to the national encampments.

In fraternal societies, too, he took an active interest. For nearly 20 years he had served as chief of records of Nemasket tribe, I. O. R. M., longer than any similar officer in the order in this state, and he had been prominent in its auxiliary, the Degree of Pocahontas. Only recently, through his efforts, a social degree of the Red Men, known as the Haymakers, was formed by him. He was a past national haymaker. He also held membership in the Masons and other fraternities.

Town politics also interested him and for many terms he was town meeting moderator at all town meetings held in Middleboro, besides holding other officers of trust in the gift of the town. Before removing to Middleboro Mr. Stetson was engaged in the shoe business in Connecticut.

Gen. Stetson is survived by a wife, three sons and two daughters. He has two sisters and a brother living at the old home in Quincy, Mrs. Henry O. Studely, Miss Ella L. Stetson and Arthur W. Stetson. Funeral services will be held from his late home in Middleboro Saturday afternoon at 2.30; several will attend from Quincy. Burial at Concord, N. H.

GOLD FOUND IN QUINCY

Rock From Fallon's Quarry Contains Yellow Metal.

Two samples of the peculiar mass unearthed recently at Fallon's quarry when submitted to an acid test this morning were found to contain gold.

Several boxes of the matter have been shipped to Harvard college where a thorough examination is being made of it by the professors. Just what they have found however is not known as yet.

This morning a young son of Edward J. Sandberg picked up two specimens that contained a light gold like metal.

These he took to Sandberg's jewelry store where particles of the yellow specks were taken out and submitted to the acid test and were found to be pure gold.

Just how much more of the precious metal there may be at the quarry is hard to determine but it is probable that there is more of it.

Up to the present time any person who desired has been permitted to take away any samples desired, but now that the matter has been found to contain gold quartz it is probable that it will be more carefully guarded. It is possible that in the matter taken out there may be a small fortune.

GERDMAN—AHEARN.

A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Ahearn, 16 Packard's lane, when their daughter Miss Mary Louise Ahearn became the bride of Victor Gerdman. The couple received many beautiful presents and hearty congratulations from the large number of friends present, who came from Newton, Brookline and Boston.

After a two weeks' trip to New York Mr. and Mrs. Gerdman will reside at 6 Moscow street, Norfolk Downs.

STATE TAX.

The State tax this year will be $4,500,00 as against $5,500,000 last year a reduction of $1,000,000, due to revenue from the inheritance tax and to the most rigid economy, which has been insisted upon by Gov. Draper throughout the session.

The first stop ahead is the Fourth!

What is so rare as a holiday in June?

School days are over, the bath houses are open and another circus coming next week. All's well with the juvenile world.

If you think talk is cheap just try to send some talk by telegraph and watch the telegraph companies catch time by the pocketbook's forelock.

Quincy was one of the banner sporting towns in the greater Boston district yesterday. The Brockton people who informed the management of the Old Colony league that Quincy was a "frost" as a sporting town must have looked at us through frozen window panes.

The submarine boat Bonito seemed quite human in refusing to have anything to do with water after getting a quart of champagne. By the way, is her name the Bonito or the Bonita? The official notices sent out by the Electric Boat company spelled the name Bonito as does the standard dictionaries but the name on the boat itself is spelled Bonita which seems to be wrong. Perhaps that's why the boat refused to become a real bride of the sea.

Thousands of people were carried on the electric cars of our city yesterday and, considering the difficulties connected with the operation of single-track roads, with which most of our city is equipped, the car service was very good. The street railway company had an especially hard task on the single-track line to Squantum where, at times, as many as nine cars were run at one time. No doubt there are some defects in our street railway service, since nothing is perfect, but give credit when it's due.

It is a matter of fact that Quincy has, in Merry Mount park, one of the most beautiful recreation grounds that any city in the commonwealth is blessed with and it is also a fact, and a lamentable one, that very few people in this city know anything about the natural grandeur of the place. The park was given to Quincy by Hon. Charles Francis Adams and it does seem as if there should be erected a small memorial to that effect near the main entrance. To those who have never visited the park it would be well for them to do so as soon as possible. On July 4th the city is to give band concerts, sports and fireworks there and it will be a good chance for lots of citizens to visit the place and see what we have got in the way of municipal breathing spots.

Yesterday was the most peculiar holiday of the year in that it was a general holiday but not a legal one. The courts were obliged to hold sessions as on other days. Not being a legal holiday there was nothing to prevent bar rooms from being open and it is to be presumed that they did a thriving business in Boston. Wonder how many gave heed to the real significance of the holiday or paid a thought to the memory of the brave farmers who met the British soldiery on Breeds hill and there gave them the first pitched battle of the revolutionary war? Outside of a few patriotic societies we doubt if many gave the thing a passing thought. It is a pity that this should be so but the nation at large seems to have gone sporting mad and sacred occasions like Memorial Day, June 17 and others are simply welcomed as days when sports can have free and unlimited sway.

It wouldn't be a bad idea if the street railway company would instal a telephone or block signal near its turnout on the Houghs Neck line so that the car crews might not have to hold passengers indefinitely when something goes wrong and prevents the regular car that should pass on the turnout, from arriving on time. People going to Houghs Neck yesterday complained they had to wait 10 minutes on the turnout because the upbound car didn't come along. The conductor found out the reason by running across lots to some private house where there was a telephone. That curve on the steep down-hill grade at the end of the Houghs Neck line is a tough proposition for the most powerful cars. It would seem wiser not to send cars down that short stretch but start them from the corner of Bay View avenue on holidays when there is such a rush and thus avoid the necessity of tieing up the line because one car cannot climb that hill as happened yesterday.

With the advent of a permanent water supply to Squantum, all that pretty place will need to make it one of the ideal spots on the coast will be a decent road from Atlantic and better car service. Its natural surroundings make Squantum one of the most desirable places for a summer residence and with the addition of better means of travel, to and fro, there is no reason why Squantum should not make a desirable place to erect permanent homes the same as Houghs Neck has done on such a large scale during the past three or four years. It isn't so long ago that Squantum was sort of a byword but it was spoken of lightly or contemptuously by people who had never been there and who associated the place with the outlet of the Boston sewer. The real Squantum is as pretty a place as there is on the whole southern coast line of our state and its closeness to Boston makes it very convenient for those whose business interests lie in that city. Years ago Squantum had sort of a hard name because marauding bands of not overgentle young men from Boston made the place their rendezvous during the summer months but this condition of affairs has passed away. Such conditions can never evist when homes begin to multiply. A few years ago Houghs Neck had rather an undesirable name on account of certain conditions too well known to need enumeration. Gradually, but surely, the permanent homes began to come to Houghs Neck and as these homes came to stay, the club nuisance began to recede. The decent home and the undesirable element cannot live alongside each other for any length of time without one or the other giving up the fight for existence and, in the long run, the decent home will win out. The moral force exerted by the homes of our citizens is sufficient to overcome obstacles of a nature suggested above. The permanent homes in Houghs Neck are on the increase every year and law and order reigns there. People in parts of Quincy other than Houghs Neck are prone, sometimes, to criticise the people there for what some of our citizens call the "want everything" policy. They have asked for a good many things from the city in the past few years, it is true, but was not this due to the fact that they had never received anything in the past and that when the people found themselves strong enough to ask for anything at all they made bold and handed in a long list of improvements that other parts of the city had been enjoying for years while Houghs Neck went by neglected year after year. This asking for favors indicated that the permanent homes were beginning to increase and that the people who went there to make their homes felt they were entitled to at least a share of the public favors that are handed out by the city, more or less, during the year. If the permanent residents of Houghs Neck never did anything else they are entitled to the thanks of all the other citizens of Quincy for making themselves so influential that the club nuisances which disgraced Houghs Neck a few years ago, had to get out. Squantum has not been troubled with club nuisances because it is a place more difficult to reach but now that improvements seem to be coming that way we hope the permanent home will follow so fast and in such numbers that Squantum will soon enjoy all the priveleges that a wideawake, progressive place is entitled to without any of the discomforts that usually are found in attractive places near the seashore. We believe there is a great future for Squantum and it would not be surprising if in five years' time the whole place was studded with pretty homes. The summer cottages are now rapidly increasing there and experience has taught Quincy, as in the case of Houghs Neck, that where the summer home flourishes; there, also the permanent home is likely to be some day if the overcrowding conditions, now prevalent in the home-making sections of Boston, continue as at present.

Mrs. F. A. Gould and little son of Milford have been spending a week with her mother Mrs. Frances Hall of Edwards street.

The post office remained open until 10 o'clock Thursday, and then closed for the day. There was one delivery and collection during the day.

Although there was considerable doing in the sporting event line in Quincy Thursday, many fans took in the double header game in Boston.

A number of the members of Paul Revere Post and the Women's Relief Corps attended the Norfolk County Grand Army convention at Randolph Thursday.

Michael Kelly of Willard street, of the firm of Tower & Underwood, bankers and brokers, is planning to go to Montana next week. Mr. Kelly is in search of a ranch.

Miss Amy L. Fuge of the Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va., who has been visiting her parents on Center street, is spending the week end with her grandmother at Lanesville, Gloucester.

The regular fortnight meeting of the Lend-a-Hand club was held at the home of the secretary, Miss Emma Francis on Centre street, Wednesday evening. After the business session a social hour was enjoyed.

A new physician in town is William V. Gosline, osteopathic physician, who is settled on Russell park in the house recently occupied by E. H. Barker, D. O., who has gone to England for the summer.

The air was delightful Thursday and was just the day for out of door sports. As a rule the day was observed as a holiday in Quincy. Most of the stores remained open for a few hours in the morning and then closed for the day.

A lawn party under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid and Epworth League is to be held on the grounds of the Hall Place M. E. church, June 29th. Plans are progressing finely and a pleasing entertainment has been arranged.

The Fowler chapter of the Methodist Brotherhood hold a social meeting on Monday evening at the Hall Place M. E. church. A good speaker has been secured and all protestant men, whether members or not, are invited to be present.

Officer Bishop found a little colored boy wandering about City Square shortly before midnight Wednesday. The little fellow said his home was at 28 Buckingham street, Boston, and that he left there in the afternoon at 3 o'clock. He was sent to the police station and the Boston police notified.

The Dimmock A. C. defeated the Merrymount Jrs., Wednesday by the score of 14 to 3. The Dimmock A. C. played a good game the full nine innings. The batting order of the Dimmock A. C. is: O'Donnell c., P. Larkin p., Head 1b. captain, Barsel 2b., Bates ss., manager, Bill, 3b., Fraizier lf., Hibbett cf., Manning rf., R. Geddes and F. Ganzel substitutes. The battery for the losers was Larkin and Andrews.

The overwhelming vote whereby the Neponset bridge bill was referred to the next legislature by the House may be charged almost entirely to the fact that it put 10 per cent. of the cost upon Plymouth and Norfolk counties each, with also the cost of policing and maintenance. Of course those counties, which had not been given a hearing, raised a storm and the fate of the bill was decided. It is safe to predict that the same course will not be taken again.

The Constipation Evil
IS RESPONSIBLE FOR MOST CASES OF PILES.

Constipation paralyzes the blood vessels of the lower bowel, and often causes piles. Women, and all other indoor workers, are the most frequent sufferers. But curing constipation alone won't cure piles. A special medicine is needed—Internal treatment, to strengthen the flabby veins and start pure blood circulating.
Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid is the only internal pile cure. Sold under guarantee. $1 at Clyde T. Cox's Quincy, Mass., or Dr. Leonhardt Co., Station B. Buffalo, N. Y. Write for booklet.

WOMEN'S MISSION IN LIFE

It Does Not Lead Them to the Ballot Box, Says Cardinal Gibbons

Emmettsburg, Md., June 18.—In an address to the girl graduates of St. Joseph's college and academy, Cardinal Gibbons, who presented the diplomas, said in part:

"I am entirely opposed to woman suffrage, not because I hate the women, but I love them and want them to fulfill the mission for which God intended them. If you play in the arena of politics you will be covered with its dust. If you grasp too much you will lose everything. Nowhere is woman so honored as in the United States. This is largely due to the chivalry and courtesy of the men, and if you are protected by the male sex, what more do you want?

"I want to remind you that woman has a great mission in life. You should therefore have a deep sense of your responsibility in the domestic walks of life. Preach to your fathers and brothers. Woe be to society if it had to depend upon the male sex alone—it would certainly go to the devil."

HOT SHOT FROM HENEY

He Paints Calhoun and Abbott in the Blackest of Colors

San Francisco, June 18.—Francis J. Heney, during his closing argument for the prosecution in the case of Patrick Calhoun, charged with bribery, said:

"Isn't there enough here of evidence of guilt to sink Patrick Calhoun to the bottomless pit of hell? Every hair on his head is guilty. Caught in one crime, he has been back of a dozen more to prevent his conviction and obstruct the course of judgment."

Reaching a discussion of the activities of William Abbott of the legal force of the United Railroads, Heney said:

"I am talking about William M. Abbott, than whom no milder villain ever cut a throat or scuttled a ship. In appearance a Sunday school superintendent, he is yet one of the men who were responsible for this record of black iniquity."

DOCTORS KEPT BUSY ON ACCIDENT CASES

More Than Two Hundred Hurt In Bunker Hill Celebration

Boston, June 18.—The maimed and injured in the refought Battle of Bunker Hill came near rivalling that of the actual battle of 134 years ago, even as the uproar of the early morning hours was comparable with the din of musketry and shouts of foemen in the historic contest.

About 125 cases were treated at the hospitals up to early hour in the evening, and an even greater number had been attended by physicians and others at their homes. Fortunately there were no serious injuries.

Charlestown's great day closed with an elaborate electrical pageant. It was estimated that fully 100,000 people witnessed the display.

In the afternoon 1000 sailors from the battleships at the navy yard, with companies of militia and high school battalions, Spanish War Veterans and representatives from civic organizations paraded.

THE CLEMINSON INQUEST

Doctor's Wife Declared to Have Been Poisoned Externally

Chicago, June 18.—Chloroform, administered externally, caused the death of Mrs. Nora Jane Cleminson, wife of Dr. Haldane Cleminson of this city, according to an official report made to Coroner Hoffman by Drs. Haynes and Count, after a chemical analysis of the woman's body.

Dr. Cleminson, who was arrested after his wife's death, declared that she must have poisoned herself accidentally.

Coroner Hoffman said that the analysis showed that the chloroform was not taken internally. He said also that it would be extremely difficult to commit suicide by an external application of the drug, for sleep would ensue before the second application could be made.

Great Electric Plant Opened

Chattanooga, June 18.—A current of electricity was turned into the city last night, and power from the great lock and dam constructed at Hale's Bar, seventeen miles from the city, is now available for the operation of industries here. The dam has been in course of construction for three years.

Old Preacher Passes Away

Oakland, Me., June 18.—Rev. Ezekiel G. Page, who has been in the ministry in Maine for seventy years, died at his home here. He was born in New Sharon in 1814. He was ordained as a Free Will Baptist in 1839, and continued preaching up to within a short time of his death.

SUCCESSFUL APPLE GROWER.

Gov. Long and wife rode over in their auto a week or two ago to visit L. S. Richards and see his apple trees that have become somewhat noted, by the very large and perfect apples that they bear every year, also Joseph Holmes, treasurer of the well known Five Cents Savings bank, Boston, visited Mr. Richard's apple orchard and said they were the handsomest apple trees he ever saw. Mr. Richards has his trees sprayed two or three times with Pyrox, thins the apple trees of any imperfect fruit, and from bearing too abundantly, also trims the trees by a system of his own and scrapes the butt, and by this method gets a comparatively perfect and large apple. They also bring two or three times the price of an ordinary apple. His dwarf apple trees, one hundred of them, obtained at Massachusetts Agricultural college are bearing some, after having been set out but two years. The Agricultural department at Washington has notified Mr. Richards that they want him to report to them the success he meets in growing these dwarf apples. —Marshfield Mail.

WILD WEST SHOW.

The approaching "show day" and the big show now proclaiming in all the red majesty of billboard type that it is "the biggest real wild west show on earth," it is of interest to find out just how big an affair this big new show really is when you bring it down to actual figures and facts.

Under canvas six acres of ground are covered, the pavilions numbering twenty. The big tent can accommodate 7,000 people, and includes an immense portable grand stand with opera folding chairs, an innovation for real comfort.

To light the "village "the show carries its own power plant, which supplies the power for 2,000 lights including specially built powerful searchlights originally designed to combat big Chicago fires. A force of blacksmiths, wheelwrights, builders and riggers accompanies the show.

To move the circus from town to town two special trains equivalent to 48 railroad cars are required, all owned by the Company. The total length of these when coupled together is slightly over one-third of a mile.

The paper used by the bill posters would reach from New York to San Francisco and half-way back. Over 300 pounds of flour are used daily in making the paste for them.

The winter quarters are at Bliss, Okla., and cover 110,00 acres of ground. A hotel and library are among the features there. One corral fences in 33 head of American Buffalo. At Bliss, also, are built all the cars, wagons and floats the latter used in the show and street parades.

WORK BEGUN IN QUINCY.

An instructor of the Massachusetts Savings Insurance league began work in behalf of the savings bank life insurance and old age annuities on Monday last at the Fore River Ship Building Company. In view of the large number of employees and the interest already shown it is expected that this work will continue for several weeks and that it will result in the addition of a large amount to the total of savings insurance that has been written in the state. Savings bank insurance is also being introduced at the works of the Boston Tubular Rivet and Stud Company. Next week occurs the first anniversary of the opening of the insurance department of the Whitman Savings bank. The progress of a single year is considered to have been very satisfactory.

FLOATING HOSPITAL.

The Boston floating hospital resumes its daily sailings this year on June 30 and will continue to do the excellent work that it has done in the past through the summer months.

The facilities of the hospital have been enlarged, and the association looks forward to a most successful season. There will be a corps of 60 nurses, who will tend to the cares of the mothers and children who are on the floating hospital, enjoying the rest.

Last year thousands of tired women and their children were taken down the harbor on the hospital boat and benefited from the trips. This year, with a larger corps of nurses, the organization will endeavor to accommodate more than ever before.

—By executive proclamation, June 28, is designated as Clean City Day for the city of Pittsburg and our householders are exhorted to observe the occasion by getting rid of all forms of dirt and rubbish, indoors and out, and by putting their premises otherwise in perfect sanitary condition. The object held in view is a dual one, being primarily to promote public health and secondarily to improve the general aspect of the city. Other cities have tried the same expedient with excellent results. The appeal to individual pride and self-respect is one that is not to be resisted. Even where there is a chronic disposition to neglect appearances, a direct invitation to clean up strikes home and once the good work is under way, practically everybody is sure to take a hand and to contribute to the sum of improvement. Whatever is done to fulfil the purposes of Clean City Day will be purely voluntary, and this insures that the measure of good will be the greatest possible. An ounce of voluntary good intention in relation to civic duty is worth a pound of enforced obedience to laws and ordinances.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

RELATIVES NOT LOCATED.

All efforts to locate the relatives of the late Henry Holland who died last Saturday at the Quincy hospital, have so far proved unavailing and the body now lies at Hall's undertaking rooms awaiting burial.

Mr. Holland, for nearly two years previous to going to the hospital, resided at the house of Mr. T. F. Merrill, 556 Washington street, Quincy Point, during which time he was employed at the Fore River Works as a painter and later at the store of L. W. Babcock. While it was known that he had brothers in New York and other relatives, they cannot be found at the addresses given by him while at the hospital and nothing was found among his effects to give any clue to their whereabouts. There is reason to believe that he also went by the name of H. J. Healy, which may have been his right one, but in Quincy he was always known as Henry Holland. If there is any one who can throw any light on the matter and they will communcate wth Mr. Merrill he will be grateful.

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES.

Kidney Diseases Cause Half the Common Aches and Ills of Quincy People.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards diabetes and fatal Bright's disease. There is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys and cure every kidney ill. Quincy cures are the proof.

John R. Duffy, living at 14 Copeland St., Quincy, Mass., says: "I am so favorably impressed with Doan's Kidney Pills that it gives me pleasure to recommend them to anyone suffering from kidney complaint. I am fully convinced that this remedy will do all that it is claimed for. If anyone would like to obtain further details regarding my case, I will be glad to answer any question. Doan's Kidney Pills can be porcured at the Cox Drug Store."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A very pleasant musicale and card party was enjoyed at the home of John R. Richards, Center street, Friday evening in honor of Mrs. C. E. Jay of Tampa, Florida. The musical program consisted of piano selections and whistling solos by Prof. Joseph E. Uppling the well known musical artist and also vocal solos, duets and choruses, well rendered and highly appreciated. The honors at Bridge were equally divided between old Virginia and old New Hampshire; Mrs. Jay represented the colors of her beloved South and Mr. Walter E. Piper could not be moved from the granite hills. The honors were easy but the sympathy leaned towards woman's suffrage in this case. Refreshments were served. "Home Sweet Home" was rendered by the whole company when curfew was rung in on an evening pleasantly spent by all.

SERIOUS FIRE HOUGHS NECK

Two Barns Destroyed. Several Cottages Scorched

There came very near being a conflagration at Houghs Neck this morning and the only thing that prevented it was the good work of the fire department. It was a few minutes after 7 o'clock when a small barn situated on Manet avenue owned by Thomas H. Lynch was discovered to be on fire. Box 14 is located within a short distance from the building and an alarm was sounded from it at 7.08.

This brought the Houghs Neck combination to the scene and the Hook and Ladder truck and relief hose wagon from the Central station with Chief Williams. There was a high wind blowing at the time and the fire soon communicated to the barn of William Jacobs adjoining.

Both of these buildings were soon a roaring mass of flames and great clouds of smoke and burning embers were blown about alighting on near by cottages and threatening their distruction. Several of these cottages took fire but were extinguished before the fire had made any great start. At one time the Sunlight cottage, the Jacobs cottage and the Perkins cottages were on fire and it looked as though a conflagration would soon be in progress.

Mrs. J. Purcell who resided in the Perkins cottage ran out of the building with a baby in her arms when her cottage took fire and as she was obliged to pass through a cloud of smoke and sparks her clothing took fire and she and the baby were somewhat scorched. Fortunately however the fire on her clothing was soon put out by willing hands.

The members of the local department did great work and they were ably assisted by Lieut. McDonnell of the Boston Protective department and George Whalen a member of the Boston fire department both of whom were stopping at the beach.

The cause of the fire is somewhat of a mystery. There was practically nothing in the barn where the fire started and no one seems to be able to know just what it started from.

Chief Williams estimates the loss on the barns at about $500 each while $100 will cover any loss done to the cottages that took fire. The all out sounded inside of half an hour.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Polly, a child of the circus, is brought up by Toby, a clown, and by a boss canvasman called "Muvver Jim." She learns to ride Bingo, a circus horse, and grows to woman hood knowing no life except that of the circus. II—A church near the circus lot interests Polly. Jim rerpoves her for her reckless riding. III—Polly urges Bingo to unprecedented speed and falls. Toby and Jim carry the injured girl to the parsonage nearby. IV—The Rev. John Douglas, much to Deacon Elverson's disgust, takes Polly into the parsonage. Tobby and "Muvver Jim" are received kindly by Douglas, who has placed Polly in charge of his colored servant, Mandy. Douglas promises to care for the girl until she is well. V—When Polly becomes conscious she declares that she must rejoin the circus at once. "Are you a sky pilot?" she asks the minister. Her mother was killed riding a circus horse, and her father "got his'n in a lion's cage." The minister reads to her about Ruth and Naomi, and Polly says, "I guess I'd like to hear you spiel." VI—Douglas offends Deacon Strong by defending boys who play baseball on Sunday. VII—Polly recovers her health, but is saddened by the death of Toby. Jim sends the news and promises to keep in touch with her. VIII—Polly recovers from the blow dealt her by Toby's death. She has ceased using slang and is educating herself under Douglas, guidance. She endeavors to improve Mandy's grammar. IJ—Deacons Strong and Elverson reprove the pastor for harboring the circus girl. Douglas declares that he is merely doing his duty. Strong declares that the girl must go. Douglas defies him. X.—Douglas suggests to Polly that she go to a seminary. Her quotation "And Ruth said, 'Entreat me not to leave three.'" reveals to both the fact that they love each otehr. Douglas takes her in his arms and tells her that she is never to leave him. XI—"Mubber Jim" calls and notes the change in Polly's Polly tells him she has abandoned the circus business.

CHAPTER XII.

LONELY days followed Polly's desertion of the parsonage. Mandy went about her duties very quietly, feeling that the little comments which once amused the pastor had now become an interruption to thoughts in which she had no part. He would sit for hours with his head in his hands, taking no notice of what passed before him. She tried to think of new dishes to tempt his appetite and shook her head sadly as she bore the untasted food back to the kitchen.

She sometimes found a portfolio of drawings lying open upon his study table. She remembered the zeal with which he had planned to remodel the church and parsonage when he first came to them, how his enthusiasm had gradually died for lack of encouragement and how he had at last put his books in a cupboard, where they grew dusty from long neglect. She marveled at their reappearance now, but something in his set, faraway look made her afraid to inquire. Thus she went on from day to day, growing more impatient with Hasty and more silent with the pastor.

Mandy needed humor and companionship to oil the wheels of her humdrum life. There was no more laughter in the house, and she began to droop.

Polly had been away from the parsonage a month when the complacency of the village was again upset by the arrival of the "Great American Circus."

There were many callers at the parsonage that day, for speculation was now at fever heat about the pastor. "Will he try to see her?" "Has he forgotten her?" and "What did he ever find in her?" were a few of the many questions that the women were asking each other. Now that the cause of their envy was removed they would gladly have reinstated the pastor as their idol, for, like all truly feminine souls, they could not bear to see a man unhappy without wishing to comfort him, nor happy unless they were the direct cause of his state. "How dare any man be happy without me?" has been the cry of each woman since Eve was created to mate with Adam.

Douglas had held himself more and more aloof from the day of Polly's disappearance. He expressed no opinion about the deacons or their recent disapproval of him. He avoided meeting them oftener than duty required, and Strong felt so uncomfortable and tongue tied in his presence that he, too, was glad to make their talks as few as possible.

Nothing was said about the pastor's plans for the future or about his continued connection with the church, and the inquisitive sisterhood was on the point of exploding from an overaccumulation of unanswered questions.

He delivered his sermons conscientiously, called upon his poor, listened to the sorrows, real and fancied, of his parishioners and shut himself up with his books or walked alone on the hill behind the church.

He had been absent all day when Mandy looked out on the circus lot for the dozenth time and saw that the afternoon performance was closing. It had driven her to desperation to learn that Miss Polly was not in the parade that morning and to know that the pastor had made no effort to find out about her. For weeks both she and Hasty had hoped that the return of the circus might bring Polly back to them, but now it was nearly night and there had been no word from her. Why didn't she come running in to see them, as Mandy had felt so sure she would? Why had the pastor stayed away on the hills all day?

Unanswered questions were always an abomination to Mandy, so finally she drew a quarter from the knotted gingham rag that held her small wad of savings and told Hasty to "go 'long to de show an' find out 'bout Miss Polly."

She was anxiously waiting for him when Deacon Strong knocked at the door for the second time that afternoon.

"Is Mr. Douglas back yet?" he asked.

"No, sah, he ain't," said Mandy very shortly. She felt that Strong and Elverson had been "a-tryin' to spy on de parson all day," and she resented their visits more than she usually did.

"What time are you expectin' him?"

"I don't nebber spec' Massa Douglas till I sees him."

Strong grunted uncivilly and went down the steps. She saw from the window that he met Elverson in front of the church.

"Dey sure am a-meanin' trouble," she mumbled.

The band had stopped playing; the last of the audience had straggled down the street. She opened the door and stood on the porch; the house seemed to suffocate her. What was keeping Hasty?

He came at last, but Mandy could tell from his gait that he brought unwelcome knews.

"Ain't she dar?"

"She's a-trabbelin' wid 'em, Mandy, but she didn't done ride."

"See heah, Hasty Jones, is dat ere chile sick?"

"I don' rightly know," said Hasty. "A great big man, what wored clothes like a gemmen, comed out wid a whip in his hand an' says as how he's 'bliged to 'nounce anudder gal in Miss Polly's place. An' den he says as how de udder gal was jes' as good, an' den ever'body look disappointed like, an' den out comes de udder gal on a hoss an' do tricks, an' I ain't heard no more 'bout Miss Polly."

"She's sick, dat's what I says," Mandy declared excitedly, "an' somebody's got to do somethin'!"

"I done all I knowed," drawled Hasty, fearing that Mandy was regretting her twenty-five cent investment.

"Go 'long out an' fix up dat 'ere kitchen fire," was Mandy's impatient reply. "I got to keep dem vittels warm for Massa John."

She wished to be alone, so that she could think of some way to get hold of Polly. "Dat baby faced mornin' glory done got Mandy all wobbly 'bout de heart," she declared to herself as she crossed to the window for a sight of the pastor.

It was nearly dark when she saw him coming slowly down the path from the hill. She lighted the study

"She's sick, dat's what I says."

lamp, rearranged the cushions and tried to make the room look cheery for his entrance.

"I's 'fraid yo's mighty tired," she said.

"Oh, no," answered Douglas absently.

"Mebbe yo'd like Mandy to be sarvin' your supper in here tonight. It's more cheerfuler."

He crossed to the window and looked out upon the circus lot. The flare of the torches and the red fire came up to meet his pale, tense face. "How like the picture of thirteen months ago!" he thought, and old Toby's words came back to him—"The show has got to go on."

He longed to have done with dreams and speculation, to feel something tangible, warm and real within his grasp. "I can't go on like this!" he cried. "I can't!" He turned from the window and walked hurriedly up and down the room. Indoors or out, he found no rest. He threw himself in the armchair near the table and sat buried in thought.

Mandy came softly into the room. She was followed by Hasty, who carried a tray laden with things that ought to have tempted any man. She motioned for Hasty to put the tray on the table and then began arranging the dishes. Hasty stole to the window and peeped out at the tempting flare of red fire.

When Douglas discovered the presence of his two "faithfuls" he was touched with momentary contrition.

"Have you had a hard day with the new gravel walk?" he asked Hasty, remembering that he had been laying a fresh path to the Sunday school room.

"Jes' yo' come eat yo' supper," Mandy called to Douglas. "Don' yo' worry your head 'bout dat lazy husban' ob mine. He ain't goin' ter work 'nuff to hurt hisself." For an instant she had been tempted to let the pastor know how Hasty had gone to the circus and seen nothing of Polly, but her motherly instinct won the day, and she urged him to eat before disturbing him with her own anxieties. It was no use. He only toyed with his food; he was clearly ill at ease and eager to be alone. She gave up trying to tempt his appetite and began to lead up in a roundabout way to the things which she wished to ask.

"Dar's quite some racket out dar in de lot tonight," she said. Douglas did not answer. After a moment she went on, "Hasty didn't work on no walk today." Douglas looked at her quizzically, while Hasty, convinced that for reasons of her own she was going to get him into trouble, was making frantic motions. "He done gone ter de circus," she blurted out. Douglas' face became suddenly grave. Mandy saw that she had touched an open wound.

"I jes' couldn't stan' it, Massa John. I had ter find out 'bout dat angel chile." There was a pause. She felt that he was waiting for her to go on.

"She didn't done ride today."

He looked up with the eyes of a dumb, persecuted animal. "And de gemmen in de show didn't tell nobody why—jes' speaked 'bout de udder gal takin' her place."

"Why didn't she ride?" cried Douglas, in an agony of suspense.

"Dat's what I don' know, sah." Mandy began to cry. It was the first time in his experience that Douglas had ever known her to give way to any such weakness.

Hasty came down from the window and tried to put one arm about Mandy's shoulders.

"Leab me alone, yo' nigger!" she exclaimed, trying to cover her tears with a show of anger that she did not feel; then she rushed from the room, followed by Hasty.

The band was playing loudly. The din of the night performance was increasing. Douglas' nerves were strained to the point of breaking. He would not let himself go near the window. He stood by the side of the table, his fists clinched, and tried to beat back the impulse that was pulling him toward the door. Again and again he set his teeth.

It was uncertainty that gnawed at him so. Was she ill? Could she need him? Was she sorry for having left him? Would she be glad if he went for her and brought her back with him? He recalled the hysterical note in her behavior the day that she went away—how she had pleaded, only a few moments before Jim came, never to be separated from him. Had she really cared for Jim and for the old life? Why had she never written? Was she ashamed? Was she sorry for what she had done? What could it mean? He threw his hands above his head with a gesture of despair. A moment later he passed out into the night.

CHAPTER XIII.

JIM was slow tonight. The big show was nearly over, yet many of the props used in the early part of the bill were still unloaded.

He was tinkering absentmindedly with one of the wagons in the back lot, and the men were standing about idly waiting for orders when Barker came out of the main tent and called to him sharply:

"Hey, there, Jim! What's your excuse tonight?"

"Excuse for what?" Jim crossed slowly to Barker.

"The cook tent was started half an hour late, and the sideshow top ain't loaded yet."

"Your wagons is on the bum; that's what! No. 38 carries the cook tent, an' the blacksmith has been tinkerin' with it all day. Ask him what shape it's in."

"You're always stallin'," was Barker's sullen complaint. "It's the wagons or the blacksmiths or anything but the truth. I know what's the matter, all right."

WYETH'S

SAGE AND SULPHUR

HAIR RESTORER

Grew a Full Growth of Hair On a Bald Head

Here's the Proof

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin, until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly, until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is now fairly covered with hair and it keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

TWO EMPERORS ARE IN ACCORD

Russia and Germany as One In Interests of Peace

HEARTY FREINDSHIP CONTINUES

Official Organs In Capitals Think Nothing Has Really Been Changed In European Relations Through Meting of the Two Monarchs—Not Known Whether Ministers Engaged In Political Negotiations

Berlin, June 19.—The Wolff Bureau, the official German news gathering agency, has received a wireless dispatch from its representative accompanying Emperor William, giving an interview he had with an official personage on the German view of the results of the meeting of the monarchs.

"The meeting," the official said, "was new proof of the traditional hearty friendship between the ruling houses of Germany and Russia. Various pending political questions were touched upon in the conferences held by the statesmen accompanying the emperors, the result showing that no conflicting views on them exist.

"Both sides sincerely wish for a continuance of the friendly feelings and to further cement the good relations that now exist between the two countries. Both countries are as one in the purpose of a peaceful solution of every political question that may arise."

Opinion In European Capitals

London, June 19.—It is not known here whether the meeting between Emperor William and Emperor Nicholas was made the occasion for political negotiations between their respective ministers, but in all the European capitals the interview is regarded as tending to the preservation of the peace.

The official organs at Vienna and other capitals incline to the opinion that nothing has really been changed in European relations.

The Neue Frie Presse of Vienna describes the meeting as the first patch of blue sky seen in the European heavens since the autumn, and together with other Austrian papers it expresses the conviction that with such a manifestation of Russo-German friendship Russo-Austrian relations cannot long remain bad.

The Standard's Vienna correspondent says that the probability that Emperor Nicholas will meet Emperor Francis Joseph in the course of the year finds credence in well-informed quarters.

The Morning Post's St. Petersburg correspondent says he hears that after his visit to Italy Emperor Nicholas will visit Sultan Mehmed V at Constantinople, thence proceeding to Livadia, where the sultan will return the visit.

CHARGE OF BURGLARY

Made Against Men Who Raided Japanese Newspaper Office

Honolulu, June 19.—The latest development of the complicated situation which has grown out of the strike of Japanese plantation laborers and the subsequent arrest of their leaders is a charge of burglary preferred by Attorney Lightfoot, who represents the accused men, against High Sheriff Heney and Attorneys Kinney and Prosser, counsel for the Planters' association.

The accusation grows out of the blowing of the safe in the office of The Jiji, a Japanese newspaper, and the seizure of books and papers belonging to Editor Soga and others. These papers are alleged to have revealed a conspiracy among the leaders of the strike to obtain control of the islands. The alleged conspiracy is now under investigation by a grand jury.

A RULING ON SAUSAGES

Court Says Duty Must Be Paid on the Chinese Variety

Boston, June 19.—Chinese sausages are not bologna sausages, either geographically or commercially, according to a decision by Judge Lowell in the United States circuit court in upholding the decision of the government appraisers, who declared a duty of 25 percent on the new imported edibles.

A local Chinese merchant sought to have the sausages from his native country come in as bologna on the ground that they were made like the German product, which are admitted free, but the government decided otherwise.

STATE HOUSE LETTER.

Boston, June 16, 1909.

This forenoon, about the end of the session of the House, the Boston railroad holding company bill was enacted. Of course Gov. Draper will sign it without further delay and so the greatest contest of the session will be ended. Gov. Draper takes the conditions which have been dictated to him by the New Haven railroad company, which has long stood before the law in the attitude of a criminal. He told Representative Washburn of Worcester that it was useless to think of amending the bill of the majority of the railroad committee. It has come straight from the majority side of the case that the Billard stock of the Boston and Maine railroad would not come back to the control of the state unless the holding bill were passed, nor would the three incorporators named in the holding bill accept office under Mr. Washburn's bill which proposed delay until September, 1910, in order to have the situation investigated further. So the dictation of the railroad to the governor and the legislature of Massachusetts has been complete, open and undisputed by the supporters of the majority bill. There was a difference once, and the decapitated top of the Westminster chambers, opposite Trinity church on Copley Square in Boston, is a perpetual monument to the dignity of Massachusetts law, as it was asserted in those days, when wilful defiance of the law was punished adequately, in spite of the exercise of tremendous pressure by wealthy parties, reinforced by social prestige and all the possible argument from art despoiled and good taste outraged by architectural murder, in order to make an example of those who dared to flout the sovereign will of the legislature. That was the way the dignity of the legislature was asserted then. In this case, the New Haven road, by the determination of Attorney General Malone, being a criminal offender against the legislative dignity in an equal degree, the legislature condones the offense. Joseph B. Eastman, secretary of the Public Franchise League, puts it in this way: "The bill, in effect, brings the Boston and Maine stock back into Massachusetts, wraps it up in a neat package and hands it back to the New Haven railroad with the regards of the Commonwealth." That is the difference between legislatures when considering the moral force of Massachusetts law.

Regarding the merits of the holding company bill, it is not necessary to express any opinion upon them in order to point out certain facts discreditable in the manner of its passage. The bill was not debated any to speak of in the Senate. In the House, there was only one speech for the bill which was of any consequence as an argument for it,—that of Mr. Bayley of Lexington, who made the two-hours' running and fighting argument for the majority of the committee. The speech of Mr. Garcelon of Newton, in charge of the bill, consisted entirely of a historical sketch of the situation up to date from the sending in of Gov. Guild's message of June 1907, plus an appeal to stand by the governor. Mr. Bayley's speech did not touch upon the main features of the transportation question, but was mostly confined to the point that, as a device for getting the Billard stock back to the state and insuring its legal control by the state, the majority bill was as good as could be made. Nobody touched upon the transportation feature at all, except that Mr. Pope of Leominster said something about differentials, holding that the New Haven would use its power to develop New England. As for effective points of debate the majority made a poor comparison with the keen logic of Mr. Washburn of Worcester, who easily led the anti-merger side. Before the debate began there was a current statement that debate was not necessary and that it would not change any votes. Evidently it did not change any. The solid block of votes held together. The vote of 51 yeas to 179 nays and three pairs on the substitution of the Washburn bill included 22 republicans with the minority and 29 democrats with the majority. So party politics cut no figure. Good reason exists for saying that members did not understand the majority proposition. The operation of the bill was never explained to the House, and certainly one of the orators for the bill made a very sorry spectacle of himself privately in admitting his complete ignorance of the details of the working of the law. But the thing is done and the holding bill is now the law of the state. Be it noticed that, in the above, nothing is said about the merits of the case as a business proposition, but only something is said about the methods of putting the bill through the House. There is no reason to believe that there has been any specific corruption of members.

At the time of writing plans are made from prorogation on Saturday. No session will be held tomorrow, for Bunker Hill day has come to be a recognized holiday Boston and vicinity as a whole But, even with the day taken out, says Speaker Walker, if the members are prompt on Friday and Saturday, they can finish Saturday afternoon or evening. The Senate and House calendars have been short for several days and it seems to depend upon the engrossing clerks whether prorogation can be reached, and they can be made to work tomorrow, for they are not entitled to a day off unless it is a state holiday.

Last evening Speaker Walker invited the governor, lieutenant governor, heads of departments and chairmen of committees out to the country club at Brookline, where they had a festive dinner and cracking of jokes at one another's expense, although it was announced that there would be no speaking. Auditor Turner perpetrated upon Attorney General Malone that venerable gag of calling him Necessity,—"because he knows no law," don't you know, and everybody enjoyed the joke. But a great many lawyers have had it put upon them before. These little festive occasions add to the enjoyment of the session. They limber up the formalities. The successful men can afford to give them for the benefit of those who have been downed in the constant legislative struggles and who might become soured if there were nothing to smooth their hurts and make them forget the other man's triumph in the fun of the hour. It takes more than one kind of statesmanship to make things run smoothly in the state house. Gov. Draper gave his outing last year at Hopedale, and the lubricating effect of dinners has been known even from of old. Of course that is not bribery and it does the trick even better in many cases. It takes much art to knock a man down and then make him feel that you are a jolly good fellow and wish you to be a lifelong friend.

This year the state tax bill is only $4,500,000, against $5,500,000 last year. House Chairman Kemp of the ways and means committee says that the reduction is due mainly to the growth of the inheritance tax. Added to this has been a persistent refusal of his committee to give countenance to unreasonable schemes for taking money out of the public treasury. Of course there will be a political bearing of this $1,000,000 reduction in favor of the Draper administration, and the democrats must expect it.

At the time of writing the bill for the registration of osteopaths, which got to the governor, was recalled and was once more passed in improved form by the Senate, is against an adverse vote in the House of 39 to 46, with the lack of a quorum making that vote void, so that the bill will come up Friday.

Once more the House has today insisted upon the soundness of the state's policy not to encourage speculation in land by companies chartered under the authority of the state. Such companies cannot get charters now and the House refused to enlarge the powers of the East Boston company chartered in 1830.

Without any objection the House adopted the order of Mr. W. H. O'Brien of Boston for printing the verbatim report of the hearing before the ways and means committee upon the investigation of the Wrentham state school. James H. Vahey appeared at the hearing and it was the same matter as that on which he laid much stress last fall when running for governor. This was an effort of O'Brien to make a little democratic capital, and the republicans good naturedly let him have the chance.

It looks as if both branches would pass quickly the bill to prevent telegraph companies from charging extra for putting on telegrams the date of filing, as the new law of this year requires.

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can

PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

FREE To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO., CHICAGO, ILL., with their name and address and 10c in silver or stamps to pay postage.

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS

Castle Square Theatre.

The fame of "Florodora" is so great that the mere mention of its coming production at the Castle Square is sufficient to turn all eyes in that direction. After several weeks rehearsal, the opening performance will come on Monday evening, and there is every sign that the theatre will be crowded with happy trrongs of summer entertainment seekers every afternoon and evening. "Florodora" offers the best of opportunities for spectacular show and costume effects, its two acts transporting the observer from the Philippines to Wales, and telling a comic story that is bound to arouse incessant laughter. Its libretto is the work of Owen Hall, and its music is by Leslie Stuart, and both have done their best in the making of a musical comedy that is second to none. Good as "The Circus Girl," "The Runaway Girl," and "The Geisha," have been as produced by Mr. Craig at the Castle Square, "Florodora" is certain to be even better. Its melody is unsurpassed, and in every way it promises to be a summer show that no one will want to miss. Mr. Craig has engaged a special chorus of forty singers to take part in "Florodora," and the famous sextette will be made even more famous as it is sung and acted by the dancers and singers especially selected for it.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Lindsay Morrison Stock company at the Orpheum theatre will next week present that prettiest of all rural plays "Home Folks" a four-act drama by C. T. Dazey author of the "Old Kentucky." This play has been pronounced by competent critics to be better than the "The Old Homestead" which of course is stating a great deal when the tremendous popularity of Denman Thompson's remarkable play is taken into consideration. However that may be "Home Folks" is about as delightful a picture of rural life as it is possible to place on a stage. Through it all runs a love story in which there is intrigue and deception, but it of course ends happily. The scene of the play is laid in Illinois and the story told is that of a city girl, Ruth Clayton, who is forced to leave St. Louis because her brother is falsely accused of a crime. The real criminal, who is the villian in the play, is in love with Ruth and to shield himself does everything possible to place the guilt upon her brother. There is one girl, Sis Durkee who knows the secret but several times when she was on the point of telling it she was prevented and thus the solution is delayed until the last act.

Keith's Theatre.

One of those all round vaudeville bills that has made Keith's Boston theatre famous the world over is announced for the week of June 21st, for it is made up of favorites, some of them favorites of the legitimate as well as the vaudeville stage, while there are a number of features of particular moment. Ralph C. Herz when he appeared at this house over a year a go made one of the biggest hits of any comedian who has ever entered vaudeville from the legitimate field. At that time he was fresh from his great success in "The Soul Kiss" and he was duplicating in vaudeville his triumphs in the production. The past season he has been adding to his laurels with a number of new features, all of which are on a par with his previous work. Another favorite locally is Eva Taylor, who was one of the most popular members of the old Castle Square Stock Company and has since made such a hit in vaudeville with a sketch called "Chums" that she has been playing continuously and returns to Boston after a successful tour of the West. Another star act of the real vaudeville sort is the Millman Trio, which has been declared to be the greatest company of slack wire walkers this country has ever seen, one of teh most proficient of the company being Bird Millman who does a cake walk on the slack wire with as much ease and grace as other performers do on the stage.

Wonderland.

The management of Wonderland, that vast recreation park down by the sea at Revere beach is not content to sit idle but every week is adding new attractions to its already great bill of entertaining features. Among the new offerings is a magnificent, spectacular, dramatic production entitled "The Prophet and the Princess." This engages the services of about a dozen persons and is given in a handsome theatre comfortably seating about 600 persons. Two other new features of the week are the Wonderland Ladies' quartet composed of these well-known talented vocalists: Misses Lillian A. Pauli, Daisy Merritt, Winnifred N. Robinson and Una Bonnette and the Golden Gate Septette that gives an up-to-date minstrel show of refined and also mirth-provoking numbers. These three new attractions at Wonderland are most unusual for any summer amusement park and only emphasize the enterprise of its control to endeavor to meet the tastes and demands of the recreation-seeking public in the hot summer afternoons and evenings.

If the present weather keeps up the the ice men may yet get their houses filled.

The chief fool killer of them all seems to be the one who throws a lighted cannon cracker into a fireworks store.

There were 365 graduates from the grammar schools yesterday, one for every day in the year.

It is to be hoped the residents of Houghs Neck will treat kindly any councilmen who may may be captured at that place tomorrow.

What's in a name? "Charlie" Adams' new Quincy cup defending boat, which has no name at all, still continues to clean out her adversaries.

The suggestion of the New York Son that the proposed emergency tax stamps be adorned with teeth-prominent portraits of Theodore Roosevelt, looks like biting sarcasm.

Hundreds of our citizens have learned with regret of the illness of one of our best-known and most highly esteemed citizens, William G. A. Pattee, the first city solicitor under our municipal form of governmentt and the wish is universal that he may have a speedy and permanent return to vigorous health.

Ordinarily the man or woman who uses the sidewalks doesn't complain when a merchant desires to show his wares outside of his windows but when concerns take up half the sidewalks with a display of articles there ought to be some compromise whereby the travelling public won't have to be crowded to the curbstones.

It is said the people of Atlantic do not like the action of the city council in appropriating $300 for a field day and fireworks at Merry Mount park on July 4. The people of ward 6, having gone down into their pockets for about $700 to provide a proper Fourth of July celebration, feel that the city is detracting from their first-advertised show by offering a municipal exhibition in another part of the city. Considering the amount of talk on the subject of economy that was made at the meeting of the city council last Monday night when a school house order was up for consideration, it seemed the better policy to invest in something which the city would have to show after the money was paid than for a field day, especially when the citizens of Atlantic are providing the same kind of a show without any expense to the city.

Regardless of the circumstances which led up to Sunday night's stabbing affray in West Quincy, since the higher court has yet to pass upon them, it is only fair to the Italian residents of our city that all should not be blamed for the acts of any one member of that race. So far as it has been possible to learn, the Italian residents of Quincy in general are honest, hard working citizens. They have contributed to our population some very excellent families who have established themselves in business and have won for themselves an envied name for industry, sobriety and honesty. The average Italian makes a good American citizen and the race in general should not be unduly criticised because of the unfortunate action of some one member.

The city began work yesterday resurfacing that part of Water street which lies between Phipps street and Quincy avenue. If ever there was a job of street repairing that was needed badly, this stretch of road was the one. This part of the street is inhabited mostly by Italian residents, who, probably never thought of making a complaint about the condition of the street but those who have had to travel over the street in wagons have been aware for many years of the absolute need of repairs there. While the city is about this much-needed job, it might place a street light or two between Quincy avenue and Phipps street. It is said there is not a single light between these two points. We doubt if there is another piece of road in Quincy that is unlighted for so long a distance.

People living on the various streets which lead from the shipyards at Quincy Neck are complaining at the recklessness of those biyccilsts who use the sidewalks and travel at a furious pace regardless of pedestrians or children playing there. Children have been reported as having been knocked down by bicyclists who never stopped to see what injuries may have been inflicted and pedestrians have been profanely ordered to clear out of the way that these young men on wheels may have the sidewalks. It's about time to put a stop to such outlawry. Last year the police authorities placed notices on the various streets which had been mentioned in complaints and the very first night they were posted, many of them were torn down by these young men. No doubt the temptation to ride on the sidewalks is strong on some of the back streets where the roadways are none too good but if pedestrians have got to be sworn at and their children run over by a crowd of thoughtless bicyclists, it's about time to do something more than invite these fellows to read circulars posted on trees and poles.

Today was one of the days when anonymous news items seemed to abound. Well they did for fillers of the waste paper basket. Why people will not send their name and address with communications they wished published instead of saying from "a well wisher," "a friend," "constant reader," etc., is a problem the editor has never been able to solve.

The city of Quincy has done its duty by the 365 children who were sent out from the grammar schools yesterday and is prepared to go further if any of these graduates wish to take advantage of the higher courses of education which the city offers. It is well, though, for the boys and girls who were graduated yesterday to stop a moment and think seriously on what has been done for them. According to the figures of the school department, it cost, approximately, $23.50 a year to educate each child in the grammar schools of our city. Of the 365 pupils who graduated yesterday, most of them have been attending school for eight years. Figuring the cost on the statistics given by the school department, it has cost the city the sum of $69,540 to educate the boys and girls who were given their diplomas yesterday. Let us hope that each boy and girl who completed their course of study yesterday will remember this fact sometime and resolve by the conduct of their future lives to bring nought but credit and honor upon their schools and the city which supports them. We hope that every boy and every girl who went out from the life of the school yesterday into the school of life will grow to be honest, honorable, upright citizens and that their success in life will be as unbounded as will be conducive to their moral and financial welfare. The country at large, and every city and town, needs men and women as it never needed them before and we hope the Quincy grammar school graduates of 1909 will play no small part in the moral and material prosperity of their city and their country.

There was sent out from the grammar schools of the city yesterday, the imposing total of 365 graduates, although that was under the number sent out a year ago and was, according to the figures of Supt. Parlin, the smallest class, numerically, graduated in recent years. The graduation exercises were witnessed by a large and appreciative gathering of parents and relatives of the graduates and the sight was an inspiring one. Enrolled in the various schools were children who, themselves, or through their parents, represented nearly all the countries of Europe from the frozen Baltic sea to the sunny shores of the Mediterranean. Foreign in birth, many of them might have been, but American in spirit they surely were. With the native-born, the flaxened-hair children of the north of Europe, the blue eyes of the Celt, the ruddy cheeks of the English and the dark skinned children of the Italian and Scilian were gathered but yet, in unison, they sang "Dixie" and "My Country 'Tis of Thee," concluding with the salute: "I pledge allegiance to my flag and the republic it represents." And it is on such a spirit that this republic must base its hope of future years. It has been predicted many times that the republic will not endure because of the alleged impossibility of being unable to assimilate the various nationalities which come to our shores. Fortunately for the republic, the children of the immigrant who lands today will be in school tomorrow and the children of these immigrants will be graduated from our schools in due time, American citizens as loyal as any who were born here. In due time, too, their children will be on the stage of life, knowing nothing of any country but this, caring nothing for any but their own native land and thus, in each succeeding year, will be born a new draft of American citizens on whom the republic can and will rely as it has relied in past years and has not relied in vain. The one great leaven which is to work out the problem of national unification among the peoples of all the world who come to our shores, is the public school and so long as the spirit manifested yesterday at our grammar school graduation is maintained, there need be no fear for the future of our country.

A race for the cape cat boat class will be held this afternoon under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club.

The latest innovation in the modern battleship is the passenger elevator. Announcement is made that the battleships Delaware, North Dakota, Florida, and Utah, now building, will each be equipped with three passenger elevators, and probably, too, the Arkansas and Wyoming, contracts for which will be made this summer. The elevators will be installed in the fire-room ventilator-trunks, and will travel about twenty-one feet from the lower hanging grating in the fire-room to the gun deck, and each will be capable of lifting a live load of about five hundred pounds in about thirteen seconds, and they are to be operated from the car by push buttons.

The report of the board of visitors at Annapolis, recently forwarded to the Navy Department contains a number of recommendations which are certain to receive the enthusiastic approval of the midshipmen themselves and the commendation of all friends of the middies who have been excited over the physical condition of the students at the Naval Academy. The board is of the opinion that every facility for exercise should be given to the midshipmen at the Academy and to this end recommends many improvements in the athletic field, tennis courts, golf links, the construction of handball courts and bowling alleys, and requests that a stadium, equipped with suitable dressing rooms be constructed. There are many other important changes recommended and it is to be hoped that the Navy Department will take up these recommendations and improve the conditions in so far as possible, before another class is graduated.

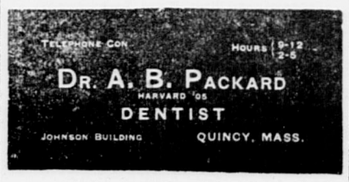

The most interesting and important phase of the twelfth week's consideration of the tariff bill has been the presentation of a proposition, favored by President Taft, to impose a tax of two per cent. on the net earnings of corporations, and the decision of the Senate leaders to bring in an amendment embodying the President's idea, to be offered as a substitute for the income tax proposition. Only second in importance to this has been the agreement reached by Senators Bailey and Cummins on the income tax proposition, as a result of which there is now before the Senate only a single income tax amendment which, in brief, imposes a tax of two per cent, on all incomes over $5,000 a year, including those of corporations, and carrying a provision for reinbursement to stockholders of corporation, taxed under the law, whose total incomes from all sources are less than $5,000 of the amount which, as stockholders, they contributed to the tax paid by the corporation.

According to recent Washington despatches, President Taft not only advocates the tax on the net earnings of corporations, but is of the opinion that all those who advocate honest methods in corporations must come to realize the merits of this proposition if they will not give it due consideration. And he is said to belive, also, that no better opportunity could be afforded Congress to enact a measure which is essential to the proper rounding out of the policies of th elast administration, and will redound to the greater credit of the Republican party than that now presented. The advocates of this measure claim that it would compel the filing by all corporations of a statement showing precisely what their net profits had been during the year ;that falsification of such statements would be attended by heavy penalties; that corporations, being creatures of the state, their existence could not be concealed and the necessity of verifying the accuracy of the statements so filed would carry with it the privilege of examing the books of corporations by federal officials. The fact alone that the proposition carries federal supervision of corporations ,would be sufficient to commend it to all disinterested persons, but the further consideration that it is President Taft's own proposition will give it an added interest in the minds not only of both houses of Congress, but in those of all loyal adherents of the policies of the last administration.

THE GRAMMAR GRADUATION

Diplomas Are Presented to 365 Grammar Graduates

The High School assembly hall was all aglow with happy faces yesterday afternoon, at the graduation of the pupils of the grammar schools. There were 365 in the graduating class and there were as many more mothers, fathers, sisters and brothers present in the hall to see their children receive their diplomas. On the stage were seated Supt. Frank E. aPrlin, Mayor William T. Shea, Hon. Joseph B. Maccabe of Boston members of the school board and press, and several teachers.

Promptly at 3 o'clock the children began to march into the hall. They came in one school at a time, beginning with the Adams and going right through to the Wollaston in alphabetical order. Each class was led by a color bearer who was the smallest child in the class, each color bearer carrying a banner representing his school. After all the children had taken their places in the hall the first musical number was given, entitled "The Flowers of Nations," under the direction of Musical Director Clarence J. Fouche. Florence Lulman, Q. H. S. '11 and Freda Klingenhagen, Q. H. S. '11, presided at the piano.

A few brief remarks by Supt. Parlin followed. Mr. Parlin said in part:

"The class of 1909 numbers 365 or 31 less than the class of 1908. Of this number 175 are boys and 190 girls. Of the total 234 graduate without conditions, and 316 have expressed their intention to continue their studies in secondary schools.

The number of years spent in the grammar schools by the graduates was as follows:—1 five years; 3 six years; 22 seven years; 180 eight years; 108 nine years; 42 ten years; 7 eleven years and 2 twelve years. The average was 8 years and 6 months, making no allowances for sickness or other causes.

Between 16 and 17	11
Between 17 and 18	3
Over 18	1

After two more choruses by the children, Supt. Parlin introduced the Hon. Joseph B. Maccabe of Boston, as the speaker of the afternoon and a man who thoroughly understood boys and girls. Mr. Maccabe took for the subject of his address "Athletics," telling of some men that he know that had become successful in life simply because they had been successful and honest in athletics. He mentioned especially Dr. William J. Holland, better known as "Billy" Holland, and one of the greatest runners in the history of track athletics. Holland was a poor boy and was working his way through Boston College. He had a chance to get a scholarship, but preferred to work his way alone. He got this great courage and determination, said Mr. Maccabe from his early training in the old East Boston Gym., which by the way was the first municipal gymnasium in America. Mr. Maccabe also described a relay race between the East Boston A. A. and the Cambridgeport Gym and in this story he brought out the main point of his talk. Here too he told of the wonderful courage and spirit that "Billy" Holland possessed. The race was close all the way with East Boston leading until the third relay. At this point the East Boston man fell and Cambridge went into the lead. When Billy Holland took up the running on the last relay his Cambridge opponent had a lead of ten yards. But this did not stop Holland, who started after his man with a look of confidence in his honest face. Round and round the great track went the two men and Mr. Maccabe's description was so graphic that one could almost see the men running. On went the two runners," said the speaker, "and neither one turned his head to look back. Each one kept his head to the front all the time. And this is what I want you boys and girls to do in the race of life.

"Never look back but always keep your heads and eyes looking to the front. Never turn around unless it is to help some poor unfortunate who has fallen by the wayside. But in the race for some goal never look back because it only encourages those behind you." He also gave several other interesting examples of what athletics had done to help men and women along in the fight of life.

Two more choruses followed by the class and then came the presentation of diplomas by the chairmen of the sub-committees of the school board, assisted by the principals of the different schools. After the presentation the program was concluded with the salute to the flag and the singing of "Dixie" and "America." The children then marched out in order, just as they came in, all proudly carrying their diplomas.

HORSES BURNED.

Good Work By Quincy Men At Fire In Tisdale Stable At South Boston.

The stable of Wilson Tisdale & Co. at South Boston was gutted by fire early last evening, entailing a loss of $20,000.

Three firemen were injured by the collapsing of an extension ladder and fifty horses were burned or strangled. The fire started in a blacksmith shop in the rear of the stable. Among the horses in the stable were five belonging to Abbott & Miller's express of Quincy.

Willard Bean, an employe of Abbott & Miller was on the second floor when the fire started and he it was who discovered the fire.

His cries brought other men who did heroic work in saving horses. They ran from stall to stall, cutting halter ropes and then drove all of the animals on this floor to the run. Many of these were thus gotten out.

Others who did great work in saving the horses were Patrick Wallace, Elmer Fuller and James Mullen of Boston and Michael Parker of Quincy, all of whom are employed by Abbott & Miller.

BODY IDENTIFIED.

Man Supposed To Be Henry Holland Identified as Herbert J. Healey.

The body of Henry Holland, who died at the City Hospital last Saturday, was identified Friday evening as that of Herbert J. Healey. The identification was made by his brother Thomas L. Healey of Hartford, who came to Quincy for that purpose.

Mr. Holland, or Healey, had been employed at the Fore River and at the store of L. W. Babcock at Quincy Point and was well known in that section of the city. He boarded at the house of Mrs. T. F. Merrill, who knew but little of him other than that he was an educated man and that he wrote some for magazines. He was also quite musical.

At the time of his death he left no money and his friends were raising the necessary funds to defray the funeral expenses. His brother in Hartford saw the newspaper accounts of his death and thinking that it might be the body of his missing brother, came to Quincy as stated above.

FOUNDERS DAY.

The Class of 1910 of Thayer Academy had a full house last Saturday at the exercises in observance of Founder's day. It was on June 9, 1785, that Gen. Sylvanus Thayer was born, and he was in his 88th year when he passed away. The decorations were simple, but effective, a background of green vine enlivening the scene.

The program opened with music which was a feature of the exercises. Harold Wales Alden, the class president extended the welcome, and referred to the life of Gen. Thayer. Lyal Beldon Rymarczick of the class won favor by his selection from the centennial address of George William Curtis at Concord. There was good advice and encouragement for all in the address of the day by Mr. Albert Perry Walker, headmaster of the Girls High school of Boston.

After the exercises in the hall the class of 1910 planted an ivy at the base of the tower at the left of the main entrance. The pupils and their friends enjoyed dancing for the balance of the afternoon.

The graduating exercises of the class of 1909 will be held at the Academy next Saturday afternoon.

GEORGE B. DOVEY.

Special to the Daily Ledger.

Boston, Mass., June 19,—George B. Dovey, president of the Boston National Baseball club died suddenly this morning from a hemorrhage of the lung. Mr. Dovey was on a train at the time of his death and was on his way from Pittsburg to Cinncinati. He was at the meeting of the National Commission at Pittsburg yesterday and left that city in the best of health.

His death came as a great surprise and shock to the sporting fraternity of the country, as he was one of the best known baseball men in the country. This is the third sudden death that has come to Boston teams in the past two years, the much lamented "Chick Stahl of the Boston Americans committing suicide on the Spring training trip and "Cozy" Dolan of the Nationals passing away a few days later. This sudden death of their popular owner will probably completely demoralize the Boston National team, which at the present time is in a pretty shaky condition.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

Girl Interested In Mission Work Murdered In New York

BODY PACKED IN A TRUNK

Envelope, Note, Locket and Underclothing Indicate That Victim Was Granddaughter of General Franz Sigel—Chinaman In Whose Room Decomposed Body Was Found Is Missing—A Tenderloin Mystery

New York, June 19.—Elizabeth Sigel, daughter of Paul Sigel of this city and dranddaughter of Franz Sigel, the German warrior who enlisted his services with the Union army during the Civil war, was, according to all indications, the victim of one of the most sordid murders in the history of New York.

Taken from a trunk in a room of a Chinaman above a chop-suey restaurant in the Tenderloin, the body, in a state of decomposition which makes identification very difficult, lies in the morgue, while detectives are collecting the threads of a tangled story involving the girl and her associations with Chinese.

Elizabeth, or Elsie, was 20 years old and was greatly interested in mission work among the Chinese. It is understood that she became acquainted with one Chinaman who may be able to throw some light on the case, several years ago when he conducted a cane-rack at an amusement park at Fort George. The Sigel home in the Bronx is not far away from that resort. Neighbors say that the calls of the Chinaman at the house ceased more than a year ago.

An envelope addressed to the girl, found in the room where the body lay, a locket bearing her initials, her disappearance on June 10 and a note found in the room, signed "Elsie," all seem to indicate that Elsie Sigel was murdered.

The body was partially stripped of its clothing, tied with ropes, wrapped in a faded blue blanket and crammed into a dilapitated trunk, where it lay for a week at least before the odor crept through the building, arousing the suspicions of the phlegmatic proprietor of the restaurant below, who summoned the police and instituted an investigation.

The officers found a butcher's cleaver, which gave further color to the murder theory as borne out by the bloody corpse.

Mrs. Paul Sigel, early this morning, when shown the jewelry found in the trunk containing the body of the murdered girl, identified it as that worn by her daughter, Elsie.

Sun Leong, proprietor of the restaurant, who also conducted the rooming house above, disappeared shortly after the discovery of the murder, adding further obstacles to the mystery. The case has unusual features, notable among which is the fact that a Chinaman has been known to call at the Sigel home, presumably with the sanction of the parents.

Paul Sigel arrived at the morgue to which place the body had been removed about midnight. Here arrangements were made so that the badly disfigured face could be seen to best advantage, but even then Sigel would not say that it was his daughter. He declined to look at various letters and other bits of evidence which would seem to indicate that it was she.

Three Chinamen were arrested as material witnesses. They gave the names of Yee Kim, manager of Sun Leong's restaurant; Gong Wing, salesman for a chop suey supply house, and Chin Sum, cook, who lived in the rear restaurant.

The man most wanted, however, is the former occupant of the room where the body was found, evidently an English speaking celestial, who either knew Elsie Sigel or knew some one that knew her. And judging from the letters this individual is Leong Loo Lim, known among his English friends as William H. Lion.

Mrs. Florence M. Todd, one of the resident workers in the Chinatown and Bowery settlement, who is a friend of the Sigel family, called at the morgue and after viewing the body identified some of the underclothing as that worn by Elsie Sigel.

Gould Witnesses Tell of Happenings After Theatre Hours

ALSO IN QUAKER CITY HOTEL

Testimony of Endearing Epithets Said to Have Been Used by Plaintiff In Speaking of Actor—Former Servants and Attendants Tell How Woman's Character Was Changed When Under Influence of Liquor

New York, June 19.—The flow of testimony adduced by the defense in the suit for separation brought by Katherine C. Gould against her husband, Howard Gould, kept edging more and more Friday toward Dustin Farnum, the actor, whose broad shoulders and mop of curly hair have become a familiar figure in the case.

There was in addition further iteration by servants and personal attendants that Mrs. Gould was repeatedly seen by them under the influence of liquor and that when she had been drinking, as they alleged on the stand, she changed from a charming, affable woman to a creature of whim and caprice, ill-tempered, not nice in her choice of language, overbearing, quarrelsome.

Mrs. Gould's one-time personal valet swore that at one time he served his mistress two quarts of Manhattan cocktails in two days, in addition to the wines and liquors which he said she drank at table. In cross-examining the witnesses, Clarence J. Shearn, for Mrs. Gould, strove always to prove either that they had a personal grudge against her or that they were under obligations to Gould.

Endearing epithets twice embellished the testimony. John H. Kimball, an oil and paint dealer, who said he had known Gould for eighteen years, testified that he went to a performance of "The Virginian" in August, 1906, with Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Sells and the Goulds at the Academy of Music in this city, and that Dustin Farnum, the star of the play, joined the party outside the playhouse after the performance and spoke to Mrs. Gould. She smiled, the witness testified, and said to the witness: "This is my new beau."

John Flynn, who said he had been employed by Mrs. Gould as a chauffeur, and that he had often driven her to meet Farnum after the play, testified that on one occasion when the automobile, with Mrs. Gould in it, was waiting for Farnum at the Hotel Somerset, two men turned to the actor as he came out of the hotel door and asked him whose automobile was waiting.

"Oh," said Farnum, laughing, Flynn testified, "that is my new one."

At another time Flynn swore, when he rapped on Mrs. Gould's chamber door at the St. Regis, she called out: "All right, dearie," and then, when she saw who it was, excused herself with: "I thought it was Mr. Farnum."

Mary E. Harrison, who said she was a floor clerk in the Bellevue-Stratford hotel in Philadelphia, said that Mrs. Gould occupied apartments on the floor where she was stationed in September, 1906, and one morning, she said, she saw a man come out of Mrs. Gould's rooms about 7:30 and take the elevator. She described the man as tall, with dark, bushy hair, and wearing a soft hat and a long coat.

Florence Garner, who said she was also employed in September, 1906, as a floor clerk in the Bellevue, on the fourteenth floor, when Dustin Farnum was playing in Philadelphia, testified that Farnum had a room on that floor, at the same time Mrs. Gould had rooms on a lower floor. She remembered one morning when he came up in the elevator rather early, and appeared to her "less well-groomed" than usual.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

This certainly is a get-together year. The business men of Boston are no longer divided into two bodies, for the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Association have just been merged. It is expected that all the commercial and industrial tangles will be expeditiously smoothed out and that the early effects of the "Boston-1915" movement will begin to be felt. These two associations have been working harmoniously for some time, but only this week became incorporated as a single organization. By this act is formed the largest trade association in this country, with a membership exceeding 2800 prominent men of Boston and vicinity. One of these days they will include in their membership some of the bright business women of Boston, ofwhom there are thousands in positions of responsibility and emolument. And they will be admitted not as an annex or an auxiliary, but as members in ordinary standing.

Windows are at a premium on June days. Residences and business offices were badly demoralized in the early part of the week by the interesting parades of the Lancers in one part of the city and the Wild West show in another section. They were equally picturesque. The gay accoutrements of the former lent an air of festivity unsurpassed by the colorful raiment of the Western Indians. On Thursday all Greater Boston joined in the 134th anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill, celebrated in large part in Charlestown, but overlapping sufficiently to warrant all the youngsters—and many of the oldsters—in the surrounding towns to busy themselves with fire crackers and the acompanying accessories. The burned fingers will all be healed before the next patriotic celebration occurs to make brisk once more the traffic in artificial hands and eyes.

Over against the great white palaces of the multi-millionaires the little white ship of mercy. That humanitarian craft, the floating hospital, is planning to make its first trip to the fashionable North Shore resorts on June 30, weather permitting. In the meantime the boat is to be fitted out and put in charge of doctors and nurses—but with no patients—who will sail down the Bay, and hold severreceptions at various points in order that those who have taken an interest in the ship of healing, but who generally leave the city early in the season, may have an opportunity of observing the workings of the ship. Incidentally summer visitors from other cities will see something of one of Boston's unique institutions. A number of society women are to act as patronesses, and it is expected that these occasions will be both enjoyable and profitable.

It must be something of a task for one little woman to cajole and bullyrag a whole brigade of more or less competent assistants. Miss Maude Adams, one hears, is tremendously busy rehearsing her big company of 1300 members in the Stadium at Harvard. Her extraordinary performance of Schiller's "Joan of Arc" is to take place on Tuesday evening, June 22, when 15,000 representatives of social and educational circles in Boston and Cambridge and many visitors from New York, Philadelphia, and even more distant places, will throng the great grey structure which for the first time will be the scene of an evening performance. When one is told that one battle scene alone consumes nearly half an hour some idea is obtained of the magnificence of the production. Maude Adams as anything is always a favorite in the Hub, but Maude Adams riding her splendid white charger at the head of the vast concourse of men and horses will be a sight which the fortunate few will not be likely to forget. It is reported that the importance of the occasion will bring Mr. Frohman to Cambridge from Europe, whence he will return immediately after the production.

The announcement that Senor Sorolla, the Spanish artist who created such a furore in our eastern cities, has returned to Spain with a profit of half a million dollars and with consequently warm and kindly feelings toward the American people recalls an anecdote regarding the prolific painter which is said to be authoritative. At an exhibition which he gave in Paris it was discovered when the pictures were hung that there were not enough to cover the walls of all the rooms, one room being left nearly vacant. There remained but one week before the exhibition, when Senor Sorolia's attention was called to this unfortunate condition. "Oh, never mind about that," exclaimed the painter of sunshine and waves, "I'll go and paint some more right away." When the exhibition was opened the walls of the room referred to were well covered with canvases as good as any of the others.

Mr. Louis D. Brandeis' pet baby is just a year old. On June 22, 1908, was opened the insurance department of the Whitman Savings Bank, the pioneer banking institution to undertake to serve the community by offering the advantages of wage earners' life insurance and old age pensions at actual cost. The close of the first year finds the system well established in many parts of the state and a keen interest in the subject aroused everywhere. About 2,000 policies have been written, many of them among thrifty women workers who realize that insurance protection is as important a necessity of life as shoe lacings or breakfast foods. This scheme, too, is only just beginning to be understood, for many people heretofore, if they have taken out life insurance at all, have done so not from any real interest but to get rid of the persistent life insurance agent. Thanks to the present agitation of life insurance and old age pensions some of us are beginning at least to have a speaking acquaintance with such subjects.

"GROVER CLEVELAND"

Signature Produced In Court Admitted to Be a Forgery

New York, June 19.—The authenticity of two words on a slip of paper in a glass case—"Grover Cleveland"—about which the trial of Broughton Brandenburg, the magazine writer, charged with grand larceny for the sale to the New York Times of an article purporting to have been written by Cleveland, has largely centered so far, dropped somewhat from their place of importance when Brandenburg's counsel announced that his client would admit that the signature was a forgery and not that of the former President of the United States.

This rather surprising turn in the case came after Richard W. Gilder, the magazine editor, had declared emphatically on the stand that the signature as shown him was not that of his old friend, Grover Cleveland.

Brandenburg said he intended to show that the forged signature was substituted for the real one. "I never saw this signature till the trial commenced," he said.

Two handwriting experts pronounced the signature a forgery and added that in their opinion the defendant wrote it himself.

WRIGHT CELEBRATION ENDS

Aviators Receive Medals From the Nation, State and City

Dayton, O., June 19.—Wilbur and Orville Wright, the aviators, have received the medals awarded them by act of congress, by the legislature of Ohio, and by their home city of Dayton. Over 120,000 persons celebrated the event.

Wilbur Wright, on receiving the medals, made a speech in which he likened an inventor to a poet, saying that neither poet nor inventor would suffer indifference if their wants were really known.

General Allen, representing Secretary of War Dickinson, presented the national medals, Governor Harmon presented the Ohio medals, and Mayor Burkhardt of Dayton gave the local medals. The presentation ceremony was held in the fair grounds. Behind the Wrights sat 2500 school children dressed in red, white and blue, and arranged to represent an American flag. Troops and brass bands gave a military aspect to the occasion.

CROWD'S SYMPATHY WITH PARISH PRIEST

Bishop and Friends Had to Hotfoot Out of Village

Ulysses, Neb., June 19.—Bishop Bonacum of the Catholic diocese of Lincoln, Father O'Brien of Seward and Father Kline of Brainard, were last night driven from this village by a mob of some 200 persons.

The bishop and his priensts had come to take possession of a church over which Father Murphy had charge. Sympathizers of Murphy joined the mob and would have done violence to the bishop and the priests had it not been for the strenuous efforts of Murphy, wso counselled moderation.

Father O'Brien finally got a livery rig and with Bonacum and Kline left in the direction of David City. This rig was followed by the church enemies, and was overtaken three miles out of town.

Bishop and priests were forced to get out and walk, and when last seen the bishop and the priests were walking along the road toward David City.

SPARKS START BIG FIRE

Sixty Horses Perish and Three Firemen Hurt In Stable Blaze

Boston, June 19.—Sparks from a shoeing forge which set fire to the Old Colony stables in South Boston, owned Wilson, Tinsdale & Co., resulted in the burning of sixty horses which were quartered on the second and third floors. The building was badly damaged, the total loss being about $30,000.

While climbing a ladder to superintend the release of the horses, of which there were nearly 150 in the building, three firemen were thrown forty feet to the ground when the iron "dogs" on the ladder slipped. The men were not seriously injured.

VICTIMS OF POISON?

Man and Wife Found Dead a Week After Their Marriage

Williamsport, Pa., June 19.—Albert Munro and his bride of a week were found dead in their chamber. On a dresser was a partially filled box of chocolates. There was nothing to indicate violence and it is believed they were victims of poisoned candy.

They were in their nightclothes and the gas was burning brightly. The woman's body was on the floor and the man was leaning forward across the bed.

CONCERT—RECITAL.

Pupils of Mrs. Darling Heard In Voice and Piano Selections.

One of the most enjoyable of recitals was that given at Colonial hall Friday evening by the pupils of Mrs. Amy F. Codding-Darling, who were assisted by Miss Blanche Goodwin of Worcester, a child reader and Miss Louise A. Steffens of Wollaston, violin soloist. The recital was well attended and the work of the several pupils showed the thoroughness of the instructions they had received.

The program opened with a piano duet by Miss Elsie Thompson and Mrs. Darling, who were followed by Miss Annie Connors who played Warren's Tam O'Shanter, and with a reading by Miss Goodwin.

Miss Marion Nicoll sang two numbers, "The Song My Paddle Sings" and "The Slumber Boat," and was followed by Miss Celia Connors who rendered the Gypsy Rondo.

Miss Steffens gave two numbers on the violin, whose playing was beautiful.

Other numbers on the program were a song by Nevin by Master Will Jackson, piano duet by Master Carl Gillott and Mrs. Darling, solo by Miss Louise Prout, songs in costume by Miss Beatrice Medlin and choruses. There were also other numbers by Miss Connors, Miss Goodwin and Miss Steffens.

The program was one of seventeen numbers not one of which but was finely rendered.

BIG SHOW COMING.

The 101 Ranch Wild West Show, the only distinctively and exclusively authentic prairie amusement organization of the country, will visit this city on June 24, presenting afternoon and evening performances, and introducing itself with an elaborate and original forenoon street parade. Miller Bros. & Arlington, joint owners of the institution, make promise that nothing like the 101 Ranch traveling amusement adjunct in character or in magnitude has ever before been seen in this city. The real life of ranch and range and Indian camp will be reproduced in all its vivid and romantic picturesqueness by actual, living figures of the frontier.

The organization comes here direct from the Miller Bros.' ranch at Bliss, Okla., the largest and most famous in all the world. Every one of the 700 members of the show is a permanent employe of the great prairie enterprise, paroled to give the public a truthful view of the life that has vitalized western history.

The 101 Ranch has remained intact in all its vastness, despite the influx of the small farmer into Oklahoma. Regulation quarter-section homesteads completely encircle its area, but the 101 Ranch range still remains largely unblocked and roads ends and the trails begin there. Several tribes of Indians, living as primitively as in the old days, have their homes on the great tract and the buffalo wanders at will. Incidentally, the Millers own more than one-tenth of the present day number of this one distinctive American animal.

The organization which is coming to this city is an amplified edition of the show which startled the amusement world last year. It is a living page from frontier history, without professionalism or theatrics. It is solely a "real" wild west show. Every feature and figure is original with the 101 Ranch—cowboys, cowgirls, Indians, bucking horses and trained cowponies; champions of the lariat, the gun and the bow and arrow; longhorn steers, pure blooded buffalos, emigrant schooners and old time prairie stage coaches. Without variation or illusion, the sports, perils, pastimes, hardships, adventures, chivalries and routine duties of the ranch and range are reproduced in a great arena.

This 101 Ranch tournament, from its very nature and source, is different and distinct from anything ever shown before under canvas as none of the hackneyed, tiresome, familiar round of other so-called and miscalled "wild west" exhibitions enter into its roaring, rollicking and reckless displays. It is fresh, clean and wholesome, fairly tingling with the breath of prairie and of mountain. There is not a man or woman in it who has not learned the secrets of the border far out in the sage brush and the prairie and who cannot read the grass and the sky with understanding eyes. The grand entry at each performance is a veritable echo of the plains and the cattle trail.

Miller Bros. & Arlington have aspired to make their preliminary street parade a pageant that will remain a glorious memory to all who view it. More than one hundred Indians are a fantastic feature. Every person and every animal with the organization is required to be in line. The cavalcade stretches more than a mile in length. It is a moving summary of the west which knows no barbed wire or blocked trails.

ST. JOHN'S DAY COMMEMORATED

Masonic Bodies Attend Services At Point Chnrch

There was a large attendance of Masons at the Washington Street Congregational church Sunday at the service in commemoration of St. John the Baptist. The sermon was by Rev. Alfred Ray Atwood the pastor of the church and chaplain of Rural lodge. In addition to Rural lodge there was present a large number from Wollaston lodge and delegations from Delta lodge of Braintree and Orphans Hope lodge of East Weymouth.

The centre of the church was reserved for the Masons while Charles Sampson, Master of Rural lodge, Walter S. Pinkham, Master of Wollaston lodge and L. W. Bates master of Orphans Hope lodge occupied seats on the platform.

The music was exceptionally fine the choir being assisted by the Mendelssohn trio.

The service opened with an anthem by the choir, reading of the 23d psalm, scripture lesson and prayer, and sermon. During the service Mrs. Emma S. Moore sang "My Redeemer and My Lord" and the Mendelssohn trio sang "Sweet in Thy Mercy Lord" and "God is Love."

Rev. Mr. Atwood's text was from Genesis 1-14 "Let there be Light."

In opening he said that this service was in celebration of one of the Free Masons patrons, St. John. It was the custom for societies to celebrate events that give character to the society and the Masons celebrate St. John's day.

Masonry he said dates back to 1733 and records go even farther back than 1599. Back of these it was the custom for builders to organize into bands. At the building of the King Solomon temple they were operative masons. Later speculative Masons were admitted

Free Masonry finally became speculative but still contiues to retain the emblems of operative Masons and gives them due significance.

Representatives of the order are now found all over the word. Years before our republic had been dreamed of Masons had chiseled on the tablet, Liberty, Equality and Freedom.

Masonry was not a substitute for religion. It is a human institution, while religion is something divine. Masonry looks to sacred writings as the guide to all truths. It preserves the right of all to their own religious belief. Religion is one of it's pillars. The very foundation o fits structure It is not a rival of the church for it does not answer the highest needs of sinful humanity. No man can be a worthy mason who is not true to all moral things of life. Our aim is the moral aim of making genuine manhood. The church can never be injured by an institution that teaches morality and manhood.

An institution with such a mission to fulfill has reason for existance. It is the cultivation in loving service of Moral manhood. Great as masonry now appears its growth has been the work of each individual. Each has added but a simple atom to the edifice without the thought of seeing the cap stone laid. The structure is still rising. It has left the dark unfathomed course of the ocean bed. It will never finds its final glory until it emerges form the ocean of time.

THE RED SOX ENTERTAINED

Ball Tossers at Wait-a-Minute Bungalow Adams Shore

Several members of the Boston Red Sox and the Philadelphia Athletics and a few other friends, were the guests of Ben Johnson Sunday afternoon at his beautiful summer home, the Wait-A-Minute cottage, Adams shore, Houghs Neck. The boys couldn't have wished for a better day, the sun being warm and the wind balmy. All the ball players thoroughly enjoyed themselves, lying around as if they were right at home, and indeed one is right at home when he goes to Ben Johnson's. The fun began soon after the arrival of the players, about 2 o'clock, and lasted all afternoon and well on in the evening, the boys hating to leave the beach and lingering there till it was absolutely necessary for them to go.

A special car brought the members of the teams and other Boston guests to the beach, Frank A. Gendreau having charge of the party. There were eleven players in the party, eight from the Boston team and three from the Athletics. Among those in the party were Cap. Doc. Gessler, Garland (Jake) Stahl, Charlie Chech, Charlie Wagner, Frank Arrellanes "Tris Speaker," "Joe" Wood and Victor Schlitzer of the Boston team and "Paddy" Livingston, Harry Krause and "Heinie" Heitmuller of the Athletics.

After the arrival of the Boston party a beautiful shore dinner was served by the peerless caterers Norteman Brothers of Houghs Neck. The tables were spread on the broad verandas of the Bungalow and during the dinner Cusick's orchestra played all the up-to-date music, the party joining in the choruses. The dinner over a musical entertainment was given, including stunts by the players, who were as frisky as colts. Among the numbers were solos by Ben Johnson, Doc Gessler, and Frank Arellanes of the Red Sox and Harry Krause of the Athletics. There was also some specialties by Paddy Livingston of the Athletics while Speaker and Wood both showed class on the drums and the xylophone, both giving solos on these instruments. Thomas P. Lannigan also sang several Scotch songs in imitation of the famous Harry Lauder.

Other guests were William Jacobs, William Jacobs, Jr., Capt. R. Y. Woodbury, Edwin W. Courtney, Leo J. McMasters, Peter M. Sullivan, Timothy J. Collins, William McConville, Henry F. Patterson, George T. Magee, Archie Baird, Robert J. Williams, Frank Kuhns, William H. Callahan, James P. Dillon and Alfred N. LeBreque.

All the players but Gessler, Speaker and Wood went home shortly after supper, but these three stayed to enjoy the cool evening breezes of the seashore, saying that it is not very often they get such an outing as that given by Ben Johnson.

Dr. Harry Gessler, captain of the Boston team, invited Ben to attend the double header to be played at Huntington avenue this afternoon and Ben said he would be there strong to root for the best team that was ever gotten together.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac W. Pinkham of Lincoln avenue have announced the engagement of their daughter Anna to Mr. Frank Ryder of Dorchester.

"BUTTEFLY BUD" MARRIED

Girl For Whose Ball Flutterers Were Imported Becomes Bride

Philadelphia, June 21.—Owing to the recent death of James W. Paul, Jr., the banker, of this city, the marriage today of his daughter, Miss Mary Astor Paul, to Charles A. Munn, Jr., of Washington, was celebrated with extreme simplicity, although the bride is a member of one of this city's most prominent families and the bridegroom's family is very well known socially in Washington.

MARY ASTOR PAUL.

Today's bride is the famous "butterfly debutante" of the winter of 1907-8. For her coming out her father brought from Brazil and Peru 500 live butterflies, which were released at the ball given in honor of his daughter's debut. It was estimated at the time that the expense of bringing out Miss Paul amounted to $100,000. The bridegroom is a brother of Miss Carrie Munn, who was reported engaged to Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., in the spring of this year.

The ceremony was performed in St. Martin's church, Radnor, and was witnessed only by the immediate families and a few intimate friends of the bridge and bridegroom. Mr. Munn is a senior in Harvard, and the young couple will occupy a house near the university until he completes his course. Later they will reside near Philadelphia.

FOUND DEAD ON ROAD

New Hampshire Lumberman Probably Murdered and Robbed

Bristol, N. H., June 21.—The body of Alexander F. McCarns of Manchester was found Sunday on the highway on the New Hampton side of the Pemigewasset river with scalp wounds on the forehead. His watch was missing from his pocket, but a bar and three links of the chain remained, showing that it probably had been torn from the clothing.

McCarns, with seven other workmen from a lumber camp in New Hampton, was in this village Saturday evening to get a consignment of liquor at the express office.

The authorities will interview some of his companions at the lumber camp. McCarns was about 29 years of age and had been employed at the camp one week.

Mrs. Sylvester Brown was a guest over Sunday of Mrs. William Wash- of Campello.

GOOD HITTERS ARE WANTED

That is What Quincy League Team Needs to Win

Another big crowd journeyed to the Water Street grounds Saturday and saw Quincy beaten again in the Old Colony league series, this time by the fast club from Stoughton. As usual lack of hitting at the critical times was the main cause of their defeat, but all due credit must be given to the visitors for classy ball playing in the field and at the bat.

"Sid" Patterson started the game for the locals, but at the start Stoughton took kindly to his curves and in the first inning knocked out two runs as a result of two doubles, a sacrifice and an error by Spiller, his first of the season. Quincy got one of the runs back in her half of this inning. "Billy" Duggan started the fun with a hit to left. Burke followed with a pretty bunt down the third base line and was thrown out at first by Ordway, while Duggan went all the way to third, showing a lot of speed on the bases. He scored on Lonergan's out at first. Stoughton got another in the second and Fraser got to first on an error by Orcutt. He was sacrificed to second by Sullivan, and after Graham had fanned, scored on Murphy's hit to left, his second of the day. Murphy was thrown out trying to make second on the hit. Stoughton's fourth and last tally came in the eighth inning. After Roach had gone out Hoye to first, McInerney doubled to left centre and went to third on Sullivan's out at first. Graham then struck out and Raymond came to time with a single to centre sending Mac over the plate.

Quincy had several chances to win the game, but the necessary hit was not forthcoming. In the third with Hoye and Orcutt on third and second and only one out, McDevitt struck out and Fallon, not George but a new catcher, flied to centre field. Again in the eighth there were three men on bases and Hoye at the bat, but Vin's best was a strick-out.

Several new faces were seen in the Quincy line-up, some new ones being secured with the hope of strengthening the batting of the team. The new ones did not fill the bill and though they got seven hits all told, they were scattered and did not come at the proper times. Behind the bat in place of McIntosh was seen Fallon. Fallon comes from Cambridge and has been in the game for a long time. He is a fair catcher, but was weak with the stick. McDevitt on first played a good game, but as he says himself, he is no first baseman. Orcutt at second played third base for Brown the past season and put up a grand good game for his college team. His showing in Saturday's game was not all that could be desired, but he did pull off one or two good plays.

The whole amount of it is, Quincy has got to get some hitters or she will never stand up against the other teams of the league, unless she has pitchers who can shut out the others all the time. Patterson should have a good man to help him in the box. He cannot be expected to pitch every game and win all the time and at the same time look after the managerial duties. Saturday after Patterson retired from the box, Johnny Kolson went in. Kolson pitched for six innings and although seven hits were made off his delivery, only one run was scored. He got into several holes, but good fielding pulled him out safely. But Kolson is not the pitcher he used to be and will never stand against the teams of the Old Colony league. The only thing to do is to get out and get the players. There are plenty of college stars now out of school and it doesn't take much to get them. The outfield appears to be all right, but the entire infield, with the possible exception of third base, must be strengthened. This must be done to satisfy the fans who are supporting the team in great style.

Next Saturday the Rockland team comes here and the locals are going to try to take this game. They have defeated Rockland once this season and will attempt to repeat Saturday. Come up and encourage the boys, for all they want is a start and then they will play ball with any of them.

Another thing that was not to the liking of the fans was the work of Umpire Whitney. This of course is not up to the hometeam, but the local officials should make a complaint to the powers that be in the league. Whitney's work was about the worst over, his eye sight, judgment and almost his knowledge of the rules be-

It was Ben Johnson and not Ban Johnson who was the king pin with the Boston American base ball team yesterday.

The trolley cars were the poor men's carriages yesterday and they were the carriages for thousands who weren't exactly poor either.

Will the city council wrestle with the Houghs Neck school house problem tonight or will the Houghs Neck school house problem wrestle with the city council?

The police are still perservering in their attempt to muffle the unmuffled motor boats. So far there hasn't been a contested case under the new law so that it is hard to tell whether the statute makes a noise like the real thing or a false alarm.

The city council may be able to postpone a school house from being located in Houghs Neck but it can't keep the fire department from getting there in double quick time whenever it is needed.

Tonight may be the night that the street committee of the council will hand out presents in the shape of orders for accepted streets to the many petitioners who appeared at the several public hearings held two or three weeks ago. Come around tonight and get a street.

The lawn fete of the Woman's auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A., held on the Adams Academy grounds Saturday afternoon and evening called to mind again, and most forcibly, the melancholy spectacle of such a place being closed to a career of usefulness as was intended by its donor, President John Adams.

City square, near the fountain, looked like a human maelstrom last night. The countless cars, arriving from every point, unloaded their hundreds of passengers at one point and so great were the throngs of people that passing automobiles were obliged to crawl along at a snail's pace. The obliging car starter had his patience tried to the limit's furthermost end but he was courteous and prompt throughout the continual bombardment of questioning that assailed him from all sides.

A friend of dumb animals makes the statement that the horses owned by the city and used on the public works are among the handsomest animals he has ever seen and he expressed the idea that it would be worth sending them to the work horse parade next year. If the horses have not been shown at these parades before, we hope the city authorities will bear the fact in mind next time.

There is an order before the council, offered, we believe, by Councilman Flynn, for a cinder track on the ward 2 playground. The order seems worthy of serious consideration. With the public bathhouse adjoining the playground, equipped with lockers and shower baths, there is no reason why the ward 2 playground should not be made a duplicate of the famous Charlesbank gymnasium in Boston, the praises of which Mr. Maccabe spoke so eloquently at the grammar schools' graduation.

Fraternally speaking, Sunday was a busy day. At the Point Congregational church the members of the Masonic bodies of Quincy, Wollaston, Weymouth and Braintree joined in a service commemorative of St. John the Baptist's day and at the Wollaston M. E. church the John Hancock lodge of Odd Fellows gathered to remember their departed brothers. These societies set a mighty good example for lots of men not connected with such organizations. Experience in other countries has taught the lesson that where nonchurch-going exists there irreligion creeps in and where irreligion gets a strong foothold, anarchy and the other evils which follow in its train rear an abundant crop. It's a good sign of the times when large numbers of men can be seen going to church in a body as was witnessed in this city yesterday.

The Boston American base ball players, the Red Sox or the "speed boys," whichever you want to call them are as clean cut and gentlemanly a crowd of young men as ever visited our city. They were charmed with Quincy and especially with Post island, where they spent the day. "Doc" Gessler, the captain of the team, certainly gives a good example for his men to follow. He is a gentlemanly ball player and a ball playing gentleman. As a medical student he was in the same class with Dr. Reynolds of West Quincy and has many happy memories of the latter.

There may be a chance for business, now that the state legislature is through work and congress shows signs of going out of office with a tariff bill that has been "revised." Remember the word, please, for it is sure to come to the front again during the next political campaign. Also, while remembering the word, bear in mind President Taft's interpretation of the word as supplied to the tariff and see how near to the mark congress has come. The final revision of all these matters lies with the people and they are the ones who ought to keep the work well to the front. In the meantime the cost of living will be the best test as to whether or not the revision vaccine "takes."

One cannot walk along the sidewalks in City Square on a fine Saturday night, like last Saturday night was, without realizing that Quincy is getting to be a lively place. At times it was hard work passing along the sidewalks, so great were the crowds. It has been a subject of comment for many years that the easterly side of Hancock street looks dark and dismal compared to the other side which is always well lighted and crowded. Perhaps the erection of the proposed block and hall at the corner of Hancock and Cottage streets may tend, in some manner, to change the aspect of things. As an encouragement to making Quincy more city-like looking, it wouldn't be a bad idea to have the square lighted better from Bethany church to Saville street.

QUINCY MAN KILLED.

Gaetano Chello Smothered to Death by a Sewer Cavein at Milton.

Gaetano Chello, 32 years old, living at 57 Canal street, this city, was buried alive Saturday afternoon while at work in a sewer trench on Edgehill road, Milton. Chello was laying pipe at the time and the side of the trench caved in suddenly and without any warning. The poor fellow was caught underneath tons of dirt and though his comrades worked frantically to dig him out Chello was dead when they reached him.

The body was viewed by the medical examiner and was brought to the morgue of W. E. Brown & Co., Revere road. He was a married man and had a wife and four children in Italy.

Fatally Shot In Early Morning Batile With Yeggmen

ONE OF THE LATTER KILLED

Blood on Club of Deputy Sheriff Shows That Another Member of the Band Must Have Been Wounded—Prints of Handcuffs on Wrists of Dead Robber Indicate That He Had Been Overpowered

Oxford, Mass., June 21.—Determined to shoot on sight, armed posses are scouring the tangled woods on the outskirts of this town for the remainder of the yegg band, whose disastrous raid through Webster and Oxford Sunday morning ended when Deputy Sheriff Albert E. Miller was fatally shot near the heart after he had killed Frank Harding, one of the yeggs, and wounded another in defense of his town.

The early morning batttle in the lonely highway junction has stirred the town to a frenzy of excitement and the posses are determined to avenge the murder of their fellow-townsman at all costs.

The body of the dead deputy, lying on his piazza, where he had crawled with a bullet near his heart, a blood-stained club still in his right hand, together with the body of the yeggman lying prone in the wayside station, are the only evidences of the fierceness of the attack.

The marks of the jimmy on a slot gum machine and an automatic weighing scale at the Oxford Junction show what aroused the deputy from his sleep in the little variety store conducted jointly with his brother William.

Partly dressing he grabbed his revolver and rushed out of doors with the evident purpose of investigating the noises he had heard at the junction station of the Worcester, Webster and Southbridge street railway. He had reached the middle of the road, where it is evident he was attacked by the armed band.

Three shots were heard at the home of Miller by his mother, but from the marks found on the dead bodies four shots at least must have been fired in the fray. The theory advanced by the police and which is borne out by the evidence of the wounds on the dead yeggman and Miller's club is that Miller overpowered the first member of the band who assailed him, clubbed another, and in the scuffle that followed shot Frank Harding twice, in the right arm and through the heart.

On Harding's wrists are marks which show that Miller's handcuffs had been clasped about them, but they had failed to lock. Harding crawled from the middle of the road into the junction station, where he died on one of the benches. Miller got as far as his piazza, called his brother William, and then died before the members of his startled family could give him any assistance.

AN $8500 MONUMENT

Government to Erect It Over Graves of the Confederate Dead

Washington, June 21.—At the war department today bids were opened for the erection of a monument to the Confederate dead who are buried in the Finns Point National cemetery at Salem, N. J.

The monument, which is to cost about $8500, will be erected by the United States government to mark the resting place of 2460 officers and men of the Confederate army and navy who died as prisoners of war at Fort Delaware between 1862 and 1865.

The adoption of a general monument for the purpose is due to the fact that it has been found impossible because of imperfect records to place a distinctive headstone at each individual grave, as contemplated by the act of congress.

The commissioner for marking the graves of Confederate soldiers is General Edwin M. Coates, retired.

Six Thousand Voices and Big Orchestra In Grand Concert

New York, June 21.—The walls and great steel roofing of old Madison Square garden last night fairly swayed in harmony with a chorus of 6000 voices, the music of a great orchestra, the songs of a famous soprano and the applause of an enormous audience.

The event was the third big concert, but the first grand concert of the twenty-second national festival of the Northeastern Saengerbund of America, which began Saturday night and will last through Tuesday.

Last night was the first appearance in her adopted country of Mme. Schumann-Heink since her return from a triumphant visit to her native land. The mezzo-soprano received an ovation.

TEN PERSONS KILLED IN TROLLEY CRASH

Big Cars Are Welded Together In a Mass of Debris

South Bend, Ind., June 21.—Ten persons were killed and forty injured when two big trolley cars collided head on. According to General Manager Wallace, the wreck was due to a disobedience of orders by Motorman Reed of the east-bound car, who was killed.

The east-bound car was going fifty miles an hour to make up lost time. When the collision occurred the east-bound car was telescoped and almost demolished. In this train were all of the killed and most of the injured, the passengers on the west-bound train escaping with bruises.

The two cars were welded together in a mass of debris in which lay the dead and dying and forty injured. The cries for help caused a scene of confusion for many minutes. Soon, however, the cool headed passengers brought order out of chaos. Darkness greatly interfered with the progress of the rescuers, and to make matters worse the nearest telephone was nearly a mile away.

Reed had received instructions at Gary to wait at Wilson, the point at which the disaster occurred, for the westbound car to pass. The impact of the cars was so great that they were reduced to a mass of wreckage.

101 RANCH.

Chan-ku-ta-wea, a blue-blooded decendant of the royal family of the Sioux Indian nation, whose skill with the shotgun is the wonder of the world of fire-arms, is one of the features of the 101 Ranch Wild West Show, which will be here on June 24th. Her exploits require sustained daring, nerve, steadiness and unerring eye, whose equals neither the white nor redskin races have produced.

The girl has no recollection of the time when she did not handle a shotgun. She played with one when a child as other little girls play with dolls. Her name is an Indian appreciation of her skill, meaning "Little Shooting Girl."

Adopted by the whites at an early age, Chan-ku-ta-wea was sent to Carlisle College. Contact with white civilization and the education of the east did not suffice to lure her from the wigwams of her forefathers. She was riding the Oklahoma prairie on a spotted pony, as in the primitive days of her childhood, when the Miller Brothers, owners of the 100,000 acre 101 Ranch, engaged her to participate in the performance of their frontier show. Her exhibition is an amazing demonstration of the extreme possibilities of the shotgun at the traps and in fancy and practical fire-arms exploits.

A LESSON TO YOUNG GIRLS

Paul Sigel's Comment on Untimely Fate of His Daughter

IDENTIFIES DISFIGURED BODY

Chemical Anaylsis of Contents of Her Stomach to Be Made—Uncertainty as to Wheher She Was Dead Before Body Was Placed In Trunk In Which It Was Found—Police Looking For Leon Ling, With Many Aliases

New York, June 21.—Leon Ling, with his string of English-Chinese aliases and his American clothes, may never be found, but the mutilated body of the New York girl left behind in a trunk in his room here will not be buried in Potters Field. Paul Sigel, the father, claimed and positively identified the body at the morgue last night, admitting for the first time that the victim was his daughter Elsie.

The girl's mother, now in a sanatorium, had identified the jewelry; another woman had identified the stained underclothing, and relatives had said that the murdered girl was Elsie Sigel, granddaughter of General Franz Sigel, but until last evening the father had maintained an attitude of silence unexplained.

Coroner Harburger asked the father if he was certain that the body was that of his daughter Elsie. "I am satisfied," said the man, brokenly, and he was led away.

Mr. Sigel, at his home last night, after returning from the morgue gave out an interview, the first since the discovery of the murder. He said that the funeral would not be held from the house.

"The disgrace has been keen enough as it is without having the funeral from here in front of a gaping crowd," he said. "My wife and I have aged ten years in the past week. This should be a lesson to young girls not to mix with other than their own people."

Franz Sigel made arrangements for the immediate removal of the body for the funeral. Elsie's stomach, however, is in the hands of a Columbia university professor who will make a chemical analysis of its contents. Although the murder is supposed to have been committed on June 9, the exact cause of her death has never been ascertained. While the autopsy determined that death was probably due to asphyxiation, whether she was choked, smothered under a pillow or drugged, bound with rope and left to die horribly in the trunk is as much a mystery as is the whereabouts of Leon Ling and his pal, Chung Sing.

Aside from the positive identification of the body there are few developments in the case here. Chu Gain, manager of the Port Arthur restaurant in Chinatown, who was detained as a material witness, was held without bail until Thursday. He has admitted that he knew Elsie Sigel well and incurred the enmity of Leon Ling and that both he (Chu Gain) and the girl were threatened with death. He will be put through a characteristic police ordeal before he is released.

What progress the police have made toward tracing Leon Ling is not known. Various clews such as surround every crime of this character are being followed out.

Nearly 200 letters have been found in the Port Arthur restaurant by detectives, all written by Elsie Sigel to Chu Gain, now under arrest. They show that the girl bestowed terms of endearment upon at least one other Chinaman besides Leon Ling. The letters were taken to police headquarters.

NUTMEG FIRST OVER LINE

Thirty-Four Yachts Give Evidence of Having Met Rough Weather

Block Island, R. I., June 21.—With every stitch of her canvas spread before a stiff southwest gale, sloop Nutmeg swept into the west harbor, the winner of the New York Athletic club's sixth annual ocean race of 100 nautical miles from Whortleberry Island.

Nutmeg is owned by A. C. Jones. Sloop Duchess was the winner of the time prize. Nutmeg's time was 11:52:30.

The race was one of the roughest of years, and of the forty-one starters nearly all showed signs of the rough weather in the shape of broken gear. A number of them had their jibbooms broken and many had their headgear carried away.

FIVE MONTHS' TIME WASTED

Jury In Trial of Patrick Calhoun Hopelessly Divided

TWO STOOD FOR CONVICTION

Discharged by Judge Lawler, Who Takes Occasion to Criticise Laws and Usages Which Make Possible the Expense of Three Months In Empanelling a Jury—Railway Magnate Was Charged With Bribery

San Francisco, June 21.—Terminating in a disagreement of the jury, with ten men determined on acquittal and two resolved on conviction, the trial for bribery of Patrick Calhoun of the United Railroads ended at noon Sunday. Five months and a week had passed since the wealthy street railroad owner, a descendant of Patrick Henry, made his first appearance in court to answer to the charge of offering a bribe of $4000 to a supervisor to obtain an overhead trolley for his corporation.

Not until each juror had pronounced as hopeless the prospect of a verdict was the order for their dismissal made by Judge Lawlor, prosecution and defense assenting to the discharge. The defendant and his attorneys, as well as the chief officers of the prosecution, refrained from comment on the disagreement.

Five ballots were taken, three of these shortly after the jury retired. On the first vote the jury stood eight for acquittal and four for conviction. Two of the four joined the majority on the second ballot, and one of the remaining two announced his determination to remain out a month if necessary.

Judge Lawlor announced that he ascertained before coming to court that the jury appeared to be hopelessly divided. After ordering the discharge of the jury, Lawlor addressed to the twelve men some informal remarks, in which he criticized the laws and usages which made possible the expense of three months in empanelling a jury, and thanked them. He declared the courts were utterly helpless to prevent such occurrences and recommended that the legislature be influenced by the people to change the laws that governed court procedure.

The attorneys are expected to fix a date for another trial on the same indictment today.

A RECORD TOURNAMENT

Crack Shooters to Participate In Grand American Handicap

Chicago, June 21.—With today's preliminary practice the tenth grand American target shooting competition was begun. Unless all signs fail it will be the greatest tournament of the kind ever held in the United States.

The grounds of the Chicago Gun club, on which the tournament is held, are twelve acres in extent, and they are equipped with five sets of traps facing the north. There is ample shelter for more than 500 contestants should the weather prove stormy, and the appointments are equal to anything of the kind in the world.

The schedule of events adopted by the Interstate association includes the preliminary handicap on Wednesday and the event of the year for trap shooters, the Grand American handicap, on Thursday.

HONEYMOON IN AIR

Enjoyed by Burnham and Wife While Balloon Breaks a Record

Holbrook, Mass., June 21.—The balloon Pittsfield, which ascended from that city shortly after midnight Sunday morning, carrying Mr. and Mrs. Roger N. Burnham on their aerial honeymoon voyage, landed in this town at 4:20 o'clock.

The balloon broke all records of attempts to reach Boston, and makes it a claimant for the trophy offered by a Boston newspaper to the balloon which made a landing nearest to that city within a year. The previous record was a landing about twenty-six miles in an air line from Boston, while the Pittsfield comes within fourteen miles of the city. The distance covered was about 120 miles as the crow flies.

The balloon was piloted by William Van Sleet.

PROGRAM FOR CITY FIELD DAY

List Of Field Sports Arranged For Morning of July 5

Representatives of various athletic organizations met Monday night in the Mayor's office to map out a program of athletic events for the city's held day at Merry Mount park on the morning of July 5. The events will be held from 9 till 1. It was decided, since Atlantic is to have a band concert and evening fireworks, to have only field sports at the park and also a display of daylight fireworks for children. The latter are very interesting and the various pieces to be set off will discharge a regular Noah's ark of animals into the air which can be caught by the adept ones as they descend.

Those present at the conference were J. E. Neary of the Fore River, A. C., C. H. Parker of the Y. M. C. A., E. J. B. Desmond of the Copeland club, Daniel Driscoll and W. L. Elcock of the Iroquois and James Brogan of the Mohawks. It was decided to give gold watches for the first prizes, dress suit cases for the second and silver medals for the third. The event will be extensively billed all over Boston and the men present promised to placard the American league grounds with the posters next Saturday on the occasion of the big athletic meet there. It was arranged to have posters displayed in the union stations, Boston, and every effort will be made to get together the best crowd of amateurs that has ever been seen in this city. All but the half mile race are open to athletes from anywhere, provided they are registered and those who wish to enter should send their registration to J. Frank Facey, Cambridge , and then when they have been registered by that official, send their names to Leo Elcock, 21 Marsh street, Quincy.

The following list of sports was agreed upon: 100 yards dash, 440 yards run, one mile run, one half mile run (closed to Quincy athletes,) running hop, step and jump, three mile run and an open team race, each man to run a quarter of a mile.

Already there is a running track grubbed out at Merry Mount park and the mayor said he would try and get some cinders from the street railway company to fill in the track. If he was successful, he said, he would make arrangements with the street department for the use of the small steam roller for a day so that the track would be as firm and flat as it was possible to make it.

This will be a much needed improvement and will make Merry Mount park the mecca for future athletic meets unless the order for a cinder track on the Ward 2 playground, introduced by Councilman Flynn, passes the council at the next meeting. This latter playground is adjacent to the public bath house which is equipped with lockers and shower baths and would make an ideal spot for such a track.

BROTHERHOOD MEETING.

Interesting Talk by Rev. Chuchian of Turkey.

The Methodist Brotherhood of the Hall Place M. E. church, held a public meeting in the vestry, Monday evening with a good number of men present from different parts of the city as special guests.

The Chaplain of the Brotherhood, Rev. C. H. Raupach, gave a short sketch of the life of Bishop Charles H. Fowler for whom the newly organized chapter was named.

The president, Mr. Richard Moyle, then introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. Armenag Chuchian of Van Armenia, Turkey, who for thirty-five minutes held the attention of all, while he told of his homeland and gave many interesting incidents connected with his life and the persecution of the Turks among his people. Mr. Chuchian is a student in Boston University School of Theology and is fitting himself to return to his own land as a missionary.

FUNERAL OF GAETANO CHELLO.

The funeral of Gaetano Chello of 57 Canal street who was killed by a sewer cave-in at Milton, Saturday, was held Monday afternoon at St. John's church and was very largely attended by fellow countrymen with whom Chello was very popular. At 2 o'clock services were held by Rev. Francis Houston and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy.

HAD A SON IN QUINCY.

Death of Mother of James Dunstan of South Quincy.

The following is copied from a Cornwall, England, paper:

Oldest Parishioner's Death.— We greatly regret to record the death of Mrs. Mary Dunstan, widow of Mr. William Dunstan, who passed away at her residence Trenoweth Cottage, Trenoweth Lane, on Friday last, in her 90th year. She was the oldest and one of the most respected and esteemed parishioners. The deceased had been ailing for some time, and advancing weakness had compelled her to keep to her bed. She, however, retained her mental faculties to the last. She was of a happy disposition, and her cheerful countenance will be greatly missed by all who knew her. Much sympathy is expressed with the son in America, James Dunstan of Jackson Lane, South Quincy and the grown up daughters.

The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon at Mabe Churchyard, the Rev. W. C. Mason officiating. Deceased was a member of the Trenoweth Wesleyan Church for more than fifty years. The coffin was of polished elm, with brass mounts, and bore the following inscription:— "Mary Dunstan, died May 28th, 1909, aged 89 years."

The chief mourners were Mrs. H. Bath, daughter; Mrs. J. Pryor, daughter (Carnkie); Miss Bessie Dunstan, daughter; Miss Emily Pryor, granddaughter; Master Thomas Pryor, grandson; Messrs. H. Bath and John Pryor, sons-in-law, Mrs. Francis and Mr. Thomas Opie, cousins; Miss L. Spargo, (Antron;) Mr. F. Roberts, (Penryn,) and several others. Mr. J. Pryor, (Carnkie) carried out the funeral arrangements.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Wollaston League at West Quincy Service.

The Epworth League of the Wollaston M. E. Church attended the services at the Hall Place M. E. church, West Quincy, Sunday. A large number were present at the 6.00 P. M. services, the regular Devotional meeting of the Epworth League.

Mr. Richard Moyle was the leader. The scripture lesson was taken from St. Mark, 10; 17 to 22; the topic being "Rejected Opportunities."

The leader brought the message home to every one present in asking whether or not we are rejecting the opportunities which God is continually placing in our way. Some day God will give us just one more opportunity to accept Him, if we reject Him, we are lost forever, and he urged everyone to prepare for the life hereafter.

At the 7 o'clock service the pastor, Rev. C. H. Raupach, took for his text, Romans, 12;1.

"I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."

At the close of his sermon, the pastor spoke a few words in appreciation of the visiting league and said in closing, he hoped that many more such services might be held by the two leagues in the future, as "there is strength in union."

TEMPESTUOUS EXPERIENCE

Quincy Yachtsmen's Rough Voyage Around the Cape

The sloop yacht Owl, owned by Louis Bacon of Boston, arrived in Chatham, en route from Quincy for Mattapoisett, after a tempestuous experience in the westerly gale that has prevailed since last Friday.

The Owl was being taken around the Cape by Skipper Ralph E. Winslow of Quincy assisted by Frank Patch also of this city. Patch, however, having had enough of salt water for the present, returned to his office on State street, Boston, by Monday evening's train and Winslow has engaged a local skipper to assist in completing the voyage.

They left Quincy last Friday just as the northwest gale was coming on. While running before the gale in a heavy sea their tender broke away, and in trying to get the yacht about on the wind to recover the boat they had several narrow escapes from being swamped.

After getting around before the wind again the shackle to the jib-sheet traveller broke off, and after they succeeded in making that fast without capsizing the sheet itself parted. While trying to recover the sheet Patch was nearly washed out of the cockpit by a sea which broke into the boat, and the yacht next came within an ace of turning turtle.

Finally reaching Provincetown in the evening and spending the night there they started out around the Cape in a stiff west-southwest breeze. When off Chatham the gale increased again, and they found, as night was coming on, that they were gradually being blown out to sea.

Their tender filled twice, and while endeavoring to bail it out Winslow was nearly washed overboard . They succeeded in guiding the yacht alongside the Gloucester fishing schooner James A. Garfield, which was riding out the gale at anchor two miles off shore.

The crew of the schooner threw a line to the Owl, which was eagerly grasped by the two exhausted men, who then lowered their sails and climbed aboard the Garfield. They remained fast to the schooner two days until Monday noon, when the gale began to subside, and as the Garfield was to start for the fishing grounds they worked the boat into Chatham harbor. The Owl will resume her voyage as soon as the weather permits, with Capt. N. A. Bearse of Chatham as pilot.

Now let the scarifyer scarify.

Did you hear the cry, "Wait-A-Minute!" on the grounds of the American league yesterday? Well, it was only the echo of Sunday's outing at Post Island.

The Boston Americans won two games yesterday which speaks well for the Houghs Neck lobsters and clams.

As the city is going to give gold watches for first prizes at the field meet on July 5th, there ought to be a good time.

The new lights in and around the bath house on Town river look fine but the floats would look better in the water where they belong than high and dry on the beach.

The tragedy up in Oxford proves that the country constable is just as courageous as his brother police officer of the city and more often he is likely to be a better shot.

Today marks the first anniversary of the opening of the insurance department of the Whitman Savings bank under the Massachusetts savings insurance act of 1907. The success of the savings bank insurance plans in its first year has been very gratifying on the whole.

The Iroquois and Mohawks were represented at the mayor's office last night but it wasn't the advance of the wild west show. It was simply a gathering of representatives of athletic clubs who were called in to consult about the field sports for the city's track meet.

The men employed at the central fire station certainly have an eye for the artistic. The condition of the grounds is such as to attract attention from pedestrians and those who pass by in cars. Many words of commendation have been spoken for the care which the firemen take in keeping the yard and flower beds looking in the pink of condition.

The stretch of road on Newport avenue, which has just been completed, is a fine piece of street building and gives one good road for carriages and automobiles between Wollaston and Quincy Centre. If there is one thing that has stood by the present administration it has been the street repairing and building and in this department there seem to be officials who know their business.

Street railway car accidents are bad enough, no matter how insignificant they may be, but it doesn't do the paper or the correspondent any good to magnify the Sunday afternoon smash the way it was done in one Boston paper yesterday morning. It is unfortunate that this paper seems to get so much information that isn't so about affairs that happen in Quincy. It doesn't look well to see the name of the city paraded in scarehead type when there is no justification for it.

It was something of a relief that the Houghs Neck school house matter was not brought up for discussion at last night's meeting of the city council as the night was very hot and many members were absent. It is more than probable that on account of these conditions the subject would not have got the serious consideration to which it is entitled. It is generally understood that the finance committee will not report on the order now before it until it is known what the public buildings committee will do with Councilman Smith's order to buy a part of the Cavanagh lot. The finance committee does not care to get tangled up between two orders on the same subject but the chances are that the matter will be thrashed out to a finish at the meeting of the council next Monday night.

It looks as if the city is going in for a substantial-sized Fourth of July celebration after all. There is $300 to be spent on field sports and daylight fireworks at Merry Mount park and this event will attract a host of the best-known amateurs in this section. The event is to be extensively billed in and about Boston and the city of Quincy celebration bids fair to be a top notcher. Last night the city council appropriated an additional $250 to help out the Atlantic residents and this, it is understood, will be used to secure band concerts and fireworks. Some representations have been made to influence the mayor to veto this order but it is generally understood he will sign the order when it reaches him so Atlantic is sure of a good-sized celebration. Already the residents of that lively section of the city have contributed a large sum to be used in celebrating the day so that the Fourth of July in Quincy this year looks like a big noise.

ANNUAL OUTING.

The annual outing of the Copeland club and ladies will be held this year in the form of a day on the harbor next Sunday. A party of about 120 are expected to leave West Quincy on special cars which will take them direct to Foster's wharf, Boston, they will board the steamer "Provincetown." The party will proceed to Provincetown where arrangements have been made for a dinner to be served by Martin, the well known local caterer. After a pleasant hour about the town the party will enjoy the sail home, and will reach Quincy about 8 P. M.

The guests of the club on this occasion will be the young ladies who assisted in the production of the play "The House of Too Much Trouble," recently given under the auspices of the Relief committee of the club.

SIGEL MURDER IS NOT SOLVED

Two Arrests Shed No Light on the Chinatown Mystery

PRIVATE BURIAL OF THE VICTIM

Body Taken From Morgue to Cemetery In Plain Undertaking Wagon—Christianized Chinese to Offer Reward For Capture of Slayer—Intimate Friend Tells of Elsie Becoming Infatuated With Supposed Murderer

New York, June 22.—After a bit of police flurry, an hour or two of unverified reports and telephoning between cities, the murder of Elsie Sigel, daughter of Paul Sigel of this city and granddaughter of Major General Franz Sigel of Civil war fame, resolved itself into an unsolved crime again.

Chung Sin, who formerly occupied a room adjoining that where the girl's body was found, is held by the police at Amsterdam, N. Y., not far from Schenectady, but what has been learned from him has not served to clear up the case. At Schenectady the Chinaman arrested Monday, at first thought to be Leon Ling, or William L. Leon, who is sought as the girl's murderer, has, according to all indications, pretty well established that he is an unoffending Celectial who formerly worked in a restaurant in New York and whose arrest was brought about merely through his strikingly unfortunate resemblance to Leon Ling.

Thus, with the arrest of Chung Sin of no great import, the case, aside from developments in New York, is about where it was when Elsie Sigel's body was found crammed into the trunk in a room over an Eighth avenue chop suey restaurant last Friday night.

While the authorities up-state were putting the two Chinamen through an inquisition, Sun Leong, keeper of the restaurant above which the body was found, was being questioned here. Sun Leong disappeared on the night the body was found, but quietly and calmly surrendered himself early Monday. He is being detained as a material witness, but his voluntary surrender is taken to mean that he is not implicated in any way in the crime.

In the midst of all the police activity the body of Elsie Sigel was quietly buried Monday afternoon in Woodlawn cemetery. As her father had announced that he wished no more publicity, the coffin containing the mutilated form was taken directly from the morgue to the burying ground in a plain undertaking wagon. The ceremony at the grave was strictly private and was attended only by the girl's father, her brothers, Reginald and Theodore, and her uncle, Franz Sigel.

Mrs. Sigel, it will be recalled, broke down completely when she learned of her daughter's death and is now in a sanitorium.

Although the mission in Chinatown where Elsie Sigel formerly taught has been closed, a meeting of Chinese who have been converted to Christianity was held in a Doyer street mission to plan for a reward for the capture of Elsie Sigel's slayer. A committee will go through Chinatown soliciting subscriptions.

Theories as to the motive of the murder all coincide that the jealousy of Leon Ling caused it. That he killed her because of her apparent friendship for Chu Gain, who is detained as a material witness, is still the predominant belief.

In support of this explanation, Mrs. Florence Todd, one of the most prominent women workers in Chinatown, who knew Elsie Sigel and her mother intimately, said:

"I know Chu Gain very well. He is one of the few Chinamen whom I would trust with my life. Mrs. Sigel and Elsie also knew him for many years. I believe that Elsie was in love with Chu Gain and would have married him, but that he would not marry her.

"Within the last year, despite her love for Chu Gain, Elsie became apparently infatuated with Leon Ling. But I think it was only a flirtation. He, I know, asked her to marry him, but she refused him. In fact she told me that she refused him. Her mother knew all about it."

Various reports of Chinese being traced in different cities have come to the New York police and all are being looked into.

Wanted by Lynn Police

Rochester, N. Y., June 22.—When Anson M. Loud of Lynn, Mass., was brought before Judge Stephens on extradition papers a writ of habeas corpus was served on his captors. It is alleged that Loud wrongfully obtained $1800 in Lynn on his representation that he had a rare opportunity to invest in the tobacco business.

Bennett's Widow Returns

New York, June 22.—Among the passengers who arrived on the steamer Berlin from Genoa, Naples and Gibraltar, were Mrs. Holland Bennett, widow of Holland Bennett, the Boston lawyer who was lost overboard from the Berlin on June 10.

CHILDREN'S SUNDAY.

Several Children Baptised at Wollaston Unitarian Church.

Children's Sunday was observed at the Wollaston Unitarian church on Sunday morning. The church was attractively decorated with flowers and a very pretty service was held at which eight little ones were christened. "Now is the acceptable time." or "Do it now" was the subject of the sermon of the pastor, Rev. Carl G. Horst. He spoke of harm resulting from the habit of putting things off and in the course of his sermon gave many apt quotations.

Those christened were: Virginia Briggs daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Briggs; Paul, Seaman and Carl Frederic Baker, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton H. Baker; Elizabeth Barry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harwood Barry; Herman Henry Wieting, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman H. Wieting; Gordon Sayward Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Baker; Johnston and Rebecca Ruth Bird, children of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Bird.

TESTIMONY IS COMPLETE

No Necessity For Going Any Further, Says Counsel

THE GOULD DEFENSE RESTS

Unexpected Action Takes Plaintiff and Counsel by Surprise—Rebuttal Begun When Shearn Recovers From Astonishment — Testimony That Mrs. Gould Was of Sober Habits and Modest In Language

New York, June 22.—Sensation seekers and the curious who have waited daily on the suit of Katherine C. Gould for separation with allimony of $250,000 a year from her husband, Howard Gould, were sadly disappointed at the resumption of the hearings before Justice Dowling in the supreme court when it was announced that the defense had rested and that Howard Gould would not take the stand.

Mr. Shearn was apparently greatly surprised and taken aback by the announcement that Howard Gould would not testify. Gould himself seemed relieved and Mrs. Gould annoyed.

"Since the recess of last Friday, your honor," said Delancey Nicoll, counsel for the husband, "my associates and I have decided that the testimony which we have offered is so complete that there is no necessity for going further. We have therefore decided to rest at this time."

When he recovered from his astonishment, Shearn led off the rebuttal with testimony designed to show, he explained, "the falsity of the charge that Mrs. Gould was continually and habitually intoxicated from 1902 to the present date."

"Do you regard such evidence as necessary?" asked the court.

Necessary or not, counsel for the plaintiff thereupon produced a stream of below-stairs witnesses, whose testimony was followed by the reading of depositions of guests and friends who swore that Mrs. Gould never, to their knowledge, drank to excess, and was always affable, reserved and modest in her language, testimony directly opposed to that which the defendant's witnesses have given.

It was on account of the unexpected attitude taken by the defense that Shearn ran short of witnesses late in the day and was obliged to introduce the depositions. He promised, however, to have a string of about fifty ready today. They will testify in rebuttal to disprove, if possible, the husband's charges, including Mrs. Gould's alleged associations with Dustin Farnum, the actor.

BY PUBLIC SUBSCRIPTION

British War Office Willing to Accept Gift of Powerful Airship

London, June 22.—The idea of a public fund for the purchase of an airship is being strongly supported by War Secretary Haldane, who says that the war office will accept the gift. A large list of subscriptions is already announced.

The parliamentary aerial defense committee announces that a project is on foot to sail from Paris to London during the summer a new airship, which is now approaching completion. The airship is fitted with two propellers and two motors, each of 220 horsepower, and is capable of carrying twenty-five passengers and of developing a speed of beween thirty-five and forty miles an hour. The committee has secured an option for its purchase by the nation.

TOWN SHORT OF FUNDS

Schoolteachers and Officials Are "Hung Up" For Their Salaries

Narragansett, R. I., June 22.—Its legal debt limit reached and its available funds nearly exhausted, with no prospect of receipts from the tax levy of this year before next fall, this town, in which is located the fashionable resort known as the "Pier," is declared to be in serious financial straits.

Officials and schoolteachers are wondering where their vacation money for the summer is coming from. More than a month's salary is said to be due to public schoolteachers.

Straus' Departure Delayed

New York, June 22.—Oscar S. Straus, who was recently appointed American ambassador to Turkey, is recovering from an operation for appendicitis. Straus had expected to sail for Constantinople last week, but his illness prevented and on Sunday a successful surgical operation was performed.

Heat Brings Deaths In Boston

Boston, June 22.—Two deaths, three serious cases of prostration at the hospitals and fully a dozen other cases treated elsewhere were the result of the hottest day of the year in Boston. Officially the mercury rose to 88 degrees, but in the streets it was hovering in the 90s.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Odd Fellows Attend Service at Wollaston M. E. Church.

About sixty-five Odd Fellows and twenty Rebeccas attended the memorial services of John Hancock lodge, I. O. O. F., in the Wollaston Methodist church on Sunday morning. Past Grand Herbert Gearwar spoke in memory of Grand Sire John L. Nolen of the national body, the local organization having been fortunate in not losing any of its members the past year.

"A tribute of honor," was the subject of the sermon preached by Rev. Wesley Wiggin, pastor of the church. In addition to the choir and congregational singing Elmer Noyes assisted on the violin and George Critchley on the cornet. Solos by Mrs. Keyes were also enjoyed. Beside the organizations a large congregation of the church also attended.

HARDSHIP TO VETERANS.

Owing to an oversight or mistake several old veterans and widows of the Civil war, will be obliged to wait owing to a deficiency of $100,000 in the appropriation for New England, three months for their pension money which was due June 4. The withholding of the money means a privation to many who are poor and almost entirely dependent upon it for their comfort and existence. Owing to the red tape and slow movement of affairs through official channels the mistake cannot be rectified so that no payment can be made until late in September. Several in this city will feel the effects of the mistake and may be obliged to borrow to get along.

101 RANCH.

Every department of the 101 Ranch Wild West Show which will be here on Thursday June 24, is under the direct supervision of one or all of the three Miller Brothers. The 101 brand has always stood for superlative excellence and unblemished integrity, and its owners are seeing to it that the escutcheon is not sullied in the conduct of the big amusement organization which is touring the country. The active responsibility of the arenic performance is vested in Zack T. Miller, who is fitted by nature and experience for the exacting requirements of the position.

A small army of the crack cowboys of the country are enrolled on the Miller Brothers' list of employees, and to attain and maintain their sure enduring respect Mr. Miller must needs be their superior in all the varied spheres of physical endeavor in their calling. None is his equal with the rope, with firearms or a horse. Mr. Miller will subdue the most malevolent equine outlaw whom others are afraid even to approach. No equine mood is savage enough to daunt him, and once lodged in saddle no twist or turn or toppling of raging beast can unseat him. His companions of the range and round-up frequently stand awestruck at his exploits of skill and daring. He can toss the coil of his three strand lariat with seemingly unerring and infallible accuracy.

Mr. Miller is a conspicuous figure in all the numbers of the long and varied program of the 101 Ranch Wild West Show performance and leads the long line of mounted men and women in the forenoon street parade. The horse he rides is a full-blooded Arabian steed, imported from the desert straight to the 101 Ranch. It is valued at $5,000.

HALLEN TRIED TO PRESERVE PEACE

Judge Accepts His Story and Orders an Acquittal

New York, June 22.—James D. Hallen, who has been on trial here, charged with buncoing the Nicaraguan government out of the price of a million cartridges, was acquitted by direction of Judge Malone, who told the jury that the state had failed to prove Hallen guilty of any criminal practices.

Hallen sent the Nicaraguans sawdust and other harmless stuff in the boxes which President Zelaya's advisers supposed contained the ammunition. He did this, he alleged, because he had learned that Zelaya was planning to use the cartridges to upset the peace of all Central America.

SUFFRAGETTES ENDORSED

Lady Aberdeen's Opinion Publicly Expressed For First Time

Toronto, June 22.—At the suffrage meeting in connection with the International Council of Women last night, Lady Aberdeen came out for the suffragettes. She said:

"I have never before spoken on the question of suffrage for women, owing to the reason that my husband, the lord lieutenant of Ireland, occupies a high position in public affairs, but after hearing what has been said before this audience of women from every part of the world I can no longer keep silent."

Senators Discussing Hides

Washington, June 22.—The amendment of the senate committee on finance taking hides from the free list and restoring the Dingley law rate of 15 percent ad valorem was before the senate all day Monday and it probably will not be disposed of before late today, if then.

Grieved Over False Accusation

Albany, June 22.—Claiming he had been falsely accused by a co-worker at Lynn, Mass., of stealing money and jewelry, Henry Bowen, aged 25, a waiter, committed suicide. A letter giving the cause of his act was found on his body.

GET INSIDE.

Your Friends and Neighbors in Quincy Will Show You How.

Rubbing the back won't cure backache.

A liniment may relieve, but can't cure.

Backache comes from the inside—from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills get inside—They cure sick kidneys.

Here is Quincy proof that this is so:

Mrs. Fred Curtis, living at 18 Quarry street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used with such satisfactory results in my family that I feel it my duty to publicly recommend them. My husband was in pretty bad shape as the result of backache. He tried plasters and used several remedies, in an effort to get relief, but did not succeed until he began using Doan's Kidney Pills, which he procured at the Cox Drug Store. This remedy cured him in a short time and he is now feeling better than for years. I have also used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be an excellent remedy for regulating the action of the kidney secretions and toning up the general system."

BRIEFS

The annual picnic of the Sunday school of the Wollaston Baptist church will be held at Glen Echo park, North Stoughton, on Saturday June 26, cars leaving Copeland's corner at 9 A. M. On the committee are: C. D. Young, J. A. Sparrow and H. A. Burgess.

The Rev. Morris H. Turk and Mrs. Turk of Natick formerly of Quincy sailed from New York last week on the "Europa." They will be gone three months and are planning to visit Syria, Turkey and Bavaria before their return.

Sunday was a banner day for bathing at Wollaston beach thus for this year, upwards of seventy taking a dip during the day. The water however is a trifle cold as yet and the timid ones have not begun to venture in. It was an ideal day and although the wind was a trifle unsteady the majority of the yachts were in use.

A novel feature has been introduced at the Wollaston Congregational church in the organization of a chorus of sixteen young ladies which is taking the place of the regular choir during the summer months. The pastor, Rev. E. A. Chase is delivering a series of sermons under the general head of "The summer school of Jesus." He spoke Sunday morning on "The personality of the teacher."

Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg returned Saturday from Alexandria where he attended the commencement exercises and alumni reunion of the Theological seminary in Virginia last week. The Rev. Philip M. Rhinelander of the Episcopal Theological school Cambridge who accompanied Mr. Clattenburg delivered the missionary address Wednesday evening.

Letters remained unclaimed June 19, at the Quincy Post office for: H. Bastelli, Mrs. Otis Caller, Francis R. Conley, Joseph Dolan, Morgera Domenico, Electric Motor Co., Thomas Fitzgerald, Mrs. Helen C. Harris, Charles Harvey, Matti Jkola, Mrs. Cora Kelly, Alphonso Lemay, Jos. J. McGee, Frank B. Pendor, Johan J. Strid.

Sunday Dr. Merrill, Jr., of Wollaston entertained the Billiken club on his launch the Pocahonatas of the Wollaston Yacht club. The party left at 9.30 and spent until sundown cruising the harbor. Lunch was served on board and a most delightful time enjoyed although a number of young ladies were fairly well drenched ,the combination of squally winds and high waves made a most exciting time.

Quincy friends of Mrs. David Owens were surprised to learn of her sudden death Monday afternoon. The family was moving to Allston and Mrs. Owens was making a call on her granddaughter and at her former home when she dropped dead in the street. Funeral service will be held Wednesday at 2 P. M. from the home of her granddaughter, Somerset street, Dorchester.

The meeting of the Fowler Chapter was a decided success; not the least feature being the delicious refreshments served by the committee on Fellowship. A number of new members were added to the roll. This is but the beginning of a work which is destined to reach from one end of the community to the other and which will be a great help to the Hall Place M. E. Church.

NO CONTEST OVER HEWITT LEGACY

Yale Is Satisfied With Inheritance of $400,000

New Haven, June 22.—It is officially stated that the agreement with the relatives of Frederick C. Hewett of Owego, N. Y., of the Yale class of 1858, as to his legacies is final and that there will be no contest in the courts.

Under the arrangement as made Yale will inherit $400,000, or $100,000 less than the university was given under the terms of the will. The legacy will go to Yale without restriction and will be added to the general university fund.

BREAK IN STOCKS

Rumors of Harriman's Illness Cause Some Sharp Tumbles

New York, June 22.—Rumors that E. H. Harriman was critically ill in Vienna, a report that was at times exaggerated to the extent that he was dead, all met with prompt denials by his close associates and at the Union Pacific offices.

Notwithstanding this, the reports, accompanied by a sharp bear raid, caused a decided break in the stock market and the decline in the so-called Harriman stocks had not been checked when trading closed.

Union Pacific made a net loss of 3¾ for the day. Southern Pacific showed a net loss of 2⅜, Reading one of 4¼ and Alalgamated Copper one of 3⅜. Losses as high as 12 points from the high water mark of a few days ago were recorded.

BUT ONE PERFORMANCE

Maude Adams the Star In Great Production of "Joan of Arc"

Cambridge, Mass., June 22.—Never in the history of the American stage has there been a performance such as that of "Joan of Arc" to be given by Maude Adams in the Harvard stadium tonight. According to those who have witnessed the rehearsals and have grasped the scope and purpose of the play, the only dramatic representation with which it can be compared is the Passion play at Oberammergau.

MAUDE ADAMS.

In a series of splendid dramatic pictures, drawn on a vast scale, Miss Adams will depict the life of the young peasant girl who delivered France from the English invaders in the fifteenth century. All sides of the character of the Maid of Orleans will be shown—her life in her native cottage, the visitation of voices that led her to the saving of her dearly beloved France, her leadership of the French forces to victory and her martyrdom.

The performance will be adequately staged. There will be 1300 active participants, including about 800 men in armor on horseback, monks, citizens of both sexes, nobles, choir boys, English and French soldiery. The great historic figures of the time will be represented by actors well able to carry out the illusion of reality, and the stage settings and costumes will show the results of an immense amount of historical research. The play is an English version of Schiller's "Joan of Arc."

Miss Adams has had the co-operation of Charles Frohman, the well-known manager, in her preparations for the representation of "Joan of Arc." All his resources have been drawn upon freely for the success of the play. The purpose of the performance is the raising of money to help in the erection of a new building for the Germanic museum of Harvard university. Only one performance will be given. After the play tonight the company will be dispersed and the properties will be shipped to New York.

Kidnapping, Murder and Suicide

Khabarovsk, Russia, June 22.—The 9-year-old son of a rich merchant of this place was kidnapped Sunday while playing. One of the kidnappers yesterday presented a letter to the merchant, demanding $35,000. The latter sent for the police, whereupon the kidnapper killed the merchant and committed suicide. The fate of the boy is not known.

WARMEST OF SEASON.

Today is the warmest day of the year. Monday was a warm day but at no time did the mercury reach as high a point as it did this noon when the thermometer said the heat was 95 degrees. The warmest day this year previous to today was Sunday when it was 88 degrees at noon. There have been several days, however, this month when the temperature was in the eighties at noon. The warmest day in June last year was June 20, when the temperature was the same as today. A few cooling showers would be very welcome.

—Consumption among Japanese laborers is increasing to such a degree that the figures are becoming a source of anxiety to Japanese merchants and officials. A large percentage of laborers who are sent back to Japan by the Japanese charity associations are consumptives. It is claimed by the Japanese newspapers commenting on this matter, that through the lack of hospital accommodations in the Japanese labor camps tuberculosis increases at an alarming rate. They suggest that a new system be employed in dealing with the sick in these camps, as the Japanese are quite ignorant of even the most simple health safegards.

Commissioner Bainbridge had his oiling cart out early this morning and the streets about City Square were treated to a coat of oil before 5 o'clock. The preparation used today is a new one and is said to settle immediately into the ground and to be free from the objectional features of the oil used earlier in the season.

A steam fire engine to take the place of Quincy's old engine which has been sold by the Mayor, arrived in town this morning and went into service immediately. It will remain on duty until the new steamer arrives. The old steamer was sold to Providence parties by the Mayor for $350. This was $100 more than the builders of the new piece of apparatus would allow for the old seamer.

—Scandals have again broken out in French army circles, and high officials are accused of selling offices and promotions. That custom, which prevailed under the Bourbons, was suppressed by Napoleon, but became prevalent again under the last empire. So general did this barter and sale of army appointments become under Louis Napoleon that it was one of the main causes of the disastrous overthrow of the French in their war with Germany. The first Napoleon's success was largely due to the fact that army promotions were won by merit only. The French government has taken cognizance of the current charges, and a thorough house-cleaning of its military establishment may be expected.

DIED AT HOME IN THIS CITY

Alderman Donnelly Passes Away After Long Illness

Alderman Daniel J. Donnelly, a member of Boston's upper legislative branch, died at his summer home, Broadway, Montclair, at 8.10 this morning after a long illness. Alderman Donnelly has lived most of the last three years in this city. About three years ago his health began to fail and as tuberculosis symptoms seemed to prevail he was advised to move into the country. The alderman moved to Montclair where the hills are high and the air as pure as can be found in the city. His house was near the old Merry Mount golf club house and, although Alderman Donnelly has spent most of the last three years there, he also maintained a legal residence in Boston and has been elected every year to the board of aldermen since coming to Quincy. He has often been playfully referred to in Boston as the alderman from Quincy.

Alderman Donnelly was best known to his constituents as "Honest Dan the horse shoer." He represented a district composed of the old "South Cove" and also the Back Bay sections and was well known for his courage of convictions and his sterling honesty and integrity. Two years ago his nomination was contested by the late J. Montgomery Sears but "Dan" beat the representative of the Back Bay society to a stand still.

Since coming to Quincy Alderman Donnelly has been attended by Dr. Frederic J. Peirce of Atlantic. Dr. Peirce said that Alderman Donnelly was one of the most remarkable men he ever met. Although desperately sick for many months "Dan" never lost hope or courage but always played the host to everyone who visited him during his sickness. Up to the last he was cheerful and bright and was telling funny stories in the inimitable way "Dan" could tell them.

He was the very acme of superlative optimism and nobody was able to tell from the way in which the alderman entertained his callers that they were in a sick man's house. It was very easy to see why it was that his constituents in Boston had such a warm regard for Mr. Donnelly for he was chock full of personal magnetism and had an honest career to back it up with.

Since coming to Quincy Alderman Donnelly has made many friends, who will deeply regret his death. Although it was known for some time past that his chances of recovery were too remote to consider, yet many prayerfully watched the battle that Mr. Donnelly was daily making and many hoped against hope that he would win out. Many times it was reported he was dying and it often happened that the morning after such a story appeared in the papers, that Alderman Donnelly was found in city hall, Boston, so great were his recuperative powers. The long courses of the disease, however, continued to undermine his system and a few weeks ago he took to his bed and for awhile could not take nourishment. Later on he was fighting the battle again with a grim determination that was almost pitiful to see when the hopelessness of the case was considered.

Slowly but surely the disease made progress and each day Mr. Donnelly grew weaker until this morning when the fight was over and the alderman was dead. It is thought the heat of the past few days hastened his death but it was certain that his end could not have been far off under most favorable circumstances. He is survived by his wife and several children. The funeral arrangements have not been made as yet.

Another Hot Day

The temperature this noon was not quite as high as Tuesday but it was still too hot to be comfortable. There was quite a heavy shower during the night, which cooled the air somewhat. There seemed to be a little more air this morning and it looked as though showers might be expected at any time. A few showers would cool off the air some.

FOUND DEAD ON THE TRACKS

Man Supposed to be G. A. Ryan Killed by Train

The dead body of a young man was found this morning by the side of the railroad tracks about opposite the grain elevator, just south of the Quincy Adams depot. The discovery was made by crew of double iron freight train just before 3 o'clock. Both legs had been cut off and from the condition of the ties and rails it was evident that the man had been dragged for a distance of 40 or 50 feet.

Although the body was not discovered till just before 3 o'clock and the crew of the freight thought the man might have been struck by their train, Medical Examiner Jones, after viewing the body, said he thought the man had been killed before midnight. He thought it more than possible that the man had either attempted to board or get off a freight train and had been run over.

The man was about 5 feet 8 inches in height, had brown hair and brown eyes. He had with him a small bag in which were towels, soap and a razor which gave evidence that the man was of clean habits and the condition of the body bore out this supposition. In the pockets of the clothing were found two Fore River pay envelopes, marked, "G. Ryan—Dept. T., 41."

A Ledger reporter got in communication with the Fore River pay office and from Warren H. Rideout, in charge there, found that the T mark on the envelope represented that the man was employed in the stores department. He said the records of this department showed that "T—41" was the number assigned to G. A. Ryan who came to work at the ship yards on May 24 of this year. When he was given the job he said he was 38 years old and boarded at 154 Commercial street, Boston, and that his home was in East Walpole, Mass. Ryan was at work up till Saturday noon when he left as the yards shut down at the noon hour on Saturday. He did not return to work Monday and has not been at the yards since.

It is thought likely that Ryan may have gone to his home for Sunday and possibly out o fhis car far back started to ride to Quincy by freight trains or walked along the railroad tracks.

The body is at Hall's undertaking rooms, Hancock street.

NEAR FATALITY AT BATHHOUSE.

Overturned Boat in Town River Causes Considerable Excitement.

There was quite a little excitement for a few minutes Tuesday afternoon at the bathhouse at Quincy Point. The hundreds of swimmers were enjoying themselves in the cool water, when suddenly someone noticed an overturned boat in the middle of the river.

Two small boys had been seen sailing a boat a few minutes before and it was remarked that they did not know very much about sailing. As soon as the overturned boat was seen, the cry immediately went up, that there were two boys aboard and that they were probably drowned. The cry caused considerable excitement and the fear that something had happened made many tremble.

"The boat, the boat" was the cry and immediately three young men had launched the bathhouse boat and were speedily making their way to the derelict. There was a rush to the water's edge to watch the rescuers and everyone was breathless with the excitement of the moment. It did look bad for a while.

Some said that they could see the boys clinging to the boat, but this was merely a fancy brought on by the excitement. When the boat reached its object, two of the life-savers dived overboard, but could find no signs to indicate that anyone had gone down. They searched all around and finally gave it up and towed the boat ashore.

It was learned later that the boat had capsized further up the stream and been left adrift by the boys, who swam ashore. The ebbing tide caused the boat to drift down the river and it was on its way out to sea, when noticed by the bathers.

It did not seem possible that a boat could capsize right before the eyes of hundreds of people, but for a while it did look so.

PAINTED PEACE COLOR.

CITY COUNCIL.

Will Clean up the Greater Part of its Business by July 6.

The members of the City Council have had a strenuous time thus far this month. There has been a meeting every Monday night and still another is anounced for next Monday and one on the following Monday. The plan of the Council now is to adjourn at the meeting of July 6, until September. The greater part of the business before the Council will be cleaned up by the July 6 meeting and the Committee on Ordinances will probably have finished its work revising the ordinances of the city. It will then be in order to have them printed with the City Charter.

The last printed copy of the charter and ordinances was in 1905 and there have been so many amendments to the city ordinances since that time that few know just what each provides for. None of the present council have been able to get a printed copy and even if they had one it would be of but little use there have been so many changes.

FLORAL EMBLEM SOCIETY.

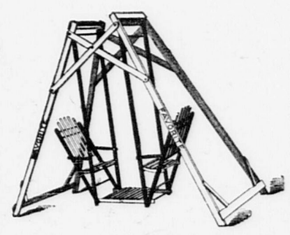

The eleventh annual distribution of plants and flowers by this Society to children of Boston will take place July fifth (the fourth falling on Sunday this year) on Boston Common (near monument.) For many years this observance has carried sunshine and happiness into many homes where nature's sweetest tribute seldom finds an entrance.

That this feature may attain the success it has met in past years, the Society invite the co-operation of Florists and all others interested. Flowers sent to the North or South Terminal station, care of Armstrong's Transfer Co., will be delivered free. Friends out of town can have flowers forwarded from local railroad stations free if they notify us in time to have arrangements made. Have packages plainly marked Boston Floral Emblem Society, care of Armstrong's Transfer Co. Contributions of money however small will be greatly appreciated and may be sent to the treasurer, Mrs. Lue Stuart Wadsworth, 112 Huntington avenue, Boston.

Members and friends are invited to attend the distribution, on July fifth, 11 to 12 o'clock.

The C. B. Mollers of Cambridge opened their cottage at Hougha Neck this week.

And the rocket's red glare, bombs bursting in air, will give proof through the night that ward 6 is still there.

The Quincy young men who tried to round Cape Cod in the Owl and nearly got drowned, ought to change the name of the boat. The owl never was much of a sea bird.

As a compromise, why wouldn't it be a good idea to build that Houghs Neck school house on a big raft and tow it up and down the shore front as the centre of population might change?

Playing at Indians and cowboys will be the favorite pastime with boys for another week. The wild west show will come tomorrow and the nearness of the Fourth of July will give the "kids" a chance to use their pistols in carrying out the details.

It may surprise many people, who will learn of the news with deep regret perhaps, but there is to be no Fourth of July celebration at all this year. It is going to be on July 5 instead.

It would have been a good thing if the council committtee on licenses had limited the size of the dynamite crackers that are usually sold at each Fourth of July. Such a provision could have been inserted in the licenses and many serious injuries would be averted.

Oiling the streets at 5 o'clock in the morning is a good idea. It gives the oil a chance to dry off and to lose part of its unpleasant smell before the ordinary citizens are about. If the oil wagons could get a stream of the oil a little closer to the sidewalk an improvement would be made. As it is now the gutters are left untouched and all the loose dust about settles there with the result that when the wond blows the gutters act as a chute and people passing by on the sidewalks get the dust while teams in the street have clear sailing.

People familiar with trees and their conditions say that the trees in Quincy so far this summer present a fine appearance in contrast to trees in some others places. When one considers the condition of affairs that existed toward the latter part of the summer a year ago, the contrast is certainly a pleasing one. It shows that some good work was put in on the trees last winter and spring. The gypsy moth brigade evidently got its work in at the right time.

"Safety is no longer popular in this country. A man thinks he'll be called a molly-coddle if he is prudent and careful. It's the men who know better that do the stunts, with the result that they lose their heads, arms or legs," said the counsel for the Museum of Safety and Sanitation, in a recent address. To present this new crusade of safety and health for American life and labor, the Museum will send its Director on a six months' tour with an illustrated lecture throughout New England and the Middle West, to acquaint business men, labor organizations, women's clubs and the colleges, with this new movement in the interests of the prolongation of human life. This presentation, fully illuminated by lantern slides, will be given free.

The city's new fire engine, which was contracted for several weeks ago, will arrive here next month. It was too bad the council did not see its way clear to equip this engine with rubber tires. As these fire engines carry a lot of delicate mechanism which is subjected to more or less jarring as the machine is dragged over the streets at top speed, rubber tires are absolutely necessary to take off part of this jar. All of the pumping apparatus in these engines is set and fixed while the machine is absolutely level and every stone and jounce that the engine goes over on the streets does not do the machinery any good. Then, again, rubber tires are a necessity in a city where there is so much T rail as is found in Quincy. With the ordinary steel tire there is always danger of the wheels getting caught and no engine can afford to have that happen to it especially when going fast. We have had several such instances in this city with the old engine and there have been broken axles and wheels as a result. One night in particular when the engine was going down Brewer's hill corner one of the wheels broke off when the wheels struck the street car railing and went rolling along the sidewalks. Two people were knocked down and seriously injured and there is no telling when a like accident will occur again. Rubber tires will cost more at first but they will more than make up in the long run. There is an economy which is more wasteful than extravagance.

Signs were tacked on the streets in the Fore River district last night warning bicyclists what would become of them if they continued to ride on the sidewalks. These bicyclists cannot complain now that they have not had fair warning but it was noticeable last night that, after many had stopped to read the signs, they continued riding on the sidewalks just the same. The chief of police has taken step No. 1 and it is to be hoped that there will be no hesitancy in taking step No. 2. There should be no temporizing in this matter. Pedestrians and children either have the right to walk on the sidewalks or they haven't. The issue should be settled without much more controversy.

If its really necessary to arrest a man for selling fruit in the public parks of the city, why not bring in a few of the automobilists whose machines tear up hundreds of dollars' worth of our streets every year. There is a great deal of fast autoing in this city and there ought to be some compensation coming back for the money laid out on street repairs which wouldn't be necessary but for the terrific usage which the streets get from these machines. Two weeks ago police officers were stationed on Adams street and asked automobilists not to go so fast. A warning in advance of an arrest, in cases of misdemeanor, is all right but a warning should be given equally to the poor as well as those whose circumstances permit them to buy and maintain automobiles.

Wouldn't it be a good idea if the park commissioners should revise the regulations governing the public parks of the city, or at least Merry Mount park, Faxon park and the bath house reservation in ward 2, so that fruit, candy and tonics might be sold in those places by Quincy citizens. Many people go visiting those places but find it hard to pass many hours at a stretch without an inducement of some kind in the eating or drinking line. Of course there is the objection of people throwing fruit skins and other refuse about the grass but it ought to be possible to educate the people to place such debris in waste barrels. Many a family would be glad to take advantage of the parks above mentioned if they knew they could buy some fruit or other edibles in the reservations of the city. A tonic and eating stand would be agreeably appropriate at the bathhouse where everybody who goes into the salt water comes out either hungry or thirsty. Let's hope the commissioners may give the plan a try for one season at least.

SAW LEON KILL ELSIE SIGEL

Third Degree Wrings Terrible Story From Ching Sin

GIRL FOUGHT FOR HER LIFE

Handkerchief Pressed Into Her Mouth Until She Was Dead, While Chung Looked on Without Raising a Hand to Prevent It—Denies Having Helped Former Roommate to Place Body In Trunk In Murderer's Room

New York, June 3.—Baited and intimidated by detectives, threatened with prosecution and confused with rapid-fire questions, Chung Sin, one-time roommate of Leon Ling, told of Elsie Sigel's murder. Under the terrific pressure of the "third degree," the little Chinaman admitted that he had seen the body in Leon Ling's room over the Eighth avenue chop suey restaurant, that he had touched it while it was still warm, that he had smelled drugs and had watched Leon Ling's preparations for placing the body in the trunk where it was found horribly decomposed on Friday night last.

He denied any implication in it and protested stoutly that he was ignorant of the whereabouts of Leon Ling, the supposed murderer. But after the inquisition he was held in $10,000 bail to await the inquest.

Chung Sin is 35 years old and a native of Canton. He was arrested Monday at West Galway, N. Y., and was brought to New York.

From the man's story it is apparent that Elsie Sigel was first drugged with chloroform and then choked to death. She was killed apparently on the night of June 9, although Chung Sin appeared a little mixed in his dates. But he says that early in the morning of June 10 he heard a strange noise in Leon's room adjoining his, and looked over the transom.

"Elsie Sigel, the girl, was on the bed," said the Chinaman, while his hearers drew closer in horrified suspense, "and Leon was bending over her. A handkerchief was sticking out of her mouth and I saw the blood on it. She was fighting with him, but he only pressed the handkerchief harder into her mouth. Finally she struggled no more and lay still and Leon stood up and looked down at her."

Chung Sin passed through the room later, he said, to go out to wash his hands and as he did so felt of the body, which was still warm. Afterward he went down to the chop suey restaurant below, then returned to the room.

Leon in the meantime had covered the body with a blanket up to the chin and had pulled a trunk to the middle of the floor. This trunk Leon was calmly emptying, preparatory to placing the body therein. The rope with which the body was bound was lying on the floor at the time, according to Chung Sin. Once again he went down stairs, said Chung Sin, where he remained until Leon called him. When he entered the room the body was not visible, having been bound with the rope and placed in the trunk.

At this point of the story, the Chinaman was asked savagely if he had not assisted his pal in putting the body in the trunk. Chung Sin started perceptibly, but said that he had had no hand in it.

"I didn't see her no more," said Chung Sin, "and when I asked Leon how she died he said she had bitten her tongue and bled to death." Leon told him, Chung Sin added, that he was going to send the trunk to Jersey City, thence to Europe. As a matter of fact, it lay untouched in the stuffy little room until Sun Leung, proprietor of the restaurant below, noticed the odor about the building and summoned the police.

Those who heard this recital were almost overcome with the thought that Chung Sin could have stood by in an adjoining room without raising a hand to prevent it.

Until Chung Sin's complete account is made public it will not be explained why he saw the dead girl and the preparations for the removal of the body with such apparent unconcern at the time.

Taking up his own case Chung Sin explained his sudden disappearance after the murder by saying that he had been employed by a well-to-do New Yorker, at whose country place near Amsterdam he was arrested. Chung says that he accepted this position in order to get out of town, having hurried from the scene of the murder in fear and sought out his brother in Chinatown, who procured him the position. He admitted having borrowed $250 from Chu Gain, proprietor of the Port Arthur restaurant in Chinatown, who is also held in connection with the case. Incidentally he said that Leon Ling and Chu Gain had come to blows over the girl in Chinatown some weeks ago. The police theory is that Leon killed the girl because of her attentions to Chu Gain.

Chu Gain, who was arraigned in the Tombs police court Tuesday and discharged by Magistrate Cornell, was later re-arrested at the instance of Coroner Harburger and held in $1000 bail by him as a material witness. He readily furnished bail.

INDIAN DANCE AND HABITS.

The dance is the dominante feature of the Indian's life. He is born, baptized, married, and dies amid the jumble of shuffling feet, gyrating bodies and the beating of tom-toms. It expresses joy and it is the symbol of grief and bereavement. It is the resort and accompaniment of momentous exploits, and the concomitant of routine duties.

More than a dozen different tribes of redmen are represented among the aboriginees with the 101 Ranch Wild West Show, which will visit this city on June 24th. Their native dances, ancient ceremonies and elaborate rituals are, to many, the most entertaining part of the performance. The 101 Ranch is in the midst of the home of the Great Plains Tribes, at Bliss, Okla. Over this country, less than fifty years ago, ranged bands of Chomanches, Cheyennes, Arrapahocs, Kiowas, Pawnees, Osages and other tribes. Wrinkled chiefs and their squaws of these wild old days have left their brush houses and dug-outs and tepees to display for the 101 Ranch show patrons their customs and rites.

The Sun Dance is the great ceremony of practically all of the Plains Tribes. It is performed by these Indians in the 101 Ranch Show arena in all the picturesqueness of its true character. The Sun Dance is a dramatization of the ritual of the origin of creation. It is a purely religious ceremony, during the performance of which traditional sacred songs are sung and many prayers are offered to the Great Father, for spiritual and temporal blessings. That it has come under the displeasure of the government is due largely to the fact that in former times there was a certain amount of torture in connection with it and to the further fact that it was often a preliminary to war.

—A man who swore aloud to himself when the home team was losing, was discharged by a Savannah, Ga., magistrate when his case was brought into court. A Daniel come to judgment! If anyone should have been fined, it was the umpire.

—Almost any foreign power could land an army in New York, says Admiral Sigsbee. So it could, and the best thing about it is that several powers have been doing that every summer month for about fifty years.

KING AND QUEEN'S HOPE FULFILLED

New Princess Is Added to the Spanish Royal Family

La Granja, Spain, June 23.—Queen Victoria gave birth to a daughter here. The booming of fifteen guns announced the birth of a girl to the people, and the rejoicing thereafter was general.

The birth of a princess is particularly pleasing to both the king and the queen, as they had hoped that this child, the third, would be a girl. The first two children are boys. Prince Alfonso, born May 10, 1907, and Prince Jaime, born June 23, 1908.

Queen Victoria was married to King Alfonso May 31, 1906. The princess will be named Beatrice, after her grandmother. The baptism has been fixed for June 27.

Glee Clubs Sing German Song In New York Saengerfest

New York, June 23.—Behind a canvas screen which eliminated the eye as a factor in the judgment, ten sensitive ears listened critically last night to the final and most important competition of the Saengerfest at Madison Square Garden.

The trophy for which five glee clubs sang was offered by Emperor William of Germany. Each club sang "Warnung Vor dem Rhein," a pleasing but difficult piece which sounded a father's warning to his son against the gay life of the Rhine.

The winner of this event and several other prize contests will be announced today.

Body of Groom-to-Be Is Found Floating In a Maine Lake

Bridgton, Me., June 23.—Within half an hour of the time appointed for his marriage, the body of Joseph F. Willis of this town was found last night floating in Highland lake.

Willis had been missing since Thursday, when he left a partially constructed camp on the lake shore and started to cross. He was never heard from after. It is supposed that the boat capsized. He was 27 years old.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

POLLY of the CIRCUS

BY MARGARET MAYO

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY DODD, MEAD AND COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Polly, a child of the circus, is brought up by Toby, a clown, and by a boss canvasman called "Muvver Jim." She learns to ride Bingo, a circus horse, and grows to woman hood knowing no life except that of the circus. II—A church near the circ lot interests Polly. Jim rerpoves her for her reckless riding. III—Polly urges Bingo to unprecedented speed and falls. Toby and Jim carry the injured girl to the parsonage nearby. IV—The Rev. John Douglas, much to Deacon Elverson's disgust, takes Polly into the parsonage. Tobby and "Muvver Jim" are received kindly by Douglas, who has placed Polly in charge of his colored servant, Mandy. Douglas promises to care for the girl until she is well. V—When Polly becomes conscious she declares that she must rejoin the circus at once. "Are you a sky pilot?" she asks the minister. Her mother was killed riding a circus horse, and her father "got his'n in a lion's cage." The minister reads to her about Ruth and Naomi, and Polly says, "I guess I'd like to hear you spiel." VI—Douglas offends Deacon Strong by defending boys who play baseball on Sunday. VII—Polly recovers her health, but is saddened by the death of Toby. Jim sends the news and promises to keep in touch with her. VIII—Polly recovers from the blow dealt her by Toby's death. She has ceased using slang and is educating herself under Douglas, guidance. She endeavors to improve Mandy's grammar. IJ—Deacons Strong and Elverson reprove the pastor for harboring the circus girl. Douglas declares that he is merely doing his duty. Strong declares that the girl must go. Douglas defies him. X.—Douglas suggests to Polly that she go to a seminary. Her quotation "And Ruth said, 'Entreat me not to leave three.'" reveals to both the fact that they love each otehr. Douglas takes her in his arms and tells her that she is never to leave him. XI—"Mubber Jim" calls and notes the change in Polly's Polly tells him she has abandoned the circus business. Deacons Strong and Elverson inform Polly that she can save the minister trouble be returning to the circus. Learning that the deacons contemplate discharging Douglas, she rebuffs Douglas, declares that she yearns for the circus and rushes away sobbing. XII—Douglas is very unhappy. A month passes and the circus plays a return engagement. Hasty, Mandy's husband, ascertains that Polly is not riding. Douglas believes she is ill and starts for the circus.

"What do you mean by that?" asked Jim sharply.

"I mean that all your time's took up a-carryin' and a-fetchin' for that girl what calls you 'Muvver Jim.'"

"What have you got to say about her?" Jim eyed him with a threatening look.

"I got a-plenty," said Barker as he turned to snap his whip at the small boys who had stolen into the back lot to peek under the rear edge of the big top. "She's been about as much good as a sick cat since she come back. You saw her act last night."

"Yes," answered Jim doggedly.

"Wasn't it punk? She didn't show at all this afternoon; said she was sick. And me with all them people inside what knowed her waltin' to see her!"

"Give her a little time," Jim pleaded. "She ain't rode for a year."

"Time!" shouted Barker. "How much does she want? She's been back a month, and instead of bracin' up she's a-gettin' worse. There's only one thing for me to do."

"What's that?" asked Jim uneasily.

"I'm goin' to call her, and call her hard."

"Look here, Barker," and Jim squared his shoulders as he looked steadily at the other man, "you're boss here, and I takes orders from you, but if I catches you abusin' Poll your bein' boss won't make no difference."

"You can't bluff me!" shouted Barker.

"I ain't bluffin'. I'm only tellin' you," said Jim very quietly.

"Well, you tell her to get on to her job. If she don't, she quits; that's all." He hurried into the ring.

Jim took one step to follow him, then stopped and gazed at the ground with thoughtful eyes. He, too, had seen the change in Polly. He had tried to rouse her. It was no use. She had looked at him blankly. "If she would only complain," he said to himself; "if she would only get mad, anything, anything to wake her." But she did not complain. She went through her daily routine very humbly and quietly. She sometimes wondered how Jim could talk so much about her work, but before she could answer the question her mind drifted back to other days, to a garden and flowers, and Jim stole away unmissed and left her with folded hand and wide, staring eyes, gazing into the distance.

The memory of these times made Jim helpless tonight. He had gone on hoping from day to day that Barker might not notice the "let down" in her work, and now the blow had fallen. How could he tell her?

One of the acts came tumbling out of the main tent. There was a moment's confusion as clowns, acrobats and animals passed each other on their way to and from the ring; then the lot cleared again, and Polly came slowly from the dressing tent. She looked very different from the little girl whom Jim had led away from the parson's garden in a simple white frock one month before. Her thin, pensive face contrasted oddly with her glittering attire. Her hair was knotted high on her head and intertwined with flowers and jewels. Her slender neck seemed scarcely able to support its burden. Her short, full skirt and low cut bodice were ablaze with white and colored stones.

"What's on, Jim?" she asked.

"The 'leap o' death.' You got plenty of time."

"Star gazin', Poll?" he asked.

Polly's mind went back to the girl who answered that call a year ago. Her spirit seemed very near tonight. The band stopped playing. Barker made his grandiloquent announcement about the wonderful act about to be seen, and her eyes wandered to the distant church steeple. The moonlight seemed to shun it tonight. It looked cold and grim and dark. She wondered whether the solemn bell that once called its flock to worship had become as mute as her own dead heart. She did not hear the whir of the great machine inside the tent as it plunged through space with its girl occupant. These things were a part of the daily routine, part of the strange, vague dream through which she must stumble for the rest of her life.

Jim watched her in silence. Her face was turned from him. She had forgotten his presence.

"Star gazin', Poll?" he asked at length, dreading to disturb her reverie.

"I guess I was, Jim." She turned to him with a little, forced smile. He longed to save her from Barker's threatened rebuke.

"How you feelin' tonight?"

"I'm all right," she answered cheerfully.

"Anything you want?"

"Want?" She turned upon him with startled eyes. There was so much that she wanted that the mere mention of the word had opened a well of pain in her heart.

"I mean can I do anything for you?"

"Oh, of course not." She remembered how little any one could do.

"What is it, Poll?" he begged, but she only turned away and shook her head with a sigh. He followed her with anxious eyes. "What made you cut out the show today? Was it because you didn't want to ride afore folks what knowed you—ride afore him mebbe?"

"Him?" Her face was white. Jim feared she might swoon. "You don't mean that he was"—

"Oh, no," he answered quickly, "of course not. Parsons don't come to places like this one. I was only figurin' that you didn't want other folks to see an' to tell him how you was ridin'." She did not answer.

"Was that it, Poll?" he urged.

"I don't know." She stared into space. "Was it?"

"I guess it was," she said after a long time.

"I knowed it!" he cried. "I was a fool to 'a' brung you back! You don't belong with us no more."

"Oh, don't, Jim! Don't! Don't make me feel I'm in the way here too!"

"Here too?" He looked at her in astonishment. "You wasn't in his way, was you, Poll?"

"Yes, Jim." She saw his look of unbelief and continued hurriedly: "Oh, I tried not to be! I tried so hard. He used to read me verses out of a Bible about my way being his way and my people his people, but it isn't so, Jim. Your way is the way you are born, and your people are the people you are born with, and you can't change it, Jim, no matter how hard you try."

"You was changin' it," he answered savagely. "You was gettin' jes' like them people. It was me what took you away an' spoiled it all. You oughtn't to 'a' come. What made you after you said you wouldn't?"

She did not answer. Strange things were going through the mind of the slow witted Jim. He braced himself for a difficult question.

"Will you answer me somethin' straight?" he asked.

"Why, of course," she said as she met his gaze.

"Do you love the parson, Poll?"

She started.

"Is that it?"

Her lids fluttered and closed; she caught her breath quickly, her lips apart, then looked far into the distance.

"Yes, Jim, I'm afraid that's it." The little figure drooped, and she stood before him with lowered eyes, unarmed. Jim looked at her helplessly, then shook his big, stupid head.

"Ain't that h—l?"

It seemed such a short time to Jim since he had picked her up, a cooing babe, at her dead mother's side. He watched the tender, averted face. Things had turned out so differently from what he had planned.

"An' he don't care about you—like that?" he asked after a pause.

"No, not in that way." She was anxious to defend the pastor from even the thought of such a thing. "He was good and kind always, but he didn't care that way. He's not like that."

"I guess I'll have a talk with him," said Jim, and he turned to go.

"Talk!" she cried.

He stopped and looked at her in astonishment. It was the first time that he had ever heard that sharp note in her voice. Her tiny figure was stiffened with decision. Her eyes were blazing.

"If you ever dare to speak to him—about me, you'll never see me again."

Jim was perplexed.

"I mean it, Jim. I've made my choice, and I've come back to you. If you ever try to fix up things between him and me, I'll run away—really and truly away—and you'll never, never get me back."

He shuffled awkwardly to her side and reached apologetically for the little clinched fist. He held it in his big rough hand, toying nervously with the tiny fingers.

"I wouldn't do nothin' that you wasn't a-wantin', Poll. I was just a-tryin' to help you, only I—I never seem to know how."

She turned to him with tear dimmed eyes and rested her hands on his great, broad shoulders, and he saw the place where he dwelt in her heart.

The time is not far distant however when Quincy will not only have a commandery of the Knights Templars but a Council as well. The nearest Council lodge to Quincy is Boston or Brockton. There are however many members of the Council in Quincy.

—The new relief steamer at the Central station was tried out this morning.

The tree sprayer has been at work spraying the elm trees in the Dorothy Q house yard.

Rev. Samuel Irwin of Hope chapel, Boston, has taken up summer quarters at Mr. George Burrs' on Billings street.

The City Messenger club of which City Messenger Tirrell of Quincy is vice president, holds an outing at Worcester Saturday.

Mrs. Anna Barber of Botolph street, who has been spending the last three weeks in Rhode Island visiting relatives and friends, returned to her home on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. George K. Tudhope, who have been spending a month at North Hero, Vermont, with Mr. Tudhope's parents, returned to their home on Webster street on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Adams and Miss Mabel McKenzie attended the play of Joan of Arc at the Harvard Stadium last evening.

The weekly hop of the Quincy Yacht club was held Tuesday evening at the clubhouse, Houghs Neck. Although the weather was not just suited to dancing, there were quite a number present.

Miss Marcia Wilder held her second clam bake of the season on Wednesday afternoon and evening. About twenty young friends were entertained and they had a most delightful time. It is needless to say that Miss Wilder is an excellent hostess for everyone who has ever attended her good times knows that.

An entertainment and dance for the benefit of Miss Eldiene Young, who is a candidate in the Boston American tour contest, was given in Music hall, Atlantic, Monday evening. The Wollaston orchestra furnished music during the evening. It is thought Miss Young will win one of the prizes offered in this coutest.

—There is talk at Washington of intervention in Cuban affairs again, on the ground that the proposed Cuban budget is extravagant. Hadn't we better first intervene in our own affairs on that ground?

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class o classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

TOTAL COUNSEL FEE OF $15,000

Court Rules That Gould Must Allow It to His Wife

TESTIMONY FOR THE PLAINTIFF

Charges of Intoxication and Misconduct Are Combated by Hotel Men, Castle Gould Employes, Members of Crew of Yacht Niagara and Others Called to Witness Stand by Mrs. Gould's Lawyer

New York, June 23.—While counsel for Katherine C. Gould brought up a reinforcement of witnesses in one part of the supreme court Tuesday to combat the charges of intoxication and misconduct made by the defense in her suit for separation, with alimony, from her husband, Howard Gould, the plaintiff won a victory in another part of the court by a decision of Justice Giegerich. He ruled that Mrs. Gould shall be allowed an additional counsel fee of $10,000 at the expense of her husband.

An allowance of $5000 was made to Mrs. Gould last fall for the prosecution of her suit, at which time the court intimated that a subsequent application for an increase might be entertained. Attorneys for Howard Gould protested that it had not been shown that the wife was without sufficient means to pay her counsel, but Giegerich thought otherwise.

While this financial feature was being decided, Justice Dowling continued to hear the case proper. Hotel proprietor and hotel manager who denied knowledge of any undue intimacy between Mrs. Gould and Dustin Farnum, the actor, as the defense alleges; employes of Castle Gould, members of the crew of the Gould yacht Niagara, hotel chefs, hairdressers and seamstresses who testified to Mrs. Gould's sobriety on all occasions that they could recall, constituted the bulk of the testimony of the reserve forces which were called by Mrs. Gould's lawyer. There are thirty or more witnesses yet to be called.

At adjournment of court Justice Dowling announced that he would sit tonight until the case was finished, with the exception of Mrs. Gould's testimony in rebuttal, if she should be recalled to the witness stand.

Duty Placed on Hides

Washington, June 23.—The senate adopted the finance committee's amendment placing a duty of 15 percent ad valorem on hides, by a vote of 46 to 30.

Two Minutes by the Clock

That's all the time it takes to put a lasting, lustrous shine on shoes—if you use the world-famous "Nugget" Polish.

Just brush the shoes free from dust and dirt, then apply a dab of "Nugget"—then a trifling amount of "elbow grease" in the way of brushing, and behold a pair of shoes that look like new.

"Nugget" not only shines shoes better and with less work than any polish sold, but it makes shoes wear and wear, and wear.

"Nugget" nourishes, actually feeds the leather, keeps it soft and flexible and prevents unsightly ridges and cracking. And still better, "Nugget" polished shoes are water-proof—no damp feet if "Nugget" is used.

The "Nugget" Kit is a handsome little box containing in compact form all that is necessary to care for the shoes—a box of "Nugget," a strong, durable brush, and a Selvyt finishing pad, 40c complete.

Get a box of "Nugget" or a "Nugget" Kit today and earn the happy habit of keeping well-groomed shoes.

"NUGGET" POLISHES For Shoes

SPECTER—GOUTHARTZ.

Isaac Specter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Specter of 160 Main street, and Miss Ida Gouthartz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Gouthartz of Boston, were united in marriage Tuesday evening. The ceremony, which took place in Protection hall, was performed by Rabbi Julius Sandolovitz of Boston.

Miss Annie Grossman of Quincy was the maid of honor, while Miss Eva Sherid was the bridesmaid. Louis Sigel was the best man.

The bride was attired in a beautiful dress of white satin and wore a white veil. She carried a handsome bouquet of lilies of the valley and sweet peas.

After the ceremony there was a reception, the parents of the couple assisting in receiving. An excellent wedding supper was served, also, followed by a musical entertainment, which included both vocal and instrumental numbers. There were about 200 guests present, coming from Quincy, Boston, Roxbury and other neighboring towns.

—During the five celebrations of the Fourth of July from 1903 to 1907, inclusive, 21,520 persons were injured and 1153 were killed, according to statistics just gathered. The giant firecracker alone injured 1489 persons in the celebration of 1907, killed eight and led to the death of eight more from lockjaw. So says one of the medical papers. Now is the time to think about these things. A little thought now will be better than a sorrowful recollection of the facts on July 4. Do not get out of the habit of celebrating the Fourth of July, but try to make it a celebration without an undertakers bill.—Buffalo Express.

HOUGHS NECK BY THE SHORE

Something Doing all the Time At Summer Resort

Everything in the way of an amusement place is wide open ready for business. Of lunch places there are enough and some to spare. Nearly every building on Sea street is a common victualler's shop. In fact in the majority of cases a common victuallers' license is a cloak to allow a store to open for business on Sunday. But the time of these places is short. Unless a place complies fully with the law the proprietor will be obliged to apply for a license under the new Sunday law and pay the sum of $5 for the same.

Everything in the shape of a cottage of any kind or nature has been let and in most of the cases occupied. The real estate men say that the demand for cottages still continues and that many more could be let if there were any.

One thing that Houghs Neck lacks is a good sandy bathing beach. There is of course much bathing every day at high water but as a rule the beach is rather rocky and consequently unpleasant for the feet. It is a wonder that the subject of a public bath house has not been taken up before this time by the Houghs Neck Associates incorporated. Perhaps after the much debated school lot question is settled this will be brought to the attention of the Council.

One might travel far and wide before a more desirable location for a summer home could be found than along Adams Shore. It is certainly a beautiful spot and one is almost sure to find a breeze here if nowhere else.

A large flag pole is to be erected in front of the "Wait-A-Minute" cottage in the very near future and from its topmast there will be flung to the breeze a large American flag. Ben says that he may have a band concert and fireworks when the flag is raised for the first time.

The two members of the Boston fire department who have been passing their vacation at the beach rendered valuable assistance at the fire last week. It is kind of second nature for a fireman to take a hand in extinguishing fires no matter where he may be.

The laying of gas mains to the beach has been a good investment for the gas company. Not only does the company furnish a number of street lights but nearly every cottage is equipped with a gas stove, an almost indispensable article in warm weather. The company is now laying its mains along Adams shore.

Capt. Woodbury of the pilot boat says that when the Cavanagh lot is purchased, the City Council, will be welcomed for a sail about the harbor.

The members of the school commiettee of the Associates continue to attend the meetings of he Ciy Council and sit with ears wide open so as to catch anything that looks like an order appropriating money for a school lot. The time of the City Council is getting short and unless something drops next Monday night it is doubtful if the much discussed question will be settled before fall.

A race for the launch class of the Quincy Yacht club will be held Saturday afternoon. There was a hop at the club house Tuesday evening which was largely attended and was very enjoyable.

The yacht club house will be a busy place next month and there will be something doing most of the time. The races for the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup are sure to bring many visiting yachtsmen who will be shown every courtesy by the house committee. Then there is the annual ladies' day event which likewise always draws a large attendance of the fair sex. The Quincy club is now one of the largest in the state numbering nearly five hundred members.

The tone of the beach has greatly improved since the Houghs Neck Associates came into existence and it is a grand good thing that it is so. Up to the time of the association the beach had received quite a black eye and was looked upon as anything but a desirable place for a summer residence.

Archie Baird has been in New York this week on a business trip. He says that he found the weather there very hot and uncomfortable and he had very much rather have been enjoying the cool breezes from the Atlantic on the broad piazzas of his house on the hill.

Rackham, Cavanagh, Norteman. Shake them up in a box and see which will come out on top. The armor will never be laid aside until a handsome eight room brick school building with an assembly hall has been erected, for the accommodation of the 124 children.

Mrs. Clara Catarius, Worthy Matron of Quincy lodge of the Eastern Star, accompanied the Matrons and Patrons' association on the pilgrimage to the Masonic home at Overlook Tuesday. She reports having had a very pleasant trip.

Surf bathing has been the popular diversion at Post Island this week as the tide has been just right for afternoon bathing.

The new arc light in front of the old Casino building erected this week is a grand good thing. This was always a dark spot and the nearness of the street car tracks to the west sidewalk made it rather dangerous, especially for young children.

There has been some talk that the top of the Metropolitan sewer would be leveled off and a boulevard drive made of it. It would certainly make a pretty drive. It is doubtful however if the idea is ever carried out.

Houghs Neck people are asking the question if the steamer to Boston is to run this year. A year ago the excuse was that it would not pay to run unless the company had a permit to transport liquor. They have that permit this year yet he owners of the boat desire to be assuered that the line will pay before the boat is put on. Houghs Neck residents were therefore asked to guarantee a certain amount before the boat was put on. This may be all right for a steamboat company but how would it have been if the street railway had said, we will not run cars oftener than once an hour unless guaranteed a certain income. How the railroad would have been called down.

The proprietor of the summer hotel at Peddocks island has said if the Houghs Neck Co. did not run its boat that the boat between Boston and Peddocks island would make a landing at Houghs Neck.

The route to Nantasket Point via. Houghs Neck and steamer is a popular one and was well patronized last year.

Residents who are troubled with mosquitoes these warm nights are reminded that if they will rub a little lavender oil on their face and hands the troublesome insect will give you a wide berth. Just take a little of the oil in alcohol and try it.

CRAP GAME RAIDED.

Inspector Goodhue went on the war path after crap shooters last Sunday and as a result of his day's work several young men will appear in court Friday charged with gaming on the Lord's day. The game was in progress at Wendell's quarry at Quincy Neck and the Officers watched the game from a secluded spot for several hours. One of the party was arrested and fined $20 in court this morning. The other defendants, some ten in number were summoned to appear Friday.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION

Ninety-Six Graduates Receive Diplomas

The annual graduation exercises of the Quincy High school were held Wednesday evening at High school hall and although the weather was uncomfortably warm the hall was packed to suffocation. The number to attend was limited only by capacity of the hall and although the night was a hot one there were many who would have been glad of the opportunity to have attended.

As usual music was a special feature and with the High school orchestra and chorus the music was grand. The musical numbers were under the direction of Clarence J. Fouche, director of music and the character of the music and singing reflects great credit upon his work. Miss Florence Edna Luhman was the accompanist.

The program was quite a lengthy one and opened with a selection by the orchestra, "Priests" march from "Athalia" and singing by the chorus with accompaniment by the orchestra "As the Heart Pants." Then came the essays by the honor pupils of the class.

These included the salutatory address, "Wealth and Waste of the United States" by Louise Fredson Thacher; essay, "The value of the Forests" by Ellen Cecilia Shyne; "The work of the Geological Survey" by Allison Wilson Marsh; "Irrigation" by Lois Marjorie Kendall, and the valedictory address by Herbert Hammond Pride "What the United States is doing in Conservation."

The essays by the honor pupils were followed by another selection by the orchestra and chorus "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep." Address by John Hopkins Denison of the Boston 1915 committee on "Mental Athletics."

At the conclusion of the address the orchestra and chorus gave "How lovely are the Messengers" and then came the presentation of the diplomas to the graduating class who numbered 96 and was one of the largest classes ever graduated by Dr. N. S. Hunting, Chairman of the School committees.

The exercises closed with another musical selection "The Bridal chorus, from the Rose Maiden by the orchestra and chorus.

The hall was very prettily decorated with flowers and the class motto "Nulla vestigia retrorsum" occupied a prominent place among the decorations.

The platform was reserved for the special guests who included Mayor Shea, and members of the School Committee.

ATLANTIC MAY LOSE ITS $250

Defect Found In Order Making the Appropriation

Atlantic stands in the way of losing the appropriation of $250 for the July 5, celebration as it has been discovered that the order is defective in as much as it was adopted by a voice vote when it should have been passed by a yea and nay vote. Under ordinary cases any appropriation that does not exceed $300 may be passed by a voice vote. The Revised Laws however, are very explicit in cases of money to be used for celebrations, etc. The law says that any sum appropriated for such purposes must receive at least a two-thirds vote by roll call.

It is probable that the Council at its meeting next Monday night will recall the order from the Mayor and pass it by roll call. This can readily be done by consent of the Mayor who is willing to let the order be recalled if desired.

HILLIARD—DOW.

Not only Braintree people but many from Quincy and neighboring towns attended the wedding reception Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Hilliard, Middle street, Braintree, their only daughter, Carrie Gertrude becoming the bride of Alva Morrison Dow, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dow, also of Middle street.

The ceremony was solemnized at half past seven by Rev. Frederick R. Griffin of All Souls church. Clarence Dow, brother of the groom, was best man and Miss Olive Carson, a classmate at Smith college, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Helen Arnold and Miss Lora Emerson, both of Braintree and little Fannie Ellsworth was flower girl. The ushers were Joseph Morrison, Jack Beach, Lemuel Banister, John Shaw, Ferdon Shaw, George Anderson and Curtis Hilliard.

Only the immediate family friends were present at the ceremony but a large reception attended by several hundred was held from eight until ten o'clock.

The bride's gown was of white satin cut en train and she wore a long tulle veil caught with lilies-of-the-valley and carried a shower bouquet of the same. The attendants were all in pink. The floral decoration of the house was also in pink, a profusion of pink roses and carnations being used.

Mr. and Mrs. Dow received under an arch of ferns, pinks and pink roses. They were assisted in receiving by their parents.

After the wedding supper, Mr. and Mrs. Dow left on a two weeks' automobile tour through New Hampshire and on their return will make their home with the bride's parents.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Dow are well known Braintree people and have a wide social acquaintance, as have their parents, and they start on the marriage voyage with bright prospects and the good wishes of many friends.

The smell of the joss stick is abroad in the land.

Its a pretty hard week for the old town with a wild west show today and a Knockers' club dinner tomorrow.

The year has reached the height of its growth and now begins to go down the hill of shortening days very much like mankind.

Wednesday's edition of the Ledger might almost be called a "circus" edition with its large advertisement, readers, and cuts describing the 101 Ranch Wild West Show and the continued story of "Polly of the Circus."

The grammar school graduates were addressed on the subject of physical athletics and the high school graduates on mental athletics. Perhaps some fond parents would like to see some evidence of the muscular development of their children expressed in work around the house.

Attention has been called to the way in which the $250 order for the July 4th celebration for ward 6 was passed Monday night at the city council and it looks as if the order, as it now stands, cannot take effect. According to the statute law such a vote must be by yea or nay. The order was passed by a viva voce vote and if the law department of the city rules as the matter has been pointed out, a veto may have to come on the order. If such a thing occurs it is a pretty safe bet that the same mistake will not be made twice.

A somewhat unusual conflict of dates and holidays will disarrange the first meeting night of the council in July. According to the charter meetings must be held on the first and third Mondays of each month and when a holiday comes on the first or third Monday the meeting is postponed till the next day, Tuesday. This year July 4th comes on Sunday; therefore the celebration of that day has to be transferred till Monday and the council cannot meet till Tuesday. Actually speaking, July 4th is July 4th this year; legally speaking, July 4th is not July 4th but July 5th is July 4th. And, city Council speaking, July 6th is July 5th.

When one sees the large number of little children enjoying themselves daily at the city bath house in ward 2, they realize that the place is not only a place of mighty fine convenience but a veritable Godsend. It is probably a safe opinion that the great majority of the children who use the bath house have no bath room facilities in their homes and the city's house on Town River becomes a valuable asset in the hygienic conditions of these children as well as a pleasure to them individually. It is to be regretted that the city has not more bath houses in other parts of Quincy or that the metropolitan park commission cannot be induced to erect a state bath house on the Quincy bay boulevard.

There will be genuine regret among the Quincy friends who knew him, at the death of Alderman Daniel J. Donnelly, who passed away at his home in Montclair yesterday. Alderman Donnelly was recruited from the ranks of the working people in the South Cove, Boston, and he never forgot that he came from among the poor people. Whether as councilman, representative or alderman, he was always the same, plain "Dan" Donnelly to all. He was a most capable entertainer, a man with a tremendous amount of personal magnetism and a true friend to the last ditch. His political motto: "The sole duty of a member of any government is to the people and he should not forget it as long as he holds office," is worthy of being copied by many public officials who forget everybody but themselves when once they are elected to a public position.

The class of 1909 of the Quincy high school, numbering 96 graduates, was sent forth from that building last night with diplomas showing that the four years' course had been faithfully and well performed. According to the statistics figured out by the school committee, it costs, approximaely, $40 a year to educate a pupil of the high school. Averaging four years as the general time spent by each pupil in the high school, the class graduated last night has cost the city of Quincy, in round numbers, the sum of $15,360. The cost of educating the grammar school graduates, as was figured out last week, was about $67,160, making a total of about $82,520 that the city has paid out to educate those children who were graduates this year from the grammar and high schools. As we said last week, we hope the high school graduates, as well as the grammar school boys and girls, will remember the sacrifices that have been made to give them the best education possible. It will be well not to forget that a great deal of the money, with which our schools are maintained, is furnished by poor people who have to deny themselves something or other in the daily routine of life in order that their taxes may be paid. The city is glad to have been able to expend so large a sum in educating its children, provided the fruits of that education may be of value to the graduates in their battle for life during the next generation. There is one trait, above all others, that appeals to mankind whether it is manifested by men, women or children or by the brute creation and that is gratitude. We hope every child who got a diploma this year will be grateful to the people who furnished them the means of education and in no better way can these children express their gratitude than by living such lives of uprightness and honor that their conduct, both private and public, in the years to come, will reflect credit not only on themselves but on their city and the schools from which they were sent out.

The gas company has completed laying its pipes on Scammel street and South street and isn't sorry. Almost every foot of the way had to be blasted through solid rock. It is doubtful if the city would go to such bother and expense to reach so few families as the gas company has done in this instance. Everybody seems to like to take a fling at corporations once in awhile but in this case the gas company is worthy of commendation. The company shows a progressive spirit and leaves the streets behind it in as good, if not better condition, than it finds them.

A prominent citizen who had a word of praise last night for the Ledger's editorial on the sale of fruit and other articles of consumption in our parks, put this query up to the park commissioners: "Wherein is the difference between allowing Quincy citizens to sell fruit and tonic in our parks and giving the use of the parks to church societies and fraternal organizations who sell ice cream, refreshments and cigars for profit as part of their picnic program?" It seems to the Ledger that there is much merit in the suggestion included in this question.

DISCUSSION IS PROHIBITED

Authorities Close-Mouthed Regarding Sigel Murder Case

THE SEARCH FOR LEON LING

Reports of Clues From Various Quarters Prove Valueless—Chung Sin Undergoes Another Long Examination, Adhering to His Story That He Did Not See Murder Actually Committed—Loaned Money to Leon

New York, June 24.—After a day of conflicting statements, the district attorney's office, acting under instructions from Mr. Jerome, and the police department, under orders from Commissioner Bingham, refused further to discuss what progress has been made in the search for Leon Ling, the Chinaman who is wanted for the murder of Elsie Sigel, whose body was found in a trunk in a room over an Eighth avenue chop suey restaurant last Friday night.

Nor would they talk about the results of the examination of Chung Sin, Leon Ling's former roommate, who has been variously reported as having witnessed the crime, having helped to rope the trunk, and finally having merely seen the girl's body.

There have been hourly reports of clues from all parts of the country, but none of them, on close examination, brings the authorities any nearer to the murderer.

What progress has been made with Chung Sin, who yesterday afternoon underwent another four hours' cross-questioning by Captain Carey and his men of the homicide bureau and Mr. Ward of the district attorney's office, is due as much as anything to the offices of Quon Yick Nam, a Chinese merchant who volunteered as an interpreter and in whom the police have every confidence.

With more to gain than to lose by the truth, Chung Sin talked long and freely if not frankly, but that he has not been actually implicated in the crime is indicated by the fact that he is still held in the house of detention for witnesses and not in the Tombs.

Whatever may be the whole truth concerning the information Chung Sin yields, it is practically all the police have to go on. Chu Gain, the restaurant proprietor and admirer of the dead girl of whom Leon Ling was jealous, is out on $1000 bail, pumped dry; the other restaurant keeper, Sun Leung, and his waiters and cook, above whose place the body was found, are also out on bail in the sum of $100, and the minor importance attached to their knowledge is measured by the small amount of their bail.

Thus the case revolves around Chung Sin, at first thought to have told so much, but whose alleged confession became far less sensational upon further investigations.

To all questions he reiterates that he occupied the room next to that of Leon, and that on the afternoon of June 9, the day of the murder, he awakened to find Leon standing beside him. Leon was in trouble and wanted help. Chung Sin soon understood why when he saw the body lying across the bed. There was blood on the girl's lips and a stained handkerchief was stuffed into the mouth of the girl. The features, he said, were strained and black, but he saw no rope around the young woman's neck. Leon explained to him that the girl bit her tongue and bled to death.

When asked if that seemed plausible to him, Chung Sin admitted that he felt terrified and that his first impulse was to get out of the house as soon as he could. Before he left, however, Leon borrowed $200 from him, he said. They both belonged to the same secret society, he explained, and he felt bound by his oath to do that much for a fellow member.

Then he hurried to the rooms of his cousin with the intention of passing the night, but his curiosity got the better of him, and after two uneasy hours he sneaked back to the house, climbed the stairs, lifted himself to where he could peer through the transom and saw the room empty save for the trunk. That was enough for him. He hurried back to his cousin's and slept there that night. The cousin, when questioned, substantiated the story.

The next day he left for Amsterdam, N. Y., to work, near where he was later arrested.

The foregoing version of what Chung Sin saw and did is as given out by Assistant District Attorney Ward. Whether Chung Sin is telling the truth remains to be seen, but of all the widely varying accounts after the first inquisition the version as made public seems to be a conservative one.

Before the order went out that the case must not be discussed further, Assistant Ward was emphatic in denying that Chung Sin was "put under the screws."

Captain Carey paid another visit on Wednesday to the room where the body lay and found ashes in the stove, which may account for the missing skirt and waist and the missing handkerchief which Chung said he saw between the girl's teeth.

"Time's Flight Turned Backward"
SAGE AND SULPHUR
Made Her look Twenty Years Younger

READ MRS. HERRICK'S SWORN STATEMENT

State of New York } ss. Rochester, N. Y.
County of Monroe }

Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a school girl I had a head of heavy, long, dark brown hair, that was so plentiful, rich and glossy, that it was the envy of many of my young schoolmates, and attracted the attention and remarks of strangers. After I was married and as I grew older, my hair commenced to come out just a little at first, but gradually as time passed it came out more and more, and began to turn gray. I was induced by many good reports heard of Sage and Sulphur, to try a bottle. My hair was quite gray and thin on top when I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and you may imagine my satisfaction when I found that it was fast coming back to its natural condition, becoming thicker, darker, smoother and glossier than it had been for a long time. I continued the use of Sage and Sulphur and my hair is now in a splendid condition, as heavy and as dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. From my experience I believe it is one's own fault if they lose their hair, or let it get gray or harsh. It is now four years since I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and still use it, and my hair still keeps thick, dark, smooth and glossy.

TWO SOCIETIES TO SHARE TROPHY

Equally Matched In the New York Vocal Contest

New York, June 24.—A tie in the great vocal contest for the Kaiser prize between the Junger Maennerchor of Philadelphia and the Kreutzer Quartette of New York was announced last night, at the conclusion of the greatest festival in the fifty-nine years' history of the Northeastern Saengerbund.

In view of the tie the two societies will share possession of the imperial trophy until the next saengerfest, which will be held in Philadelphia in 1912.

The Germania of Newark was third in the Kaiser prize contest, the Concordia of Wilkesbarre was fourth and the Arion of Baltimore fifth. The trophy is a silver statuette of the Minnesaenger offered by Emperor William of Germany, to which was added a portrait painting of the emperor. The trophy does not become permanent property of a society until twice won.

AWFUL SIGHT FOR INVALID

Sees Wife Hang Herself While He is Powerless to Prevent

Chicago, June 24.—Deprived of the use of his limbs by paralysis, John Bennett was compelled to witness in helpless terror the deliberate suicide of his wife who calmly placed a chair under a gas jet near her invalid husband's bed, and to the fixture tied a rope.

Unheeding her husband's frantic screams she affixed the noose and kicked the chair from under her feet. There she hung until life was extinct, her husband, exhausted by his cries, dumbly following with his eyes the slow turning of her form as the rope twisted and untwisted. This motion had ceased when a neighbor happened in and discovered the tragedy.

Indicted For Murder

Woodstock, Vt., June 24.—An indictment for first degree murder was returned against Franscisco Gimmelara for the killing of Casteline Cepetino in Reading last Monday. Jealousy over a widow who was cook in a lumber camp is supposed to have led to the tragedy. Cepetino, who was the camp boss, was stabbed in the back.

New Portuguese Vice Consul

Providence, June 24.—Portugal is now represented by a vice consul in this city, Charles A. Sylvia receiving his appointment yesterday. He is the first Portuguese vice consul appointed for this city, despite the fact that there are many subjects of that nation here.

Renard Gets Life Sentence

Versailles, June 24.—The second trial of Renard, who was found guilty of August Remy's murder, the court of cassation later ordering a new trial, ended in a verdict of guilty of homicide. Renard was sentenced to imprisonment for life at hard labor.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

GAS EXPLOSION IN COAL MINE

Ignited From Open Lamp, the Use of Which Was Permitted

SEVENTEEN MEN ARE KILLED

Dozen of the More Seriously Injured Are In Hospitals—Women Offered Services When Volunteers to Enter Mine Were Called For—Three Rescue Parties Driven Back Before Corpses Are Recovered

Wehrum, Pa., June 24.—As the result of an explosion of gas in Mine No. 4 of the Lackawanna Coal and Coke company seventeen miners were killed and sixteen injured. Twelve of the more seriously injured were taken to a hospital. It is said all will probably recover.

Superintendent Johnson says that while the mine has always been regarded as non-gaseous, the explosion was due to the ignition of a pocket of gas by the open lamp of a miner. "The mine has been so free from gas for the past six years," said Johnson, "that the state inspectors have permitted the use of open lamps."

The mine has only been operating two days each week, Tuesday and Friday. Those in the mine Wednesday had entered the shaft for their daily allowance of coal for family use.

Superintendent Johnson, backed by the office force of the company, stood at the mine entrance and held back the frantic women whose relatives were entombed.

Johnson called for volunteers to enter the mine. In the volunteer ranks stood several women. These were ordered back. With wet handkerchiefs tied over their faces, the first squad of the relief party started down the shaft. Of the eight who started four came back with their senses. The others, overcome with black damp, were pulled to the surface with ropes.

A second and third party entered only to be driven back by the deadly gases, hissing and spouting in the lower levels.

Oxygen aided the searchers and with safety helmets a fourth rescue party succeeded in bringing twelve bodies to the surface. Later five corpses were recovered. In twos and threes the injured were found and lifted to the mouth of the mine and then hastily taken to the temporary hospital established at the company store. They were later removed to the Spangler hospital, twenty-six miles from Wehrum.

All but two rooms of the mine have been thoroughly searched and it is thought no more bodies are in the mine.

LOW SCORES EXPECTED

Professionals and Amateurs In Open Golf Tournament

Englewood, N. J., June 24.—Play was begun today at the Englewood Golf club in the open championship tournament of the United States Golf association. The list of entrants in the tournament embraces practically all of the well known professionals of the United States, with several amateurs of high class. Low scores for the course, which consists of seventy-two holes, are expected.

The professionals entered in the tournament include two foreigners—Tom Vardon of the Royal St. George's club of Sandwich, Eng., and George Duncan of the Hanger Hill Golf club of England, who is touring the United States. Tom Vardon is a brother of Harry H. Vardon, who won the open championship of the United States in 1900 at Chicago.

HAS TAFT'S SYMPATHY

Merchant Marine League Encouraged by President's Promise

Washington, June 24.—Indicating by his presence his sympathy with the cause which the Merchant Marine league espouses, President Taft provoked loud applause and much enthusiasm at a dinner given last night by officials and members of the league when he declared that he would do all in his power to assist in the rehabilitation of the American merchant marine.

The president declares that something must be done, and immediately, to establish a merchant marine, and that he will do everything he can to bring this about. He remained at the dinner but a short time.

Cuban Beats American at Chess

New York, June 24.—J. R. Capablanca, the Cuban champion, won the match of eight games up from Frank J. Marshall of New York. The match started on April 19, but was not concluded until the Cuban took the twenty-third game Wednesday afternoon. The final score is: Capablanca 8, Marshall 1, drawn 14.

Double Murder and Suicide

Columbus, O., June 24.—William R. Puyear, assistant electrical engineer at the Ohio state university, shot and killed his brother-in-law, Fred West, fatally shot his wife and then sent a bullet into his brain. The tragedy resulted from a quarrel. Puyear made accusations against his wife and she told West.

CONVENTION OF GYMNASTS

All of United States and Several European Countries Represented

Cincinnati, June 24.—More than 8000 gymnasts and athletes, representing every section of the United States and several European countries, are assembled in this city today to take part in the thirteenth quadrennial meeting of the turnvereins, or German gymnastic societies, of America.

The monster athletic field at Carthage in which the contests are to be held is the biggest in the United States. The stage measures 260 by 40 feet, and the grand stand alone seats 4000 persons. On the field are the tents in which many of the visiting gymnasts are housed during their stay in this city.

Today's parade of the turners and others was the biggest ever seen in Cincinnati. It included civic and military divisions as well as the turners themselves in their gymnastic uniforms. Thousands of school children, each carrying an American flag, were in line.

Twelve cities have sent large delegations of turners, male and female, to compete in the various gymnastic and athletic events that will fill up most of the time of the meeting.

ELEVEN PERSONS DROWNED

Disaster Overtakes Party of Tourists on Lake Killarney

Killarney, June 24.—A large rowboat, carrying five American and four English tourists and four Irish boatmen, was swamped in a gale while crossing lower Killarney lake. All of the tourists and two of the boatmen were drowned. The victims were Mrs. A. A. Hilton and son of Tacoma, Wash.; Robert C. and Mrs. Loughead of Boston; Miss M. H. Catum of Massachusetts, (town not known); Rev. B. Barton and sister of London and Miss Florence Wilkinson and cousin of Brentwood, Eng., Boatmen Con Toomey and Con Gleeson.

The boat was a four-oared craft, used for taking visitors about the lake. Most of the passengers were guests of the Great Southern hotel. The two boatmen who were saved were too exhausted to give an account of the accident.

SPANISH EDITOR'S FEELINGS INJURED

Sees Insult In Training Ship's Proposed Visit to Havana

Havana, June 24.—The Diario Espanol, the organ of extreme Spanish sentiment, inveighs bitterly against the proposed visit to Havana of the former Spanish cruiser Isla de Luzon, which was captured by Dewey at Manila, and which is now a training ship for the naval militia of Louisiana.

The paper says that the dispatch to this port of the warship is a deliberate insult on the part of the United States, which is "now flaunting the flag on which are emblazoned more shames than stars."

ROOMS FILLED WITH GAS

Hartford Police Find Decomposed Bodies of Man and Wife

Hartford, June 24.—The odors of gas led the police to break into the apartments of Alfred Norman on Church street, where they found Norman, who was 67 years old, and his wife, 80, dead from gas asphyxiation.

Norman was sitting in a chair and his wife was lying on a couch, both bodies being badly decomposed. All the doors and windows were tightly closed and the gas turned on in all the four rooms of the flat.

It is thought that Norman turned on the gas while his wife was sleeping, it being known that he was despondent over the ill health of his wife and his own poor physical condition.

In Memory of Washington

New York, June 24.—A bronze tablet in memory of the first President of the United States was unveiled by the Daughters of the American Revolution on board the North German Lloyd steamer George Washington, lying at the company's docks in Hoboken. The tablet is placed at the head of the stairway leading to the upper saloon deck.

Feat of Golfer Ross

Englewood, N. J., June 24.—In a four ball golf match here Alex Ross of Boston, the Massachusetts open champion, made the fifteenth hole, distance 130 yards, in one stroke. It was the first one Ross ever had and he has been playing the game since a lad in Scotland.

Hot Wave Continues

Boston, June 24.—The third successive day of excessive heat added a fifth and sixth fatality to the toll of the sun's victims, while twenty-seven persons were treated for heat prostration at the various hospitals of Greater Boston.

Count Falls From Trolley Car

Washington, June 24.—Count Alexander Torok, an attache of the Austrian embassy here, was internally injured, probably fatally, as the result of a fall from a trolley car which he was attempting to board.

TROLLEY SERVICE TO N. Y.

Commencing Monday June 21, the Old Colony Street Railway Co., resumed its popular special through trolley service between Boston and Providence or Fall River, connecting for the night boats to New York. By taking this service to Providence and the boats of the Hartford & New York Transportation Co. it will be possible this year to make the trip from Boston to New York, or vice versa for $2.25. The special car used in this service will leave Post Office square daily except Sunday at 2.30 P. M. and run through without stops or changes to Providence, except for a moment at Taunton where those desiring to go to Fall River may change.

This route lies through the great Blue Hills district, the lively cities of Brockton and Taunton, and is through as charming a country from a scenic point of view as can be found in southeastern Massachusetts, which makes it not only a cheap, but a very enjoyable way for summer travel. Tickets and any trolley information may be secured at the Free Trolley Information Bureau of the Passenger Department, at 309 Washington Street, Boston.

YEAR BOOK.

That of the Quincy Yacht Club for 1909 Better than ever.

The annual year book of the Quincy Yacht club was issued today and as usual is brim full of things interesting to the yachtsmen, especially to the members of the Quincy club. In addition to much data in relation to the Quincy club the book contains color plates of the club burgess, and the United States weather signals.

One of the most interesting things in the book is the summary of the challenge cup races of 1906, 1907 and 1908 as well as a summary of all the races held under the auspices of the club last year.

During the past year the club has lost seven members by death:—Charles F. Atwood, Charles H. Burgess, Lorenzo D. Baker, D. Carey Keith, Edward W. Haskell, A. Russell, Jones and William B. Rice.

WHY SO WEAK?

Kidney Troubles May be Sapping Your Life Away. Quincy People Have Learned This Fact.

When a healthy man or woman begins to run down without apparent cause, becomes weak, lanquid, depressed, suffers backache, headache, dizzy spells and urinary disorders, look to the kidneys for the cause of it all. Keep the kidneys well and they will keep you well. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and keep them well. Here is Quincy testimony to prove it.

Mrs. J. Boyle, living at 8 Marsh street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and can say they are unequalled for the purpose for which they are intended. They built up my general system and in six weeks' time, freed me from kidney complaint from which I had suffered for a great many years. This valuable remedy can be procured at the Cox Drug Store."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

NELSON-CLIFFORD BOUT

Sports Do Not Expect It to Go the Limit of Twenty Rounds

Oklahoma City, June 22.—Although no one here believes that tonight's fight between Battling Nelson, champion lightweight of the world, and Jack Clifford will make the champion extend himself, he looks fit to fight hard for his title.

The fight is slated to last twenty rounds, but it will be a big surprise to the sports gathered here to see the contest if it goes the limit. Clifford has been training hard to get into condition. Nelson has also been here several days.

COURT HURRIES THE GOULD SUIT

Hears Testimony Until Close to Midnight Hour

AUTO TRIPS OF PLAINTIFF

She Saw Actor Farnum Only In Company of Others—Testimony That She Was Not Affected by Wine, Which She Drank Only Moderately—Servants and Others Tell of Her Sobriety—Case Is Drawing to Close

New York, June 24.—Counsel for Katherine C. Gould, who is suing Howard Gould for separation and $250,000 a year alimony, labored long and late Wednesday and it was 11 o'clock when court adjourned last night. This, the first nocturnal session since the trial began more than three weeks ago, was granted by Justice Dowling in order to clean up the remaining testimony in rebuttal by the plaintiff's witnesses, excepting, perhaps, Mrs. Gould herself, if she desires to testify.

But after last night's session Counsel Shearn announced that he still had two witnesses to call. The case will go on today when a deposition of Dustin Farnum, the actor who has figured so prominently in the case, will be submitted in Mrs. Gould's behald.

The testimony submitted and depositions read for Mrs. Gould yesterday and last night, taken as a whole, cover in rebuttal all the incidents of the various motor trips that she is alleged to have taken to cities in which Farnum was playing. Also it sought to prove that Mrs. Gould drank moderately, principally with her meals; that she was not affected by the wine she took; that her language was never other than what it should have been; that she saw Farnum only in the company of others, and that there was nothing out of the ordinary in her attitude toward him.

Thirty-six witnesses in rebuttal have thus far been called, and it is expected that Mrs. Gould will again take the stand today in the hope of weakening her husband's countercharges. With the exception of Mrs. Elijah Sells, Mrs. Gould's cousin by marriage, who testified during the day, and the deposition of her daughter, Marjorie, which was read at night, the testimony for the most part was that of servants and employes of various shops.

Miss Sells' narrative bore out that of her mother, favoring Mrs. Gould as to her association with Farnum and testifying as to her sobriety at all times.

After this deposition came a corroborative deposition from May Robson, the actress. The actress was not sure about the number of nights she had slept in Mrs. Gould's room, but she was positive she had used one of the twin beds in Mrs. Gould's bedroom. Her characterization of Mrs. Gould's conduct coincided with that of Miss Sells.

FORD NO. 2 AT SEATTLE

Speedy Auto but Twenty-Two Days on Journey From New York

Seattle, June 24.—Ford car No. 2, winner of the New York-to-Seattle automobile race, reached the gates of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition at 12:55 p. m., Wednesday, having covered the distance in 22 days and 55 minutes.

The car was met at Renton, several miles southwest of Seattle, by Seattle automobilists and escorted through a lane of people which crowded the business streets. The little racer, dusty and battered, looked anything but impressive in the company of big, bright touring machines. At the fair grounds gate a crowd cheered and waved flags.

Ford car No. 2 thus wins the Guggenheim trophy cup and $2000 purse.

DETECTIVE IN JAIL

Kuhne Begins to Serve Thirty Days' Sentence For Contempt of Court

New York, June 24.—Acting Captain Augustus Kuhne of the Brooklyn detective bureau, whose conviction for contempt of court was recently affirmed by the court of appeals, began serving his thirty day sentence in the Raymond street jail, Brooklyn, last evening.

Counsel for Kuhne notified the jail officers that he was to be treated as a civil prisoner and not subjected to close confinement, but Kuhne was placed in a cell, nevertheless.

Kuhne, in violation of a court order, caused the photographing, or "mugging," of a Brooklyn banker under arrest.

Great Cotton Mills Burned

Mexico City, June 24.—A dispatch from Guadalajara states that the Atemajae cotton mills were destroyed by fire last night. The loss is placed at $1,000,000. More than 2000 workmen are thrown out of employment.

War on Cholera

St. Petersburg, June 24.—Because of the prevalence of cholera in this city, the cabinet has decided that the government shall undertake the drainage of St. Petersburg and reorganization of the water supply.

You May Dip Your Shoes In Water If They Are Polished With "Nugget"

You can splash around in puddles and the inside of the shoes will stay as dry as punk.

And the "shine" too will stay—the shoes may become muddy and soiled but a brisk rub with a soft cloth will bring back all of the lustre.

Waterproofing the shoes is only one feature of "Nugget."

Not only can you produce a brighter, more lustrous shine with "Nugget" than with any other shoe polish sold, but you can do it in less time and with less effort.

To keep the shoes well groomed is quick and easy when "Nugget" is used—about 2 minutes time is all.

And still further, "Nugget" actually feeds the leather—keeps it soft and pliable and prevents unsightly ridges and cracking. "Nugget" keeps new shoes looking new and restores youth to old ones.

"Nugget" really "doubles the life of shoes."

"NUGGET" POLISHES For Shoes

The "Nugget" Kit is a handsome box containing in compact form all the things necessary for the care of shoes—a box of the world-famous "Nugget" Polish—a convenient sized brush and a Selvyt finishing pad. 40c complete.

"Nugget" Polishes and "Nugget" Kits are sold at shoe stores, drug stores, grocery stores and by dealers everywhere.

TROLLEY FREIGHT.

Order Approving the Operation of a Trolley Freight Signed.

Mayor Shea affixed his signature this morning to the order passed by the City Council approving the operation of a trolley freight in Quincy, and the order has now become a law. Before it will become operative however, it must be approved by the Railroad Commissioners.

The order provides that the approval shall run for a period of ten years. It also provides that it will not be operative unless all of the conditions are approved by the Railroad Commissioners and that the freight is in operation within a year.

The railroad company says that it is their intention to put the freight in operation immediately. Temporary freight terminals will be opened, until a large terminal can be built. The railway company has recently obtained title to a large tract of property near its present car barn on Hancock street and while it has not been so announced it is probable that the freight terminal will be located there.

NO ONE CHANGED.

Time for Changing Party Designation Has Expired.

The time for changing party designations for the state caucuses next fall expired Wednesday but there was no one in Quincy who desired to change from a Republican to a Democrat or from a Democrat to a Republican. Under the law a person who desires to change his party designation from that which he voted at the state caucuses last year must do so six months prior to the next caucus.

As noted above the time for the state caucus expired Wednesday.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION.

The Massachusetts Christian Endeavor union will hold its third annual institute at Sagamore beach, July 23-30 inclusive. The various services will be held in Assembly hall, and the headquarters will be at Bradford Arms. The secretary of the State union, Miss Emma Ostrom Nichols, of East Lexington, who is receiving the registrations, reports that a large attendance is assured. The opening session of the Institute will be on Friday evening, July 23, and the president of the State union, Rev. J. Spencer Voorhees of Adams, will preside. The speakers will be Mr. George E. Copeland of Worcester, and Rev. Arthur H. Gordon of Cambridge.

The program committee plan to divide the morning sessions into three periods as follows.—Quiet hour, bible study, and Christian Endeavor Methods class. The afternoon will be devoted to recreation, and the evening sessions will include addresses on different subjects.

On Sunday, the Endeavorers will worship in the morning at the Methodist church in Sagamore Village, and in the afternoon the institute sermon will be preached in Assembly hall by Rev. J. P. Jones. The evening service will be a regular Christian Endeavor prayer meeting led by Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D. The closing meeting of the Institute Friday evening, July 30, will be a consecration and purpose service conducted by Rev. Francis E. Clark, Rev. J. S. Voorhees and Mr. George E. Copeland.

EXPOSTION AT SEATTLE.

The Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition at Seattle may be seen at any time during the summer months without fear of sun-stroke. The glaring heat that made mid-day promenading all but impossible at previous expositions is unknown in the far Northwest where the latest of World's Fairs is swinging merrily along with success written in every feature. It is sunny, bright and summery at Seattle, but the unholy thought of Hades is not sugested by the extreme so many Americans have become habituated to during July and August.

When the thermometer reads 75 it is warm—yes, hot—to the citizens of the Exposition city. Located on an arm of the sea— the famous Puget Sound—this Western metropolis receives full benefit from the ocean currents and the refreshing sea breezes. Three lakes are included in its boundaries and their cool depths fed from the snow-crowned Cascade mountains, freshen the air and make it wholesome and sweet.

Mountain ranges surround the amphitheatre in which this latest world's congress is being held, and their melting snow runs into streams that rush down rocklined gorges to make the tranquil rivers that flow in and about Seattle.

There need be no long search for shade. This Puget Sound country was a solid forest when the pioneers invaded it with axe and saw, and the march of civilization has far from destroyed all of the mighty forests of primeval days. One of the predominating features of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition's landscapic beauty, is the much-talked-of skyline of fir trees, towering above the classic buildings with their turrets, towers and monster domes.

The Exposition management wisely left these trees wherever it was not absolutely necessary to remove them, and they separate and surround the buildings in such a way as to make them cool and inviting. The glare that generally attends the courts of a World's Fair has been largely obviated by using the color of old ivory instead of white, as heretofore employed.

There are shady walks through bits of forest in various parts of the grounds, and beautiful picnicking spots abound on the shores of Lake Washington, at the Exposition's boundaries.

As welcome to Easterners and Southerners as the exposition itself is the mildness of the climate. Here it is sunny enough by day to bring out the gaiety of summer dresses, and yet cool enough by night for the tired sight-seeker to sleep soundly.

There are no mosquitoes or other annoying insects to disturb a night's rest. But the sun comes up over the Cascades so cheerfully in the morning that even the sluggard does not like to lie abed.

It rains occasionally, but the showers are light and refreshing. They keep the air sweet and pure and charge the atmosphere with an invigorating twang. The Eastern thunderstorm, with its terrifying lightning, is almost unknown, as is also the tremendous windstorm of the middle west. Nature allied comfort with beauty when she raised the hills, trenched the valleys and filled the lakes and rivers of this section which by its own industry, capital and labor has built one of the greatest of international expositions.

SOUTH SHORE COMMANDERY

Entertains Seven Commanderies on St. John's Day

St. John the Baptist day was fittingly observed Thursday by the eight commanderies composing the South Eastern Mass. Association, who were the guests of South Shore Commandery at East Weymouth.

The program for the day's celebration included a short parade in the morning a dinner at Nantasket and sail about the harbor.

East Weymouth did itself proud in the way of decoration for there was scarcely a building along the route of the parade that did not display some color.

Many of the buildings were very handsomely decorated especially the Masonic building. On the front of the building were hugh banners with the emblems of the Blue lodge chapter and templar emblems and in fact the whole face of the structure was covered with flags.

The day opened with a grand parade through the main thoroughfares of the village and review by Frank L. Nagle G. S. W. and staff.

T. John Evans P. C. was the chief marshal of the parade and his staff included: Em. Sir. William S. Wallace; Em. Sir. George Cushing; Em. Sir Francis A. Bicknell; Em. Sir. David J. Pierce; Em. Sir Eben H. Cain; Em. Sir. Arthur W. Stetson; Sir. Henry P. Furnald.

The commanderies to participate in the outing were:

Washington Commandery, No. 4, Newport, R. I.

Calvary Commandery, No. 13, Providence, R. I.

Old Colony Commandery, No. 15, Abington, Mass.

Sutton Commandery, No. 16, New Bedford, Mass.

St. Omer Commandery, No. 21, Dorchester, Mass.

Bristol Commandery, No. 29, Attleboro, Mass.

Bay State Commandery, No. 38, Brockton, Mass.

The reviewing party consisted of: Em. Sir Frank L. Nagle, G. S. W.; Rt. Em. Sir. John D. Munroe, G. C. Em. Sirs Charles E. Pierce, G. C. of G. Henry A. Yenetchi, G. L. and Sir Judson C. MacKenzie, G. W. Rt. Em. Sirs William H. H. Soule and Charles I. Litchfield, P. G. C. Em. Sirs. J. Franklin Rider, E C. of Gethsemane; Frank T. Pierce, P. C. of St. John's; Joseph Baker, Jr., Arthur W. Dennis and Joseph H. Potter, P. C. of Calvary; Henry J. Jordan, P. C. of DeMolay; R. Walter Hilliard, P. C. of Cambridge and Elisha H. Fisher, P. C. of Sutton. Em. Sirs Lafayette G. Blair, G. C. G. and George W. Knowlton, E. C. of Joseph Warren, arrived later and were heartily greeted.

After the parade a special train was taken for Nantasket beach where dinner was served at the Hotel Nantasket.

Immediately after dinner the party went aboard the steamer South Shore for a sail about the harbor.

The boat returned to Nantasket at 5.30 when the Sir Knights found a luncheon awaiting them and soon after this the special train was again boarded for home.

The day had been an ideal one. At times it looked as thought there would be a shower but none came.

The visiting commandery were high in their praise for the manner in which South Shore commandery had entertained them.

PUPILS ENTERTAINED.

Miss Ida E. Dow entertained her voice and piano pupils at her studio 673 Washington street, Brookline, Tuesday evening. A dainty chafing dish lunch was served over which Mrs. Pearl E. Loud of Roxbury presided, assisted in serving by Mrs. Lena D. Loud of Wollaston and the Misses Esther L. Swendsen and Mabel A. Anspach. Dainty musical dictionaries were given as prizes to the two pupils having done the most excellent work for the season 1909 and were received by Miss Gladys Gordon and Mr. Edwin Rawson.

After the refreshments were served an auction was given at which every one received a favor. Mr. Robert E. Evans, Sr., acted as auctioneer in a praise worthy manner. This was the closing of a very successful season for Miss Dow as the excellent work done by her pupils testify. Special mention should be made of Mrs. Lena D. Loud of Wollaston who sang "Lifes Lullaby," by Lane very effectively and with rich tone quality. A programme of vocal piano solos was rendered.

CITY FIELD DAY.

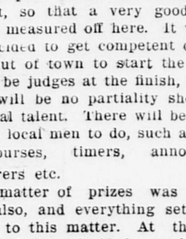

Committee Decide to Hold Games in Lower Field of Merry Mount Park.

The athletic committee on the City of Quincy field day, to be held July 5, met Thursday evening in the mayor's office, City Hall. Mayor Shea presided, those present being William L. Elcock and Daniel Driscoll of the Iroquois club James E. Neary of the Fore River Apprentices and Charles B. Parker of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. The plans of the day were talked over and it was decided to have the games on the lower field of Merrymount Park, instead of at the new track, which is back of the lower field. This was decided on because of the poor condition of the track, which will not probably be improved, as it is thought that the best place for a city cinder track would be at the Ward Two playground, where the athletes might have the use of the lockers and shower baths of the public bath house. The Mayor said that he would have one of the city engineers at the park tonight to meet the members of the committee and lay out the track. The field in this part of the park is much more level than in that part where the track is at present, so that a very good track can be measured off here. It was also decided to get competent officials from out of town to start the games and to be judges at the finish, so that there will be no partiality shown to the local talent. There will be plenty for the local men to do, such as clerk of courses, timers, announcers, measurers etc.

The matter of prizes was talked over, also, and everything settled in regard to this matter. At the last meeting it was decided to let the members of the winning relay team pick out their own prizes, but at Thursday evening's meeting it was foreseen that this method would cause a lot of trouble, as the boys might not be able to agree on a prize. Hence it was decided to give a medal, suitably inscribed, to each member of the winning team. It was thought this would do away with any unneccessary wrangling about the prizes.

It was further voted to buy the prizes from the local dealers, who will be asked to submit designs of watches and medals to the mayor. The mayor will then confer with the members of the committee and the style of prize desired will be selected. The meeting adjourned until Monday evening, when the committee will meet in the same place.

The entry fee for the meet will be 25 cents for the first event and ten cents extra for each additional event. It was thought better to charge an entry fee, because otherwise there would be a large number of entries, with no assurance of the appearance of the runners. When the athletes pay their entry fee they usually show up and get the benefit of it. Again this entry fee will help to pay the expenses of handicapping the men, for the official handicapper of the N. E. A. A. U. charges ten cents for every man he handicaps. The entry blanks are all ready and can be obtained from William L. Elcock, 21 Marsh street, James E. Neary, at the Fore River works, or Peter M. Sullivan, at the office of the Quincy Daily Ledger. The entries close July 2, with William L. Elcock, 21 Marsh street. All athletes wishing to run in these games must be registered in the A. A. U. For registration apply to J. Frank Facey, 36 Prospect street, Cambridge.

SHAKE UP IN QUINCY TEAM

New Life to Be Infused Into Local League Ball Team

The failure of the Quincy Old Colony league team to be a consistent winner in the league games played so far, has caused a big shake-up to be made in the personnel of the club. Sid Patterson has resigned the managerial berth, and George Guston has been appointed to succeed him. Sid will still be kept on the pitching staff, however. Guston is an old time ball player himself and is a thorough student of the game. He is acquainted with ball players in all parts of the state and should be able to handle the position in a satisfactory manner. It is much better to have the manager on the bench and not a member of the team, because the worries attached to the job are apt to and often do hinder a man from doing work on the field. There are very few men even on a small minor league team, who can go out on the field and play their best and still be thinking of the business of the team. With the worries of the management off his mind, Patterson should pitch in his old time form. He has been going good this year, but hard luck has been following him all the time. Let us hope that now, when he has nothing to think of but the pitching end, he will go out and shake the hoodoo. Another good man will be secured to help Patterson on the mound, and this will encourage him to pitch his best, for he will know that as soon as he weakens, he will be pulled out.

There will also be several other changes in the team, before the game with Rockland tomorrow. Behind the bat will be seen John Murray of Neponset, one of the best fielding and hitting catchers in the state, in the semi-professional ranks. He has been with the strong Salem team all the season and has made a big hit with the fans of the City of Witches. For an extra boxman either McClure of Amherst, Templeton of Williams, Foley of Holy Cross or Hernan of Brown will be secured. All of these men are star performers and have done great work for their college teams the past season. Manager Guston stated this morning that Cameron would probably play first base tomorrow. Cameron is well known throughout the country as ball player, having played in the National and New England leagues. Lines are also out for Danny Barry of East Boston. Barry is on the roll of the New York Highlanders and is one of the classiest first basemen in the country. He is as watchful and natural as a Lajoie and is as sure as a Hal Chase. He will without a doubt be a great addition to the local team if he can be secured. Al Strohel, the former Boston National infielder, will in all probability cover the pivot sack and if he does, there will surely be some classy playing. It is to be hoped that someone will be secured, who can play the bag, because second base has been the weak point of the infield all the season. Spiller has been allowed to roam to other pastures and it is not known for sure who will fill his place. There is a possibility of getting Lou Courtney of Randolph, and here is one smooth ball tosser. Lou is at present with the Biddeford team of the Maine State league, but would rather be a little nearer home. He will easily make good, as he is a hitter and fielder of the first order.

Third base will be looked after either by Hoye who covered the bag last Saturday, or by Orcutt who played second base last Saturday. The outfield will be kept the same as it is now, as at present it compares favorably with any in the league.

The game tomorrow with Rockland is to be played at the Water street grounds and the local boys are going to show the loyal Quincy fans that they appreciate the backing they have received so far. They are going to show this by winning tomorrow's game from Rockland, and they are going to start now and make a fight for first honors in the league. They are tied with Rockland now for last place in the league and they are out to break the tie and leave Rockland in the cellar all alone. Dewey leads the league with four straight wins and no defeats and is playing good ball. The Weymouth boys are certainly having all kinds of luck in their games, but at the same time are putting up a classy game. Taunton, Randolph and Stoughton are tied for second place and all are now playing a good article of ball. Tomorrow Taunton and Stoughton meet on the latter's grounds and the tie between them is sure to be broken; at Weymouth the Deweys and the Randolphs meet and the latter will attempt to give the Admirals their first defeat.

The league standing to date is:—

	Won	Lost	Pc.
Dewey	4	0	1.000
Taunton	2	2	.500
Randolph	2	2	.500
Stoughton	2	2	.500
Quincy	1	3	.250
Rockland	1	3	.250

There will be a shake-up in the standing after tomorrow's games no matter how they result. Dewey will still hold first place whether she wins or loses. If she wins and Taunton beats Stoughton, Taunton will be alone in second place. If this happens and Quincy defeats Rockland, the latter will be in last all alone, while Quincy will be in a tie for third place with Stoughton and Randolph. On the other hand if Randolph defeats Dewey, Dewey will still remain in first place, while Randolph will go into a tie for second place with the winner of the Taunton-Stoughton. If Quincy is beaten by Rockland, she will be the tailender, while Rockland will go into a tie for third place with the loser of the Taunton Stoughton game. So altogether the games tomorrow mean quite a lot to the various teams.

At Merry Mount park the Makaria team will meet the strong Roxbury team, which they have trimmed once this season. Makaria has lost only one game this season, that to Atlantic on the holiday. They intend to keep a clean sheet for the rest of the year. All the other local teams, Atlantic, Bigelows, Fore River Apprentices, Adams A. A., Cranch A. A., Bryant A. C. and the Excelsus class, have games scheduled for tomorrow.

Many local athletics will also go over to the American league grounds tomorrow, too, some to compete in and others to witness the big track and field games of the Cambridgeport gym association.

There are also several yacht races and golf matches scheduled for tomorrow.

TWO MEN CUT WITH KNIVES

Serious Quarrel In South Quincy Granite District

There came near being a serious cutting affray at South Quincy Thursday afternoon. As it was, two men were cut with knives but neither was seriously injured. The parties in the affair were Joseph Bedot and Cateldo Coletti.

Just what started the trouble has not appeared as yet. Bedot's story is that Coletti and his brothers who run a granite yard on Centre street, attacked him with knives and that to defend himself he struck one of the men over the head with a shovel. In support of his story he shows knife wounds on the breast and arm.

Coletti's story is that Bedot attacked him and threatened his life with a knife and that he received a bad cut with the knife on his forehead. He appeared in court with his head bandaged up this morning. He declares that it was a knife that Bedot used and not a shovel.

Each man swore out a complaint against the other man and both were in court this morning. When searched Thursday, Bedot's knife was covered with blood spots although he says he did not use it on the Italian.

Wollaston Golf Player Ahead in Competition for National Title.

Tom McNamara of the Wollaston golf club leads the big field of golfers now fighting for the national golf championship at the Englewood N. J. links. The first day's play covered 36 holes, and at the end McNamara had a score of 142, which is four strokes better than the second man, Andrew Campbell, the youngest of the famous Campbell family. McNamara may not win the championship, for there are still 36 holes to be played under the hot sun and on the torrid soil of New Jersey. But no one can rob Tom of the distinction of having led the whole field of the best golfers in the country and one crack from across the pond, Tom Vardon, in the first 36 holes of the competition.

Last night was THE night for many Quincy Knights.

It looks very much as if Lieut. Peary was iceolated.

Bet your boy didn't get up as early today as he did yesterday.

And don't forget to be considerate of your horse these days.

By next week you'll have a chance to take an electric light bath.

A shovel, a knife, hot blood and a hot day make a bad combination.

Bath house "Jack" Starr is the most popular city official in Quincy these days.

Let's hope the council committee on better train service will make good connections.

Well, how would you like to be the iceman? And, just the same, it isn't much fun at that.

The sign board on Temple street ought to be replaced with a new one on a new pole. The old one looks like a last year's scarecrow.

If the crap shooters cannot be appealed to on the moral side of the question, let them ask themselves if it is worth paying $20 to play the game.

The fuse on the $250 Atlantic July 4th order went out after it had been lighted but the chances are that it will be set off again.

Now that active work on the Cape Cod canal has been started, what is to become of the so-called Brockton canal that was going to have one end in Fore River?

When the tides begin to be on the full in the evenings next week, the Quincy Bay shore boulevard, with its many new lights will be one of the beauty spots of the city.

Circus parade; streets crowded; trolley, autos, teams and people all on the move and no accident, which is remarkable considering the crowd. Teams should not have been allowed to line up along the road, neither should autos or teams have been allowed to pass through the crowd as the trolleys and circus should have had the right of way for the short time necessary for the parade.

The trolley freight order is now a reality as far as the city of Quincy can make it. It is now up to the street railway company to keep its agreement with the people as expressed by its representative to the city council. It is to be hoped that representations will be made to the company to send its through freight cars from Boston to Brockton and points beyond by the way of Randolph avenue rather than through Quincy proper which at the present time has not any too much room for passenger and local freight cars.

The three big elm trees which have been dead on Elm street for two or three years past are being cut down as they were becaming a menace to safe-travelling. It seemed a pity that three such giants should come to such an untimely end for in their day they were beautiful specimens of the elm tree at its best. Of late, however, they were simply dead wood and their giant branches hung over the street like the fabled sword of Damocles.

When you are inclined to fuss and fume over the hot days remember there are others who may be in a worse position than yourself. If you ride home from Boston on the trains these torrid afternoons, give a thought to the engineer ahead of you who sits beside a roaring furnace and of the firemen who bends over the mouth of that furnace to make the steam that brings you home. Having thought of these men you may not feel so warm.

When from out the mass of exaggeration and nonsense which have been published concerning the policy of this administration with regard to China and the Hankow-Sze-Chuen Railway a discriminating public is able to separate the actual facts, we venture to predict that there will be only praise for President Taft and the premier of his cabinet Mr. Knox. The policy pursued has been at once dignified and firm. In so far as Great Britain, Germany and France are concerned, it has commanded their complete respect and even in some degree their gratitude, for while Secretary Knox has made it clear beyond preadventure that nothing short of complete respect for the rights and interests of the United States would satisfy this government, he has on the other hand exhibited a spirit of courtesy and accommodation which will go far to promote the friendly intercourse of the powers concerned.

While certainly no one shall cavil at that which is done for charitable purposes nor complain because the demand of charity may some times prove inconvenient, there is certainly a question whether or not those who seek to acquire funds for charitable purposes do not exceed the bounds of propriety. There it at present a wave of enthusiasm for playgrounds in the larger cities and it is doubtful if young people of leisure could devote their energies to a more worthy purpose, but is not the effect upon young girls, who approach strange men and seek by methods wholly proper perhaps among their friends, to secure donations, worthy of serious consideration? Are the few dollars which young girls collect by these means worth the boldness which such methods engender? Is the chance acquaintance thus made with an utter stranger in a business office or a railway station not likely or at least possible to develop into a flirtation which may entail everlasting sorrow? Is the loss of modesty which must come to young women who do fancy dancing on public stages, in abbreviated costumes, before paid audiences, not too heavy a price to pay for the benefits which may accrue to some philanthropic institution? It is not perhaps within the province of an editor to judge of these things, but are these suggestions worthy of the serious consideration of every American mother?

DEATH OF ANNIE BREWE

Slayer of Gideon Lattimer Ends Her Days In Insane Asylum

Danvers, Mass., June 25.—The closing chapter in the famous Lattimer murder, which startled Essex county over a decade ago, was ended here in the death of Miss Annie M. Brewer, aged 39, in the Danvers insane asylum.

The woman was the murderess of Gideon W. Lattimer, Jr., her sweetheart, at her home in Lynn, on Dec. 13, 1894. She was convicted of manslaughter and served seven years in the house of correction. After completing her jail sentence Miss Brewer became insane and was committed to the Danvers asylum.

Mrs. Gould Sought Farnum's Company on That Account

FELT NEED OF HIS ADVICE

Says Her Home Was Broken Up, Happiness Gone, and She Wanted Some Occupation to Divert Her Mind—Flat Denial of Testimony and Insinuations of Witnesses Who Appeared For Her Husband

New York, June 25—Katherine C. Gould was called back to the stand for a final ordeal Thursday, to explain away, if possible, the damaging testimony given by the witnesses for her husband in her suit for separation and alimony of $250,000 a year.

It was a day of denials, beginning with the reading of the deposition of Dustin Farnum, the actor, who denied all allegations of improper conduct with Mrs. Gould, and ending with Mrs. Gould's repeated denials of practically everything in word or action attributed to her by the witnesses for the other side.

For two hours Mrs. Gould answered the carefully framed questions of her counsel, repudiating with a monotonous flat denial all the testimony and insinuation charging her with excessive drinking, profanity or other impropriety. Chauffeurs, grooms, stablemen, shopkeepers, laborers and other servants and employes were alike branded with the short and ugly epithet. She never drank to excess, never used profane language, never forgot her dignity as mistress of Castle Gould, and never overstepped the bounds of propriety, she said.

Getting down to specific instances, she told her counsel that she had never tried to hitch up a pair of mules, had never ordered a tableful of dishes and food thrown from her St. Regis apartments, had never referred to Dustin Farnum as "my new beau," never quarreled with her husband before company, never had a coachman's arm about her waist, to hold her on the carriage seat, never discharged an employe in anger, never became intoxicated aboard the Niagara, never consumed two quarts of cocktails in two days.

Mrs. Gould's explanation of her friendship with Farnum naturally took up a considerable portion of her time. Her testimony held closely to the line drawn in the deposition offered earlier in the day in behalf of Farnum, who was unable to appear in person, it was announced, on account of illness. Whatever intimacy there has been between her and the actor, she said, was accounted for by her desire to have his advice regarding her plans to return to the stage.

"My home had been broken up," she said, "all authority had been taken from me, my happiness was gone and I wanted some occupation to divert my mind. I thought of returning to the stage and wanted to talk the matter over with Mr. Farnum, who, I was convinced, would be able to help me."

Mrs. Gould went over the occasions from the time she first met Farnum in 1904 at a "charity benefit" down to the present time. She had not seen Farnum, she said, from 1904 till 1906, when she talked with him about returning to the stage.

It is believed that the case will close today.

NAVY YARD VACATION

Period of Idleness For Two Hundred Men at Boston

Boston, June 25.—Two hundred workmen were laid off Thursday at the Charlestown navy yard, work having been completed on the battleships Vermont and New Jersey. The fiscal year ends July 1 and it is understood that there is not an appropriation to carry on much work after that date.

There is still some work to be done on the battleship Missouri, which will not leave the yard until Aug. 1 and the battleship Illinois will soon come to the yard and go out of commission to be entirely rebuilt.

Washington, June 25.—The administration corporation tax amendment to the tariff bill was completed last night by Attorney General Wickersham and Senator Root. It was introduced in the senate today by Senator Aldrich and was given the standing of a committee amendment.

Few changes have been made in the measure from the form in which it was presented at the conference at the White House on Tuesday night.

CAPTURE NOT YET IN SIGHT

Rumors Concerning Leon Ling's Whereabouts Prove False

MONEY LOANED BY CHU GAIN

Badly Frightened Man Says It Did Not Come Out of His Own Pocket, but Was Part of Loan Fund—Rival Chinese Societies Each Repudiates Elsie Sigel's Murderer and Volunteers to Aid In His Arrest

New York, June 25.—With all the indications of an early capture of Elsie Sigel's murderer rapidly narrowing down to an improbability, while at the same time a fresh crop of rumors spring with each hour of added uncertainty, another day of the investigation by police, detectives and district attorney, ended last night. Chung Sin, after thirty-four hours of continuous grilling, with but one intermission for sleep, had a day of rest at last.

A rumor that a war between the tongs was impending because of Chu Gain's revelations to the police found momentary confirmation in the arrest of a lone Chinaman with a 38-calibre revolver tucked under his blouse, but the police say that they were unable to connect him with any concerted plan for an uprising.

The one bit of authentic information turned up did not help much in forwarding the search for Leon Ling. This information came from Chu Gain, who explained that the $260 advanced to Chung Sin, Leon Ling's roommate, did not come out of his pocket. The police have been much puzzled as to this loan, because the very fact of its existence involved a contradiction. Why should Chu Gain, who lived in terror of his rival, Leon Ling, lend money to that rival's known intimate?

Chu Gain explained yesterday that the money was part of a loan fund of the Chinese Empire Reform association, of which he is treasurer. Chu Gain had nothing better than a private surmise as to where the money was going.

Chu, despite the fact that he is out on bail, is a badly frightened Chinaman. He keeps close to his restaurant and admits that he thinks it would be worth his life to walk down a dark alley in the quiet hours of the morning.

Chinatown is more deeply stirred by the Sigel murder than by any event of recent years. As a result there were issued two statements from the rival societies in which Chu Gain and Leon Ling held membership.

The Chinese Masons say that Leon was a member of the Chinese Empire Reform association and that they have no interest in him whatever other than to aid in his capture.

On the other hand, the Chinese Empire Reform association, which numbers on its rolls most of the wealth and brains of Chinatown, has sent a circular letter to 170 branches throughout the United States instructing all members to keep an eye open for Leon who, it is said, had deserted the society for the Masons.

Efforts to reconcile these conflicting statements bear no fruit. The individual members have orders not to talk. Most concerned of all are the Christianized Chinese, who feel acutely that the sincerity of every Chinaman has been brought into question by the worthlessness of one pretender.

Miss Jewett Dies In House In Which She Was Born

CARRIED OFF BY APOPLEXY

One of Foremost Women Writers of America, Much of Her Material For Books Being Drawn From Her Home Town In Pine Tree State—Only Woman Ever Honored With a Degree From Bowdoin College

South Berwick, Me., June 25.—An illness lasting many months ended last night in the death of Miss Sarah Orne Jewett, author of many books and regarded as one of the foremost women writers of America. Since last March Miss Jewett has been at her old home here, where for many years she had been accustomed to pass her summers and it was there that her death occurred.

It was while living in Boston early in the present year at the residence of Mrs. James T. Fields, widow of a famous Boston publisher and herself an author of various books, that Miss Jewett was stricken with the disease which proved fatal. She had an attack of apoplexy which caused paralysis of one side of her body and, although her mind remained clear, she became nearly helpless physically.

Miss Jewett was able to be moved about the house in a wheel chair and to receive her friends, while she continued to devote much of her time to reading and study. It was not until last Monday that her illness assumed a critical form and she became confined to her room. Since that time she has been failing steadily and her friends knew that the end was not far off.

It is believed that another attack of the brain hemorrhage from which she first suffered was the immediate cause of death.

The house where Miss Jewett was born on Sept. 3, 1849, has been in the possession of the Jewett family since 1740. It is a fine old Colonial mansion and has welcomed within its doors many of the literary celebrities of this country and Europe. Miss Jewett was the daughter of Dr. Theodore H. and Caroline F. Jewett. She was educated at Berwick academy.

Her first literary venture was "Deephaven," published in 1877. This was followed by "Play Days," "Old Friends and New," "Country By-Ways," "A Country Doctor," "A Marsh Island," "The Story of the Normans" and many others, her last book being "The Tory Lover," published in 1901. Miss Jewett was also a contributor to many magazines. She had traveled extensively in this country and in Europe and had a wide acquaintance among literary people.

Much of Miss Jewett's material for her books was drawn from her home town of South Berwick and many of the scenes and names are familiar to South Berwick people. The story which was her own favorite was "The Country Doctor" and was a tribute to the career of her father, who was for many years a practitioner beloved by hundreds of grateful patients in this and neighboring towns.

In 1901 Miss Jewett received the degree of doctor of letters from Bowdoin college and she was the only woman to whom that institution ever conferred the honor of a degree. Her sister, Miss Mary R. Jewett, and her nephew are her only surviving relatives.

TRANSFER OF DRIVERS

It Results In Accidents to Fire Apparatus In Nashua

Nashua, N. H., June 25.—While responding to two alarms for a fire in this city, three pieces of apparatus met with mishaps, in which a horse was injured so that it may have to be killed, two firemen were badly bruised and an engine overturned.

The fire was the first to which the department has been called to respond since a recent transfer of drivers. It is believed that lack of familiarity with their new charges on the part of the drivers was largely responsible.

The fire burned a barn and two house ells, the loss not exceeding $4000.

POISON DOES ITS WORK

Negro About to Be Hanged Dies Just Before Pardon Arrives

Paducah, Ky., June 25.—About one hour after George Freeman, a negro, condemned to hang this morning, died in his cell, Governor Willson granted him a reprieve.

Freeman had made an attempt at suicide by poisoning, which finally resulted fatally. County authorities are not entirely satisfied as to the manner of Freeman's death and the contents of his stomach will be analyzed.

Washington, June 25.—On the eve of the expiration of the current fiscal year, the house authorized an emergency appropriation of $10,000,000 for defraying the expenses of taking the thirteenth decennial census.

WOMAN BRUTALLY SLAIN

Arrest of Man Follows Finding of Her Body Sunk In Creek

Baltimore, June 25.—Emmett E. Roberts, also known as John T. Roberts, was arrested at St. Michaels, on suspicion of the brutal murder of Mrs. Edith M. T. Woodill, whose nude and disfigured body was found in Back creek.

Mrs. Woodill, who was only 20 years of age, was the wife of Gilbert Woodill, an automobile dealer of Los Angeles, Cal., and was passing the summer at the home of Captain Charles H. Thompson, her foster father, in McDaniel.

The body with skull crushed in from a blow, apparently delivered from behind, the face horribly gashed, the entire body swollen from the effects of several days' immersion and weighted with an iron pot containing half a dozen bricks, was found by boys, who were crabbing not far from the home of Mrs. Woodill's foster father.

Roberts was with Mrs. Woodill when she was seen for the last known time, and he is accused of having committed the murder. The motive for the crime is a mystery.

MRS. COBURN OF LOWELL

She Was One of a Party of Tourists Drowned In Lake Killarney

Killarney, June 25.—The inquiry into the death of five American and four English travelers and two boatmen who were drowned by the swamping of their boat on lower Killarney lake was begun by the coroner, but the two boatmen who were rescued were not sufficiently recovered to give evidence and the case was adjourned until Monday.

The body of one of the victims has been identified as Mrs. W. H. Coburn of Lowell, Mass., who arrived here on June 22. Mrs. Coburn's name was first thought to be "Miss Catum." The two other bodies recovered were those of the English women.

LAWYER ROBINSON IMPEDED JUSTICE

Decision of Jury In the Case of Heinze's Attorney

New York, June 25—Sanford Robinson, who was one of the attorneys for F. A. Heinze from the time that the Montana man entered the field of New York finance until recent months, was convicted on a charge of obstructing justice. He confronts the possibility of a $500 fine or three months in jail, or both. The jury which convicted Robinson brought in a request for mercy.

The case against Robinson developed out of the disappearance of a witness needed by United States Attorney Wise in his investigation of the doings of F. A. Heinze in the Mercantile National bank.

A. P. Heinze and his wife were interested spectators throughout the Robinson trial. They appeared considerably affected at the prompt verdict against Robinson.

Sentence will not be imposed upon Robinson until the conclusion of the Heinze trial upon the same charge.

FOUR YEARS FOR KIMBALL

Stole $18,000 Worth of Property From American Woolen Company

Salem, Mass., June 25.—Willis N. Kimball of Lawrence was convicted in the superior court on five counts charging the larceny of wool, valued at $18,000, from the American Woolen company at Lawrence, where he was employed.

Three other employes of the company, Henry C. Garrity, Franklin Butler, Jr., and Fred G. A. Stone, who were indicted for receiving stolen property, pleaded guilty to the charge last week.

Kimball was given a sentence of from four to eight years in state prison.

The three other defendants will not be sentenced until September.

FALL OF 315 FEET

Experience Which May Cost Several Indiana Miners Their Lives

Terre Haute, Ind., June 25.—Twelve miners were injured when a cage in a coal mine near Clinton fell from the pit opening to the bottom of the shaft, a distance of 315 feet. Several of the men are expected to die from their injuries.

To add to the horror of the accident, the cage going up became fast when the cable became entangled and an hour elapsed before a rescue party could be sent to the bottom of the mine.

Ten Aeroplanes to Compete

New York, June 25.—In practice for the public exhibition of the Aero Club of America Glenn H. Curtis made four successful flights last night in his new aeroplane. The longest flight was half a mile and the greatest height fifty feet. There are thus far ten entries for the approaching contests.

Freight Conductor Killed

Boston, June 25.—Clarence J. Gosslin, a freight conductor, was instantly killed last night when he was run over by an engine near the Allston station. He was 24 years old.

REVOLUTION IN THE TELEGRAPH.

Action of Western Union and Postal Arouses Public Indignation.

Significant Action of Government In Honoring Independent Company—Rapid Service and Cheaper Rates.

New York, June 25.—Several months ago a bill was introduced in the Massachusetts legislature requiring telegraph companies to forward with every telegram the exact time it was filed for transmission. It was contended that this would insure a prompter service on the part of the telegraph companies; that it would give the receiver of the message the satisfaction of knowing how long it had been in transit, and, finally, that this is precisely what the government does with letters. Notwithstanding the opposition of the old telegraph companies the bill became law, to take effect June 16.

A circular order was issued by the Western Union company to its office managers in Massachusetts instructing them to charge for carrying the time of filing, which means that it purposes to use the law to its pecuniary advantage. "For example," says the letter, "if a message is filed at 11:45 a. m. the words, 'Time filed, 11:45 a. m.,' will be transmitted as a part of the check and will be counted and charged for as extra words."

The Postal Telegraph company also intimated its intention to make this extra charge.

This action on the part of the "telegraph trust" aroused a storm of indignation all over the state, and immediate action was taken to amend the bill to compel the companies to carry the filing time free of charge. The press is commenting in very strong terms on what is called "corporate insolence." The Boston Post, commenting on the matter editorially, states:

It is entirely clear that the objection of the telegraph companies is not to the expense or trouble involved. A very simple system of code signals would enable the companies to place the time of filing upon their state messages. "Five or six words" would not be required. Two or three code letters over the wire would accomplish the result at nominal expense and trouble.

The real objection of the telegraph companies is that the stating of the time of filing a message would reveal the long and inexcusable delays to which messages are often subjected.

But the reason why the telegraph is used at all is to save time in transmitting a message, and when the public pays for such expedition it certainly has a right to know whether the service for which it pays is rendered. In telegraph systems abroad it is customary to furnish such information without charge, and there is no good reason why it should not be done here. In fact, there should not only be a state law but a national law requiring it, so that reasonable promptness in handling interstate messages would also be assured. * * *

For some months a new independent telegraph company, the Telepost, has been operating commercially in Massachusetts and other New England states. One of the features of this new telegraph company's service is the carrying of the filing time free of charge on all its messages, and this is being done between all points reached by its lines both in the East and Middle West.

By this system messages are transmitted at the enormous speed of 1,000 words a minute over any one wire, thus enabling the company to do business at a fraction of the cost to the older companies which operate by the old method of hand transmission.

Not only does the Telepost company carry the filing time free, but it sends a telegram of twenty-five words for 25 cents regardless of distance, and it has introduced a new service of fifty words for 25 cents known as Teleposts, which are transmitted by wire and delivered at destination through the United States mail. A ten word ten cent message known as a Telecard is treated in the same way as a Telepost and delivered on a postcard.

Judging from the situation which has arisen in Massachusetts and the manner in which it has been met by the Western Union and Postal companies, it would seem that the public can look for little relief in the matter of quicker service or cheaper rates from these companies.

The importance of this Telepost system cannot be overestimated, and it is significant that the United States patent office is exhibiting the system in the interior department government building at Seattle exposition as one of the most wonderful of modern inventions carrying a basic patent. It is the only exhibit of advancement in the telegraphic art.

For some time during the last session of congress there was a demand made for government control of telegraphs, and possibly the present interest of the government in the Telepost system is not unconnected with that demand, but the Telepost company states that its system is not for sale, and its plans are being pushed forward for connecting up the east and west, adding important sections in rapid succession until the system covers the whole country.

With public support any difficulties facing this independent telegraph company in establishing its system should be materially minimized, if not eliminated, and when the older companies give such proof of their readiness to snatch at any opportunity to mulct the public it is time that an independent fight should be given every possible support.

CANADIANS LOST MONEY

New York Mining Promoter Said to Have Misrepresented Facts

New York, June 25.—William S. Mitchell, a promoter, was arrested here at the request of the Canadian authorities, who charge him with obtaining $5000 from Alexander C. Ross of Ottawa, through misrepresentation regarding a deal in mining property in the Nipissing district.

Ross, the complainant in the case, is a member of the Canadian parliament. Others interested in the case against Mitchell, according to detectives who made the arrest, are a cousin of King Edward and a number of prominent Canadian bankers and members of parliament.

The statement is also made that in order to secure Mitchell's extradition the laws of the Dominion of Canada had to be changed. Mitchell has been remanded to the Tombs to await extradition.

THREE GIRLS DROWNED

Ferryboat In Which They Were Crossing a River Capsized

Houlton, Me., June 25.—While about twenty young people attending a parish fair were crossing the Fish river in a ferryboat at Fort Kent the boat struck some submerged obstruction and at once began to leak badly. Within a few minutes the boat turned over on one side and all the occupants were thrown into the river.

Those who were able to swim easily reached the shore, which was only a few feet distant, while others clung to the boat. Their cries were heard and a number of men rushed to their assistance. All but three were saved.

The bodies of Celina Gagnon, 18 years old, Clara Chorette, 14, and Isabelle Deprey, 12, were found under the boat.

UNCLE SAM DROPS NEW HAVEN SUIT

Removes Last Obstacle to Financing Holding Company

Washington, June 25.—Attorney General Wickersham has directed the dismissal of the government suit against the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad for alleged violation of the first two sections of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The passage of the Boston railroad holding company bill by the Massachusetts legislature is given by the attorney general as the principal reason for the dismissal of the suit. Another reason is because the Massachusetts supreme court decided that the New Haven road cannot legally have trolley holdings in the state and had removed that issue.

TEN DEATHS FROM HEAT

Many Prostrations Reported From Various Portions of New England

Boston, June 25.—The march of the sun through the heavens during the 15 hours and 17 minutes between sunrise and sundown Thursday, with its accompanying sultry conditions due to excessive heat and humidity, was marked at intervals by at least ten deaths and scores of prostrataions in New England.

Throughout the mill and factory districts of the New England states the heat was probably felt the greatest, although the pavements of the city tended to throw back the heat in the crowded streets and tenement house districts, making the conditions to the residents of the latter practically unbearable.

—A vacuum tube shooting a car full of people through space at 2 miles a minute; an airship maneuvering above the grounds; and a submarine bot performing feats in the water are among the interesting features to be seen at the World's Fair at Seattle.

TRIBUTE TO DR. HALE.

Interesting Letter From Rufus B. Tobey of Wollaston.

Rufus B. Tobey of Wollaston who is interested in all forms of educated philanthropy had an interesting letter in Thursday's Post regarding a memorial to Dr. Edward Everett Hale, which read as follows:

"I hesitated about taking the initiative in urging what Dr. Hale's monument should be, and am grateful to Mrs. Lothrop for so doing. I was associated with Dr. Hale in the Lend-a-Hand work for 20 years, serving a part of the time as director, and for a decade or more as senior vice-president, acting for him during his absence. My great concern for several years has been for the work after "the chief" should be called home, both in the matter of its greater development and because of anxiety lest some established or new organization should after his death use his name to conjure with.

Dr. Hale's own wish was clearly known to his associates. "If I should be remembered only for a single thing, that would be the Lend-a-Hand Society." And when the Lend-a-Hand directors, early in 1907, planned a Hale endowment fund for the perpetuation of the Lend-a-Hand work, to be completed on his 85th birthday, as chairman of the committtee I was delegated to consult with Dr. Hale as to his wishes. He heartily and cordially approved of the plan, giving it his unqualified indorsement, and reiterated the sentiment above, that the Lend-a-Hand Society should be his monument.

As showing the catholicity of the grand man and his wish that its work should be strictly undenominational, be afterward remarked that the endowment idea might not have received such a welcome from him if it had not been presented and urged by one of "another faith and order."

As to the endowment sufficient time was not given the committee, and instead of $50000 it aggregated only about $28000 (including $8,000 of a pre-existing fund) on his 85th birthday. But we lost $10,000 promised us by Mr. Carnegie because we had not secured $40,000. I hazard the guess that if the fund is raised to $40,000 Mr. Carnegie's offer will hold good. But why not make the goal $100,000? Write to Mrs. Whitman, secretary of the Lend-a-Hand Society, 1 Beacon street, Boston, for further information."

A FORMER QUINCY PASTOR.

Rev. W. A. Mayo, Former Quincy Pastor, Passes Away at Roxbury.

Rev. William A. Mayo, who was assigned as pastor of the West Quincy Methodist church in 1903, and who was the pastor for several years until failing health compelled him to relinquish active labors, passed away Thursday at his home, 17 Albion street, Roxbury. Prayers were said at the house this afternoon, after which the remains were taken to Bristol, N. H., where funeral services will be held. The burial will be at Hallowell, Maine.

Rev. William A. Mayo was born in Portland, Me., 54 years ago. He attended the schools of his native city, after which he entered Boston university, graduating with the class of 1888. He became a member of the New England conference the same year and was assigned to the pastorate of a church at Sandwich, N. H. He filled pastorates at Warren, Salem and Derry, in the same state. In 1895 he was appointed to the pastorate of the Methodist church at Mattapan, where he remained for several years. He served as pastor of the City Point church, South Boston, and in 1903 he was assigned to the West Methodist Episcopal church of Quincy. Owing to illness he resigned a year ago.

WILD WEST SHOW.

Full Five Thousand Attend the Evening Performance.

Never in the history of circuses in Quincy has there been as large an attendance as that present Thursday night at the performance of Miller Bros. 101 Ranch Wild West show. The show was given o nthe Water street ball field and aside from being a little uneven it was an ideal place.

The first performance was given in the afternoon and was fairly well attended a great majority of the audience being ladies and children. Although many of the seats were vacant the full program was given.

In the evening the crowd that attended was something enormous. While the seating capacity provided is large it was not near large enough to accommodate the crowd. It was necessary before the performance commenced to bring in bales of hay and spread it along the ground in front of the seats so that people unable to find seats would not have to sit on the ground.

Of the show itself nothing but words of praise can be said. All of the horses were fine looking animals, well groomed, showing how well they were cared for. The riding of the cow boys and girls and of the Cossacks and Indians was alone well worth the price of admission. The shooting of the two ladies was marvelous and showed what skill constant practice will accomplish.

The hold up of a stage coach and the representation of the Hennessey massacre were very realistic. In fact there was not one objectionable feature every number being a star.

OPPRESSIVE HEAT.

The Temperature at Noon Today Near the 100 Mark.

The heat today is something terrific. The weather has been hot all the week and each day seems to be a little warmer than the previous day. Up to today, however, the highest point the mercury has climbed at noon was 95 degrees which point was reached on Tuesday. This noon however, the mercury touched the 98 degree mark.

The present hot spell started in Saturday, June 12, with 83 degrees at noon. The lowest point reached at noon since then was 73 degrees, which was last Saturday. The average temperature for the past 14 days has been 83 degrees plus.

ATLANTIC BURGLARY.

Depot Again Visited by Burglars. Cash Secured.

The Atlantic depot was visited by burglars again some time Thursday night and $32.50 carried away from the ticket office. Entrance was had by smashing the window in the ticket office.

The railroad does not furnish the office with a safe and will not allow the ticket agent to take the money home with him. The only place for it therefore is the money drawer or to hide it somewhere in the ticket office.

The agent therefore hides it in the office. The opportunities for hiding the money, however, are not many and a systematic search will not fail to reveal the hiding place to any burglar.

It was but a few weeks ago that this same office was entered in practically the same way and what money there was hidden, found and taken away.

WISE AND DAVENPORT WIN.

Wise and Davenport won the tennis tournament held under the auspices of the Wollaston Tennis club. The first sets in the tournament were played on the Seventeenth and the finals were played this week between Wise and Davenport and Penhallow and Carr.

The finals were interesting to watch five sets being required to settle the match. The first two sets were won by Penhallow and Carr and it looked as though the other team would be outclassed. They came in to the third set apparently as fresh as ever and won. Two more sets were necessary and they won both of these.

DIMMOCKS WIN 6 TO 4.

In a ninth inning rally this morning the Dimmock A. C. defeated the Merrymount Jrs. by the score of 6 to 4. At the end of the eighth inning the Merrymounts were ahead 4 to 3, but this did not stop the Dimmocks who went in for the ninth determined to win. They immediately tied the score and then for good measure got two more runs and the game was won.

The Social Realm

The seeds of all most precious things
Are sown; we have naught else to do
But wait for golden summer noons
To bring the harvest that we woo.
Only to wait; the seed is sown;
The generous sky bends from above;
What were such golden leisure for,
But for the heart to rest—and love?

THE KNOCKERS DINE AGAIN

Usual Compliment of Friendly Hot Weather Knocks

A regular dinner of the Knocker's club was held Friday afternoon at Thompson's City Square restaurant and as usual was a very enjoyable affair. Most of the bunch of Knockers were present but the weather was so hot that the knocks handed out were considerably less than usual. Mayor Shea occupied his accustomary seat at the head of the table and Chief Knocker Spear and the others were in their accustomed places.

Maurice Pierce, chief of the Milton Thief catchers, came over in the department's new Stanley, as he said he wanted to show the Quincy people the style they had in his town. He brought two geusts with him, namely Deputy Chief McDermott and John Fallon the officer who drives the car after automobiles who he thinks are exceeding the speed limit. With these three officials absent all at one time it is a wonder some one did not run away with the town. A wireless from the chief after his return however said that no one had carried off any of the valuables as far as he could learn.

The dinner was served at 2 o'clock and was one of the warm weather kind. The first number was clam chowder and was followed by salmon and green peas, potatoes, mackerel, asparagus on toast, rhubarb sauce, vegetable salad, strawberries and cream, ice cream of all flavors, assorted cake and iced coffee.

Owing to the summer weather the usual speech making was omitted. Court Officer Marden, who from his close business interests with the Probation Officer, was fully eligible to become a member of this exclusive club was present although arriving a little late. When he had finished his dinner he remarked that it would not be necessary for him to eat again for a day or two. The absent members included Sergt. Brovogal of the Metropolitan Police now stationed at Nantasket, Inspector Goodhue who was following up the burglary, of the night before at Atlantic, Leo, who had been unable to make a strike in time for the dinner and the Braintree member of the legal fraternity who was detained in court, unable to find the necessary security.

After the dinner the Mayor and two other members were given a ride in the Milton police auto and likewise an opportunity to see how it feels to ride at the rate of fifty miles per hour, although at the risk of exceeding the speed limit in Quincy.

SEASONABLE SUNDAY DINNER

SECRET DIES WITH EASTMAN

Cause of Taking Mrs. Woodill's Life May Never Be Known

SUPPOSED SLAYER A SUICIDE

Identified as Robert Eastman, a Failed Broker of New York, Who Was a Fugitive From Justice—Woman In the Case Moved In Highest Social Circles, Though Where She Sprang From Is Unknown

St. Michaels, Md., June 26.—The story of a crime unparalleled in this section of the country culminated when a man accused of the murder of May E. T. Woodill stood for a moment in a boat facing the men who had cornered him on the waters of a narrow creek, and then fired a bullet into his heart, falling lifeless to the bottom of the skiff in which he had sought to escape.

The girl had moved in the highest social circles of Baltimore, Washington and Los Angeles, and been a protege of Lyman J. Gage and of former Governor Brown of this state. But by taking his fate into his own hands, the man known here as Emmet E. Roberts, but who in reality was Robert Emmet Eastman, a failed member of the Consolidated exchange of New York, and who was accused of the murder, passed beyond the reach of the law and with his going there vanished the hope of clearing up the motive and details of the crime.

A letter found upon Eastman's body, addressed to Miss Vinnie Bradcome, care of Klaw & Erlanger, the theatrical managers, in New York, gave Eastman's poorly substantiated denial of the crime.

According to the authorities, Eastman, in whose company she last was seen alive, was responsible for the death of Mrs. Woodill. As for motives, many have been advanced. That Eastman was infatuated with the girl was known. She in turn, it would seem, was fascinated by him and possibly frightened by his attentions.

Eastman evidently prevailed upon the girl to visit his farm, which was near that of her foster-father's, to see the new bungalow which he had built. The girl met Eastman Saturday, was seen to leave the McDaniel wharf in a launch with him, and on Wednesday her nude body was found floating on the surface of Rose creek, crudely tied to a rope and weighted with iron bricks.

Mrs. Woodill, the wife of Gilbert Woodill, an automobile dealer in Los Angeles who had been on a visit to her relatives, had intended leaving in a few days to rejoin her husband, to whom she was ostensibly happily married. Jealousy, induced by the fact that she was so soon to go away, is strikingly foremost in the list of theories. The crime may have been meditated or it may have been the result of a sudden frenzy and attack in the lonely bungalow. There were evidences of a struggle in the bungalow, a bloody sheet, some blood stained boards, some half burned clothing, but the real story of the bungalow can never now be known.

The meeting of Eastman and Mrs. Woodill, wherever and whenever it occurred, brought together two oddly suited figures, and the tragedy brought to an end two strange careers. Mrs. Woodill, though twice married, was but a girl, vivacious and petite, weighing only about 100 pounds. Where the girl sprang from, who her father was, and what should have been her proper station in life, are clothed with much of the same deep mystery which surrounds the details of her death.

She was adopted by Colonel Charles H. Thompson, a well-to-do farmer of the eastern shore of Maryland, nineteen years ago, when she was 3 years old. The baby was in the custody of a Minneapolis street car conductor and his wife, who said they knew nothing of her parents.

She married Dr. Caswell of Boston before becoming of age. The marriage was annulled and, as Miss Thompson again, the girl was engaged to Harry Adams of Mount Vernon, N. Y. Meeting Woodill about this time, she married him instead. The girl's foster-brother is said to have committed suicide because of love for her.

Eastman, according to the information received here, failed in New York last year, was arrested twice in Chicago last August for grand larceny, and since that time has been a fugitive from justice.

Story of Eastman's Wife

New York, June 26.—Vinnie Bradcome, the woman to whom Eastman wrote his version of the tragedy at St. Michaels, admitted last night that she was Eastman's wife. The young woman lives with her mother and sister in this city. She is an actress, but has not played since the birth of her baby, eight months ago.

"I lived with him just five days," she said. "He treated me kindly, but he seemed to be laboring under a great strain that preyed upon his mind so much that I became frightened and left him.

"I saw him only once afterward. We met one day last fall on the street and chatted for a few moments."

HER ALIMONY IS CUT DOWN

In Other Respects Mrs. Gould Scores Complete Victory

IS SEPARATED FROM HUSBAND

Court Allows Her Approximately a Hundred Dollars a Day Alimony—Plaintiff Scores Strongly In Vindication of Charges of Intoxication and Alleged Relations With, Farnum—Thirty Days' Stay of Judgment

New York, June 26.—Katherine C. Gould obtained a legal separation with alimony from her husband, Howard Gould, thrid son of the late Jay Gould, by a decision of Justice Dowling in the supreme court after a trial which had lasted nearly three weeks.

With the exception of alimony, her victory was complete, but in this phase of the case the court decided that $36,000 a year was sufficient, though in her suit Mrs. Gould asked for $250,000. She has been receiving $25,000 a year from Gould.

MRS. HOWARD GOULD.

It was in the vindication of charges of intoxication and her alleged relations with Dustin Farnum, the actor, that Mrs. Gould scored most strongly, for notwithstanding the long array of witnesses for Gould who gave such testimony as to make Mrs. Gould appear at times as defendant, rather than plaintiff, the court held that the "intoxication" may have been due to excitement. As to Farnum, it was held that her association with him came after the Goulds separated, and that the huband apparently made no objection.

Immediately after the decision, DeLancey Nicholl, for Gould, asked for a sixty days' stay of judgment, and Clarence J. Shearn, for the plaintiff, objected. He asked for an immediate judgment. Justice Dowling compromised by making the stay thirty days. Shearn then asked for an extra allowance for counsel fees and the court gave him $2000. This will bring his fees to $17,000, with an additional sum of $3900 for expenses.

As the decision was read Mrs. Gould kept her head cast down and seemed plainly disappointed by the allowance. As soon as the case was closed, however, she shook hands with Mr. Shearn and thanked him for his conduct of her case. Then she beamed upon her friends.

STATE HOUSE LETTER.

Boston, June 23, 1909.

Following the prorogation of the legislature, the people who sent their representatives here to the upper and the lower branches, ought, for their own protection, take a farewell look at them before dropping them out of mind. Here were 280 men, picked from their respective districts. Doubtless they were above the average intelligence and moral character of their constituents who sent them, for it has been a fair observation in the past that the good sense of the mass of the voters usually took representatives above the average, though the best men are so little in touch with the mass of the voters, especially in the city districts, that they are not available as vote-getters. Many individual members can be named of whom only good is to be said as legislators,—and it is good policy to give credit for all the good that is done, remembering that good legislators are always at a premium and that public opinion demands education about public duties and public men.

But, after all due personal credit is given, it remains the lamentable truth that the legislature of 1909 has not left as good a record, on the whole, as its immediate predecessors for several years, in spite of the other fact that there has been no particular scandal or graft in connection with any measure, or any charge of bribery or secret influence. Indeed, a distinct advance can be pointed out in the new rule of the Senate whereby all lobbyists have been shut out from their former resort in the Senate reading room, and still more important, from their resting places on the sofas in the Senate chamber, right at the ear of the honorable senators where they had sat ensconsed in power and safety till public opinion, and regard for common decency, forced the Senate to adopt new rules and exclude them from the chamber, the Senate corridor adjoining, and from the Senate reading room.

Since then, they have been forced to the public gallery, and it has been an interesting sight to see the old hands and new ones sitting there, watching the actions of their pawns in debate and vote upon the floor below. A picture might well follow the precedent of the old Roman arena, with the lords and ladies seated above and their creatures in action beneath them. Just picture this row, not all present at one time, but more or less of them in a group, hired to watch legislation. Perhaps there is one of them absolutely honest and incorruptible. He has that reputation, but all of them are presumably, by their conduct, hired by private interests which are getting more or less out of the public, working the many for the benefit of the few. If any important name is omitted, such as J. Otis Wardwell, for instance, correction will be made upon information. There is George H. Fernald, for many years in the service of the Boston and Albany; ex-Senator, the honorable William A. Butler (who must not be confused with ex-Senator, the honorable William M. Butler, legal magnate and Boston elevated man;) ex-Senator, the honorable Robert A. Southworth, distinguished corporation agent; ex-Representative Arthur P. Russell, identified with the New Haven interests; ex-Representative John J. Gartland and ex-Representative J. H. McDonald, both of Boston, both new to the third House this session, and both, presumably working in the corporation contests before the General Court; ex-Representative Walter J. D. Bullock of several years' service in the House; Frank J. Ladd, probably the best professional in the list, with many strings to his bow, always genial and unquestionably serviceable; Charles H. Walker, who is said to have once been entitled to use "Rev." as a prefix and who picks up some business in the corridors after over a dozen years' experience here; Jack Fleming, or Congdon, who has been absent since the money shark bill was passed and who, gossip says, has absented himself upon advice that it would conduce to his well being to absent himself; Ben Gibby, the suave, the enthusiastic, the sanguine, campaign conductor for Eugene N. Foss, once upon a time, and crony of former President Rufus S. Soule, typical third house man for a romantic story; Jack Albee, square-shouldered, reticent, businesslike, never too familiar and another ideal according to popular impressions of what lobbyists are; and William H. Whiting, best known in Pittsfield, but with friends all over the state. This list does not include, or pretend to include, certain men who are registered for particular interests for the public welfare. For instance, for several years the state grange had a registered legislature agent. The women temperance workers have had representatives who came under the legal and technical description of lobbyists, but such are not in the same category as the list named above.

With such a list professionally at work upon the legislature, familiar with most of the members, as far as they can cultivate their acquaintance, studying their districts, their peculiarities, their approachable, sides their opinions and learning their standing, bringing pressure to bear at the right spot, putting their employers in connection with essential facts, reporting every step of legislative action upon particular important measures,—with the corporation lobby and corporation officials alert and the mass of the people indifferent and inactive, what chance do the public interests stand compared with the corporations? It is a wonder that the people do not get worse soaked than they do.

These men are not present at the state house from January to June for their health, or to take lessons in oratory. It is the fact that the grip of outside interests upon the legislature has seemed stronger this year than ever. Especially has the case been remarkable in connection with the Boston Railroad Holding Company bill, for, from the outset as soon as the bill was reported, it was current gossip that the bill was sure to pass, and that it would make no difference what speeches were made against it. The vote of 51 to 179 and three pairs bore out this assumption made before anybody had any right to presume that the members knew their own minds upon the matter. The bill was frequently called "the governor's bill" and the member in charge of it in the House, Mr. Garcelon of Newton, closed his speech for the bill by a straight appeal to support the governor by voting for the bill. Yet there were more Democratic votes for it, also, than there were against it.

In other instances, particularly the Boston charter bill, there has been party politics, though as a rule, partisanship is conspicuously absent from Massachusetts legislation. In this case, the party discipline was perfect, except in the case of a few independents. How, where and when were orders issued, and by whom? It is preposterous to suppose that there was a psychologic influence in the air which moved upon so many different minds to act as one, while the Democratic mind received no such impression, as it did in the case of the governor's railroad bill. Taking partisanship and corporations together, the legislature has seemed further from the people this year than ever and it has been an uphill an hdopeless task to break the net woven around the members. Direct nominations are under the party ban. So is popular voting for United States senators. So are the initiative and the referendum. What makes for political independence and the rights of the people against the few is outlawed by the higher powers which rule the state supreme over law. Who dares to say he is free?

On a great many measures there has been no interference and it would be easy to compile a long list of bills enacted by which the interests of the people have been promoted. In such a case as the telegraph bill there was no division of sentiment against the Western Union Company from the governor down, with the exception of the few senators who held up the bill one day. Gov. Draper would have vetoed the bill if it had come to him with Senator. Potter's amendment Progress has been made in all he important lines coming under the heads of the different committees. Over and over again has it been illustrated what a mighty, complex and incomprehensible body the political body is, with its over 3,000,000 people and how vastly superior is the Massachusetts practice of attending to public business when it is timely, of having annual elections and annual legislative sessions in order to give some proper share of attention to public duties, rather than neglect them and trust to luck that the outcome will be right, as is the practice in almost every other state in the Union. Massachusetts still preserves its leadership in organization and attention to the wants of the different classes. Constant attention is the best preventive of falling into the hands of party or of wealth and though there is more than ever this year to complain of, yet other states with great interests have been and are today worse off in this respect than Massachusetts. A mere recital of the measures enacted this year in agriculture, municipal government, mercantile affairs, judicial progress taxation reform, education, public health and so on, would demonstrate beyond dispute the advantage of attending to the business which the people every year bring to the General Court. WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO.

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

Mrs. Deborah Prouty, living at 85 North St., Quincy, Mass., says: "I am in a position to speak in the highest terms of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back ached nearly all the time and caused me considerable trouble. Any sudden movement, or if I attempted to stoop, sent sharp pains, through my loins. My health was much run down and I had but little strength or energy. I was very much alarmed about my condition when Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me. I had known so many people who had used them with beneficial results that I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Three boxes convinced me that Doan's Kidney Pills were the best kidney remedy to be had and I am now in perfect health."

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS

Keith's Theatre.

Events of importance are following each other in rapid succession at Keith's theatre these days, the latest announcement being the appearance of Mlle. Dazie ,the dancer,w ho created a sensation in "The Follies of 1908," and has been engaged for a short season in the Keith houses, in fact, a season of only two weeks, one of which will be played in Boston, beginning June 28th, after which Mlle. Dazie will sail for Europe. This special vaudeville venture will be in a new pantomime, "L'Amour d' Artist," written by Sig. G. Molasso, and she will be the first American dancer to attempt a story without words and arrangements for this event have been underway for some time. It is expected that in this offering Mlle. Dazie will outdo her former successes as a dancer. She will head another one of those big summer bills that are attracting so much attention. In fact it will be the longest bill of the season. It will also mark the first apeparance in Boston of Ben Johnson, the star of "Paid in Full," who has a wide reputation among his friends as a monologist.

Castle Square Theatre.

With the coming week of "Florodora" at the Castle Square comes also its second and final week and the end of the season of the John Craig Stock Company. This announcement will doubtless be sufficient to crowd the Castle Square theatre to the doors, for "Florodora" is the best of musical comedies and the best of summer entertainments. It is staged in splendid spectacular fashion, and it appeals alike to the lovers of music and the lovers of humor. Its successive scenes are picturesque in that beauty, and if it were only for its sextet "Florodora" would be famous. There is much else in the production, to appeal to the eye, and as acted by Mary Young, Gertrude Binley, Louise LeBaron, Donald Meek, W. F. Carleton, Theodore Friebus, Bert Young, Wilfred Young and a host of others at the Castle Square it makes a triumphant close to Mr. Craig's season. For his coming season at the Castle Square, which begins late in August, Mr. Craig is already in the midst o fhis preparations. He has already his company, which includes the favorites of the present season, and he is rapidly completing a repertory of plays and musical comedies that is certain to please his patrons. His first season as manager o fthe Castle Square will at the close of the coming week, extend to forty-four weeks, an unprecedented record of which any manager-actor might well be proud. He promises even better and greater things for next season.

Orpheum Theatre.

Manager Lindsay Morrison makes the interesting announcement that his all star stock company at the Orpheum theatre will next week present an elaborate production of Olga Nethersole's famous success, "Sapho" adapted from the much talked of novel of Alphonse Daudet. In the version to be presented many of the objectionable features of the original will be eliminated, but in its place a great deal of wholesome comedy will be injected. Manager Morison is determined that the version which his stock company will present will be as beautiful and refined as any ever offered in the past. It will retain all the emotions and pathos that have placed "Sapho" in the list of the world's great master plays. The leading role of Fanny Le Grand ,or "Sapho" will be toned down considerable from the interpretation given by Miss Nethersole but will still retain the more human and refined emotions with which the character has so long been associated. Miss Edna Bruns ,the new leading lady of the stock company will essay the character of "Sapho" and in it Bostonians will have the first opportunity of seeing what she is capable of doing in a strong emotional role.

Paragon Park.

It is difficult for one person to tell another about all the delights of a visit to Paragon Park, Nantasket beach ,this season. Manager George A. Dodge has provided so many new features and made such vast improvements for his fifth season that a tour of the Park provides a constant whirl of excitement and amusement, and the patron cannot remember a half that he has seen. All the while there is music everywhere. No Park ever provided so much and such a variety of high class music. In fact music seems to be the watchword at Paragon this summer. Patrons of the Palm Garden whether at the dining tables within, or at the tables on the extended verandas, are constantly entertained by the alternating concerts of the Russian Operatic band of 70 pieces ,the All American band of 30 pieces, and the Hungarian orchestra in the Palm Garden itself. With the latter band Johnny Maguire ,the boy tenor who has been such a favorite for several seasons at Paragon, sings several times each afternoon and evening. With the Russian band is heard Olga Neradoff, the distinguished soprano soloist. Other music is provided by the Philippino band at the Monkey Land and Jungle show, the ladies' orchestra in the new opera house, the orchestra for the vaudeville performances in the Olympic theatre ,and the musicians at the dance hall.

Wonderland.

Have you been to Wonderland, that famous amusement resort at Revere beach this season? If not you should take advantage of the first opportunity to renew pleasant acquaintance of past seasons, or if you have never been to this land of delights, close to the sounding sea ,a first visit should be made without delay. As the season advances the attractions seem to grow in number and in merit until one wonders how so much of such excellence can be given for the small sum asked. With one of the "Seeing Wonderland" combination tickets, which can be bought for a small outlay, one gets an admission to the park and to ten of the principal features among the them famous scenic railway, moving picture theatre, 1915 vaudeville, fun mirrors, 1915 minstrels, velvet coaster, hell gate, love's journey, chutes, merry-go-round or the little railway. The possession of one of these "Seeing Wonderland" pasteboards, gives one the passport to seeing all the wonders as can not be done in any other way. Wonderland is making a specialty this season of fish dinners with lobster and of dainty lunches. Teel's Military band of Boston has been engaged for the entire season and gives concerts every afternoon and evening.

Everybody who heard of the Atlantic depot robbery Friday, said: What! Again!

Leon Ling, the much-wanted Chinaman, seems to be in every coal bin in the country or else under nearly everyone's ice chest. He is about as elusive as the Irishman's flea only fleetness he flees the flea.

Physicians insist above all other things that alcoholoic drinks should be left alone this hot weather. That's good advice for any kind of weather.

These are the nights that a man with a lawn hose but not a water meter gets advantage over those who hear the dollar mark every time the meter winds.

The public letters in the press from Rev. Rufus B. Tobey of Wollaston for a monument to the late Rev. Dr. Hale look good because it shows that this friend of humanity from Wollaston has recovered his health again. Though many may not know it, Rev. Mr. Tobey was sick unto death's door with pneumonia this spring. The world couldn't very well afford to let him go and so he was allowed to stay on earth to continue his work of instilling hope into downtrodden humanity. As the father of the floating hospital Rev. Mr. Tobey will be best remembered during these very oppressive days. Everyone who knows him will be glad to see his name in public again and hope it will continue to be there for many years to come.

ACCIDENT AT FORE RIVER.

John Wadleigh, employed at the electric Boat Company's works at the Fore River yard, met with a painful but not serious accident this morning at the yard. The accident happened on one of the submarines lying in the dock at the yard, and was caused by what is known as a back fire in the engine. The man was burned quite badly about the head and shoulders and was taken to the Fore River hospital, where he was treated. After having his burns cared for and bandaged, he was removed to the Hancock House, where he lives, in one of T. J. Mahoney's carriages, which was sent for.

While the burns are quite painful and will cause the man to suffer considerably, they will not prove serious.

PRESENTED WITH RING.

James W. Mathieson, Surprised at his Home at Quincy Point.

About one hundred merry lads and lassies gathered last night at the home of James W. Mathieson, 443 Washington street, and surprised him by presenting him with a beautiful bloodstone ring. Mr. Mathieson was not at home when the party arrived, and did not reach the paternal domicile until about 10 o'clock. He was completely surprised and did not know what to do or say, when he saw his home filled with so many of his friends. As soon as he regained composure, Miss Beatrice Burke of Cambridge stepped forward and in a neat speech, presented Mr. Mathieson with the ring. The surprised recipient responded briefly, thanking the guests for the gift, and bade them continue with their good time, which they did with a will.

During the evening there were piano and vocal solos by some of the musically inclined guests, followed by dancing. Among those present, were Misses Beatrice Phelan, Alice, Julia Rose and Ethel McDonald, Mary Collins, Nellie Dolan, Theresa Murphy, Louise Morrill, Annie Morrill, Elizabeth Bamford, Daisy Duggan, Margaret and Gertrude Kennedy, Eleanor Moriarty, Annie Dorley, Minnie Winnick, Mary Sullivan, Nellie Desmond, Sadie Sullivan, Mary Good, Jennie Mercy, Genevive Tate, Alice Beadle, Belle Stoops and Margaret Kelley; and William Pratt, John Devany, George Butters, Joseph Morarity, Charles Knight, Edward Phelan, John Mathieson, William Johnson, Arthur Dorley, William Dorley, Edward Marr, Harry Annick, Louis Murphy, Paul Avery and Ernest Murphy.

The committee in charge of the affair was Miss Mary Curry, Miss Marion Mathieson and Miss Margaret Stoops.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Few skins can stand glycerin, and it should never be used without being diluted. It absorbs all moisture, and the skin becomes dry and parched.

Neuralgia may very often be speedily relieved by applying a cloth saturated with essence of peppermint to the seat of pain and leaving it there.

Do not overeat or wear overtight clothes if you would avoid a red nose. Indigestion and cramped circulation can paint a more vivid hue than the rouge pot.

A good deodorizer is made by applying a hot poker to a lump of camphor gum in a saucer. The strong fumes will clear the atmosphere of a room in a few moments.

The health of the eye must be guarded. The girl who reads in a bad light, who does not care whether print is good or bad, who sits in a huddled position, with her head forward, is deliberately spoiling any beauty of eyes she may possess.

A well known chiropodist has given this hint for shoe comfort: "Never wear a shoe that will not permit the great toe to lie in a straight line." Cramping the toes not only gives corns and bunions, but so affects the feet that general misery follows. Never let vanity force you into a shoe too small. The penalty is too steep. It seemed that this particular form of silliness was disappearing, but the recent action of shoe manufacturers insisting on the correct number being placed in shoes, whether women liked it or not, looks as if common sense in footgear still bore cultivating.

A headache is one of the most tormenting ailments that ever visited humanity, and there are hundreds of different reasons for it. Men have headache, but women are the headache race. Headaches are warnings. Shopping headaches, nervous headaches and several other kinds of different sizes, widths, heights and ages warn one of some physical derangement, usually of stomach disorder. A headache is a fire alarm or any of those things that give a warning. It has been learned that headaches have nothing whatever to do with the brain, since the brain keeps actively at work under many distressing spells of headache, but the trouble is due to the anaemic state of the blood, which does not properly feed the nerves of the head.

Use of Charcoal.

A small dish of charcoal kept in the meat larder will keep the articles sweet and wholesome. Charcoal is a great disinfectant. A dish of charcoal kept in the icebox will also keep it smelling sweet and free from odors.

MASSACHUSETTS SAVINGS INSURANCE LEAGUE WORK IN QUINCY.

More savings bank life insurance was written in Quincy than in any other Massachusetts city during the week ending June 19. The results of the first week's work at the Fore River Ship Building Company, as reported from the office of the state Actuary in Boston, show applications for insurance that totals $10,406. During the same week at the Tubular Rivet and Stud Company applications for policies aggregating $4,905 were written. These amounts will make a substantial addition to the already large amount that has been enrolled in the "savings and insurance" banks of the state. It is expected that Instructor A. E. Ganley of the Massachusetts Savings Insurance League will be at the Fore River works for several weeks, as great interest is being shown among the 3,500 or more men there.

The full circumstance of the case of John Carlson one of the insured at Brockton whose death was reported last week shows conclusively the economy of the savings insurance system. The man was carrying a straight life policy for $500. He had paid five premiums of $1.70 each. If he had been insured in one of the industrial companies the face value of his policy would have been only about $375 and, as he died just within the six months according to the custom among the industrial companies he would have only half the face of the policy. The savings insurance plan requires payment of the full amount whenever the insured dies. In other words his family, consisting of a wife and five children is more than $300 better off than they would have been if Mr. Carlson had taken the only kind of industrial insurance that was available before the passage of the Massachusetts Savings Insurance Law.

BODY UNCLAIMED.

Man Found on Railroad Tracks Buried Friday.

The police have been unable to find any relative of the man supposed to be G. A. Ryan, whose dead body was found beside the railroad track at South Quincy early Wednesday morning. The body was therefore taken to Mt. Wollaston cemetery Friday for burial.

The police visited the rooms in Boston where he is said to have boarded, but could find no trace of any of his effects. It has been learned, however, that he left Boston some weeks ago and that he had been boarding with a friend at South Quincy. It seems rather strange therefore that these parties have not come forward and identified the body. The police are now at work upon this end of the story.

SHOT HIS BROTHER

Boy Then Probably Buried Little Victim Before Life Had Fled

Modesto, Cal., June 26.—Cecil Hopkins, 12 years old, confessed that he shot and buried his brother, Theodore, 6 years old, and his statement strengthens the coroner's belief that the victim was buried alive on the hill where his body was found.

According to his story Cecil killed Theodore while the parents were absent from home, after the boys had quarreled over their luncheon. Cecil said he drove his brother from the house and shot him.

Fearing the consequences of his deed when the parents should return he dug a grave in the sand. While digging the grave, Cecil said, Theodore moaned and stretched his arms. The cramped position of the arms, the nature of the wound and the fact that the child's mouth was filled with sand, add to the belief that the boy was buried alive.

FOR IMPEDING JUSTICE

Jury Convicts Arthur Heinze, One of Copper Pool Leaders

New York, June 26.—Arthur P. Heinze, one of the brothers whose banking and copper operations have been under investigation since the collapse of their copper pool, was found guilty last night by a jury of corruptly impeding the administration of justice in withholding the United Copper company's books.

Sentence was suspended by Judge Ray until Oct. 11, the court declaring that by holding this sentence over Heinze's head "as a prod" he might be induced to bring about the restoration of the missing books.

Judge Ray last night pronounced sentence in the case of Robinson. The lawyer escaped with a fine of $250, added to which, however, was a verbal lashing from Judge Ray.

ANOTHER GRILLING FOR CHUNG SIN

Police Are Not Satisfied With His Partial Admissions

New York, June 26.—In their search for the murderer of Elsie Sigel, the police are still depending principally on Chung Sin, former roommate of Leon Ling, in whose room above a chop suey restaurant the girl's body was found. The next move will be an attempt to straighten out discrepancies in his statements. To do this he will be first put through another questioning in the death room itself.

In his first startled and shaken answers, before the smooth little Chinaman had fully got a grasp of himself, he made partial admissions that he had overheard the conversation between Elsie and Leon Ling in the next room, before the girl was murdered. Subsequent denials of his have not altered the belief of the police, and he will be forced, if possible, to tell what he knows of this feature of the case.

WITH REVOLVER AND CLUB

Would-Be Robber Seriously Abuses an Aged Woman

Bangor, Me., June 26.—Mrs. Mary Prescott, who is 66 years old, lives alone in a secluded location in Hampden, her nearest neighbor being half a mile away. About dusk last night some one passing heard the woman screaming for help, and found her in a weakened condition from wounds and loss of blood.

She said that just before dark a man had appeared while she was sitting in her dooryard and had demanded "her money or her life." When she started to run into the house, the man followed and struck her repeatedly on the head with a heavy club. Then he placed the muzzle of a revolver in her mouth and fired, the bullet passing out through the right cheek. He then fled. He secured no money.

DILLON IS CONVICTED

Policeman Guilty of Manslaughter In Killing Brooklyn Youth

New York, June 26.—James S. Dillon, a Brooklyn policeman charged with killing Louis Probber, the 19-year-old son of a grocer, whom he shot on May 2, was found guilty of manslaughter in the first degree. Dillon shot the boy after a row with his parents over closing up the grocery store on Sunday. He claimed that he had shot in self-defense.

Although indicted for murder in the second degree, the court instructed the jury to disregard this unless they thought intent to kill had been shown.

Ravages of Cholera

St. Petersburg, June 26.—Ninety-nine new cases of cholera and forty suspected cases were taken into the municipal hopsitals during the twenty-four hours ended at noon. There were also thirty-four deaths from the disease during this period.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Boston, June 25, 1909.

Square treatment is the treatment of her favorite square is something that Miss Back Bay naturally expects. Considerable interest and anxiety is felt by Bostonians as to what is to become of the property formerly belonging to the Art Museum. The old site in Copley square has just passed into new hands. The square has been noted for years a one of the most attractive in the country, and it is hoped that the present owners will bear in mind the public interest as well as their own, and preserve the Square in its present beauty and artistic excellence. The new owners claim to be acting on the square.

The anti-noisites will not be quiet. Now it is Dr. William Everett, he of honored lineage and combined Harvard-English education, who exclaims against the unneccessary row made in the conduct of the modern. It is suggested that the Hub ought to be called the Hubbub, though New Yorkers will have it that the modern Athens is a haven of silence itself, as compared with their shrieking, creaking, reeking metropolis.

This is the swelter season in the great city. The recent scorching days have driven the residents of the Hub to every available cooling-off place within easy distance, and there are more such places within a few miles of the Hub than around any other metropolitan city of the United States. The beaches, amusement parks, rivers and the harbor are aswarm with humanity. Marine park and the L Street bath in South Boston come in for a large popularity owing to the facility with which they may be reached during a noon hour or after business when the cool plunge puts new life into exhausted victims of the intense heat. The trolley cars create a cooling breeze as they whizz along the sizzling streets and out into the suburbs. A few days like those of this week bring an appreciation of the many advantages which Boston offers as a summer resort, with its innumerable host of places nearby which one may reach easily and comfortably. The good custom of an "annual bath" still prevails among associations and clubs of nearby cities of New England and brings thousands down to Boston on warm days.

The spectacular historical and romantic pageant revolving about the heroic character of Joan of Arc enthralled over fifteen thousand persons who filled every available seat in the great Stadium at Cambridge, Tuesday evening. Maude Adams, always beloved of Boston people, played upon the heartstrings of the vast audience as never before, whether as the simple peasant maid herding her father's flocks and listening to the whisperings of the Druid Tree or as the inspired leader of the King's army, rousing unconquerable courage in the men who gazed upon the frail wisp of a girl mounted on her great white charger and bearing the flowing white banner aloft. Never before in this country has there been such a splendid gathering of educational and social leaders, representing not only Boston and Cambridge, but New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, and even Europe. A large number of people came over from New York in automobiles or by train solely to witness this marvellous production, leaving immediately afterward on their return trip. The Stadium presented a scene which will linger vividly in the memories of those fortunate enough to be present.

Thrifty New Englanders are sure to be interested in the plan which the thrifty French people are endeavoring to adopt for old age pensions to be issued to working people who need them. Our English cousins, as we all know, have embarked upon a scheme that does not in any way put it up to the individual to help himself. It puts a premium upon improvidence. The pensions are paid out of the state treasury, which has to raise them by general taxation, that is to say, from the people who have been efficient and economical and have thus acquired property. But the new French plan, like the one in Germany is contributory. The wage earners contribute a part, the state a part. Summarized the results of the scheme are that every working may who has paid an annual contribution of $1.20 from the age of 15 years to 65 will receive a pension of $55.40 at the age of 65. If his yearly contribution is $1.80 it will amount to $68; if $2.40, to $80. Further, those who benefit under the law of 'assistance' will enjoy an increase of pension after the age of 70. The maximum annual pension will be $96. The total expense of the measure for the treasury is estimated at $10,000,000 for the first year and at about $40,000,000 for the eightieth. Such a plan is likely to work well in such a country as France. Americans, however, are certain to be content with a more absolutely independent scheme of voluntary old age pensions, provided for by each individual, as is arranged in the Massachusetts plan of saving bank annuities.

Commencement days always bring the anouncement of gifts received, and the graduating exercises of the New England Conservatory of Music this year proved to be no exception. Prominent among the gifts to be announced on Tuesday at this famous musical institution was that of $500 from Ignace Paderewski, for the purpose of swelling the scholarship fund already started by the Sinfonia Fraternity. Another notable gift was that of the Mason & Hamlin Piano Company, who offered a prize in the form of a grand piano, valued at $1100. This offer will be repeated each year, the piano to be given to a member of the senior class selected by the conductor of the Symphony Orchestra, the director and dean of the Conservatory and others. Each year finds American music receiving more and more encouragement from the patrons of art. Not only in Boston but in all American cities wealthy men and women are contributing to the support of the best musical organizations. Lovers of music, in the Hub have come to look upon a certain circle of benefactors as the leading patrons of music this side of the Atlantic. Perhaps the widest known of these is Eben D. Jordan, donor of the acoustically perfect Jordan Hall, the central core of the New England Conservatory's building, and the magnificent pipe organ, considered one of the finest ever constructed. Mr. Jordan is also one of the most interested participants in the Boston Opera Company project, which will give Boston preeminence among American cities as being the first to establish a permanent grand opera such as is found in continental cities. Major Henry L. Higginson is equally revered by Boston music lovers, as the patron and chief supporter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and a generous contributor to all musical undertakings in the Hub. Mrs. John L. Gardner has always lent her assistance and patronage to all worthy musical projects. Thomas W. Lawson, Andrew Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller have also done much to make Boston the centre of the musical life of America, and assure its present prestige as the combined Berlin and Paris of the continent.

POLLY of the CIRCUS

BY MARGARET MAYO

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY DODD, MEAD AND COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Polly, a child of the circus, is brought up by Toby, a clown, and by a boss canvasman called "Muvver Jim." She learns to ride Bingo, a circus horse, and grows to woman hood knowing no life except that of the circus. II—A church near the circus lot interests Polly. Jim rerpoves her for her reckless riding. III—Polly urges Bingo to unprecedented speed and falls. Toby and Jim carry the injured girl to the parsonage nearby. IV—The Rev. John Douglas, much to Deacon Elverson's disgust, takes Polly into the parsonage. Tobby and "Muvver Jim" are received kindly by Douglas, who has placed Polly in charge of his colored servant, Mandy. Douglas promises to care for the girl until she is well. V—When Polly becomes conscious she declares that she must rejoin the circus at once. "Are you a sky pilot?" she asks the minister. Her mother was killed riding a circus horse, and her father "got his'n in a lion's cage." The minister reads to her about Ruth and Naomi, and Polly says, "I guess I'd like to hear you spiel." VI—Douglas offends Deacon Strong by defending boys who play baseball on Sunday. VII—Polly recovers her health, but is saddened by the death of Toby. Jim sends the news and promises to keep in touch with her. VIII—Polly recovers from the blow dealt her by Toby's death. She has ceased using slang and is educating herself under Douglas, guidance. She endeavors to improve Mandy's grammar. IJ—Deacons Strong and Elverson reprove the pastor for harboring the circus girl. Douglas declares that he is merely doing his duty. Strong declares that the girl must go. Douglas defies him. X.—Douglas suggests to Polly that she go to a seminary. Her quotation "And Ruth said, 'Entreat me not to leave three.'" reveals to both the fact that they love each otehr. Douglas takes her in his arms and tells her that she is never to leave him. XI—"Mubber Jim" calls and notes the change in Polly's Polly tells him she has abandoned the circus business. Deacons Strong and Elverson inform Polly that she can save the minister trouble be returning to the circus. Learning that the deacons contemplate discharging Douglas, she rebuffs Douglas, declares that she yearns for the circus and rushes away sobbing. XII—Douglas is very unhappy. A month passes and the circus plays a return engagement. Hasty, Mandy's husband, ascertains that Polly is not riding. Douglas believes she is ill and starts for the circus. XIII—Barker, manager of the show, reproves Jim because Polly will not ride in the minister's town. Polly admits to Jim that she loves the minister, but declares that he does not love her. She makes Jim promise to keep her secret.

CHAPTER XIV.

THE "leap of death" implements were being carried from the ring, and Jim turned away to superintend their loading.

Performers again rushed by each other on their way to and from the main tent.

Polly stood in the center of the lot, frowning and anxious. The mere mention of the pastor's name had made it seem impossible for her to ride tonight. For hours she had been whipping herself up to the point of doing it, and now her courage failed her. She followed Barker as he came from the ring.

"Mr. Barker, please!"

He turned upon her sharply.

"Well, what is it now?"

"I want to ask you to let me off again tonight." She spoke in a short, jerky, desperate way.

"What!" he shrieked. "Not go into the ring, with all them people inside what's paid their money because they knowed you?"

"That's it!" she cried. "I can't! I can't!"

"You're gettin' too tony!" Barker sneered. "That's the trouble with you. You ain't been good for nothin' since you was at that parson's house. You didn't stay there, and you're no use here. First thing you know you'll be out all round."

"Out?"

"Sure. You don't think I'm goin' to head my bill with a 'dead one,' do you?"

"I am not a 'dead one,'" she answered excitedly. "I'm the best rider you've had since mother died. You've said so yourself."

"That was afore you got in with them church cranks. You talk about your mother! Why, she'd be ashamed to own you."

"She wouldn't!" cried Polly. Her eyes were flashing; her face was scarlet. The pride of hundreds of years of ancestry was quivering with indignation. "I can ride as well as I ever could, and I'll do it too. I'll do it tomorrow."

"Tomorrow?" echoed Barker. "What do you mean by that?"

"I mean that I can't go into that ring tonight," she declared, "and I won't."

She was desperate now and trading upon a strength beyond her own.

He looked at her with momentary indecision. She was a good rider, the best since her mother, as he had often told her. He could see this meant an issue. He felt she would be on her mettle tomorrow, as far as her work was concerned, if he let her alone tonight.

"All right," he said sullenly. "You can stay off tonight. I got the crowd in there anyway, and I got their money. I'll let Eloise do a turn on Barbarian, but tomorrow you'd better show me your old act."

"I'll show you!" she cried. "I'll show you!"

"Well, see that you do." He crossed into the ring.

Polly stood where Barker had left her, white and tense. Jim came toward her from the direction of the wagons. He glanced at her uneasily. "What's he been a-sayin' to you?"

"He says I can't ride any more." Her lips closed tightly. She stared straight ahead of her. "He says I was no good to the people that took me in and I'm no use here."

"It's not so!" thundered Jim.

"No, it's not!" she cried. "I'll show him, Jim! I'll show him—tomorrow!" She turned toward the dressing tent. Jim caught her firmly by the wrist.

"Wait, Poll! You ain't ever goin' into the ring a-feelin' that way." Her eyes met his defiantly.

"What's the difference? What's the difference?" She wrenched her wrist quickly from him and ran into the dressing tent, laughing hysterically.

"An' I bring her back to it," mumbled Jim as he turned to give orders to the property men.

Most of the "first half props" were loaded, and some of the men were asleep under the wagons. The lot was clear. Suddenly he felt some one approaching from the back of the inclosure. He turned and found himself face to face with the stern, solitary figure of the pastor, wrapped in his long black cloak. The moonlight slipped through a rift in the clouds and fell into a circle around them.

"What made you come here?" was all Jim said.

"I heard that Miss Polly didn't ride today. I was afraid she might be ill."

"What's that to you?"

"She isn't ill?" Douglas demanded anxiously, oblivious to the gruffness in the big fellow's voice.

"She's all right," Jim answered shortly as he shifted uneasily from one foot to the other and avoided the pastor's burning gaze.

"And she's happy, she's content?"

"Sure."

"I'm glad," said Douglas dully. He tried to think of some way to prolong their talk. "I've never heard from her, you know."

"Us folks don't get much time to write." Jim turned away and began tinkering with one of the wagons.

Douglas had walked up and down in front of the tents again and again, fighting against a desire to do the very thing that he was doing, but to no purpose, and now that he was here it seemed impossible that he should go away so unsatisfied. He crossed to Jim and came determinedly to the point.

"Can't I see her, Jim?"

"It's agin the rules." He did not turn.

There was another pause; then Douglas started slowly out of the lot.

"Wait a minute," called Jim, as though the words had been wrung from him. The pastor came back with a question in his eyes.

"I lied to you."

"She's not well, then?"

"Oh, yes, she's well enough. It ain't that; it's about her being happy."

"She isn't?" There was a note of unconscious exultation in his voice.

"No. She ain't happy here, an' she was happy with you."

"Then why did she leave me?"

"I don't know. She wasn't goin' to do it at first. Somethin' must 'a' happened afterwards, somethin' that you an' me didn't know about."

"We will know about it, Jim. Where is she?" His quick eye searched the lot. His voice had regained its old command. He felt that he could conquer worlds.

"You can't do no good that way," answered Jim. "She don't want to see you again."

"Why not?"

"I don't know, but she told me she'd run away if I ever even talked to you about her."

"You needn't talk, Jim. I'll talk for myself. Where is she?"

"She'll be comin' out soon. You can wait around out here with me. I'll let you know in time." He led the way through a narrow passage between the wagons.

Jim and Douglas had barely left the lot when Deacon Elverson's small, round head slipped cautiously around the corner of the dressing tent. The little deacon glanced exultantly about him. He was monarch of all he surveyed. It was very thrilling to stand here on this forbidden ground smelling the sawdust, gazing at the big red wagons, studying the unprotected circus properties and listening to the lightening tempo of the band.

"Did you see him?" shouted Strong, who had followed closely upon Elverson's heels.

The little deacon started. Strong was certainly a disturbing factor at times.

"Yes, I—I saw him."

"Well?"

"He—he—didn't see her."

"What did he do?" Strong was beside himself with impatience.

"He—he just talked to the big un and went out that way." Elverson nodded toward the wagons.

"I guess he ain't gone far," sneered Strong. "He come over to this lot to see her, and he ain't goin' to give up till he does it. You wait here. I'll take a look round." He went quickly in the direction of the wagons.

Elverson needed no second invitation to wait. He was congratulating himself upon his good fortune when he all but collided with a flying apparition, vanishing in the direction of the main tent. Sophisticated eyes would have seen only a rather stout acrobat clad in pink tights, but Elverson was not sophisticated, and he teetered after the flitting angel, even unto the forbidden portals of the big top.

He was peeping through the curtains which had fallen behind her and was getting his first glimpse of the great sawdust world beyond when one of the clowns dashed from the dressing tent on his way to the ring.

The clown was late. He saw the limp coattails of the deacon, who was three-quarters in the tent. Here was a chance to make a funny entrance. He grabbed the unsuspecting little man from the rear. The terrified deacon struck out blindly in all directions, his black arms and legs moving like a centiped's, but the clown held him firmly by the back and thrust him headforemost into the tent.

Strong returned almost immediately from his unsuccessful search for the pastor. He looked about the lot for Elverson.

"Hey, there, Elverson!" he called lustily. There was no response.

"Now, where's he got to?" grumbled Strong. He disappeared quickly around the corner of the dressing tent, resolved to keep a sharp lookout for Douglas.

Elverson was thrust from the tent soon after, spitting sawdust and much discomfited, by the laughing performers who followed him. His knees almost gave way beneath him when Barker came out of the ring, snapping his long black whip.

"Get out of here, you bloke!" roared Barker, and Elverson "got."

No one had remembered to tell the groom that Polly was not to ride tonight, so Bingo was brought out as usual when their "turn" approached.

"Take him back, Tom," Polly called from the entrance when she learned Bingo was waiting, "and bring Barbarian. "I'm not going on tonight. Eloise is going to ride in my place."

This was the second time today that Bingo had been led away without going into the ring. Something in his big, wondering eyes made Polly follow him and apologize. He was very proud, was Bingo, and very conscientious. He felt uneasy when he saw the other horses going to their work without him.

"Never mind, Bingo," she said, patting his great, arched neck; "we'll show 'em tomorrow." He rubbed his satiny nose against her cheek. "We'll make them sit up again. Barker says our act's no good—that I've let down. But it's not your fault, Bingo. I've not been fair to you. I'll give you a chance tomorrow. You wait. He'll never say it again, Bingo, never again!"

Polly had nothing more to do tonight except to get into her street clothes. The wagons would soon be moving away. For a moment she glanced at the dark church steeple; then she turned to go inside the tent. A deep, familiar voice stopped her.

"Polly!"

TRYOUTS FOR VARIOUS FLIERS

Aeroplanes of Many Kinds Undergoing Tests

TRIALS AT MORRIS PARK, N. Y.

Flying Machines That Have Proved Ability to Stay In the Air and Others Entered In Contests For Aeronautic Society's Prizes—Curtiss Aeroplane, Weighing About Half as Much as the Wright's, Well Liked

New York, June 26.—All sorts of queer looking and strange contrivances for sailing through the air are included in the flying machines entered in the public tests of the Aeronautic society to be held at Morris park today. The society has been liberal in its definitions of practicability. Among the aeroplanes which will fly or try to fly today are some that have proved their ability to remain in the air for longer or shorter periods of time and some that will have no chance of raising their inventors' hopes either literally or figuratively.

Aviation experts regret that neither the Wright nor the Herring machine will be represented in today's flights or attempted flights. The tests of their machine at Fort Meyer have kept the famous flying brothers busy, and A. M. Herring has also been engaged in interesting the government in his aeroplane. Of the machines at Morris park the one that carries most of the hopes or the aviators is Glenn H. Curtiss' aeroplane, specially constructed for the Aeronautic society's tests. The preliminary trials of Mr. Curtiss' machine have been satisfactory in the main, and his victory in today's contests would cause little surprise.

The recent damage to the Kimball aeroplane was a great disappointment to those who saw in it a serious rival to Mr. Curtiss' aeroplane. Among the other flying machines at Morris park which have attracted much recent attention are the ones constructed on the lines of Alexander Graham Bell's Silver Dart and the Rickman helicopter, a curious but interesting cylindrical device for navigating the air.

The Curtiss machine weighs 550 pounds, including the aviator. This is about half the weight of the Silver Dart and of the Wright machines, being up to the present time the lightest successful aeroplane ever constructed in the world. Its two planes, as the machine is a biplane, are twenty-nine feet wide and four and a half feet deep, with 260 square feet of supporting surface. It has horizontal rudders in front and rear and both so arranged that they may be used for vertical steering. There is only one propeller, the blades, of aluminum, being six feet in diameter, and, although it has a thrust of 225 pounds, the recent trial flights have shown that 150 pounds is sufficient for flying.

The committee of the Aeronautic society in charge of the prize fund will award a $2000 prize to the machine which has never made a public flight that makes a successful circuit of the Morris park course, about one and three-fourths miles, or that remains in the air ten minutes. For a machine going less than this distance, but 5000 feet or more, $1000 will be awarded, or the same amount for remaining seven and a half minutes in the air.

Lesser amounts are to be awarded for lesser distances, but the provision was made that all members of the society who succeed in flying 500 feet will receive prizes of $250.

NEW ENGLAND SUFFERS

Many Deaths and Prostrations Due to the Excessive Heat

Boston, June 26.—The great heat wave which has been over the east since the first of the week was more oppressive Friday than at any time during the present period of high temperatures.

In New England a dozen deaths are chargeable to the heat blast. In Boston alone there were at least two deaths and fifty prostrations.

The heat wave has caused intense suffering in the tenement districts of Boston and New England mill cities, where crowded quarters and narrow streets were practically uninhabitable.

Accepts Dare and Is Drowned

Cambridge, Mass., June 26.—Accepting a dare of his companions to enter the water, although he was unable to swim, Francis Sullivan, aged 10, was drowned. Other boys had promised to pull him out if he got in over his head, but when Sullivan tried to swim he pulled two of his companions under water and they abandoned him to save their own lives.

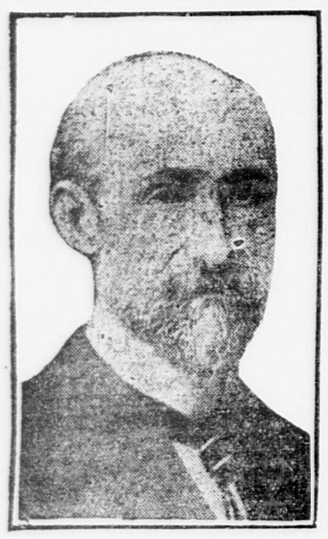

Doctors Amend Code of Ethics

Detroit, June 26.—The American Institute of Homeopathy adopted an amendment to its code of ethics releasing physicians from professional secrecy regarding private affairs of patients or their families when such secrecy or silence result in the injury or infection of innocent persons.

GEORGIA HAS NEW HEAD

Governor Brown Is Inaugurated With Simple Ceremonies

Atlanta, Ga., June 27.—With quiet, simple ceremonies befitting the unostentatious nature of the man, Joseph M. Brown was inducted into office today as governor of the state of Georgia. In carrying out his intention to have an inauguration of the simplest kind consistent with the provision of the state constitution Governor Brown walked to the state capital dressed in a suit of Georgia made brown jeans.

JOSEPH M. BROWN.

Governor Brown was chosen as the Democratic candidate at the primaries in June, 1908, defeating Hoke Smith, the outgoing governor, who sought the indorsement of another term. His defeat violated the Georgia precedent giving the governor two terms, further re-election being forbidden by the constitution. The acute enmity between Smith and Brown began when the latter was removed by the former from the office of railroad commissioner. It was asserted that Brown favored the railroads unduly.

Georgia's new governor is the son of Joseph E. Brown, governor of Georgia during the Civil war. He is a lawyer, farmer, merchant and railroad man, as well as the author of an epic poem.

BOY DIDN'T KNOW GUN WAS LOADED

Found Out When He Shot Top of Brother's Head Off

Cambridge, Mass., June 26.—The Theta Delta Chi fraternity house, where one of the Harvard class day spreads was held last night, was the scene of a tragedy a short time later when John Wright, aged 12, accidentally shot and killed his brother, Robert J., aged 10.

With their mother, a widow, the boys were in the steward's quarters of the fraternity house as the guests of Steward McLaughlin when John noticed a shotgun standing in a corner of the room. Grasping it he aimed it at his brother and pulled the trigger. The charge blew off the top of Robert's head before the eyes of his mother and the other occupants of the room.

At the police station John Wright explained that the shooting was purely accidental, that the gun belonged to the steward and that he did not know it was loaded. He was allowed to go.

PASSENGERS NOT HURT

Engine Carries Engineer and Fireman Down to Their Death

Middletown, N. Y., June 26.—Engineer Vandemark and Fireman Dougherty were killed last night at White House curve, when the engine and baggage car left the track and went down a ten-foot embankment.

Two passenger coaches left the track, but were not ditched. The passengers were badly shaken, but none was seriously injured. The engine left the track suddenly and immediately plunged over the bank, making it impossible for either the engineer or fireman to save their lives by jumping. They were buried under the wreckage.

MORE TROOPS NEEDED

Order Cannot Be Maintained In Persia With Present Forces

St. Petersburg, June 26.—The situation in Persia is regarded as serious and, as the Russian force there is likely to prove insufficient in case the disorders spread, there is a possibility that a separate column will be sent from the Caucasus to Teheran, as the troops at Tabriz cannot be spared.

Special dispatches from Tabriz say that the Russians are making large numbers of arrests and also searching houses and confiscating arms.

Must Not Pollute River

Boston, June 26.—Injunctions restraining various manufacturing concerns from polluting the waters of the North river and its tributaries at Salem were granted by Judge Morton in the supreme court, upon petition of City Solicitor Coolidge of Salem. The court ordered that the case go to a master.

SUNDAY 12 TO 1—SHARP
Bethany Church, City Square

If YOU are a young man, and not associated with any other Quincy church, YOU are most cordially invited to come to our meeting.

A warm welcome—Hearty singing—A helpful hour together.

—Over 40 members out of 180 in the graduating class at the naval academy failed to get their commissions on account of physical weakness. It would be interesting to know whether these cadets entered the institution physically weak or whether the studies, exercises and associations in that school are responsible for the breakdown in their health. It needed a probe or something else besides hazing.

—At a farewell service for young missionaries in New York the other day a girl from Wilson college made a unique turn in her goodbye speech: "I feel just like the girl in Chicago," she said before the grave board and the guests on the platform; "you know whenever she slipped on her shoe she said, "This is a big thing and I'm glad to be in it.'" The poor heathen will flock around that girl's standard when she once gets after them.

—The Fourth comes on Sunday this year and the slaughter of most of the innocents will probably be postponed to the fifth.—Haverhill Gazette.

RUGS IN PLACE OF CARPETINGS

Carpeting for floor covering is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. Every new or modern house has its hard wood floors. People today appreciate the cleanliness of rugs, the ease with which they are taken up and cleaned and especially their wearing qualities. Woodoleum representing hard wood floors is sold by the yard to make a border for cheap floors. The effect is stunning. Old room carpets are cut down and made into rugs or are given in part exchange for new rugs. Rugs have come to stay—consequently our stock of rugs is large. We have over 500 different styles of room rugs to choose from. Here we quote a few prices of quick sellers.

SAD DROWNING ACCIDENT

Wollaston Lady Drowned in Sunday Canoe Accident

Wollaston people were more than shocked this morning to receive intelligence of the sad drowning accident at Wrentham Sunday when Mrs. Margaret wife of William J. Leslie of Wollaston was drowned by the tipping over of a canoe in which she and three companions were sailing.

All of the party including Mrs. Leslie were good swimmers and it must have been because Mrs. Leslie was seized with cramps that she was drowned. It was some minutes after the accident before her body was recovered and then physicians worked over her from 3 until 5 o'clock in trying to bring her back to life.

The party in the canoe included, Dr. H. B. C. Reiner, Miss Louise Ross of Wollaston and Miss Nettie Parlee of Montclair who could swim, or said they could, and all wore bathing suits. The canoe was a considerable distance from shore when it was suggested that it would be good fun to upset. It is supposed that all acquiesced, for the craft was capsized, throwing the party overboard.

In the confusion, with the women screaming and all floundering about near the canoe, Mrs. Leslie sank unnoticed, and it was several minutes before she was missed. Every effort was then made to save her, a young man in one of the many canoe nearby diving several times without being able to bring the woman to the surface.

After about 20 minutes the body was recovered and taken ashore, where Mr. Leslie sat upon the porch of his cottage overlooking the lake. He had seen all that transpired out on the water, but thought what was going on merely part of the bathers' antics. He had no idea that his wife was dead until the news was broken to him, and his grief when the blow fell was so violent that friends feared for a time it might affect his reason.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie were at the lake celebrating over Sunday, and the day was the fifth anniversay of their marriage. Mrs. Leslie was 28 years old.

William J. Leslie, husband of Mrs. Margaret Leslie, is employed in a tailoring establishment at 304 Washington street, Boston. He lives at 57 Rawson road, Wollaston. He also owns a summer camp at Wrentham, where he and his wife were staying yesterday. With them was Miss Ruth Bean, the 17-year-old daughter of George H. Bean of Atlantic street, Atlantic, who had gone up Saturday to spend Sunday at the Leslie camp.

Miss Nettie Parlee, who was in the canoe with Mrs. Leslie, is 17 years old and lives on Division street Montclair. Miss Louise Ross, another occupant of the canoe, lives at Phillips street, Wollaston, near Mrs. Leslie's home.

Miss Bean who was standing on the float when Mrs. Leslie's body was carried ashore, was completely upset, as were the two other girls. Louis Lyons of Providence was at the lake in his automobile and offered to drive the girls to their homes. He started off at a high speed, trying to get the girls to their homes as soon as possible, as they were on the verge of hysteria. While going through Dedham the chauffeur, John Mayette, was arrested for exceeding the speed limit, and the whole party was compelled to wait a half-hour while cash bail was given for the chauffeur's appearance in court. This delay coupled with the severe strain the young women had undergone, proved too great for their nerves, so that when they reached home physicians had to be called in to attend them.

By the breaking of a bolt which held one end of the gang plank at the wharf of the steamboat company at Houghs Neck Sunday afternoon sixteen young men from Dorchester and Roxbury were thrown into the mud and water and besides having their clothing ruined by the mud were more or less shaken up.

TRIP ABANDONED.

Fright of Child Stops European Trip of Quincy People.

A despatch from New York says: the hysterical fright of a child at the sight of a big ocean liner, after the little one's terrifying experience last night on a sound boat during an electrical storm, prevented the sailing of Mrs. Frederick Vanner of Quincy, Mass., and her 10-year-old daughter Hilda on the American line steamer St. Louis for Southampton today.

The little girl become terrorized as were other passengers, when lightning began to play about the Fall River line steamer on which Hilda and her mother were coming here to sail for Europe. When she saw the St. Louis as he was taken on the pier today the little girl's fright recurred and she drew back as if in fear of some great danger.

Screaming and crying hysterically, the child created a pronounced commotion on the pier and absolutely refused to board the liner. All efforts to pacify her failing, and the steamship officials fearing that the child might die from fright should a storm break at sea during the passage, the passenger agent and the mother agreed that it would be unwise for Hilda to make the trip. Mother and daughter left the pier for the Grand Central station to take the next train back to Quincy.

Several anecdotes of the late Rev. Dr. Hale were told by the pastor, who was visited in Pittsfield by Rev. Dr. Hale. There were recitations, readings and quotations by members of the various classes from the works of Rev. Dr. Hale and there was a collection for the country week fund, in which Rev. Mr. East Wind got a hearty howd'edo from many people hereabouts yesterday.

From the thousands who went through Quincy yesterday it looked as if there must have been quite a few missing from church.

The lack of a safe in the Atlantic depot apparently makes a burglary in that depot a safe job.

Waltham brides favor June for weddings evidently for a full dozen were reported in the "watch city" on Thursday of last week.

Evidently the Quincy base ball team has found itself. A better game than was put up Saturday couldn't very well be expected.

Another council meeting tonight with another chance of a Houghs Neck school house lot fight. Will it be Cavanagh or Cavanaught?

In the town of Stow there were only three high school graduates Thursday night and all three were girls. Where were the boys of Stow stowed away?

Clean up your rubbish, and minimize the danger from fire on the Fourth. Co-operation with the fire department in this direction, may be the means of preventing great loss.

From the present outlook it would seem as if everybody in Quincy would have one big holiday July 5, except the newspaper reporters. Their work is cut out for them with liberal measure.

The drowning of two Quincy people, the rescue of two others from a similar fate and an accident at Houghs Neck in which 16 people were injured, is a gruesome enough record for one Sunday.

The unusual boldness of the firebug who started a blaze in a big boarding house district before awakening time yesterday morning, was somewhat startling. Such a crime should be run to earth if there is any possibility of doing so. Of all contemptible criminals that walk, the man who applies the torch is the most villainous of them all.

The accident at Houghs Neck yesterday afternoon, in which 16 young men were more or less injured and had their clothes rather more than less ruined, was the first thing of its kind that has happened hereabouts. It suggests that landings cannot be made any too secure and especially so in the case of gang planks.

In deciding to buy the athletic presents to be offered at the city meet July 5, in Quincy, the authorities in charge have done the proper thing. This suggestion was made by the mayor himself at the first meeting and was decided on Thursday night. The city is setting a good example for others to follow.

The metropolitan park commission have been requested by the city authorities to erect a sanitary station somewhere on the Quincy shore boulevard. It is to be hoped the request will be heeded. A state bath house there would fill another "long-felt want."

The idea of using the trolley cars as mail gatherers as inaugurated last week by Postmaster Minott of Gardner is a good one and likely to be put in practise in other places. A detachable box is placed on the rear end of certain cars which deliver the mail at the post office every hour.

The new automobile law that was passed by the legislature and signed by the governor just before prorogation annuls all local regulations, such as those excluding motor vehicles from certain highways or prescribing limits different from those of the general law. The law becomes effective the first day of July.

The city of Cleveland has prohibited the firing of guns, pistols or firecrackers within the city limits, this year, and the inhabitants of that place will no doubt find just as pleasant and profitable ways of celebrating the nation's birthday.

"Tom" McNamara, the genial professional golfer at the Wollaston club is teaching some of the experts how to play golf in the national championship. He ought to succeed for he is a quiet, modest fellow who never brags or explains after he has lost but when it comes to a real "show down," McNamara is the man "with the goods." More power to your driver, Tom.

The town of Brookline is to be equipped with an auto chemical and it won't be a great while before Quincy will have to get one. The long stretch of territory now covered by the central station horses is enough to exhaust the strongest animals. The auto chemicals have been tried with great success in other places and would more than pay for themselves in this city, with its scattered sections since prompt arrival at a fire is as necessary as a prompt alarm.

The abandoned quarry holes, as well as the sea, are beginning to claim their drowning victims. These quarry holes, which are usually filled from springs, are very cold and should be avoided for swimming purposes. The city maintains a fine bath house on Town river, equipped with life buoys, life boats and life guards and if anyone wishes to have a good swim under safe conditions, there is the place to have it.

The exceptionally fine, cool weather of yesterday, after the torrid heat of the last week, brought thousands out yesterday with the result that all sea shore resorts were crowded and electric cars in this city were taxed to the limit on all lines. The really wise ones were those who staid at home and, profiting by the cool breezes, made up for sleep lost during the superheated spell.

ONE LONE CAR IS IN SERVICE

All Others In Pittsburg Traction Service Are Tied Up

STRIKERS EXPECT LONG FIGHT

Two Hundred Foreigners Said to Be Prepared to Man Cars Deserted by Thirty-Five Hundred Men, Who Claim That Agreement With Railway Company Has Been Repeatedly Broken and Charge Bad Faith

Pittsburg, June 28.—Greater Pittsburg walked Sunday during intermittent thunder showers and a broiling sun. Only one street car, carrying the United States mail, moved in the city or suburbs. Persons living in outer Allegheny county used hastily provided steam railroad shuttle-trains. On these trains the travel was extraordinarily light, so much so that at noon the five minute schedules were replaced with an hourly service.

Downtown Pittsburg was deserted the entire day, except at the headquarters of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes and the offices of the Pittsburg Railways company. At union headquarters the strikers unitedly declared for a long and hard-fought battle.

At the offices of the Pittsburg Railways company the executive officers consulted all day, planning their campaign to break the strike and to settle the traction tie-up quickly.

The day was marked by but one clash between union men and would-be strikebreakers. Two negroes applied to the superintendent at the Homestead car barns for situations and were set upon by alleged union sympathizers and chased from the district. No arrests were made.

Conveyances were soon placed at a premium by enterprising wagon and cab owners. The taxicabs of the city did a huge business and were allowed to break speed limits to handle the inter-resident traffic. At many of the churches morning and afternoon services were dispensed with.

An agent for a strikebreaking concern was heard from in Latrobe, a short distance from here. It was said he had contracted for 200 foreigners to come to Pittsburg to man the cars during the trouble.

In this connection it is known that for the past three or four weeks the Pittsburg Railways company has anticipated a general strike of their employes. Extra crews have been broken in on all lines throughout the city and environs.

Thirty-five hundred men are affected by the strike. The grievances of the men include the charge of discrimination against union men; a demand for proper hearings for the discharged men; longer lunch hours and the installation of bulletin boards in the car barns announcing layoffs.

The union men also claim that an agreement made with the Pittsburg Railways company in April, covering the demans of the union, has been repeatedly broken and that the strike is really the result of the railway company breaking faith.

FAMISHED AND HELPLESS

Lost Fisherman Rescued After Going Through Terrible Ordeal

Rockland, Me., June 28.—A story of eight days on the high seas in a small open boat, with nought for subsistence save a half pint of fresh water, a little raw fish and some kelp, was brought here by the fishing schooner Fred Leland, which had on board Bernard J. Dobbin of Boston, who was picked up at sea last Friday.

Dobbin left the Boston fishing schooner Alice off Clark's Banks on June 17 to set trawls. He was separated from the schooner in a thick fog. For eight days Dobbin rowed shorewards, as he thought. At least six times he sighted passing vessels, only to be disheartened by his failure to attract attention.

Finally, the hoisted oars of the dory were seen by the Leland and Dobbins was carried aboard, exhausted, famished and helpless. The Leland continued on her fishing trip, bringing Dobbins here Sunday.

Schooner Alice arrived in Boston early last week with her flag at half mast and reported Dobbins' death.

WITH SIMPLE SERVICES

Body of Miss Jewett Is Consigned to Its Last Resting Place

South Berwick, Me., June 28.—The funeral of Miss Sarah Orne Jewett, the author, held in her old ancestral home here, was marked by extreme dignity and simplicity. The body laid in the casket in the parlor and people invited from the pulpits of each church of the village came to pay their last respects, as in previous years they had come to mark the passing of her parents and of her grandparents in the same old mansion.

The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. George Lewis, for thirty-five years Miss Jewett's pastor at the Congregational church.

The interment was in the Portland Street cemetery beside the remains of Miss Jewett's parents and grandparents.

"YAHOOS" MEET ONE-TIME ENEMY

Blue and Gray In Reunion at General Grubb's Home

Burlington, N. J., June 28.—Forty-six years ago the chief desire the men of the Eighth Alabama regiment was the advancement of the Conferedate cause without regard to the number of Yankees killed in the process. Today, way up in what was then the enemy's country, they desire only to shake hands with as many of the Yanks as they can reach.

The occasion is the reunion of the survivors of the famous "Yahoos" of the Civil war, who were known officially as the Twenty-Third New Jersey infantry, with the men against whom they fought at Salem Church, Va., on May 3, 1863. Among the southerners who fought against the New Jerseymen in that famous action were the men of the Eighth Alabama, commanded by Colonel Hilary A. Herbert.

The leader of the Yahoos was Colonel (afterward General) E. Burd Grubb. Today's reunion is taking place at the beautiful home of General Grubb, Grassmere, at Edgewater Park, near here. In addition to the "Yahoos" and the Eighth Alabama, the men of another New Jersey regiment, commanded later by General Grubb, the equally famous "Game Chickens," are present.

A novel feature of the reunion is the presence of members of the Daughters of the Confederacy as guests of Mrs. Grubb. These southern women are assisting Mrs. Grubb in receiving the northern and southern veterans and their wives and daughters.

STRUCK BY LOCOMOTIVE

Two Men and a Horse Have Their Lives Crushed Out

Taunton, Mass., June 28.—That Augustine Gabonaux and John Pinto of this city were killed by a locomotive attached to a late Boston train did not become known until their remains, together with those of their horse and carriage, were found beside the tracks at Hart street.

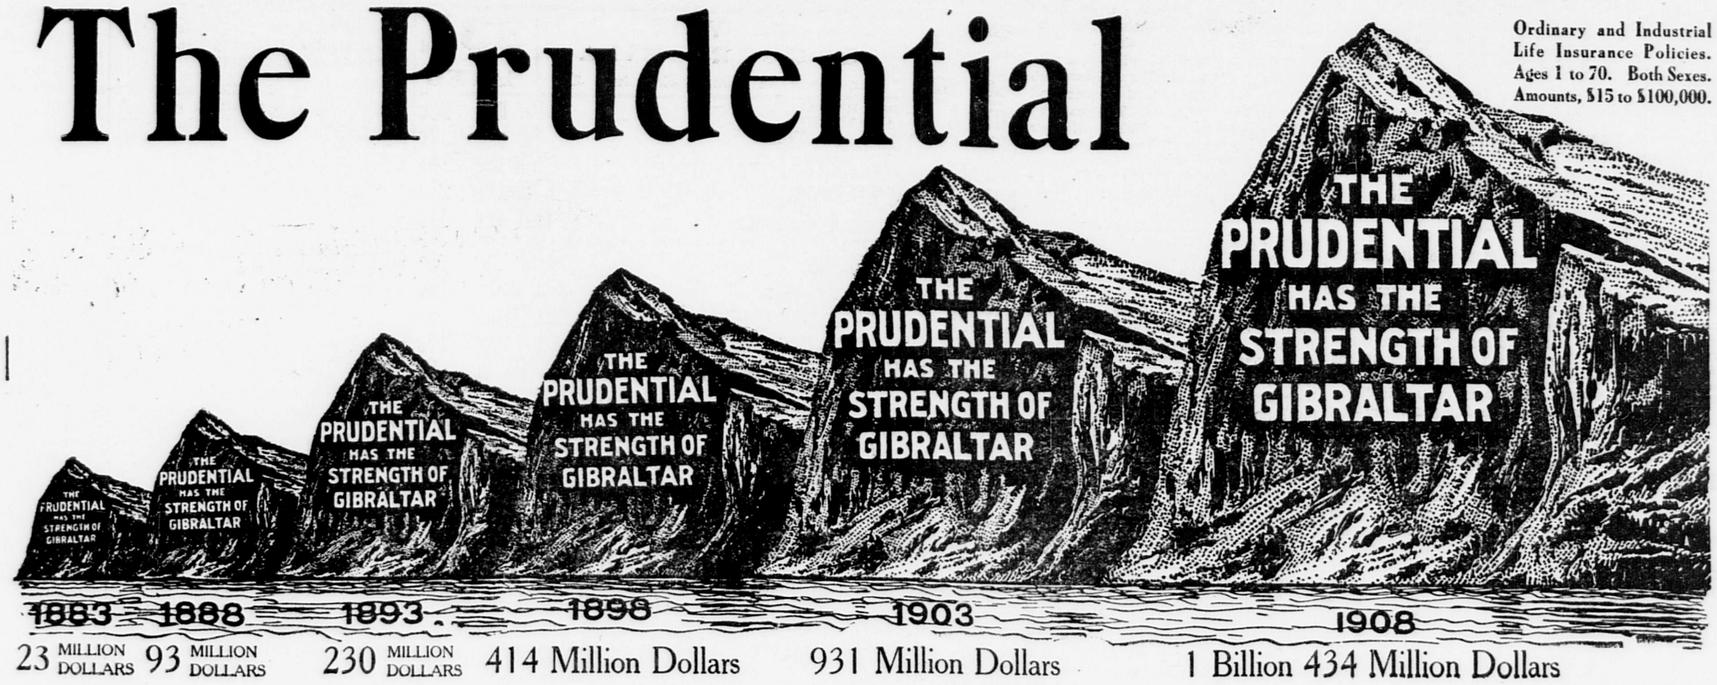

The men had gone to Berkeley, an adjoining town, and were returning at a late hour when the accident occurred. So far as is known no person witnessed it.

Bomb Throwing In Chicago

Chicago, June 28.—An explosion supposed to have been caused by dynamite did considerable property damage in the business quarter last night, injuring three persons severely and wrecking stores and windows for a block near the city hall. It is probably another of the series of "gamblers' war" bombs which have mystified the police of this city for two years.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST.

To Citizens of Quincy:—

It has been said by somebody who is connected with the Woodward Institute that the small number of directors usually found at the stated meetings of the Board is due to the fact that they are asked to serve without pay. The remark would not be noticed, if it were not so absolutely false. Many of the directors took up that part of their obligations with real pleasure when they came into the City. It is the joy of service that causes most men to take up the work of a clergyman. And service in the way of educating the young is one of the best kinds of service. But a clergyman needs not to attend many meetings of the directors of the Woodward Institute to find out that he is not needed there. Any ideas that are in the least degree new are not wanted there. Any suggestions of actions out of the usual ways are not welcomed. In fact so long as a man attends the meetings and remains dumb he is given the welcoming hand, and assured that he is aiding the good work of the institution. Do you ask why only two, three, four, or five clergymen out of a possible thirty odd come to the meetings of the Board of Directors? Let me tell you it is because they are not supposed to direct, they are supposed only to sit, listen, and vote aye when the "machine" wishes such a vote cast. How many busy men will you find in any profession who will consent to spend two or three hours to sit in a library and do such nonsensical work! It would please the writer very much, if the Mayor, or the City Council would appoint a committee to investigate the Woodward Institute. Not because of any charges of graft, the directors do not see or in any way come in contact with the money end, but simply to let all Quincy know where matters stand.

Signed:— A. Edwin Clattenburg.
June 26th, 1909.

Boston, Mass., June 25, 1909.
Quincy Daily Ledger:

If consistent with the rules of your paper, I would like to present to your notice an incident which happened in Houghs Neck Thursday evening, for the purpose of gaining information as to the best course to pursue under similar conditions. I would like to obtain the information for my own benefit as well as for the benefit of a good many other summer residents of Quincy who might be placed in like circumstances at any time.

About nine o'clock my wife heard a groan and saw a man fall prostrate at the side of the road nearly opposite our house. She quickly summoned aid from the neighbors, and when I got a glance at the man's face I knew it was a serious case and needed immediate attention. I therefore called up the Quincy telephone operator and tried to get a doctor, but it seemed as though every one was out on similar cases and it was impossible to get anyone to attend the man at once. As the man showed no improvement and the case was getting serious, I called up the Quincy Police Station and requested that an ambulance be sent down in order to convey the man to the hospital, but the man in charge at the station informed me that he could not send the ambulance as he might need it at any time, and although I informed him that this case was a serious one and demanded immediate attention, he still refused and advised me to get a doctor or ask the undertaker to send an ambulance.

As luck would have it, however, the telephone calls had brought a Quincy doctor, Dr. Garey I think, who must have broken the speed laws in his hurried trip by automobile, and after working over the man for about an hour he was able to bring him to consciousness and very kindly took him to Quincy in his automobile.

Now, Mr. Editor, I would like to know what other course we could have pursued, and if it was just and proper for the man in charge at the police station to refuse to send the ambulance in a case of this kind. In the Boston Post this morning I note under the heading "What to do for Sunstroke victims" the following: "Get medical assistance as quickly as possible, as sunstroke many times prove fatal. Put in a call for the nearest ambulance."

Any information which you can give in regard to similar cases I know would be greatly appreciated, as one never knows when he is liable to be placed in similar circumstances, and by knowing what to do perhaps a life may be saved.

Thanking you in advance for giving this matter your consideration, I beg to remain,

J. Emil Johnson.

SATURDAY IN FIELD OF SPORT

Results of Ball Games, Yachting and Golf Events

The Quincy's met the Rockland's Saturday on the Water street grounds in an Old Colony League game and administered a coat of whitewash to the visitors. The fielding of the home team was marked by considerable improvement from what it has been and Donovan made some remarkable catches in centre field.

Gilroy pitched a fine game allowing but three hits to be made and striking out eight men. Martin formerly of the Tufts was in the box for Rockland but lacked support. In the ninth inning it looked as though Rockland would score as three men filled the bases but the needed hit did not materalize. The summary:

Ask any man who has ever worn a pair of RALSTONS what he thinks of them. He will tell you they're the most comfortable shoes he has ever worn. Try on a pair yourself and you'll say the same.

The secret of the exceptional fitting qualities of RALSTON SHOES lies in the fact that they're made over foot-moulded lasts — exact replicas of human feet, following the graceful foot curves on top and sides and moulded on the bottom in conformity with the mounds and depressions of the natural foot. RALSTON SHOES—for this reason—need no "breaking in."

We shall be pleased to show you how perfectly we can fit your feet.

A very large amount of business was transacted at Monday night's meeting of the City Council. There were several debates on minor matters but nearly all of the important matters were advanced without debate. The Committee on Streets reported a dozen orders laying out new streets under the betterment act and these with one exception were referred to the Finance Committee. A number of amended ordinances were passed and matters disposed of.

The only action on the Houghs Neck school subject was to refer the order for the Cavanagh lot to the Finance Committee.

The order appropriating $250 for the July 5 celebration at Atlantic was recalled from the Mayor and passed by roll call.

And that in the action of the Town of Plymouth for board of paupers that he had agreed upon settlement for $79.83. Referred to Finance Committee.

From Mayor with inclosure from Congressman O'Connell in relation to marker for the grave of William J. Burke killed on the U. S. S., Georgia. Congressman O'Connell says that he has taken up the matter with the navy department but that he was unable to do anything until an appropriation has been made and that he will introduce a bill for that purpose. Placed on file.

From Mayor inclosing communication from John T. Cavanagh stating that he would sell 50,000 square feet of land for $6,500 the city to move his house 400 feet or allow him $500 for that purpose. To Finance Committee.

Several appplications for minor licenses were received those for licenses to sell fireworks being laid on the table until later when they were granted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Finance Committee reported orders apportioning the sidewalk assessments on the estates of the Cranch Hill Real Estate Co., and William R. Thomas on Whitwell street into ten equal parts. Adopted.

The Finance Committee reported an order abating the sidewalk assessment on the estate of Ella A. York on Elm avenue. Adopted.

SURFACE DRAINAGE.

The Finance Committee reported an amendment to the order for surface drainage making the amount $6,600 and adding Whitney road to the list. Rules suspended and order passed.

NEW STREETS.

The Street Committee reported orders laying out and accepting the following streets under the act authorizing the assessment of betterments:—Holbrook avenue, formerly known as Broadway, $1,100; Franklin avenue, $1,500; Murdock avenue, $1,050; East Elm avenue, $2,500; Quarry street extension, $1,900; Cummings street, formerly known as Everett street $1,850; O'Connell avenue, $520; Norfolk street, $1,280; Taber street, $2,000; Merrymount road, $1,250; Newcomb place $2,300 and Badgers lane, no expense.

Councilman McDevitt moved to amend the Quarry street order by striking out the betterment clause. Motion lost.

Councilman Richards moved that in the matter of Taber street the petitioners be given leave to withdraw. Voted. All of the other orders were referred to the Finance Committee.

OUT OF TOWN PEDDLERS.

The Committee on Ordinances reported leave to withdraw on the petition to prevent peddlers from out of town peddling merchandise in Quincy, as the same is regulated by the Hawkers and Peddlers Ordinance. Report accepted.

NAMING OF STREETS.

The Committee on Ordinances reported reference to the Executive on the order relative to streets first named retaining their primative name. Accepted.

The Committee on Ordinances reported no legislation necessary on the Ordinance relative to naming streets. Report accepted.

The Committee on Licenses reported orders granting a number of minor licenses which were adopted.

SIDEWALKS.

The Finance Committee reported no legislation necessary on the petitions and orders for sidewalks on Glendale road, Quincy avenue, Washington street, Kemper street, Warren avenue, Newport avenue, and Maple street, as the majority of them were taken care of in the recent sidewalk order. Accepted.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The Committee on Ordinances reported an order amending the fire department ordinance. The amended ordinance does not change the main points of the present ordinance. It however puts the ordinance in proper shape. The only change is that it increases the pay of the call men $15 per year with the exception of the call men on the Houghs Neck Combination which is increased $5 per year. It also makes the Captain and Lieutenant at the Central station officers of the department instead of the central station only. Order read and ordered to a second reading.

CITY ENGINEER.

The same committee reported an amendment to the ordinance relating to the City Engineer. The change here is that the amount of salary paid the office is eliminated as it appears in the salary ordinance. Ordered to a second reading.

JUNK COLLECTORS.

The same committee reported an amendment to the junk collectors ordinance. The amendment adds the words "or other conveyance" after the word wagon. The idea of this is that anything in the way of a conveyance used to collect junk must be licensed. It also provides that junk collectors must carry scales capable of weighing 250 pounds. Ordered to a second reading.

LAYING OUT NEW STREETS.

The same committee reported an amendment to the ordinance laying out new streets. The amendment provides that no street shall hereafter be accepted other than under the provisions of the act authorizing the assessments of betterments unless said street shall have been previously constructed and completed in accordance with the specification of the ordinance. This provision does not apply however to streets actually opened and used for public travel prior to Jan. 1, 1901. It also provides no street on a private way shall be named without permission of the Commissioner of Public Works. Ordered to a second reading.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

The same committee reported an ordinance establishing the office of Sealer of Weights and Measures. Up to the previous time there has never been an ordinance covering this department. Order read and ordered to a second reading.

HAWKERS AND PEDDLERS

The same committee reported an order amending the Hawkers and Peddlers ordinance. The amendments are simply those necessary to make it conform to the present law. Ordered to a second reading.

WATER DEPARTMENT.

The same committee reported an amendment to the ordinance concerning the water department. The amendment strikes out the words Water Commissioners and inserts in place therefor the words Commissioner of Public Works. It also provides that all abatements for water shall be reported to the Committee on Water Supply of the City Council. Ordered to a second reading.

PUBLIC LANDING.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported reference to the Executive on the order for a public landing at the Ward Two bath house. Accepted.

CINDER TRACK.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $150 for a cinder track at the Ward Two playground. Referred to the Finance Committee.

HOUGHS NECK LOT.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported ought not to pass on the order appropriating $6,500 for the purchase of the Cavanagh lot for a school building at Houghs Neck.

Councilman Smith offered a minority report that the order ought to pass. He moved that the minority be substituted for the majority.

The minority report was accepted by a vote of 11 yes and 7 no. The order was then referred to the Finance Committee.

ATTACHMENTS.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting the Telephone company attachments on various streets. Ordered to a second reading.

WILL RACE FOR A SILVER CUP

Interesting Races for Yachts of the Wollaston Club

The racing members of the Wollaston Yacht club are very much interested in the races for the sterling silver Podbury cup, which cost the donor $40.

The conditions and restrictions are as follows:

1—Yachts will be handicapped by a percentage basis, i. e. If the first boat wins by 10 mi. over the second boat, the first boat will allow her 10 mi. in next race, if first boat wins over third boat by 15 mi. first boat will allow third boat 15 mi. in next race and second boat will allow third boat 5 mi. and so on for all contestants. An average of passed races will establish the handicap for the next race.

2—There will be a series of five (5) races over the Club Course.

3—The first race will establish the handicap for second race. All races shall count for the cup. The cup shall become the property of the owner of the boat winning the greatest number of races.

4—In case of a tie there will be a sail off, the winner of the sail off will be declared the winner of the cup.

5—The records of the races will be kept secret by the Committee. The reason for so doing is to keep the boats from trying to beat the game of percentage racing. The winner of each race and positions of other boats will be posted in the Club House.

6—Working sails only allowed.

7—Crew unlimited.

8—Time limit three (3) hours.

9—Yachts must compete in at least four (4) of five (5) races.

There were several personalities at the council meeting that flavored of the retort courteous.

Councilman Flynn's description of the sleep-destroying noises around a junk storehouse sounded like the anvil chorus.

The council last night stated its position emphatically on the question of maintaining junk storehouses. It is said there are other places of a similar nature in various parts of the city and all should be dealt with impartially.

From the mayor's message to the council Monday night it is evident he does not believe he has the right to take money from the excess and deficiency fund without an express order from the council. Such a statement seems worthy of mention from the fact that it would be so easy and satisfactory to think the other way. It's a good precedent to establish at all events.

This city had a very good illustration yesterday afternoon of the old saying: "It never rains but it pours." It was, without a doubt, one of the most violent and abundant rain storms that ever visited this city. In the twinkling of an eye, almost, so much water had fallen that there wasn't a gutter or catch basin in the city able to take care of the supply of water with the result that many sidewalks and streets were under water for awhile.

Let's all hope that Young America will not attempt to celebrate "the night before" on Sunday evening. He ought to have at least respect enough for the day to wait until after midnight, Sunday. We hope the police will promptly squelch those who try to turn Sunday evening into bedlam. It would be a good thing for every Quincy pastor to caution their parishoners against this next Sunday.

The Ledger is always pleased to publish letters on public topices but it must know from whom they come. It doesn't care to publish the names of the parties writing these letters unless the authors wish it but the paper must know the name of the writer whether or not the name is published. Of course a published name adds weight to the argument although some people are in a position where, if they signed their names to be published, it might go hard with them. The Ledger had two interesting letters Monday and both were signed with the names of the men who wrote them. As a result the articles were worth twice as much as if they had been unsigned. Let's have some more letters on public topics of the day, preferably local subjects.

The letter from J. Emil Johnson, published in Monday night's Ledger, would seem to merit an answer from somebody in authority. If the citizens of Quincy have got to contribute nearly $30,000 every year for their police department, it would seem only reasonable and just that the police ambulance should be available for an emergency case such as Mr. Johnson cited. Of course it is not expected that the police ambulance is to be used for carrying cases of sickness from house to the hospital, although this has been done and within two weeks' time, but it does seem strange that the ambulance is not to be had for emergency cases. If Mr. Johnson's letter has told the whole story it would seen that the proper authorities should get in conference with the writer of the article as soon as possible.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. COUNTRY LIKE VAST RAT TRAP

Leon Ling's Capture Is Only a Question of Time

ALL CITIES ARE CO-OPERATING

Authentic Statement by Chief of New York Detective Bureau, In Which He Tells What Has Been Accompliched Thus Far In the Way of Unraveling the Sigel Murder Mystery

New York, June 29.—Inspector McCafferty, chief of the New York detective bureau, made the first authentic statement last night on the murder of Elsie Sigel that has been made by the police since the discovery of the girl's body on June 18, wedged in a trunk in the bedroom of Leon Ling, an Americanized Chinaman, above an Eighth avenue chop suey restaurant. McCafferty said in substance:

"We shall catch the murderer. Delay does not alter that, although it chafes us. The whole country is one vast rat trap, with every exit guarded.

"The girl was killed between 10 o'clock in the morning and noon of July 9 and we believe Leon Ling is the man who did it, with Chung Sing, his intimate, as a possible accomplice. We have Chung Sing. From his room in Eighth avenue Leon Ling went straight to Washington and there sent the "don't worry" telegram signed "Elsie," received on the night of the murder by the Sigel family.

"From Washington he returned to New York and somewhere about midnight, June 9, took the body in a trunk to Newark, arriving there about 2 a. m. on June 10. We don't know how he took it. That leg of the journey has not been accounted for. All available records of the various taxicab companies have been searched, but there are many privately owned machines which keep no records. A chauffeur who had made such a trip would be more than likely to have taken hush money.

"Unable to dispose of his trunk, Leon returned to New York with the body on the afternoon of June 10 and left it in his room. From that moment we lose all trace of him. So far as we know, he had no other possible accomplice than Chung Sing. We do not know what became of the clothes not found on the body. There is no evidence to show that they were ever taken to Harlem.

"No other murder that I can remember has attracted such wide interest or such enthusiastic co-operation on the part of the police of other cities. All the forces of the country are working as one great machine. We have fifty men of our own in the cities of the east.

"The only possible ship on which Leon could have left the country is due at Yokohama on July 3. She will be watched. The man cannot get out of the country. If he is alive, we shall catch him."

All the Chinese laundries in the city, which are operated by four companies in the name of individual managers, received notices yesterday in Chinese from the owners warning employes that they must have nothing to do with white women, beyond business over the counter, on pain of dismissal.

CHINESE PROGRESSIVES

Evidence of Their Strength In Appointment of New Viceroy

Washington, June 29.—Foreigners and foreign interests will feel satisfied over the appointment of Tuan Fang to be viceroy of Pe-Chi-Li province, China, to succeed Yang Shi Siang, who died on Saturday.

Tuan is pro-foreign, a man of advanced ideas and has followed the policy of educating his children in Europe and in America. He has traveled through the United States in the capacity of a high commissioner, looking into the educational systems prevailing in this country.

Tuan's appointment to the important viceroy of Pe-Chi-Li is an evidence of the strength of the progressives in the Chinese foreign office.

Boston, June 29.—Arrangements are being completed for a national exposition of aerial craft to be held in Boston early next spring, to be the first of its kind held in America. Many prominent aeronauts and others interested in aeronautics have lent their names and influence to the project.

The conference, which will last three days, has called together a large number of social workers, who will discuss such subjects as "The Social Progress of the Past Year," "The Whole World's Social Unrest," "The Negro In a Democracy," "How Industrial Education Will Bring Social Reconstruction" and "The Cost of Crowding Women Workers."

The speakers include Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of the Free synagogue, New York; William T. Ellis, the Philadelphia journalist; Robert A. Woods of South End House, Boston; Mrs. Raymond Robins of Chicago and Ray Stannard Baker, the writer.

SENATOR DURHAM DEAD

Had Been Ill For Years, but the End Comes Unexpectedly

Atlantic City, N. J., June 29.—United States Senator Israel Durham, 53 years old, of Philadelphia, successor to the late Matthew Quay as the political power of Pennsylvania, and president of the Philadelphia National league baseball club, died suddenly here while at his dinner table. He had been ill for some years from Bright's disease, together with a heart affection, and had been nursing his health for a long time.

Born Oct. 24, 1856, in Philadelphia, Durham attended the Philadelphia public schools and took up the trade of a bricklayer. Not long after Durham engaged in the flour business with his father and continued in it until he entered politics, about twenty-eight years ago.

He was recognized by every Republican worker in Philadelphia as their leader. He succeeded in building up a following of friends and supporters which no other single political leader ever had before or since.

In state politics Durham was always a follower of the late United States Senator Quay.

MUST HAVE BEST POSSIBLE WEATHER

Wrights Postpone Preliminary Trial of New Aeroplane

Washington, June 29.—Owing to a strong wind Monday afternoon the Wright brothers failed to make their initial aeroplane flight of the year at Fort Myer. Although several thousand persons sizzled in the hot sun on the Fort Myer drill grounds, the Wrights decided that the wind was too strong and too uncertain for a flight with a new and untried machine.

Wilbur Wright explained that the machine was a new one and that they never made a flight in an untried machine until it had been tested in the best possible weather. "Unless the air is calm you can't tell whether the machine is erring, or whether some little fault is caused by the wind," he added. He said they would make a flight as soon as ideal weather conditions presented an opportunity.

THREE ATTEMPTS TO KILL HIMSELF

Bad Boy In Providence Finally Placed In Straitjacket

Providence, June 29.—As the third attempt to take his life within twenty-four hours, 13-year-old Philip Noble tried to choke himself to death in court, following sentence to the Sockanosset school for boys during his minority.

Noble is charged with being the ringleader of a gang which has committed at least fifteen breaks of a minor nature in Olneyville.

When arrested at his home Sunday night Noble seized a knife and attempted to stab himself. Balked, he later sank his nails into his wrists, hoping to sever an artery, but was again prevented from taking his life.

After being sentenced Monday the boy fought, screamed and kicked, and had to be carried out of the courtroom by two officers. No sooner had the officers left him in an outside room than the boy pulled the draw string on his blouse and, making a noose of it, slipped it around his neck. He was already red in the face when a deputy chanced to enter the room and he was again stopped. Noble was then placed in a straightjacket.

FOR EMBASSY BUILDINGS

Agitators Seeking Sympathy of Americans Traveling Abroad

London, June 29.—The recently formed American Embassy association has begun a campaign among Americans living and traveling in England to enlist their support in a movement to induce the government to provide the embassies in foreign capitals with suitable buildings. The executive committee will give a big dinner July 7, when many American travelers will be the guests of the association.

The promoters believe that Americans who come abroad are more likely to take an interest in this work than those who stay at home, and they are urging the travelers to continue the agitation on their return.

New York, June 29.—For his services in promoting amity between Japan and the United States, Hamilton Holt, editor of The Independent, was decorated here, at an informal dinner given him by the Nippon club, with the Japanese Order of the Sacred Treasure.

"Open Shop" For Railway

La Crosse, Wis., June 29.—The La Crosse Street Railway strike was finally settled Monday. The men gained concessions, but the company is to have an open shop.

GOOD TEETH ARE SCARCE

Nearly 300,000 Gotham Schoolchildren Have Defective Molars

New York, June 29.—Health Commissioner Darlington of this city, in a circular of which 500,000 copies will be distributed to the parents and guardians of schoolchildren this week, says that an examination recently of 400,000 scholars showed nearly 300,000 cases in need of treatment for defective or decayed teeth. The commissioner urges the establishment of a dental clinic for schoolchildren.

The commissioner argues that "decayed teeth cause a tender and unclean mouth; improperly chewed food and the discharge from decayed teeth cause defective digestion; indigestion causes general ill-health, and ill-health makes a backward scholar, increases the susceptability to all contagious diseases and counts, in adult life, as a dead loss to the city and the nation."

The circular recommends that every child brush his or her teeth after each meal with a tooth powder composed as follows: "Two ounces powdered precipitated chalk; ½ ounce powdered castile soap; 1 dram powdered orris root, all well mixed."

SENTENCED TO DEATH

Napoleon Monat Convicted of the Murder of John Kliff

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 29.—After a trial lasting four days, the jury in the supreme court here last night brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree against Napoleon Monat.

Monat, who is 23 years old and was a trainman, was convicted of murdering John Kliff, an elderly restaurant keeper at Hopewell Junction and robbing him of $525. According to the evidence, Monat entered the restaurant and, laying 5 cents on the counter, asked for a corncob pipe. When Kliff turned to get the pipe Monat struck him over the head with a draft bolt. The first blow failed to knock the old man down, and a second one was dealt, causing death.

This morning Justice Tompkins sentenced Monat to die in the electric chair.

The trial of George Conrow, who is charged with being an accomplice in the crime, was commenced today.

DIFFERENCES ARE SETTLED

Strike of Pittsburg Street Car Employes Is Ended

DUE TO EFFORTS OF MAYOR

Points of Difference Which Had Paralyzed Traffic on Four Hundred Miles of Tracks and Cost City Over $200,000 In Two Days Are Settled at Conference In Office of Mayor Magee

Pittsburg, June 29.—At 10:30 o'clock last night the street railway strike, which cost the city of Pittsburg over $200,000 in two days, was officially declared at an end. In the private offices of Mayor Magee articles were signed by officials of the Pittsburg Railways company and an executive committee from the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes which will for years to come prevent another paralysis on the 400 miles of street railway tracks in and about Greater Pittsburg and Allegheny county.

The strike, it developed, was the outcome of two points of difference between the car company and the motormen and conductors, one being alleged neglect by the car company to shorten "swing runs" and the other refusal by the railway officials to reinstate discharged men without proper hearing.

All during Monday Magee made vain efforts to bring the two opposing elements together. At 6 o'clock last night no amicable adjustment of the differences of the men and the car company seemed in sight. But the mayor did not give up the fight, and as late as 7 o'clock he indicted a letter to both the car company officials and the union men, asking their attendance at a conference in his offices at 9 o'clock. Both sides agreed to be present.

When the men assembled the mayor addressed them in plain terms and said what he thought was only just to residents of Greater Pittsburg. He suggested that the temper of the people seemed to indicate they would never tolerate rioting or prolonged traffic disturbances.

It was only after the mayor had made his sentiments extremely plain that the car company officials and union men finally agreed to settle their differences. An agreement allowing discharged men proper hearings before superintendents and the assurance of the car company that they would shorten "swing runs" 50 percent was drawn up and signed. Greater Pittsburg's first street railway tie-up was effectively settled.

There was no ratification meeting of the men. Union headquarters were at once notified by Magee and the executive committee to instruct pickets at the car barns to call the men for duty, commencing at 5 o'clock this morning. By 7 o'clock all the 3500 cars in Greater Pittsburg were running on regular schedules.

BY CLERGY AND LAITY

Warm Welcome Extended Archbishop O'Connell on Return From Rome

Boston, June 29.—Most Rev. William H. O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, returned home from his official visit to Pope Pius X yesterday afternoon.

His homecoming was the signal for a marked show of affection on the part of the clergy and laity, who extended him a welcome that was most enthusiastic and at the same time strongly tinged with the respect and veneration which the 2,000,000 Roman Catholics of New England feel for him as their spiritual leader.

For two hours before the arrival of the Romanic the street leading to the pier in Charlestown was crowded with people, all eager to get a glimpse of the archbishop.

On the pier were the priests delegated by the committee of 100 clerics to greet the archbishop, together with the executive body of the laymen's committee.

STABBED TO DEATH

Boston Man Gets Knife Blow While Sitting on His Steps

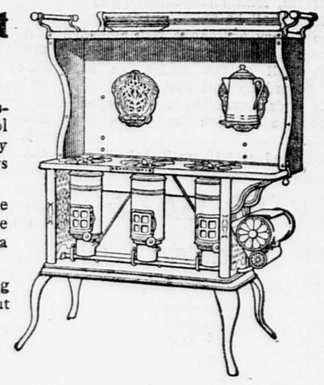

Boston, June 29.—John McNash, aged 40, married and living at 5 Garland street, was stabbed in the breast early this morning and died on the way to a hospital. John J. McAuliffe, aged 48, was arrested on the charge of murder in having caused the death of McNash.

McAuliffe, it is said, was passing along Garland street on the opposite side to McNash's house. When opposite McNash he thought the latter had called him a vile name. Running across the street he immediately attacked the man on his own doorstep.

Seventy Days' Debate Ended

Washington, June 29.—After seventy days of almost continuous debate, the senate at 3:45 p. m. Monday concluded its discussion of the schedules of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. Five minutes afterwards the senate adjourned to permit the preparation for the debate on the corporation and income tax question, which begun soon after the senate convened this morning.

PATRIOTISM NOT NEGLECTED

Report on Flag Incident Exonerates Mr. Tupper

The many friends of Frederick A. Tupper a former master of the Quincy High school, who recently figured in the unpleasant flag incident at the Brighton high school, Memorial day, will be pleased to learn that after a full investigation by the school board "The cause of Patriotism is in no wise neglected in the Brighton High school.

The report of George E. Brock of the school board who has been conducting the investigation says:—

"From the long and intimate association with the Brighton High School and after careful consideration of the matter referred to me in connection therewith, I report.

"That the cause of patriotism is in no wise neglected in the Brighton High School. Love of country and respect to 'The Flag' are consistently and faithfully taught. The pupils of the school are the sons and daughters of patriotic American citizens, the teachers are above reproach and the head-master a gentleman, a product of our public schools, a loyal son of Massachusetts, and a patriotic American citizen.

"I had the honor to present to the school in behalf of the school committee a beautiful silk flag, which is carried by the boys when on parade. It is kept in a conspicuous place in the main corridor of the school building, easily seen by all who enter there, and in full view of the pupils as they pass and repass from one recitation room to another during school sessions.

"Patriotic exercises are regularly observed in accordance with the rules and regulations of the school committee, to which members of the G. A. R. have always been welcome.

"When the patriotic instructor assigned to the Brighton High School arrived on the morning of May 27, 1909, before 9 o'clock, the flag was not flying from the staff. He called the headmaster's attention to the fact, and the janitor was ordered to raise the flag, and at 9 o'clock, when school began, the flag was flying in front of the building.

"The trouble seems to have culminated when the two men arrived in the assembly hall, just previous to the entrance of the pupils. The patriotic instructor noted the absence of the American flag and observed what he thought was an English flag on the wall. They exchanged compliments. There were no witnesses to the conversation, and it need not be discussed.

"The American flag was not there, but no law, rule or regulation was broken in consequence of its absence. It was, however, shortly produced, and placed upon the platform.

"The flags objected to were:

"1. The Massachusetts State flag.

"2. The Bunker Hill flag, supposed to have been carried by the patriots at the battle of Bunker Hill.

"3. The New England flag of 1686.

"These flags were not placed there for that occasion but are permanent decorations of the hall, presented to the school by the Public School Art League and accepted by the school committee.

"They are not British flags, but Massachusetts flags, in which every loyal son of Massachusetts takes a just pride, and I believe that objection was made to their presence through a misunderstanding as to what they were.

"Testimony of the teachers reveals the fact that the headmaster presided over the exercises with his usual dignity and with becoming courtesy to the speaker, and at the close of the address called for a vote of thanks, which was generously given and acknowledged by the speaker. The speaker then left the platform, saluted the flag, and took his departure and after the school had sung "America" the exercises came to a close.

"The school committee welcomes the visits of the members of the G. A. R. to our schools, to take a prominent part in these patriotic exercises, and desires that the present harmonious relations existing between the Massachusetts Department of the G. A. R. and this board be still further cemented.

"I therefore suggest that our rules and regulations relative to the display of the flag and the observance of patriotic days be forwarded to the department, that the superintendent issue a special circular to the masters of our schools calling attention to those rules and regulations, and bespeaking for the members of the G. A. R. on their visits a hearty and cordial welcome. I also suggest that we call the department's attention to the following paragraph in their circular of instruction to patriotic instructors.

" 'It is of supreme importance to secure the sympathic co-operation of those in charge of the public schools. Methods of accomplishing this will vary greatly, but a kindly spirit, and of concession also, will secure the desired end, reaching the children with our message.'

"I suggest that they issue a special circular requesting the carful observance of this very wise and important instruction.

"I believe that if these suggestions are followed out, further trouble of this kind may be avoided."

OF PUBLIC INTEREST.

Editor of Ledger:

I wish to announce through your columns that I am not the Cateldo Coletti that had the trouble with Joseph Badot. So many people have approached me about the matter, that I take this liberty to state it was a party by the same name. I am a law abiding citizen and never have any trouble with anybody. Thanking you for the use of your columns.—Cateldo Colettie, 174 Copeland street.

WILLIAMS' WARNING

Aliens to Be Subjected to Close Scrutiny at Port of New York

New York, June 29.—The commissioner of immigration for this port is so dissatisfied with present conditions that he issued a letter of warning to all trans-Atlantic steamship companies. Mr. Williams complains that recently somtimes as high as 35 percent of immigrants have been held for special inquiry.

Too many aliens, he says, are coming to this country with insufficient funds. In the absence of statutory provisions, the commissioner thinks each individual should have at least $25 cash, besides his ticket to his destination. All persons in any way likely to become charges of the nation will be turned back, he says, and official scrutiny of incomers is to be made more and more searching.

Much Damage by Short Storm

New York, June 29.—A local thunder storm broke with the violence of a cloudburst late Monday. The storm lasted only fifteen minutes, but it was responsible for the death by lightning of one man and the injury of several persons, while hundreds of city streets were turned into rivers and cellars were flooded.

Brandenburg Case Ready For Jury

New York, June 29.—The end of the trial of Broughton Brandenburg, charged with grand larceny in the sale of an alleged spurious letter of Grover Cleveland to the New York Times, drew near with the beginning of the summing up by the attorneys. The case will go to the jury today.

Lightning's Work In Delaware

Dover, Del., June 29.—One woman was killed, three houses were burned, horses and cattle were killed and much other damage was done by a severe electrical storm which visited central Delaware.

You must reach the spot—get at the cause.

Jas. C. Dunn, living at 508 Washington street, Quincy, Mass., says: "For some time I was afflicted with lumbago. My back ached constantly and I could hardly get about the house. The constant aching gave me so much trouble that my nervous system became all unstrung and I had about dispaired of ever getting anything that would cure me when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention. I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store, began their use and after a short time, I received more belief than from all the other remedies combined. I can say my trouble has vanished and I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

BRIEFS

A regular meeting of the School Committee will be held tonight. It will be the last meeting until August.

A whist party is to be held at the Great Hill house, Houghs Neck, Wednesday evening.

This is the week of reunions of Harvard graduates and Quincy graduates are attending their class reunions.

The joint committee on Finance and Streets will meet Thursday evening, also the Committee on Ordinances.

A lawn party for charitable purposes will be held on the grounds at the residence of Mayor Shea on Common street, Wednesday, July 14.

Mayor Shea was at Williams jewelry store buying prizes for the July 5 celebration when the shower came Monday and had to telephone for a carriage to get him back to City hall.

How the vegetable gardens will grow after the rains of Monday.

These are busy days at the district court. There has been an unusual amount of criminal business every day.

Cards have been received from the Misses Osborne of Bigelow street announcing their arrival at the Azores on the 18th. They report delightful weather and an enjoyable trip so far and are anticipating the delights of Rome and Naples.

If anyone should mention it, the City Council has been doing some strenuous work for the past month. Meetings have been held every Monday evening and the calendar is fast being cleared of the petitions and orders that have been accumulating since the first of the year.

Did anybody notice how hard it rained Monday afternoon? The water came down by the bucketful, turning the street gutters into running rivers. In some places in City Square the width of the river was nearly ten feet, making it impossible to cross, as the catch basins were not large enough to carry off the water as fast as it fell. The water was also black from contact with the oil that had been put on the streets and several had their clothing spoiled with it. The water ran off a few minutes after it had stopped raining.

John A. Preston the dramatic author, actor and manager, with his wife and little daughter, Virginia, are guests of his father at Park street, Wollaston. He has just completed a very successful season on a circuit extending from Seattle, through the middle west, Texas, Mexico, and through Southern California. Mr. Preston is a Quincy boy formerly a pupil at the Coddington school and also a graduate from the Patriot office where he was a "printer's devil" supplying the electric and steam power on the little hand press used in those days.

Master Harold Morgan of Standish avenue entertained a merry company of young folks Monday afternoon in honor of his sixth birthday. The joyous company of children after heartily indulging in games on the lawn marched in to the dining room where ice cream and cake were enjoyed. The little guests were Dorothy and Ruric Robertson of Hyde Park, Dorothy and George Cole, Mildred Geddes, Ferris Titus, May Cook, Hope Robinson, Ada Meaney, Earle Harrington, Charles Clark and Richard Kimball.

BRIEFS

Mr. Frank Billings spent Sunday at Weymouth with friends.

The George A. Browns of Wollaston left this week for Hancock, N. H., where they will spend the summer.

Mrs. M. Canty of Roslindale is spending this week with her sister, Mrs. L. Duncan of Crescent street.

Grace Purdom of Newport avenue is in Weymouth for a fortnight with her cousin, Mrs. Robert Donnelly.

Charles H. Johnson, auctioneer sells at auction on Friday the standing grass at Mount Wollaston farm, Sea street.

Frank A. Tirrell, Jr., of Gay street left this morning for Dover-Foxcroft, Maine, where he will spend his summer vacation with his sister Mrs. Herbert W. Cass.

Frederick H. and Arthur Dunstan of Station street sailed today for Europe on the steamer Ivernia. Many of their friends were at the dock to wish them God-speed, and a happy voyage.

Rev. William E. Gardner rector of St. James church, Cambridge, and Mrs. Gardner are to spend the month of August at Bridgeton, Maine.

Harold W. Hopkins of Arlington street has gone to Ipswich to spend the summer with his uncle Milton W. Chadbourne.

A novel feature will be introduced by the Sunday school of the Wollaston Unitarian church. During the summer when the Sunday school sessions are generally discontinued, a short song service to which all are welcome, will be held at the usual hour and which will last only ten or fifteen minutes.

There is much interest shown in the whist tournament between the champion whist players Napoleon Grignon, John Minahan vs. Ed. Desmond and George Nelson of the Copeland club. They are to play a series of five games of which three have been played. The score is 113 to 111 in favor of Grignon and Minahan.

HEALTH IMPROVING.

Word has been received from Middletown, Pa., that E. Landis Snyder who has been seriously ill is very much better. He had a bad turn a few days ago which gave rise to rumors that he was in a serious condition. While he has been seriously ill he is very much better at the present time and on the road to recovery. His many friends in Quincy will be glad to learn that the rumors of last week were false.

—In Franklin, N. H., the movement for a more sane celebration of the Fourth will be worked out along one line at least, for red cross placards will be placed on houses where there is illness, and the celebrators are expected to respect these signs by refraining from firing crackers or making other noise around such houses.

☞The annual picnic of Christ church will be held at Glen Echo Park, Stoughton, Wednesday, June 30th. Special cars will leave the corner of Quincy avenue and School streets at 9 A. M. If stormy Wednesday the picnic will be held the following day.

☞A boy of good education and interested in machinery will be given an opportunity to learn to run a typesetting machine at the Ledger Office. It is pleasant and profitable work and a fine chance for the right boy to learn what generally costs considerable money at the typesetting schools.

SURPRISE PARTY.

A very pleasurable event was a surprise party given by Mrs. Edythe Stanley Newton in honor of her husband's, Thomas Newton's, birthday, Saturday evening, at their home, 284 Granite street.

It was in the form of a lawn party and barn dance, both being prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns.

A surprise to all was a dinner served in a room curtained off in the barn for the occasion. Festoons of lanterns lit up the table on which was placed a birthday cake with the inscription, "Birthday Greetings, June 27, 1909. Twenty-three candles surrounded it, denoting the age of the recipient, who was presented with a solitaire diamond ring by his many well-wishing friends. At midnight the party broke up after each serenaded with fireworks received as favors.

Guests were present from Quincy, Milton, Boston, South and East Boston, Dorchester, Roxbury and Cambridge.

GATHERING OF CHEMISTS

Visit to University and a Banquet Form Part of Program

Detroit, June 29.—The American Chemical society, organized for the advancement of chemistry and the promotion of chemical research, began in this city today its annual summer meeting. The convention, attended by leading chemists of the United States, will remain in session four days.

On Thursday the members of the society will visit the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. They will be the guests of the university for the day and will return to Detroit in the evening for a banquet. The program of the convention consists mainly of papers of wide general interest.

Uncle Sam to Drop Sugar Case

New York, June 29.—A conference between counsel for the American Sugar Refining company and for the United States was followed by a rumor that the government will not further press its charges against the company of preventing the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining company, a competitor, from doing business.

No Frills About Brown

Atlanta, June 29.—Governor Joseph Brown, who was inaugurated last Saturday with unusual simplicity, brought to the capitol Monday a gourd dipper with a long handle. He placed this primitive drinking cup at a water cooler in the reception room at the capitol.

Honest Answer.

The stories told of Snetzler, a famous Swiss organ builder, prove that he was a man of rare and incorruptible honesty. At one time the parish officers of a country church applied to Snetzler to examine their organ and make improvements in it.

"Gentlemen," said Snetzler after a careful examination of the instrument in question, "your organ be wort £100 joost now. Vell, I vill spend you £100 on it, and it shall den be wort £50!"—London Graphic.

Those Elaborate Defenses.

"Would you shoot a man who assailed your veracity?"

"No," answered the peaceful citizen. "I'd rather take a chance on his personal opinion than to go before a jury with a story that might convince the general public that he was right."—Washington Star.

Pretty Light.

"I'll have to ask you to pay in advance," remarked the hotel keeper.

"Isn't my luggage good enough security?"

"I fear it is a little too emotional."

"Emotional?"

"Yes; easily moved."—London Mail.

Wanton Waste.

The Nurse—You've been badly hurt. The Victim—Whatcha gointer do ter me now? The Nurse—Rub you with alcohol. The Victim—Gee, I wisht I'd been turned inside out!—Cleveland Leader.

— The Boston Record gives good advice when it says: "Do not forget the dog these days. He suffers with the heat just as humans do, but much of his suffering can be relieved if a dish of water is left in a shady place where he can get it whenever he wishes. More than that the water will go far toward keeping him a healthy dog. Dogs that are given plenty of drinking water seldom go mad."

RESIGNATIONS ELECTIONS

Changes in the Teaching Corps of the Quincy Schools

The last meeting of the School Committee until August was held Tuesday evening. Dr. Hunting was the only absent member and John L. Miller was elected Chairman protem.

James F. Burke presented the following resolutions on the death of Miss Emeline A. Newcomb for 52 years a teacher at the Willard school which were unanimously adopted.

RESOLUTIONS.

Miss Emeline A. Newcomb, who passed to her final rest and reward on the fifth instant, was a teacher in the Willard School of this City continuously from April, 1857 to May 28, 1909, a period of over fifty-two years.

Beginning at the early age of eighteen, she served faithfully through many changing conditions the children of two generations. Her record was remarkable not only for its length but from the fact that she taught in the same district during all those years. Quietly she went to her daily work and performed it in a modest and unassuming way, always devoted to her duty and loyal to the community.

Just as her associates were about to congratulate her upon retiring to complete and well-earned rest, her sudden death came to them as a painful shock.

The School Committee of the City of Quincy desires to express its high appreciation of her long and faithful public serivce and to offer its sincere condolence to the stricken relatives.

It is also ordered that these resolutions be spread upon the records of the School Committee and that a suitably engrossed copy of the same be sent to the family of the deceased.

RESIGNATIONS.

The following resignations were received and accepted. Herbert B. Cole, Walter L. Graves and L. Frances Tucker of the High school. Mr. Cole has accepted a position in the commercial department of the girls high school at Boston, Mr. Graves will take up the study of law and Miss Tucker goes to the Lynn high school.

Miss Gertrude A. Boyd of the Gridley Bryant school; C. Ralph Taylor of the Massachusetts Fields, Wollaston district who goes to the girls high school Boston; Miss Blanche A. Leonard of the Mass. Fields, who goes to Taunton schools; Miss Frances G. Blair of the Quincy school who goes to Montclair, N. J., and Miss Mary L. Clark of the Wollaston school.

ELECTIONS.

The following teachers were elected:

Clarence J. Fouche, supervisor of music, Miss Marjorie Fay to the High school, Miss Mary A. Coyle to the Gridley Bryant school, David H. Goodspeed as master of the Massachusetts Field-Wollaston district, Miss Adaline S. Williams to the Massachusetts Fields, Miss Dora L. Weston to the Quincy school, Miss Jessie O. Shirley to the Willard school, Miss Ruth A. Small to the Wollaston school, Louise C. Monk and Miss Ruth C. Murray to the Lincoln school, Miss Margaret A. Lennon as chief clerk to the head master of the High school.

Mr. Goodspeed the new master of the Massachusetts Field-Wollaston district comes to Quincy from the High school at Natick where he made an enviable record. He has also taught at Walpole and has had six years experience as a teacher. He is a graduate of the Hyannis normal school.

Miss Lennon who has been elected as clerk to the master of the High school was one of the best students who graduated from the commercial course of the high school this year.

LADIES' DAY.

Arrangements Complete for the Annual Social Event.

Announcement for the annual ladies' day event of the Quincy Yacht club was issued today. The program will differ but little from that of other years. The event will take place on Thursday July 8, and if that day proves to be stormy it will be held on the following day.

From 3 to 5 o'clock there will be a review and sail in the harbor. All the yachts of the club fleet will be at the disposal of the guests and in addition the committee have engaged the steamer Houghs Neck and the fast power launch Alert so that all who desire to participate in the sail will have an opportunity to do so.

The preparatory gun will be fired at 2.45 and the flag denoting the number of the course to be sailed will be displayed on the float. At 3 o'clock a second gun will be fired. This will be the signal for the yachts to get under way and pass in review of Commodore Robbins.

On the return from the sail a lunch will be served in the club house and in the evening there will be dancing. During the sail those who from choice prefer to remain at the club house will be entertained with a concert by Hanley's orchestra.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

At the semi-annual election of Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows Tuesday evening, George Fisher was elected Noble Grand and Thomas E. Furnald, Vice Grand. They will be installed in July.

FRIENDS WANTED.

Police Looking for Friends or Relatives of Dennis McCarthy.

The police would be glad to hear from the relatives or friends of Dennis McCarthy, who died at West Quincy, Tuesday night. Mr. McCarthy had been employed at the Fore River and was taken ill with tuberculosis. He was taken to West Quincy where he has been living in a tent at 34 Common street. He was about 65 years of age and is supposed to be a resident of Worcester.

From cards found among his effects it is thought that he was a stone cutter although he had been employed at the Fore River. He has been twice married, his first wife having died some years ago leaving nine children, whose whereabouts are unknown. In 1888 he married a Providence woman who, with several children is supposed to be living, but it is not known where.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Well Known Lawyer Almost Electrocuted in His Office.

Philip H. Sullivan, the well known Braintree lawyer, had a narrow escape a few nights ago from being killed by electricity. As he tells the story, he was using his telephone. He had one hand on the instrument and with the other touched an electric light fixture. In some unaccountable manner he received a severe shock. He was unable to let go with either hand for some minutes. He finally broke the circuit and was released. There is a long mark across his breast showing the course of the current and on his arm is a large black and blue spot.

MAKARIA OUTING.

Arriving at the beach the party visited Paragon Park, where they took in all of the many side shows. Leaving for home in good season the party were treated to fruit and confectionery and the air resounded with the singing of the young men and their ladies.

It was one of the most successful outings that the Fraternity has ever held.

LAWN PARTY AT WEST QUINCY

Auspices of Ladies Aid and Epworth League

The lawn party held under the auspices of the Ladies Aid and Epworth league on the grounds of the Hall Place M. E. church, West Quincy, Tuesday evening was a great success. Seldom has this church had such pleasant weather for festive occasions, for it has become almost proverbial that whenever any entertainment was planned for, it was sure to storm, at the last minute and thus spoil all. But on this occasion the moon and stars shone their brightest as if in approval of all that happened. A large crowd was present from different parts of the city. The grounds were tastefully decorated and lighted by long rows of Japanese lanterns. The entertainment consisted of phonograph selections which were enjoyed by all.

The following committees were in charge:

Ice Cream table—Mrs. Fred L. Badger, Mrs. William Loud, Mrs. McCormick.

Apron table—Mrs. George Hawes, Mrs. Charles W. Wentzel.

Lemonade—Miss Ada Williams, Mrs. William McCormick.

Such big fines as were imposed yesterday by Judge Avery ought to prove a powerful deterrent in the case of using dangerous weapons.

The cases of malicious injury to property as reported this week were among the worst that have ever come to notice. Why it is that boys should be possessed of a determination to wreck and ruin derricks and polished monuments, which represent the outlay of hundreds of dollars, is beyond the comprehension of the ordinary mind. It is to be hoped that the right parties will be caught and that the lesson will be remembered.

It is a popular play in rhetorical discussion, when arguing for the apparently losing side, to work in a sympathetic phase but when public disputants foist the title of "poor, hardworking widow woman" on a lady not yet married, it is rather overstretching the sympathetic bond.

The new derrick at Quincy Adams is rapidly getting a reputation for being out of order. Despite the modern electrical inventions it is pretty hard work to get a contrivance to beat the old fashioned boom derrick. Most of the English shipbuilding firms found that out some time ago.

It is hard to tell, in these days of modern electrical inventions where danger lurks. A Quincy lawyer while sitting at his desk Monday night took hold of the telephone to send a message and with the other hand started to pull an electric desk lamp towards him when he received a shock that burned his arm badly.

Considering the campaign, personal canvass and party affiliation solicitations which candidates for the city council put up during the city campaign, it is surprising how many take little or no interest, in many things which come before the council for settlement. There were several matters which came up for a vote and not a single voice was heard for or against the motions. If the people are worth representing at all they are worth representing better than that.

The public letter to the Ledger Monday night from Rev. A. Edwin Clattenberg of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church concerning certain matters connected with the Board of Directors of the Woodward Institute for Girls, would seem to merit a further statement from somebody. It will be a surprise to many to know that so few clergymen of the city are members of the board of directors by reason of active participation in the affairs of the school although to others who have been familiar with what newspaper men call "the inside story," there is not so much surprise. Dr. Woodward clearly expressed himself in the terms of the gift which he left for the school that all the clergymen of the city, regardless of creed or theological differences, should be members of the board of directors and when the school was first opened nearly every church in the city was represented on the board by its pastor. As Rev. Mr. Clattenberg says, the number of clergymen eligible for positions on the board, is about 30 at the present time and his statement that out of those 30 only three, four or a possible five attend the meetings of the board of directors is a condition that shows something out of the ordinary exists. Rev. Mr. Clattenberg says these few members constitute "the machine" and clergymen outside the "machine" are supposed to vote just as the "machine" wants. For several years past clergymen of certain denominations have refrained from attending the meetings but the great majority of citizens did not know the reason why if they knew of such a condition at all. Considering that all Quincy-born girls, regardless of their religious beliefs and all Quincy pastors, regardless of the churches they represent are eligible as pupils and directors, it does seem as if such a condition could be made to exist whereby all pastors would feel that they were following out the terms of Dr. Woodward's will when they meet to attend the session of the board of directors. There is no reason, as far as the layman can see it, why a majority rule should not prevail in the discussions of the clergymen of Quincy as well as in other bodies of a public or semipublic nature. To a more or less extent the Woodward Institute has become a part of the public school system of the city but that fact in no wise prevents the clergymen from acting as Dr. Woodward intended they should. In that school are girls who probably represent every church in the city and if Dr. Woodward intended their welfare should be looked after by a board of directors composed of all the pastors in the city, there would seem to be no good reason, in theory at least, why such a state of affairs should not exist. If there is anything that exists which interferes with the proper carrying out of the spirit of Dr. Woodward's deed of gift, as is suggested by Rev. Mr. Clattenberg, an explanation of some kind would seem to be in order.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class o classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

WISE IS AFTER DEPOSITIONS

Goes to Paris in Connection With Panama Libel Case

NEWSPAPER OBTAINED ORDER

Wants Testimony of Certain Witnesses to Combat Claim That New York World and Indianapolis News Libeled Noted Men—Attorney's Departure Causes Speculation as to His Attitude In Sugar Trust Case

New York, June 30.—Sailing from this city on a Cunard liner was United States District Attorney Henry A. Wise, who is bound for the French capital on a quest connected with the suit for libel against the New York World and the Indianapolis News in which the federal government is interested.

The going abroad of the government prosecutor for this district follows the obtaining of an order in the United States district court by the publisher of the World for the examination of certain witnesses residing in Paris. Mr. Wise will take depositions of his own, and the counsel for the defendant will be present at the examination of his witnesses. The United States attorney received an order from the United States circuit court a month ago to go to Paris.

The proceedings against the World and the Indianapolis News were begun in Washington on Jan. 18, when subpoenas for witnesses were issued. Indictments were found there on Feb. 17 and in this city on March 4. The indictments in Washington were against the proprietors of both papers and the editors of the World, while in this city they were against Mr. Van Hamm, managing editor of the World, and the Press Publishing company, which publishes the World. An effort is being made in Indianapolis to take Mr. Williams and Mr. Smith of the News to Washington for trial.

The complainants in the prosecution are former President Roosevelt, President Taft, Senator Root, J. P. Morgan, Charles P. Taft, Douglas Robinson and William Nelson Cromwell, who assert that the World and the News libeled them by declaring that there were dishonest proceedings in the sale of the rights of the old French Panama company to the United States government.

Conflicting reports as to the government's attitude toward the American Sugar Refining company, the so-called sugar trust, became current here with the departure of Wise.

Mr. Wise was quoted on one hand as saying that he was through with any attempt at prosecuting the American Sugar Refining company so far as its relations with the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining company were concerned, because of the statute of limitations.

On the other hand, it was said that other evidence might be unearthed, which would not be affected by the statute and with this as a basis the prosecution would proceed. And aside from prosecution based on the negotiations with the Philadelphia concern the general understanding is that the government's plan to proceed with a general suit under the anti-trust law will go along uninterrupted.

The present grand jury investigation concerns directors of the so-called trust, individually, charging conspiracy under a criminal clause of the Sherman act. Whether the federal grand jury will continue its inquiry during Wise's absence has not been made known.

Scituate, Mass., June 30.—In a bower of the most exquisite products of one of the finest gardens of America Marion Lawson, second daughter of the famous financier and author, Thomas W. Lawson, became today the bride of James F. Lord of Chicago. The wedding decorations planned by the bride in yellow, her favorite color, and white brought forth enthusiastic praise from the large bridal party.

MISS MARION LAWSON.

Dreamwold, the Lawson estate near this place, is at its best in June, with thousands and thousands of rosebushes and other flowering plants. The ceremony was performed in the beautiful garden.

Today's wedding is the outcome of a meeting of the young couple at the Onwentsia Hunt club, at Lake Forest, Ills., something over a year ago. Both bride and bridegroom are lovers of horses, and much of the courtship was carried on while they were mounted on horseback. Mr. Lord is master of the hounds of the Onwentsia club.

Mrs. Lord and her sister, formerly Miss Gladys Lawson and now Mrs. Eben B. Stanwood, have been prominent in the society of Boston for several years. They made their entry first in the sporting set. Later their cleverness and charm carried them into the most exclusive of Back Bay circles.

Why RALSTON SHOES fit the feet

Ask any man who has ever worn a pair of RALSTONS what he thinks of them. He will tell you they're the most comfortable shoes he has ever worn. Try on a pair yourself and you'll say the same.

The secret of the exceptional fitting qualities of RALSTON SHOES lies in the fact that they're made over foot-moulded lasts — exact replicas of human feet, following the graceful foot curves on top and sides and moulded on the bottom in conformity with the mounds and depressions of the natural foot. RALSTON SHOES—for this reason—need no "breaking in."

We shall be pleased to show you how perfectly we can fit your feet.

NEW AEROPLANE REFUSES TO FLY

Wrights Promise to Soon Have the Difficulty Adjusted

Washington, June 30.—After making three unsuccessful efforts to get his new aeroplane into the air Tuesday, Orville Wright made a short flight, encircling the Fort Myer aerodrome.

Lack of power, due to a loose spark control, was finally determined upon by the two Wrights as the cause of the refusal of the machine to fly more than a few hundred feet beyond the end of the starting rail.

"A flying machine is like a horse," is the way Wilbur put it afterwards. "If it's new you have got to get used to it before it will go just where you want it to. You have to learn its peculiarities. I am glad we learned what the trouble is and after a few more trials you will see some fun."

A WIFE-BEATING EPIDEMIC

Seven Indiana Men Blame Hot Weather For Their Brutality

Whiting, Ind., June 30.—Seven men who were taken to jail yesterday for beating their wives will plead in court that the hot wave drove them to assault.

The most serious of the attacks made was by James Brown, who threw a shoe at his wife and tore off one of her ears. He was fined $25. Returning home he beat his wife so fiercely that she probably will die. He said his anger against her had been heated to frenzy by the weather.

The other six alleged wife-beaters also charge their rage to the weather.

American Citizen Clubbed and Then Lynched In Her Capital

Washington, June 30.—Demand upon Guatemala for a thorough investigation into the killing of William Wright, a negro American citizen, who was clubbed almost to death and then lynched in Guatemala, has been made by American Minister Heinke at Guatemala City, under instructions of the state department.

Reports to the department intimate that the trial of the murderers was a farce and that there was corruption among the officials having to do with the punishment of the offenders.

LETTERS TO EASTMAN

They Indicate That Mrs. Woodill Had Warm Attachment For Him

St. Michaels, Md., June 30.—The feelings entertained by Mrs. Edith M. Woodill towards her slayer, "Lame Bob" Eastman, were indicated in a letter signed "Edith," parts of which were found in the bungalow of the murderer and suicide, and just given out for publication.

The missive, which is in Mrs. Woodill's handwriting, and couched in most sentimental language, not only indicates a warm attachment for the man, but seems to prove that she had known him at least a year.

Boston Lawyers Offend Court by Shouting During an Argument

Boston, June 30.—So heated became the verbal combat and so strident the voices of District Attorney Hill and Daniel F. Coakley during the examination of former Mayor Fitzgerald in the trial of two former city officials charged with larceny in the sale of flagstones, that both lawyers were called sharply to order by Judge Sanderson and each was obliged to apologize.

Fitzgerald's failure to remember about contracts which he signed occasioned much controversy between the prosecuting and defending lawyers. It was during the effort to refresh his memory that Hill and Coakley began to shout at each other.

The former mayor failed to remember any better after the turmoil had subsided.

GOUIN IS RECAPTURED

Made No Resistance When Found Hiding In Woods

Salem, N. H., June 30.—Joseph Gouin, who escaped from the New Hampshire state hospital for the criminal insane, was recaptured at Canoble lake and turned over to Deputy Sheriff Scott of Exeter. Gouin was hiding in the woods near the lake when the searching party came upon him. He made no resistance.

Gouin was serving a term of twenty to thirty years for his part in the robbery of a factory at Dover on Feb. 19, 1906, and the killing of an Italian immediately after the robbery.

William Chapman, the other prisoner who escaped with Gouin, was captured in Madbury Monday.

POLLY of the CIRCUS

BY MARGARET MAYO

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY DODD, MEAD AND COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Polly, a child of the circus, is brought up by Toby, a clown, and by a boss canvasman called "Muvver Jim." She learns to ride Bingo, a circus horse, and grows to woman hood knowing no life except that of the circus. II—A church near the circus lot interests Polly. Jim rerpoves her for her reckless riding. III—Polly urges Bingo to unprecedented speed and falls. Toby and Jim carry the injured girl to the parsonage nearby. IV—The Rev. John Douglas, much to Deacon Elverson's disgust, takes Polly into the parsonage. Tobby and "Muvver Jim" are received kindly by Douglas, who has placed Polly in charge of his colored servant, Mandy. Douglas promises to care for the girl until she is well. V—When Polly becomes conscious she declares that she must rejoin the circus at once. "Are you a sky pilot?" she asks the minister. Her mother was killed riding a circus horse, and her father "got his'n in a lion's cage." The minister reads to her about Ruth and Naomi, and Polly says, "I guess I'd like to hear you spiel." VI—Douglas offends Deacon Strong by defending boys who play baseball on Sunday. VII—Polly recovers her health, but is saddened by the death of Toby. Jim sends the news and promises to keep in touch with her. VIII—Polly recovers from the blow dealt her by Toby's death. She has ceased using slang and is educating herself under Douglas, guidance. She endeavors to improve Mandy's grammar. IJ—Deacons Strong and Elverson reprove the pastor for harboring the circus girl. Douglas declares that he is merely doing his duty. Strong declares that the girl must go. Douglas defies him. X.—Douglas suggests to Polly that she go to a seminary. Her quotation "And Ruth said, 'Entreat me not to leave three.'" reveals to both the fact that they love each otehr. Douglas takes her in his arms and tells her that she is never to leave him. XI—"Mubber Jim" calls and notes the change in Polly's Polly tells him she has abandoned the circus business. Deacons Strong and Elverson inform Polly that she can save the minister trouble be returning to the circus. Learning that the deacons contemplate discharging Douglas, she rebuffs Douglas, declares that she yearns for the circus and rushes away sobbing. XII—Douglas is very unhappy. A month passes and the circus plays a return engagement. Hasty, Mandy's husband, ascertains that Polly is not riding. Douglas believes she is ill and starts for the circus. XIII—Barker, manager of the show, reproves Jim because Polly will not ride in the minister's town. Polly admits to Jim that she loves the minister, but declares that he does not love her. She makes Jim promise to keep her secret.

She turned quickly. She could not answer. Douglas came toward her. He gazed at her in amazement. She drew her cape about her slightly clad figure. She seemed older to him, more unapproachable with her hair heaped high and sparkling with jewels.

She found strength at last to open her lips, but still no sound came from them. She and the pastor looked at each other strangely, like spirits newly met from far apart worlds. She, too, thought her companion changed. He was older; the circles beneath his eyes were deeper, the look in their depths more grave.

"We were such close neighbors today I—I rather thought you'd call," he stammered. He was uncertain what he was saying. It did not matter—he was there with her.

"When you're in a circus there isn't much time for calling."

"That's why I've come to call on you." They might have been shepherd and shepherdess on a May day wooing for the halting way in which their words came.

"You're all right?" he went on. "You're happy?"

"Yes, very," she said. Her eyes were downcast.

He did not believe her. The effort in her voice, her drawn, white face, belied her words. How could he get the truth from her?

"Jim said you might not want to see me."

She started.

"Has Jim been talking to you?"

"Yes, but I didn't let him stop me, for you told me the day you left that you'd never change—toward me. Have you, Polly?" He studied her anxiously

"Why, no, of course not," she said evasively.

"And you'll be quite frank when I ask you something?"

"Yes, of course." She was growing more and more uneasy. She glanced about for a way of escape.

"Why did you leave me as you did?"

"I told you then." She tried to cross toward the dressing tent.

He seized her small wrists and forced her to look at him.

"And I am not happy without you, never, never can be." The flood- ere open. His eyes were aglow. toward her eagerly.

own so close," he cried. "so close!" She struggled to be free. He did not heed her. "You know, you must know what I mean." He drew her toward him and forced her into his arms. "You're more precious to me than all else on this earth."

For the first time he saw the extreme pallor on her face. He felt her growing limp and lifeless in his arms. A doubt crossed his mind. "If I am wrong in thinking you feel as I do, if you honestly care for all this," he glanced about at the tents, "more than for any life that I can give you, I shan't interfere. You'll be going on your way in an hour. I'll say goodby and God bless you, but if you do care for me, Polly," he was pleading now, "if you're not happy here, won't you come back to me? Won't you, Polly?"

She dared not meet his eyes nor yet to send him away. She stood irresolute. The voice of Deacon Strong answered for her.

"So you're here, are you?"

"Yes, Deacon Strong, I'm here," answered the pastor as he turned to meet the accusing eyes of the deacon.

"As for you, miss," continued Strong, with an insolent nod toward Polly, "I might have known how you'd keep your part of the bargain."

"Bargain!" echoed Douglas. "What bargain?"

"Oh, please, Deacon Strong, please. I didn't mean to see him—I didn't, truly." She hardly knew what she was saying.

"What bargain?" demanded Douglas.

"She told me that you and her wasn't ever goin' to see each other ag'in!" roared Strong. "If I'd knowed she was goin' to keep on with this kind of thing you wouldn't have got off so easy."

"So that's it!" cried Douglas. It was all clear to him now. He recalled everything—her hysterical behavior, her laughter, her tears. "It was you who drove that child back to this." He glanced at Polly. The narrow shoulders were bent forward. The nervous little fingers were clasping and unclasping each other. Never before had she seemed so small and helpless.

"Oh, please, Mr. John, please don't make him any worse!"

"Why didn't you tell me?" he demanded.

"It would have done no good," she sobbed. "Oh, why—why won't you leave me alone?"

"It would have done all the good in the world. What right had he to send you back to this?"

"I had every right," said Strong stubbornly.

"What?" cried Douglas.

"It was my duty."

"Your duty? Your narrow minded bigotry!"

"I don't allow no man to talk to me like that, not even my parson."

"I'm not your parson any longer," declared Douglas. He faced Strong squarely. He was master of his own affairs at last. Polly clung to him, begging and beseeching

"Oh, Mr. John, Mr. John!"

"What do you mean by that?" shouted Strong.

"I mean that I stayed with you and your narrow minded congregation before because I believed you needed me. But now this girl needs me more. She needs me to protect her from just such injustice as yours."

"You'd better be protectin' yourself. That's my advice to you."

"I can do that without your advice."

"Maybe you can find another church with that circus ridin' girl a-hangin' round your neck."

"He's right," cried Polly. "You couldn't." She clung to the pastor in terrified entreaty. "You couldn't get another church. They'd never, never forgive you. It's no use. You've got to let me go! You've got to!"

"Listen, Polly." He drew her toward him. "God is greater than any church or creed. There's work to be done everywhere—his work."

"You'll soon find out about that," thundered Strong.

"So I will," answered Douglas, with his head thrown high. "This child has opened a new world to me. She has shown me a broader, deeper humanity. She and I will find the way together."

"It won't be an easy one, I'll promise you that." Strong turned to go.

"I'm not looking for the easy way," Douglas called after him; then he turned to draw Polly's arm within his, but Polly had slipped from his side to follow the deacon.

"Oh, please, Deacon Strong, please!" she pleaded. "You won't go away like that. He'll be all right if you'll only wait. I'm not coming back. I'm not—honestly. I'm going on with the show tonight, and I'm going this time forever."

"You are going to stay here with me!" cried Douglas.

"No, no, Mr. John! I've made up my mind, and I won't be to blame for your unhappiness." She faced him firmly now. "I don't belong to your world, and I don't want to try any more. I'm what he called me—I'm a circus riding girl. I was born in the circus, and I'll never change. That's my work—riding—and it's yours to preach. You must do your work, and I'll do mine."

OF PUBLIC INTEREST.

Citizens of Quincy.

We hereby appeal to the public and business men to read this letter that they may understand the condition of L. Grossman & Sons' junk storehouse.

In answer to a discussion held in the Council Chamber Monday night as printed in the columns of this paper Tuesday, we wish to explain why we are counted as a menace to public health and property, and why the junk collectors of Quincy are opposed to us.

We think the city should investigate all classes of junk handlers as well as our junk shop which is the best kept place in the city. As to locality, other handlers of junk are mostly situated in districts thickly settled, and without facilities for keeping junk. The city should be able to judge for themselves which is the menace to public health, and property. We invite the public to visit our place of business and will give any person $100.00 that can prove that we are a menace to public health and property.

Below we give reasons to show why we are not a menace to public health and property:

1st. We are situated on the end of Jackson street, with no traffic on the street as it is closed by the railroad at the end. We also own all the land on that side of the street clear to Pleasant street. Our front faces the railroad with no buildings within 300 feet which is clear across to the Water street railroad crossing. One side faces the stone shed of McGrath Bros., and on the back nearest Pleasant street is one house which a member of the firm lives in. Therefore we are away from public property.

2d. The Health Question:—We ininvite the public to examine our storehouse as to the health and sanitary conditions. We keep all rags and other such stock in the storehouse and not where it will be exposed to the weather and wind and carried to neighboring property. Our storehouse is one of the most up-to-date junk storehouses in New England. Other junk handlers of the city have their junk in the cellars of their homes and in the stables with the horses, while our stable is used only for horses and is away from the storehouse. Our stable is also sanitary as required by the city. We wish to thank the council for taking the matter of public health and property menacing into their hands and hope they will sift the question from top to bottom and see who really are a menace. Whether it is the junk storehouse with all the facilities and sanitary conditions of any up-to-date mill or those that keep their junk in the cellars of their homes.
